† There are also probably between 3,000 and 4,000 Natives in Uganda more or less under Christian instruction. These were last year inaccurately returned as regular Catechumens.

STATIONS, CLERICAL OR LAY MISSIONARIES, AND NATIVE CLERGYMEN,

ON JUNE 1, 1894.

 A STATION is the place at which a Clerical or Lay Missionary is stationed, or at which Native Christians are located under Native pastoral superintendence in connexion with the Society.

The figures after the Names of the European Labourers show the date of their first sailing for the Society's Missions, or of their reception into connexion in the field. Their University or College is indicated thus: Oxford, "Oxf."; Cambridge, "Camb."; Dublin, "T.C.D."; Durham, "Dur."; Archbishop of Canterbury's Degree, "Lamb."; Islington, "Isl."; London College of Divinity, "Lon. Coll. Div."; King's College, London, "K.C.L." In the case of men trained at the Society's Preparatory Institution, Clapham, or of ladies trained at the Willows and at the Society's Highbury Training Home, "Clapham," or "The Willows," or "Highbury," occurs after their names. The letter D. after the names of ordained men, whether European or Natives, indicates that they were Deacons at the above date.

The terms "Hon." and "partly Hon.," in parenthesis after the name of a Missionary, means that such Missionary draws no allowances or only a portion of the usual allowances. Where Missionaries are supported by individual friends of the Society or by Associations or other bodies, the fact is indicated. In the case of the Colonial Associations (N. S. Wales = New South Wales, Vict. = Victoria, New Z. = New Zealand) the Missionaries have been selected and, when necessary, also trained by the Associations.

*This mark * denotes that the Missionary to whose name it is prefixed is in Local Connexion. It includes Europeans who have joined in the Mission, and Clergymen who were born in the country in which they labour.*

The mark ‡ denotes that the name to which it is prefixed is that of an Agent supported by Native Church Funds, which are in most instances aided by the Society. The Native Ministers in New Zealand are supported partly by Subscriptions from Native Christians, and partly from the rents of lands belonging to the Society in the Colony.

The Names of Native Clergymen are printed in italics. The figures after their names show the date of ordination.

The maiden names of wives of European Missionaries and the year of marriage, when known, are given in parenthesis; in the case of each lady who was a Missionary of the Society before marriage, the Mission in which she laboured and the year of joining it are given; and in the case of ladies who were Missionaries of other Societies, the initials indicating the Society ("C.E.Z.M.S." = Church of England Zenana Missionary Society; "Z.B.M.M." = Zenana Bible and Medical Mission; "F.E.S." = Female Education Society) are given as well as the country and year of joining.

The names under each station are printed in order of date, without reference to nationality, sex, orders, or other difference; except that, the Secretaries of Missions are placed first in order at the stations where they reside, and wives of Missionaries in full connexion are placed in almost every instance immediately after their husbands.

At the Annual Meeting of the Church Missionary Society held at Exeter Hall, London, Tuesday, May 1st, 1894, being its Ninety-fifth Anniversary—

SIR JOHN H. KENNAWAY, Bart., M.P., President, in the Chair,

AFTER READING OF SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER;

The General Review of the Year was read, followed by the CHAIRMAN'S Address, after which, on a Motion by the RIGHT REV. THE LORD BISHOP OF LIVERPOOL, D.D., V.P., seconded by the REV. PREBENDARY WEBB-PEPLOE, it was Resolved—

I. That this Meeting, in view of the ever-increasing openings for Missionary enterprise and of the urgent necessity caused by the development of the work to strengthen existing Missions, records its thankfulness that the Committee maintain their deliberately adopted policy of not keeping back from the Field any accepted Missionaries, in the assurance that God honours faith and that He will not fail to maintain those whom He equips and calls.

This Meeting, therefore, prays God to grant to the members of the Society here present, and their fellow members throughout the country, such a fuller knowledge of the needs and such a deeper sense of personal responsibility as may enable them to dedicate themselves, their families, and their property, more unreservedly than ever to His service, to the end that this Society, and all similar enterprises, may be abundantly provided with the men and means so urgently required.

On a Motion by the RIGHT REV. BISHOP STUART, D.D., V.P., late of Waiapu, seconded by the REV. LL. LLOYD, of the South China Mission, it was Resolved—

II. That this Meeting, recognising the absolute dependence of the Society upon the guidance and power of God the Holy Spirit for all success, both in extending a knowledge and love of the Missionary Cause at home, and in prosecuting the various methods of evangelising the Heathen and Mohammedan peoples abroad, records its solemn conviction that no greater service can be rendered to the Cause than that of definite, constant, believing prayer—in private, family, and social worship—for Missions and Missionaries all round the World, and for the awakening of the whole Church to a due recognition of its great responsibility.

On a Motion by SIR RICHARD TEMPLE, Bart., G.C.S.I., M.P., V.P., seconded by the RIGHT REV. BISHOP TUCKER, D.D., V.P., it was Resolved—

III. That the General Review which has been read, together with the Report, of which an abstract has been presented, be adopted and printed under the direction of the Committee; that the thanks of the Meeting be given to the Reverend Edward Lombe for his Sermon before the Society last evening, and that it be printed and circulated; that Sir T. Fowell Buxton, Bart., be the Treasurer of the Society; and that the Committee be appointed for the ensuing year, with power to fill up vacancies.

THE ANNUAL SERMON,

Preached at St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, on Monday Evening, April 30th, 1894,

BY

THE REV. EDWARD LOMBE, B.A.,

Rector of Swanton Morley; Hon. Association Secretary for Norfolk.

"OFTENTIMES I PURPOSED TO COME UNTO YOU, BUT WAS LET HITHERTO. . . . I AM A DEBTOR BOTH TO THE GREEKS, AND TO THE BARBARIANS; BOTH TO THE WISE AND TO THE UNWISE. SO, AS MUCH AS IN ME IS, I AM READY TO PREACH THE GOSPEL TO YOU THAT ARE AT ROME ALSO. FOR I AM NOT ASHAMED OF THE GOSPEL OF CHRIST; FOR IT IS THE POWER OF GOD UNTO SALVATION TO EVERY ONE THAT BELIEVETH; TO THE JEW FIRST, AND ALSO TO THE GREEK. FOR THEREIN IS THE RIGHTEOUSNESS OF GOD REVEALED FROM FAITH TO FAITH."—Romans i. 13-17.

"I OFTEN purposed, but was let hitherto. . . . I am a debtor. . . . I am ready. . . . I am not ashamed."

Such were the weighty utterances of the large-hearted Paul, the man who actually did in his own one life that which we all, as members of the Church of Christ, stand bound under covenant engagement, directly or indirectly, to do: "Go into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature." Converted, moved, directed, enforced by the Divine Spirit, he literally evangelized the whole known world of his day. He could say to the Romans, "From Jerusalem, and round about unto Illyricum, I have fully preached the Gospel of Christ" (Romans xv. 19); to the Colossians, "The Gospel . . . reached you . . . as also in all the world, and is constantly bearing fruit" (Col. i. 6); to the Thessalonians he could speak of the word of the Lord sounding out not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but in every place (1 Thess. i. 8).

Admit, if you will, something of sanctified exuberance of language, fruit natural enough of a vaulting Christian ambition and an unlimited trust in the promise and the power of the living God: still, so far as the providence of God opened the way, and the Spirit of God suffered it, the Gospel was preached by Paul in every place, souls were saved, churches were formed all the known world over, and a Divine machinery was set on foot for the evangelization of "all the nations."

And what was the secret of it? His personal interest in the Gospel. "I believed, and therefore have I spoken." Long since, he had experienced in his own soul the influence of all the long-suffering of God (1 Tim. i. 16). He knew in himself what it was to be brought "out of the darkness into the light, and from the power of Satan unto God," and as a natural result he burned with holy zeal for the cause and the honour of the Saviour Whom he loved and trusted. Saved himself, he concluded that the Gospel which he had received, "not of man, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ" (Gal. i. 12), was meant for all. He held that the simple Gospel of the grace of God, which had met all his need, must be enough for all; and that Gospel, unfettered by ceremony, unmystified by philosophy, undiluted by human opinions, undisfigured by human incrustations, he set himself in the strength of God, as the ambassador of Christ, to proclaim throughout the world. You can read off all his heart's deep thoughts in the memorable words of the 2nd Epistle to the Corinthians: "God reconciled us to Himself by Jesus Christ, and gave to us the ministry of that reconciliation; to wit, that God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto Himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them, and having vested in us the word of that reconciliation. On behalf of Christ, therefore, we are ambassadors; as though God did beseech you by us, we are beseeching you, be ye reconciled to God" (2 Cor. v. 18–20).

Already Antioch, the great emporium of Oriental trade, Athens, the world's centre of philosophy, Corinth, the centre of her culture, and alas! of her corruption, Ephesus, too, the centre of Oriental Heathenism, and the worshipper of Diana, had received the blessed message, besides the Barbarians of many a country and city in Asia Minor; and as the result, some souls had been gathered out and become centres of life to diffuse life, centres of light to impenetrate the surrounding darkness that might be felt, centres of holy salt to arrest the world's awful corruption, centres of blessing to contribute their quota of blessing toward the blessing of all the families of the earth.

And now, filled with enthusiasm from on high, with the high courage of his opinions animating him, his heart yearning after the great centre of Pagan power, "Rome also" looms large upon his soul in the near, but as yet unmeasured, distance. To "preach the Gospel at Rome also" will be to grapple with the giant forces of Heathenism at its very heart, and win glory to Him who is always giving us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

But surely there was another reason for his purpose. The first page of his letter too plainly shows it. He could hardly be ignorant of what his philosophic contemporary had written, that in Rome "might was right, and truth unknown;" "where," continues the philosopher, "I cannot turn my eyes without seeing what excites my indignation; where all is full of wickedness and vice; where there is more wickedness than can be cured by coercion; where there is one continued engagement in a vast contest with iniquity; where the lust of sin daily grows, and a sense of shame diminishes; where respect for the good and the just has been expelled, and, look which way you will, lust asserts itself; where wicked acts are no longer concealed, but are done before your very eyes, and wickedness is so public, and so flames up in every breast, that innocence is no longer rare, but does not exist."

So wrote Seneca,* and Paul must have known it, and burned with holy indignation at it. It reminds one of the once well-known volume, "India's Cries," now quite forgotten, that so moved the hearts of our missionary forefathers. The India of to-day is not the India of fifty years since. "The spirit of Christianity has already pervaded the whole atmosphere of Indian society," said Chunder Sen, "and we breathe, think, feel, and move in a Christian atmosphere." It reminds us again of the bitter wail of the slave on the dark continent of Africa, and Fowell Buxton's volume on Slavery, of the horrors of cruelty then commonly practised in the Southern Seas—experiences now, thank God, much of the past, so wondrously has God blessed our feeble but obedient efforts in His Name.

What then? As at Athens, so as to Rome doubtless, Paul's heart was stirred within him when he saw the whole of society steeped in idolatry, its awful lie believed and blinding them, its consequent immorality ruining them. He saw with his own eyes, and heard with his own ears, that which moved his soul to its utmost depth; like our own Dean of Wells, who saw upon a heathen temple at Benares "scenes depicted too gross for pen to describe, scenes of vice, natural and unnatural, visible to all the world all the day long, worse than anything in the Lupanar of Pompeii"; like Mr. Selwyn, who during his visit to Western Africa wrote: "Never talk about Home Heathen any more in the same breath with dark Heathenism as it is here."

Silence was impossible. He had seen. He had heard. Can you conceive of a silent Livingstone, a silent Tucker? Many a traveller in these days has been moved to speak out, like Mrs. Bishop; many a scientist like Darwin or Meinicke. Is not our ignorance the mother of our unconcern, at best of our half-concernedness?

But Paul writes: "Oftentimes I purposed to come unto you but was let hitherto." Yes, like Henry Martyn and Bruce yearning after Persia, and Morrison after China, and Krapf after Eastern Equatorial Africa, and a multitude of others whose names are still a watchword, whose deeds are still an incentive, whose memorials are yet a sweet savour in the Churches. But while Paul thus purposed, because of his personal interest in the Gospel, and his knowledge of the fearful state of Heathendom, he had to wait God's time. He was "let hitherto"—God's time was not yet come. At present He had other work for him to do (as Paul intimates in Rom. xv. 22). As yet the Spirit suffered him not. And what a blessed thought that is, that amid all our unwillingnesses and mistakes, not to speak of human opposition and contempt, God's purpose is ever moving forward in its own undisturbed, unruffled course. The tide flows still ever steadily onward. The surface may be agitated, and ever will be, with the conflict of divergent human wills; storms, some greater, some lesser, may threaten destruction. It matters not. It is but the surface that is disturbed. A few fathoms below all is perfectly calm, and deep down beneath lies the Rock of Ages, the Church's one foundation, unmoved and untouched. Nothing shall prevail against it. It is more than reassuring to know that God's hand carries out God's purpose in God's time by means of God's own men. There is an economy of grace which arranges all, and carries out all. The Word is there and must be fulfilled: "All the kings of the earth shall praise Thee, O Lord, when they hear the words of Thy mouth; yea, they shall sing in the ways of the Lord, that great is the glory of the Lord" (Psalm cxxxviii. 4, 5). And again: "All kings shall fall down before Him, all nations shall serve Him" (Psalm lxxii. 11). And again: "He will famish all the gods of the earth, and men shall worship Him, every one from his place, even all the isles of the Heathen" (Zephaniah ii. 11). So has God said, and so shall it be. Not more true to the hour the shadow of the pyramid on the plain than God to the fulfilment of His promises. The day is nearing when some ancient leader in our noble cause shall truly bear his last testimony like another Joshua: "Behold this day I am going the way of all the earth, and ye know in all your hearts, and in all your souls, that not one good thing hath failed of all the good things which the Lord your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof" (Joshua xxiii. 14).

Beloved brethren and sisters, let us strive to realise it. Missionary work is no new departure, but the long-delayed working out in time of the plan and purpose of eternity. It is God by His mighty Spirit just then moving His people's hearts to work, while He moves Heathen hearts to open doors, and even Heathen hands to help.

How wonderful is this, as seen in Israel's story. Simultaneously almost, Daniel's mind is taught to "understand by books the number of the years," and to "seek by prayer and supplication" (Daniel ix. 2, 3). And the heart of Cyrus, the heathen king of Persia, is stirred to utter forth his proclamation that "the Lord hath charged him to build Him a house in Jerusalem" (Ezra i. 2). The history runs: "Then rose up all the chief of the fathers . . . with all them whose spirit God had raised, to go up and build the house, . . . and some of the chief of the fathers when they came to the house offered freely for the house of God" (Ezra i. 5, 6), for just then God raised up Haggai, who spake as the Lord's messenger in the Lord's message unto the people, and bade them "be strong, all ye people of the land, and work, for I am with you, saith the Lord of Hosts" (Haggai ii. 4).

Do not we stand much in the same position to-day? Long have we purposed, well-nigh a century, ever since the memorable April 12, 1799, to cover all Africa and the East with the Gospel. Hitherto we have been much hindered. Then, all India was barred by godless cupidity; China and Japan were closed by the memory of the unchristian doings and teachings of Jesuits; New Zealand and the isles of the Southern Seas by cannibalism; Africa by the slave-trade, while the geographical science of the day gave us only a blank for the vast continent of Central Africa, whose teeming millions were carefully hidden from Christian purview, with all their hideous monstrosities of iniquity. Now, all is open. There is access everywhere. Missionary enterprise and geographical discovery have brought to light all lands. Steam and electricity have made all their populations our neighbours, thereby accentuating our responsibilities. Alas! vast territories are yet unoccupied, but they are not inaccessible. Where can the Church not enter in? Where, then, is she not bound to enter in? Where is our own Society not bound to go, wherever in Africa or the East the God of Missions has opened the way? Where have we a right to refuse to "occupy," yea, and to occupy effectively, so far as men may, for God?

Has not God stirred up His modern Cyruses to open the long-barred gates of the world—of India, of China, of Korea, of Japan, it may be even of Thibet? And what of Uganda and Unyoro, and Singo and Kyagwe, and a multitude of other provinces and peoples time would fail us to enumerate? Is not God stirring up His Haggais and Zechariahs to plead and pray? Yea, and His people's spirits to go up and build? What mean our twice-repeated Simultaneous Meetings, our multitude of Unions, our Gleaners' and Sowers' bands, our frequent Missionary Exhibitions, our Deputations to foreign climes, our missionary literature which has attained to the vast dimensions of 3,800,000 papers in a year, and better, better far, our constant missionary Prayer-Meetings, our Thursday gatherings in yonder wondrous home that keeps in daily touch with all the world for Christ; our Cycles of Prayer, that every day, it should be in every home, draw out ten thousand hearts in devout thanksgiving and yearning prayer to the God of Missions?

What means this resolution of Committee, anxious to be just, yet too believing to shrink from the Divine call and its demands, to go forward in faith and refuse no good offer of service, sure that He who gives the agents will undoubtedly give the means? Why are we gathered here to-night and in another place also, save to have our minds stirred by way of remembrance as to the indefeasible right of all the nations to have the Gospel, and the unquestionable duty of every Christian, because he is a Christian, to provide for that right? Why to-morrow such thronging crowds, crushing in to hear and praise and pray, and that in more than one place of gathering? Our great Evangelical fathers, with all their deep-toned piety and wondrous eloquence, knew none of these experiences. Oh! surely it means that ours is a day of mighty privilege and responsibility. Before our very eyes the angel is flying through the heaven, having the everlasting Gospel to preach unto all them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred and tongue and people, saying with a loud voice, "Fear God, and give glory to Him" (Rev. xiv. 7).

We ourselves are here before God to be stirred to pray and work and freely give, and to go forth as one man, literally to go forth to the ends of the earth for God, if we can render Him no just reason why we should not go; or, if reasonably hindered, then at home to do all in our power to be working the work of the Lord, as Paul also and Timothy did.

That is our business, to "occupy," to trade with these grace-gifted souls for Him, to put the coin that bears His heavenly image, stamped by His own hand, into currency, and thus to win more souls for Him. "The Gospel must be," yes "must be," and it shall be, "first preached in all the world, and then"—blessed thought!—"then shall the end come."

But see the motives that lay behind Paul's action—"I am a debtor." How so? Paul hated debt, as every true Christian must, save to love one another, and that he loved because it was the fulfilment of the law. It moved him for this very work. Divine love knows no metes and bounds. "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son"—even He could give no more—"that whosoever (πᾶς) believeth in (εἰς) Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." That "whosoever" is the little hinge on which the great Gospel door of mercy swings wide open for a lost world. It must ring in our ears and move our hearts, as any reader of this Epistle can see it did move the heart of Paul. Listen to him in the tenth chapter and eleventh verse: "For the Scripture saith, Whosoever (πᾶς) believeth on Him shall not be ashamed. For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek, for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon Him. . . . How, then, shall they call on Him in whom they have not believed? And how shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher?" It is the word all (πᾶς) which fastens upon his soul, and rouses in him his yearning desire after all, and his imperative demand for heralds of the good things for all, and his injunction to pray for all.

Mark again, how that same love recognised a special debt. He is addressing Timothy, his beloved son, of whom he bears this peculiar testimony that "he worketh the work of the Lord, as I also do" (1 Cor. xvi. 10), and that, equal-souled with himself, he cares genuinely for the state of the young Christian Churches among the Heathen (Philip. ii. 20). He tells him of the healing doctrine that is in accordance with "the Gospel of the glory of the blessed God," and it reminds him of his trust. "Which was committed to my trust," he writes (1 Tim. i. 11).

Listen to him once more, as he writes to the Church of the Thessalonians (1 Thess. i. 5, 6). Filled with that one overmastering missionary thought, waked up into fresh vigour, because to them the Gospel had come not in word only, but in power and in the Holy Ghost,—so that they had become imitators of us and of the Lord, and ensamples unto all them that are in Macedonia and Achaia, for that the missionary spirit had seized their souls, and from them the Gospel sounded out in every place,—Paul writes: "As we were allowed of God to be put in trust with the Gospel, even so we speak, not as pleasing men, but God which trieth our hearts" (1 Thess. ii. 4).

Burning thought! "We are allowed to be put in trust with the Gospel"—that Gospel which the Divine Spirit dignifies with the name of "the Gospel of the glory of the blessed God." Our hearts burn within us, our souls are filled with fervid desire, our lips tremble to utter forth all;—"all," shall I say? Nay, such little parts of His wondrous ways of redeeming love as these poor souls of ours can conceive, the inexhaustible riches of His grace toward sinners, all summed up in the "Christ," "made of God unto us wisdom, even righteousness, sanctification and redemption." Inasmuch as we have received it, we are put in trust with it. We are to administer that trust for the benefit of those named in the deed. Who are they? Open the deed. Read. "I will bless thee . . . and thou shalt be a blessing . . . and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed."* Paul tells us in Galatians iii. 8 that "the Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Heathen through faith, forepreached the Gospel to Abraham that there shall be blessed in thee all nations," that, as he adds, "the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles in Jesus Christ, that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith." Thus from the very first the great saving doctrines of justification by faith only, and of sanctification by the Divine Spirit only, were proclaimed for all the nations; and these are the very cardinal truths which our six thousand agents with one unhesitating, harmonious voice are this day sounding throughout the world, from the Polar regions of La Pierre's House among the Esquimaux and Tukudh, and presently from Cumberland Straits, almost to South Polar climes among the Maoris, and from the shores of Japan to the very isles that breast the wild waves of the North Pacific.

What shall we say then? That common religious honesty demands missionary work. It is no religious luxury, no unneeded excrescence upon our religious system, no "hobby of a fevered brain," as I have heard it called, no mere scheme of benevolence, interchangeable with the Deep Sea Mission, or some other equally valuable agency; no, but the bounden duty, nay, rather, the blessed privilege, which no loving heart can forego that believes in Jesus and knows what it is to have touched Him and felt the power that came forth from Him to pardon and to bless. Blessed be God, the high-toned portion of the secular press scruples not to say to-day: "The proclamation of Christianity to all the world is, according to the teaching of its Divine Author, at once the goal of the human race and the purpose in which the present order will find its term . . . It is too late to speak of efforts as futile and fanatic which have literally girdled the world with a chain of missionary stations, and those who speak scornfully of Missions are simply men behind the age."*

How is it then, dear brethren and sisters in the Lord, that all the gifts of all the Protestant Churches of the United Kingdom for God's missionary work amount to less than 1½ millions,‡ and those of our beloved Protestant and Evangelical Church to but £686,692? How is it that some 5,000 parishes contribute nothing to any Church of England Missionary Society? How is it that that sad count of indictment against Israel in the days of Nehemiah is still true: "But their nobles put not their necks to the work of their Lord" (Nehemiah iii. 5)? How is it that multitudes of professing Christians never give "worthily of God"? Meanwhile England and Wales, with a population of 29 millions, consume spirits to the value of 27½ millions sterling, 16 millions worth of tobacco, and 78½ millions in beer! Ought not the word "deficiency" to be expunged from the missionary vocabulary?

Nay, what means this, which, alas! is too common still,—though the call to work is deep and loud and continuous, and even authorities in high places are moved at last to take some public action,—that there exists a parish or a congregation without a genuine missionary appeal at all, a clergyman without any information at all, a Christian brother or sister without an idea of the need of the world, and the work of the Church and the just demand of God; one who never says a word, or does a thing, or uses a prayer for its advancement? Surely all this must be altered, and WE must do it, and do it by our influence and example. Nay, missionary work is the burning question of the day. The Christian Churches are engaged in forming the Church of the future, and our business is to fulfil our trust. We are "debtors" both to the Greek and to the Barbarian, both to the cultivated Pagans of India and China and the uncultivated Heathen of Central Africa. Let us see to it that the debt is paid.

Thus far we have seen Paul's purpose and his motive. He proceeds further to add, and we must gladly add, with him, readiness of mind and will: "So as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the Gospel to you that are at Rome also."

The will and the mind go out to it.

Ready am I, because I am the child of God, and desire, with Jesus, to "do always such things as please Him."

Ready am I, because I am the servant of the Lord, dignified by admission into His household, called into His vineyard to do His will, to cultivate His sacred enclosure for Him, and complete His work.

Ready am I, because I long, with the true spirit of an heir of God and joint heir with Christ, to see the world's fortresses levelled for His honour and glory, and all mankind obedient to His will.

Alas! for the dishonour done to Him by Heathenism and Mohammedanism! Think of 170 to 180 millions of Mohammedans rejecting Jesus, in whose person is given all the light of the knowledge of God. Take such a Sura as this from their Koran: * "Every mortal necessarily must once go to hell; it is obligatory on God to send all men necessarily once to hell, and afterwards He may pardon whom He will." Well might the heart of the Moulvie Imad-ud-dîn be pierced with it like a thorn; well might that foul slander concerning a God who delighteth in mercy effect in his honest, though then blinded, soul the first dislodgment of fatal untruth, and lay the foundation of that distinguished career which is still such a blessing to the Punjab. And all the while the Word of God has said, "Who is a God like unto Thee, that pardoneth iniquity? . . . He delighteth in mercy. He will turn again. He will have compassion upon us; He will subdue our iniquities; and Thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea" (Micah vii. 18, 19).

Or read the latter half of the first chapter of this epistle—too, too true to-day of Heathen populations. It is thus that at least 1,000 millions of souls are to-day dishonouring the God of all the earth. Think of one section of them, whose system denies the existence of a God, and bids its followers seek, not everlasting life, which is the gift of God, but something which they call Nirvâna. What though there be some faint scintillations of light in that so-called "Light of Asia" † in such a passage of

* Quoted from Imad-ud-dîn's Autobiography.

† The present writer thinks it may be worth recording that Sir Edwin Arnold, author of "The Light of Asia," was a passenger with the Rev. Dr. Ashmore on the Belgic from San Francisco to Yokohama, and in conversation with him said that "The Light of Asia" was to be regarded simply as a poem. In regard to his supposed views, he said: "I have been criticised for an implied comparison between Buddhism and Christianity in regard to doctrine derived from them, and principles contained in them respectively. No such object was in my mind. For me, Christianity, rightly viewed, is the crown-queen of religion, immensely superior to every other; and though I am so great an admirer of much that is great in Hindu philosophy and religion, I would not give one verse of 'The Sermon on the Mount' away for twenty epic poems like the 'Mahabharata,' nor exchange the Golden Rule for twenty Upanishads."

the Tripitaka as this: "Man having many faults, if he does not repent, will find sins rushing upon him like water to the sea." Turn over another page and read: "The human teacher is the redeemer, and man can save himself." And all the while the Book of God declares: "There is none other God but one." "I, even I, am the Lord, and beside Me there is no Saviour." "There is one Mediator between God and man, the Man Christ Jesus."

Or what shall we say of Hinduism, which affirms the Brahmin to be part of God, and deifies vice; a system which admits that salvation is the chief object of man, and that to show the way of salvation is the true end of religion, and all the while looks at sin more as a misfortune than as a disease, and looks for deliverance from it, not by change in the individual himself, but by final deliverance from existence; a system which believes in a vicarious atonement for sin, but it is to be made by himself in another life of sin and suffering, so that sin is never cured and justice is never satisfied? Meanwhile men and women are dying by millions, who know not God, and never heard the name of Jesus—

> "Dying, yes, dying by thousands,
> A hopeless, despairing death.
> Can ye not hear them calling,
> Calling with bated breath,
> Will no one come over and give us the light?
> Must we perish in darkness, darker than night?"

Why, oh! why, are our hearts not stirred within us, stirred with indignation at the dishonour done to our Redeemer's name? Why not, no less really if in a less poignant degree, at the sad lot of those who live and die with the words on their lips, "My shasters do not satisfy me; I do not know God; I want forgiveness and can find none"? "I know I sin, but how to deal with it I know not. Can you tell me?" "Our gods are so cruel, I dare not face them." "All our idolatries are useless, but what is a poor Gond to do?"

Men, brethren and sisters, shall this last decade of the nineteenth century after Christ close upon the Church, and Heathenism in any part still gain on Christianity? Shame, shame be upon us if it be so! "We have been put in trust with the Gospel." Christians have been in that trust more than eighteen and a half centuries. Nay, more, "Woe be to (us) if (we) preach not the Gospel." I know well the question is still asked by some, who surely can never have read or pondered well the teachings of the Divine Word, Cannot the Heathen, the Mohammedan, the Jew be saved without the Gospel? But the question is rather, "Can we be saved without giving them the Gospel in obedience to the Divine command? Can we be saved, who coldly yield a half-obedience, so that if this department of the Christian life were dropped out it would scarcely be missed?

Can we be saved who leave one word unspoken for the Divine Master which we could utter, one deed of love undone which we could do, one gift unbestowed which we by common self-denial might have given, one power of influence unused which we had it within our reach to exercise, that His will might be done, His people gathered in, His Name glorified? Surely we need to have more of the readiness of Paul.

But Paul had the courage of his convictions. "I am not ashamed," he wrote, "of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth."

Let us bear in mind that he proposed to attack the great centre of brute force, "where might is right, and truth unknown." I am not concerned to produce further proofs of the fearful condition of the then population of Rome. Our chapter in a few telling touches sketches out a picture so dark, so terrible, so repellent, that to this day we turn from it in disgust, and ask, Is it possible that man, whom God made upright, in His own image, can, by the inventions which he has found out, have made himself so degraded? And all we can say is, Look around. Every fresh addition to the multiplied and ever-multiplying literature of Missions only reveals fresh horrors.

The foulness and the cruelty of the Maori, which startled some of us in our childhood, are equalled to-day by the horrors of the New Hebrides and Central Africa, and, alas! by the brutality of the Chinese. We had hardly learnt to speak with equanimity of the refined wickedness of the Nana Sahib, cultivated without the Gospel, and the terrors which environed Cawnpore and Delhi, before our hearts were rent, and unbidden tears were forcing themselves from our eyes, as we read of Lugulama and others in Uganda, mutilated and slowly roasted to death. These are but specimens, and still as ever unchristian worldliness opposes and vilifies whatever is most real and genuine; and there is reason for it, it is to be feared, in their ungodliness.

But no stronghold of Satan to-day is worse than ancient Rome. No opposition is more virulent. Then, as now, the ambassador of Christ went forth with his life in his hands. A Peter, a Paul, a John it is believed, a Polycarp, all fell victims to the tyranny of Heathendom. And can we forget our Livingstones, our Hanningtons and Pattesons among the dead; our Tuckers and our Patons among the living? James Hannington said to me, "In all probability I shall be massacred, and what if my one poor little life be sacrificed to cut a way for my Master into the heart of Africa?" Paul could say, "We are the offscouring of all things; . . . set forth last as it were appointed unto death," and yet he could avouch, "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ." Whatever the form of false teaching, the Gospel of Christ can cope with it. Whatever the opposition, the power of God can overcome it. India, China, Japan, Madagascar, New Zealand, Fiji, and now Central Africa, all yield their witnesses. "The Gospel is" still as ever "the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." We are aware that its success is due to Divine power, and to Divine power alone. We know that "Almighty God, Who alone worketh great marvels," alone can effect the new creation of souls, and the sanctification of human lives; but in simple trust we look for such marvels, and we see them. Long since Karl Ritter, the great scientist, wrote: "New Zealand Christianity is the standing miracle of the age. Without a miracle such an establishment of Christianity is impossible." This witness is true, true of every field where the Gospel has reached, and is still yielding fruit.

It is this miracle power upon which we have depended, and still depend in our ninety-fifth year. It is the supernatural factor in the Gospel, "the power of God," in which our confidence is reposed. The words of our great Missionary statesman, Henry Venn, still record our principles, and deserve constant reiteration. They were written in a memorable year of crisis, more than half a century since, when men and money, as now, were sorely needed. The Evangelical body then gave for our Missions but £84,000, where they now give £256,000; and men mused in their hearts then, as they muse now, Will the Church ever rise to her privileges and fulfil her responsibilities? They thought then, the days may yet come when our annual receipts will reach £100,000; and we now think, and are sure they must, and that immediately, be advanced to £300,000. And why not? If the world, or even the Church, asks why, we answer without hesitation, "Because the Lord hath need of it."

It was this great minute which settled for ever the principle of independent and separate action; "While earnestly desiring that the Divine blessing may rest, not only on the Church Missionary Society, but on every other Society having for its object the extension of the Redeemer's kingdom or the edification of His Church, whether in this country or abroad, whether among those who profess or among those who have not yet received the Gospel of Christ." *

Mr. Venn wrote: "Let it not be supposed that it is on silver or gold or patronage that the Committee found their hopes of success. God forbid! It is the faithful, plain, and full maintenance of those great principles of the truth as it is in Jesus, by all the agents and missionaries of this Society, without compromise and without reserve; it is the sustentation of that Scriptural, Protestant, and Evangelical tone throughout all their ministrations, it is the upholding of the Bible, and the Bible alone, as the foundation and rule of faith, upon which the blessing of God has rested, does and ever will rest." †

sins through the tender mercy of our God, granted to every soul that believeth in Jesus; it is that, and that alone, in its simplest form, which is the one effectual means, alike in the hands of the pleader at home and the missionary abroad. In it, and in it alone, is there revealed that which lost and ruined man most needs to effect his restoration—"the righteousness of God from faith to faith," that which as it becomes ours in actual possession by faith, so is revealed to our faith, that by faith we may embrace it.* And no other thing do we need, no other thing must we use, by God's help no other thing will we employ. We must have the Gospel in all its naked simplicity, without subtraction, addition, or incrustation. Nothing but life can communicate life. There is no life in any priestly system and its concomitants, unsanctioned as they are alike by Bible and Prayer Book. Organisation and ceremonies are equally void of quickening force; but the Gospel is "the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." Life force in living men, "alive unto God in Christ Jesus our Lord," is what we need. We ask for men and women who can say, "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me," who know in their own deep heart's experience what are the mighty pulsations of the Divine Spirit, and can say, like Micah of old, "I am full of power by the Spirit of Jehovah" (Micah iii. 8). Paul felt it, and avouched it. Let us as one man take up afresh to-night the same resolution, "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." Paul's thought was, I am aware that I have nothing but spiritual force to oppose alike to brute force and subtle distortions of Divine philosophy; aware that the truth represents to the world, in its darkness, nought but shame and disgrace, in the person of the Crucified One of Nazareth Whom we preach. I know that to the Jew with his dead ritual it is a stumbling-block, and to the philosophic Greek foolishness. They said at Athens, "What meaneth this babbler?" They cried at Ephesus, "Our craft is in danger." They scoffed in Corinth at what they regarded as a question of words and names. The Jews, filled with envy, spake against these things, contradicting and blaspheming. Alas! men say strange things now of the old Gospel, though every clime and race and language is still yielding fresh trophies of its power. But still Paul said, "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ." I dare for Christ, and in place of shame I am filled with confidence. Why? Because the Gospel is the exerted power of God. It carries with it Divine power to each believing soul. Paul knew it in his own personal experience, and what he felt he could explain. A spiritual man himself, he knew spiritual truth experimentally. There is the value of spiritual men for spiritual work. It was well laid down in 1799 by John Venn, as a first principle of our work, "He that goes forth should be taught of heaven, should have heaven in his heart, should tread the world under his feet."

And Paul succeeded. Shall I not rather say, God succeeded in Paul? for Paul was nothing, and Apollos nothing, but God who was giving the increase. Even in Cæsar's household, even in the headquarters of Heathenism, souls were converted to Christ, believers were added to the Church. And that Gospel has lost nothing of its power. There is no such thing as waste or decline of Divine power. The world may have lost something of its receptivity for it, or never have experienced it; the Church may want, and does want, the appetite for it, and requires the assimilating power renewed in her, but the old power is there. We need no "handling of the trinkets of Rome," no altars, no heathenish trappings. Nay, we need no new presentation of the Gospel, but the old truth, "Jesus Christ and Him crucified," charged with the old power of the Divine Spirit; the truth in the heart first, and then on the lips; the Word of God in the hand, and the Word of God in the pulpit; the Spirit of God honoured by believing prayer and holy expectation. We want nothing else. God helping us, we will use nothing else. This is what we have to wield at home, keeping the basis of our operations sound and secure. This is what we have to wield abroad, for the demolition of Satan's strongholds, and the building up of Churches in their most holy faith. We have no need of change now. Our principles are tried and proven. We live in just hopes that our nearing Centenary will find the old Society true to those first principles, believing still, and acting upon it, that, "of all the blessings which God has bestowed on mankind, the Gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ is the greatest, . . . the sovereign remedy for all the evils of life, and the source of the most substantial and durable benefits."* The traditions of well-nigh a century remain with us. Let us be ever true to those traditions, bold in our avouchment of them; ever full of the spirit of holy purpose, to honour God and complete His work; ever realising our indebtedness to a sin-pauperised world, in that we have been put in trust with the Gospel for it; ever actuated by a spirit of readiness to be what Christ will have us be, His fellow-workers; to go where Christ will have us go, though it be to the very ends of the earth; to do what Christ will have us do, "preach the Gospel to every creature," and, as "fellow-helpers to the truth," give, yea, so give that we bring forward the messengers of the Churches worthily of God, in no niggard spirit, because we must, but with glad heart, because we may—never ashamed of the Gospel of Christ. Humbling ourselves before God in deep penitence for all the confessed shortcomings of the past, and mindful of all the opportunities and demands of the present, back let us all go to Christ, the great Captain of our salvation.

* Original prospectus of C.M.S.

Let us renew our faith in Him, our fealty to Him, our sense of responsibility for Him. And with all our power and all our might, freshly invigorated by renewed contact with Him, satisfied and reassured by the reinvestigation of our principles, strengthened with great might by His Spirit in the inner man, let us go back, each to our place in the vast building, and our work in it, filled by God with wisdom of hearts to work all manner of work, such as He shall apportion to us. Aye, let us work on all the days even unto the end.

It is early morning with some of us. "Awake, awake, put on strength." Forth to thy work, brother, sister! Employ thy young vigour in the good Master's service. Forth to the field, while you yet may, and claim your part in the noble enterprise, the only work that Jesus left to His Church to do.

With some mid-day is past. It is no time to rest yet, brother. Up! up! and be doing. It is the work-day still. The blessed Sabbath-keeping lies yet beyond.

With some amongst us it is eventide. Hoar heads and consciously failing powers betray it. But there is daylight yet, and we must use it. "Make haste! make haste! the light is all but gone." Thus once a district visitor, on her errand of mercy, heard a poor workwoman say as the twilight gathered round. Make haste, brother! make haste, sister! we venture to say to you.

I mind me well, how in that memorable meeting at Ranceby on March 18, 1799,* among those twice seven for the Church (bis-septem pro ecclesiâ), there rose up the venerable Charles Simeon, who already in earnest, with characteristic promptitude, asked, "What can we do? when shall we do it? how shall we do it?" Replying himself to the question "What?" he said, "We must stand forth at once;" to the inquiry "When?" "Directly;" to the inquiry "How?" "It is hopeless to wait for missionaries; send catechists." So let us stand forth afresh, with life and resolution a thousandfold renewed, for hath not our God prospered us? and let us do it directly. Not a moment must be lost. The Heathen are perishing. The world is open. The Divine Master is at hand. We need not wait for missionaries. God has given, is giving, will give them; and with them, if we are faithful and pray, will give us grace to send them forth "worthily of God."

"Worthily of God," "after a godly sort." So wrote the loving Apostle John in his third Epistle. And shall we not take up the thought? We have learned that there is a deficiency in the income of the past year, and we gather that there is a general deficiency in the annual income to meet the continually and necessarily growing demands of our Master. Some £13,000 is lacking.† A larger income to carry on larger work, given us by our Lord to do, is manifestly needed. And Tucker and Tugwell, and Evington and Stuart, and a host more of honoured and blessed men and women are gone but recently, or going forth, in the strength of our Lord, to the forefront of the battle, "for His Name's sake, taking nothing of the Gentiles." Shall we sadden their hearts, or weaken their force, by withholding from them of our abundance? Yes, I dare to say, "of our abundance," for with all our agricultural and commercial depression, England teems with her abundance. Your streets and haunts of pleasure testify it. The treasured savings alike of rich and poor attest it. Nay, nay, beloved brethren and sisters, this must not, this shall not be. God helping us, we will send them forth "worthily of God." There shall be no debt. There shall be no lack of the needed commissariat. We at home are, or ought to be, their "fellow-helpers to the truth." Let this night, let to-morrow prove it. Let us revive the memories of 1842, and though no Hugh Stowell be here, as then, with his voice of eloquence and power of influence to enforce, let us resolve, in the Name of the Lord, the debt shall be wiped out at once, the income shall rise with increasing demand. We have sent forth the servants of the Lord to do His work and rescue His souls from Satan's awful power. The silver and the gold we need are His. We will "ask the Lord (for it), and tell His servants." Yes, and we will give ourselves, and give now. So shall we act as fellow-helpers to the truth, and send them forth worthily of God.

† This deficiency had been more than covered even before the preacher spoke

"O Lord, we beseech Thee mercifully to receive the prayers of Thy people, which call upon Thee, and grant that they may both perceive and know what things they ought to do, and also may have grace and power faithfully to fulfil the same, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

REPORT,

&c., &c.

GENERAL REVIEW OF THE YEAR.

(READ AT THE ANNIVERSARY IN EXETER HALL.)

"This Man, after He had offered one sacrifice for sins for ever, sat down on the right hand of God; from henceforth expecting till His enemies be made His footstool." (Heb. x. 12, 13.)

Christ expecting.

"From henceforth expecting." Such is the attitude of Him whose Ascension to the throne of the Eternal God we this week commemorate. "Expecting," till the final victory shall be His, and all enemies be put under His feet. "Expecting," till the way shall be prepared for His return to complete that victory. "Expecting," till His servants have proclaimed to every kindred and tongue and people and nation the glad tidings of the "one sacrifice for sins for ever," so that the work of "witness" may be accomplished, and the elect Church gathered in. While many of those servants are "busy here and there" with anything and everything except the one thing He has bid them do, Christ is "expecting." While some in His visible Church are claiming to repeat continually the "one sacrifice for sins" which He offered once for all, and while others are denying it altogether, Christ is "expecting." While some who hold the grand truth are content to declare it over and over again to the same people, and forget that more than half the population of the globe have never yet heard it at all, Christ is "expecting." As the husbandman "waiteth" for—"expecteth" (the Greek word is the same)—the precious fruit of the earth, Christ is "expecting." We know, and rejoice to know, that our "expectation" is from Him; but equally true is it, that His "expectation" is from us.

The Committee of the Church Missionary Society, recollecting that the eye of the expecting, waiting, watching Lord is upon them and all their friends, present their Ninety-fifth Annual Report with a deep sense of the utter inadequacy of the Society's efforts to fulfil His great commission, yet with unfeigned thankfulness for the blessing which, nevertheless, He has graciously vouchsafed.

At Home:

I. First looking at home, the Committee see much to call for thanksgiving and much to call for prayer.

Public Opinion.

1. Missions are more and more generally recognised as a primary duty of the Church of Christ; and their success is more and more generally acknowledged. The daily newspapers record the proceedings of missionary societies; the leading reviews notice missionary reports and periodicals; in Church circles not hitherto enthusiastic in support of the cause there are many tokens of a growing sense of responsibility. The Committee observe these changes in both secular and ecclesiastical public opinion with thankful interest, while at the same time they cannot but feel that they involve, on the part of the Church Missionary Society, the need of continued watchfulness in cleaving to and guarding those spiritual and evangelical principles and methods which have been its strength from the beginning. Secular patronage must not tempt it to put civilisation before Christianity; and ecclesiastical support must not tempt it to take any step which may endanger its rightful independence as a voluntary association of Churchmen engaged in sending the pure and simple Gospel to the Heathen. But the Committee believe that the Society's just liberties, and the spiritual lines on which it seeks to work, were never more cordially recognised in high places than they are at present.

C.M.S. Progress.

2. Within what may be called C.M.S. circles the Committee are thankful to observe distinct signs of progress. There is more prayer; missionary prayer-meetings, fostered by the Unions and Bands now so common in C.M.S. parishes, are multiplying. For missionary literature there is a rapidly growing demand year by year. Prayer creates a desire for knowledge; and knowledge in its turn stimulates prayer.

Missionary Candidates.

3. Candidates for missionary service continue to come forward in considerable numbers. Ninety-three have been accepted in the past year, against 81 in the preceding year. The increase, the Committee are glad to say, is in the number of men, 45 against 31. These include 18 University men and two retired officers of the army. The total includes six missionaries sent forth by the new Associations in Australia and New Zealand, making nine in eighteen months. The progress of these Colonial Associations, three of which are now in full working order, with an aggregate income already of over £1,500, is one of the happiest features of the year. Evangelical friends in Canada are planning a similar organisation.

4. The financial deficit of 1892–93, caused by the rapid increase in the number of missionaries, led the Committee to consider gravely whether they were justified in continuing their recent policy of sending out all who were accepted. The result was a reaffirmation of their assurance that God honours faith, and that He will not fail to incline the hearts of His people to maintain as many as shall be plainly called by His Spirit. He has now graciously vouchsafed another token of His favour in the wonderful answer to prayer regarding the deficit of 1893–94. It is right, indeed, that the whole Society should face the fact that a continuously growing staff must of necessity involve a continuously growing expenditure. But when the Committee remember that they have been enabled in ten years to double the number of missionaries, and that they are enabled to spend £50,000 a year more now than ten years ago, they dare not doubt that the Lord who has so graciously made such an advance possible will still supply the funds needed, provided only that the Society will exercise both faithfulness and faith. Funds.

II. In reviewing the Society's Missions, the Committee this year adopt a topical instead of a geographical order, and call attention first to the work and the workers, and then to some of the results by God's grace accomplished. Abroad:

1. First, in regard to the diversity of method in the work of evangelization. Varied as are the agencies employed, not one can be spared; and upon each and all in turn is seen to rest the blessing of the Lord. The Jubilee of the Noble High School, celebrated last November, recalls the life of one of the holiest of missionaries, and illustrates the value of that educational work in which his whole career was spent, and through which so many high-caste converts were brought to Christ, who are still the leaders of the Telugu Church, though "some are fallen asleep." The baptism of the first direct convert of the Associated Evangelists in the Nuddea district reminds us that even in the simpler work of itinerant preaching, the spiritual husbandman may have to exercise "long patience," "waiting for the precious fruit." The truly marvellous influence of the printed book or leaflet in Uganda, and the eager demand for Gospels, catechisms, and prayer-books—about 5,000 copies having been sold monthly last year—throw a new light upon the high and holy functions of a literary and translating missionary like Mr. Pilkington; and several of the Society's missionaries, in many lands, are continually supplying "copy" for the printers of the Bible Society, the S.P.C.K., and the Religious Tract Society. The Medical Missions at Cairo, Gaza, Baghdad, Mombasa, Amritsar, Fuh-ning, Hang-chow, Pak-hoi, in Kashmir and on the Afghan Frontier, gather thousands under the sound of the Gospel; while the use of simple medical appliances and remedies by Christian men, and women too, with no claim to be called medical missionaries, has brought sin-stricken souls face to face with the Great Healer, in African, Indian, and Chinese villages, in difficult fields like Persia, and on the far-off coasts of British Columbia. Indeed, the development of woman's work of all kinds is perhaps the most striking feature in current C.M.S. history. During the year, new bands of female evangelists have been sent to Yoruba and Ceylon; the Missions in East Africa, Palestine, and Japan, which especially owe much to this recent extension of the Society's operations, have received further reinforcements of picked and trained women; while in India, the missionaries of the Church of England Zenana Society and the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission continually extend their blessed work in C.M.S. districts, visiting the zenanas, teaching in the villages, superintending the girls' schools, training the Bible-women, and in some cases devoting high medical qualifications to the work, not only of ministering to sick bodies, but also of winning souls to Christ.

Women's Work.

Native Ministry.

2. Of all branches of the Missionary Enterprise, perhaps the most important is the training of Native evangelists, pastors, and teachers. Upon them must always come the chief burden of the work, whether of evangelizing the Heathen or of instructing the converts. The Committee thank God for the 24 men ordained to the ministry of the Church of England during the past year, African, Syrian, Bengali, Tamil, Maori, Red Indian; most of them trained in the Society's Divinity Schools, not in head-knowledge only but in practical spiritual work; some of them the chiefs of their race, as in Uganda, some of them simple villagers, and one of them a Tukudh Indian unlearned in the learning of the schools, but for many years a Christian leader in his tribe, and now the first Native clergyman ever ordained within the Arctic Circle. The value to the infant Churches gathered out of Heathendom of picked men thus set apart for the sacred ministry is illustrated by the recent mourning for the late Rev. David Mohun, of Allahabad; by the singularly happy influence of the Rev. Dzing Teh Kwong at Tai-chow, as testified by Mr. Hoare; by the Rev. George Champion's retrospect of 50 years' ministry, as catechist and as pastor, among the Tamils of Ceylon; and by the notable reception of the Rev. Ruttonji Nowroji on his return to Aurangabad after his recent visit to England, not by his Native flock only, but by the Hindus, Moslems, and Parsees, and by the British civil and military officers. To be the instrument in God's hands for preparing and inspiring men like these is the highest of missionary honours; and the Committee call upon the best and ablest of the younger clergy at home to consider whether the Lord is not summoning them to such a work, either on the West African coast, or in Uganda, or in the growing Churches of China and Japan, or in Indian colleges like that of Lahore, whence the Rev. F. A. P. Shirreff is retiring after 20 years' most valued service.

3. Scarcely less important are the boarding-schools for the sons of Christian parents, from among whom are to come the evangelists and teachers of the future. The Committee rejoice to have men to conduct these schools from Oxford, Cambridge, and Islington alike, who have had special opportunities at home of gaining experience of work among boys, and have special tact and winsomeness in using them. At Calcutta, Taljhari, Batala, Cottayam, Kandy, Fuh-chow, Osaka, and elsewhere, bright young lives are being happily influenced, and being dedicated to the service of the Lord. And none the less fruitful is the work of the boarding-schools for Christian girls at Sierra Leone, Lagos, Jerusalem, Calcutta, Amritsar, Palamcotta, Osaka, and other places. Boarding Schools.

4. Passing over, for lack of time, the important duties of the brethren more particularly occupied in building up the Native Christian communities and leading them to self-extension, self-government, and self-support, there is one more branch of missionary labour and responsibility to be mentioned—the Missionary Episcopate. Six of the Society's missionaries have been consecrated during the year; and the Committee call upon the whole Society to remember in prayer Bishop Newnham, of Moosonee; Bishop Evington, of Kiu-shiu; Bishop Tugwell, of Western Equatorial Africa; and especially the two African brethren, Bishops Charles Phillips and Isaac Oluwole, the worthy successors of Samuel Crowther, and the precursors, as the Committee earnestly trust, at no distant date, of other Native Bishops, in Asia as well as in Africa. May each and all be endued with singular gifts of the Holy Ghost, and fully fitted for the very diverse but equally solemn spheres of work to which they have been called! Of the sixth, the deeply-lamented Joseph Sidney Hill, what can the Committee say? They would quote his own last burning words in Exeter Hall, on November 1st: "Look upon the millions that are without Christ in the world, and you will find an altar, and may God help you to be a sacrifice!" A sacrifice indeed, "a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God," were the lives of Bishop and Mrs. Hill. Were they a wasted sacrifice? Some have dared to ask, "To what purpose was this waste?" But, as the Bishop of Carlisle said at the Exeter Hall meeting to bid God-speed to Bishops Tucker, Evington, and Tugwell, "Borrow not words from the lips of Judas Iscariot!" Had God no purpose in the early death of Bishop Hannington? Has He not made it an inspiration to the whole Church? And the purpose shall yet be seen which He had in the deaths of that husband and wife at Lagos of whom it was so true, that "they were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their deaths they were not divided."

Missionary Bishops.

Bishop Hill.

Results.

III. The Committee now turn to Results.

Social Changes.

1. In every Mission field the general effects produced by the diversified agencies just enumerated are visible to all who are willing to see them. The large Christian communities in West Africa and South India are not perfect; but churches filled with worshippers, and schools with well-taught children, present a striking contrast to the slave-raiding and devil-dancing they have supplanted. It is Chinese Christians themselves who, by their own voluntary decision, forbid the foot-binding of girls, and require total abstinence from opium as a condition of Christian fellowship. From Manitoba, Archdeacon Phair sends a striking account of the wondrous change wrought by the Gospel among the Red Indian population. Of one district he says, "There is not a conjuror, not a polygamist, not a medicine-man in the whole place. Twelve miles of a beautiful river, with houses on either side, gardens cultivated, churches and schools along its banks, and the Sabbath observed in a way that might well be an example to white people in older lands. . . . The men who, with painted faces and plaited hair, spent their days and nights in yelling and beating the drum, are now found clothed and in their right mind, sitting at the feet of Jesus."

Especially Uganda.

But the most complete and conspicuous picture of the transformation wrought in a nation by the advent of Christianity is drawn by Bishop Tucker and the missionaries in Uganda. The great church reared by the people themselves; the wonderful services held in it, especially when the bones of Hannington were laid to rest in the presence of the king who ordered his murder; the abolition of slavery and the liberation of the slaves by the Protestant chiefs; the refusal of the same chiefs to allow women to be passed from hand to hand in payment of debts and fines; the order, decorum, and fairness of the national assemblies and tribunals, once the scenes of cruelty and vice; and the disgrace now attaching to immoralities which were the ordinary incidents of daily life a few years ago:—all these are fruits of the Mission, the greatness of which the world, seeing only what it calls "religious rivalries," utterly fails to comprehend. As regards the plans of the British Government for the future of Uganda, the Committee thank God that the country is not to be allowed to fall into anarchy; and they earnestly trust that the Englishmen who will have its administration virtually in their hands may be men whose presence will be a help to the cause of true religion.

2. The inadequacy of statistical returns as a gauge of true missionary progress has perhaps led the Committee sometimes to say too little concerning the number of baptisms actually reported. For the last few years they have averaged annually about 3,500 of adult converts, and 7,000 of the children of Christian parents; which is equivalent to an average of ten adult converts and twenty children every day in the year. So far as is yet known, these figures have been more than maintained in the past year. Of adult baptisms there have been 596 in Tinnevelly, 621 in Travancore, about 500 in the rest of India, 438 in Uganda, 79 in other parts of East Africa, 158 in Ceylon, 545 in China, and 459 in Japan. Some other figures are not yet to hand. Many of the individual cases reported are striking illustrations of the varied ways in which God brings souls to Himself. They include several converts from Mohammedanism. One, a well-educated manufacturer in North India, owes his conversion to his lighting upon an old Urdu Testament given to his father many years ago by the late William Smith, of Benares. One is an Afghan, the first-fruits of the new Medical Mission at Bannu. One is the fruit of the evangelistic work so well organised by the Native Church at Madras. Seven were baptized at Bombay, one of them from Peshawar, another from Kashmir, and a third from Kerbela on the Euphrates, the sacred city of the Shiah Moslems. A Native Government surgeon was baptized at Calcutta after many years' struggle. Several Brahmins in different parts of India have been baptized; and the Santals and the Gonds continue to furnish many recruits to the army of the Lord. In the Telugu country, fifty converts were baptized at one time by immersion in the village tank. Ceylon, the Fuh-Kien Province, and Japan, supply cases of deep interest. There has been a great and blessed ingathering from among the Ainu aborigines. Up to the end of 1892 only nine baptisms had recompensed faithful labour and prayer. In the first seven months of 1893, 171 were baptized. "Every woman in the old Ainu capital, Piratori," writes Mr. Batchelor, "has accepted Christ as her Saviour." Among notable baptisms in Africa are those of the chief of Kisokwe and the first two converts at Nassa. Among the accessions in the Far West of Canada are the first of the Eskimo of Churchill, and the last of the Zitz Zaow tribe, a woman, "a very Amazon, who had only a few months previously killed three bears single-handed one after another, with gun, and spear, and axe." But more remarkable still is the baptism of the powerful Kitkatla chief, Sheuksh, whose name, through Bishop Ridley's graphic letters, is now known all round the world. The work of the Spirit of God is most manifest in him. "God forgive me," he cried, "for these years of error, and the error into which I have led my people." "His whole course of life," writes Mr. Stephenson, "carries sincerity on its face." For these and many other trophies of Divine grace the Committee render heartfelt thanksgiving to the Lord and Giver of Life, and pray that the newly-admitted brethren may, by His indwelling power, "lead the rest of their lives according to this beginning."

Work in Moslem Lands.

3. There are, however, fields in which the Society's missionaries labour where no harvests of souls are reaped, yet where the work of preaching the Gospel as a witness is faithfully done in obedience to the Lord's command. Some Indian stations, especially among the Mohammedans of the North-West Frontier, are of this class; but still more the Mohammedan States, Egypt, the Turkish Empire, and Persia. In Persia, a recent agitation against the Mission is of itself one evidence, and not the only evidence, that the Gospel has touched many hearts, especially when coupled with the patient ministrations of English Christian women among the sick and the poor. Both in Persia and in Palestine the glad tidings of a living Saviour are welcomed by the poor; and the Society, while exercising all reasonable prudence in dealing with the peculiar difficulties of both fields, will not cease to pray and labour for the conversion of Mohammedans. In this connexion the Committee received joyfully the offer of their old and honoured friend Bishop Stuart, of Waiapu, to join the Persia Mission, thus following the example of his colleague of forty years ago in India, Bishop French, in resigning a Bishopric and going forth again as a missionary to the Lands of Islam.

Spiritual Life of Church.

4. But that which causes the greatest joy to the Committee is the growth in spiritual life of the Church of living souls which is the true body of Christ, while nothing gives them more concern than a low standard of godliness in those who should shine as lights in the world. The most welcome news of the year, therefore, comes from those brethren who can tell of the fruit of the Spirit in the lives of Native Christians. For it is a fruitful Church that will attract the surrounding Heathen to itself and to its Lord. With special thankfulness have the Committee read Bishop Tucker's account of Mr. Douglas Hooper's station, Jilore, where a season of revival a year and a half ago has produced permanent effects in the spiritual earnestness of the converts. "The energy and intensity of the convictions of the workers," writes the Bishop—including among them Mr. Hooper's young and devoted wife, called away since the words were written,—"have impressed themselves indelibly on the lives of the members of the Native Church. The result is apparent on every hand: in the church, the school, the class, the home, the field, and the road." Or again, Mr. Roscoe's statement that many Christians of Uganda have begun to see, not only that Christ has saved them from past guilt, but that He can save them from present sin, adding, "We shall now get real conversions; the baptism candidates are ever so much brighter." In connexion with which, later letters tell of special services held at Mengo in December last, when many of the Christians seemed to enter into a fuller spiritual life, realising the completeness of the work of Christ for them, and the power of the Holy Ghost within them. Or the notices in various reports of the blessing of Confirmation seasons—in connexion with which the first Confirmation of Gond converts is to be thankfully noted. Or Archdeacon Wolfe's testimony to the steadfastness of Chinese Christians under persecution—their houses pulled down, their furniture carried off, their cattle driven away, themselves severely beaten. Or Mr. Swann's notice of the Christian telegraph clerk in Japan who has been using the wires to instruct a clerk at another station in the Gospel of Christ. Or Mr. Buncombe's deeply touching narrative of blessing received by the Tokushima Christians during last year's Week of Prayer, resulting in their feeling the burden of their unconverted relatives and friends, and praying for them night after night,—in the sometimes quarrelsome business meetings of the Church being now marked by harmony and love,—in the builders of the new church praying for workmen on strike instead of putting the law in motion against them, and thus winning them all back to work,—in the Japanese pastor himself coming out into clearer spiritual light through having to give an address on "the blood of Christ."

Japan.

It is in the earnest desire for similar evidences of the working of the Holy Spirit that the Committee most thankfully observe the increasing number of Devotional Conferences and Quiet Days held by their missionary brethren and sisters and their Native helpers in many parts of the field, especially at several Indian stations; and they rejoice much at the manifest blessing vouchsafed to the Special Mission undertaken in India and Ceylon by their friends, the Revs. E. N. Thwaites and Martin J. Hall. One of the Calcutta brethren writes:—"All who had the privilege of attending these meetings here join in thanking God for the power of His Spirit, convincing of sin, revealing Christ as Master, and enduing with power for His service. We thank God for sending His servants; we thank Him for His message to us by their lips."

Devotional Gatherings.

Mission of Mr. Thwaites.

In conclusion, the Committee earnestly pray that the Spirit Who has thus been so graciously working in some fields may manifest His power, not only in the missionaries and Native helpers all round the world, but also in the Church at home. What is needed is the recollection of Christ "expecting," and the realisation of the incomparable privilege of laying "all," self and family, and property and influence, upon His altar. Then recruits for the holy war would be pressing forward into th service. Then the people would have to be "restrained" fro displaying "the riches of their liberality," for they would brin "sufficient for all the work, and too much." Then the faintin labourers, working by ones and twos amid teeming multitudes "separated upon the wall, one far from another," would receiv increasing reinforcement. Then the Itinerant Missions, th Educational Missions, the Medical Missions, the Zenana Missions the Training Institutions, the Translational Departments an Printing Presses, would alike be developed year by year. Then Extension would be the order of the day. The "good tidings o great joy for all people" would be carried up the Upper Niger into the great Soudan, into the outlying Dependencies of Uganda, into the waiting cities of Persia, over the mountain barriers of Afghanistan and Central Asia, into still untouched cities and districts of Western China. Mrs. Bishop, in her wonderful speech at the Gleaners' Union Anniversary, called upon us to look less at the work done than at the work undone. "We sing," she said, "hopeful and triumphant hymns; we hear of encouragements which a merciful God gives to inadequate and feeble efforts; and some of us think that little remains to be accomplished. Let us turn away from these enchantments, for enchantments they truly are, and set our faces towards the wilderness, that 'waste howling wilderness' in which one thousand millions of our race are wandering in darkness and the shadow of death, without hope, and without God in the world." And, as Mr. Monro, now actually at work with his son and daughter on the plains of Bengal, reminds us, the doors are open. "If people at home," he writes, "would only cease praying for an open door, and come out and enter the door which is wide open! 'Wherefore criest thou unto Me? speak unto the people that they go forward.'"

What is needed.

The Work not done.

Doors open.

So the Committee would look up, and call upon all their friends to look up, to the right hand of God, where, for nearly nineteen centuries, Christ has been sitting, "expecting." "We see not yet all things put under Him," but "we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour." At that sight, all earthly things, discouragements, and controversies, and perils, and self, sink into insignificance; and believing His own word that He is coming "quickly," we bend all our energies, with one heart and one soul, to "make ready a people prepared for the Lord."

AFRICA.

The celebrations by which the Portuguese observed, in March, 1894, the 500th anniversary of the birth of Prince Henry the Navigator were a reminder to the world of the recent nature of its knowledge of Africa. It is difficult to realise the intensity and vastness of the mystery which covered the face of the Dark Continent in the fifteenth century. Nor did the succession of expeditions which Portugal sent forth during that century do much to remove the mystery. By slow stages the Western coast line was disclosed: the Canaries in 1418, Cape Verd in 1446, Sierra Leone in 1463, the Mouth of the Congo in 1484, and the Cape of Good Hope in 1486. Not until 1497, on November 22, more than one hundred years after the birth of Prince Henry, did Vasco de Gama double the Cape, and, proceeding to Sofala, Mozambique, Mombasa, and Melinde—where he found flourishing Arab settlements many centuries old—complete the definition of the contour of a continent in which thousands of years before civilisation had flourished. The pall of mystery which rested on the continent itself scarcely began to be raised until the latter half of the eighteenth century, and a few blanks still remain both on the West and the East to invite the explorer.

Africa in the days of Prince Henry the Navigator

It is humiliating to recall that the immediate effect to the Natives of Tropical and Equatorial Africa of contact with European nations was the Slave Trade of the West Coast. The "Christian Slave Trade" it has been termed—to distinguish it from that of the East Coast, which has mainly been the work of Mohammedans—and, alas! it cannot be denied that the sanctions of religion were obtained for the worst developments of the traffic. The guilt of England's share in that trade has been in part atoned for by her subsequent patient and persevering and costly efforts to extinguish it, first on the West Coast, more recently on the East Coast, and now in the Lake region of the interior. The Arabs against whom these efforts are directed do not make British Central Africa their chief sphere of activity. The Yao chiefs in the neighbourhood of Lake Nyassa are, perhaps, the only dangerous Arab residents within the British sphere; some of those to the north of that Lake appear, indeed, to have given effective assistance to British officers engaged in suppressing the traffic. But some of the chief routes to the East Coast from the affected districts are through British territory, and it is to intercept the caravans which are wont to cross the Lake that a gunboat, the Pioneer, was launched by the British Government on the Nyassa in July, 1893. A second gunboat, the Adventurer, also reached the Lake in sections, but representations were sent home that one boat would probably suffice for the Nyassa, and that the second should be sent to the Tanganyika. It is especially near the latter lake that the Arabs have concentrated their strength, and there they have recently been encountered by expeditions of the Congo Free State. Nyangwe, the most important town on the Upper Congo, was taken from the Arabs in March, 1893, and some of the most active of the chiefs were killed during successive engagements in that neighbourhood.

While physical force, directed by the agents of civilised Governments, is encountering and subduing the Arabs who have been so long disintegrating and depopulating Equatorial Africa, a still mightier influence has made itself felt in the very heart of that region. Actuated by the principles of freedom which the Gospel has taught them to understand and appreciate, the Christian chiefs of Uganda, in April, 1893, signed a declaration in favour of the abolition of domestic slavery. Forty of their number put their names to the document, which ran: "All we Protestant chiefs wish to adopt these good customs of freedom. We agree to untie and free completely all our slaves. Here are our names as chiefs."

Anti-slavery declaration of Uganda chiefs.

The opening of the interior to commerce will be vastly promoted when the railway from the Lower to the Upper Congo, passing the Cataract region, is completed. Then access will be gained to over 3,000 miles of unimpeded navigation. The first section, some 24 miles long, was opened in December, 1893. On the other side of the continent a railway from the coast at Beira, through Portuguese territory into Mashonaland, from the inland terminus of which a good waggon road carries the communication to Fort Salisbury, was opened in October. A railway connexion between the Victoria Lake and the East Coast has not advanced further towards realisation than the completion of the survey; but Captain Lugard's book, "The Rise of our East African Empire," which was published at the close of 1893, presented a strong argument both for the retention of Uganda by Great Britain, and for its speedy development and that of the adjacent countries by the opening of a line for, at any rate, part of the distance from the coast. The untimely death of Sir Gerald Portal, soon after his return to this country from his visit to Uganda as Imperial Commissioner, is much regretted. The decision arrived at, in accordance with his recommendations, by the British Government to establish a British Protectorate in Uganda is likely to prove of unspeakable importance to the future development of the resources and prosperity of the country.

WEST AFRICA MISSIONS.

Diocesan boundaries

THE limits of the jurisdiction of the Bishops who supervise the Society's work in West Africa do not coincide with the boundaries of the Missions into which for convenience the work is divided. The Bishop of Sierra Leone has jurisdiction not only in the colony of Sierra Leone, but in all those places along the West Coast and on the adjacent islands which were British Possessions at the time when Bishop Ingham was consecrated. Consequently, the island of Lagos, which is the base of the Yoruba Mission, is in the Sierra Leone diocese. With this exception the Yoruba and Niger Missions are for the present entirely within the territory included in the conventional diocese of the "Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa," the title which the Archbishop of Canterbury has chosen as the designation of the successors of Bishop Crowther, who was known as Bishop of the Niger territories. Because of this interlacing of the dioceses with the Missions, and also because there is now, as there always has been, on the part of the Yoruba and Niger Missions, a measure of dependence for trained agents, or for the training of agents, on the older Mission of Sierra Leone, the above title, "West Africa Missions," has been adopted in this Report as a suitable heading for such facts as do not relate exclusively to any one of these Missions. Moreover, instead of "West Africa Mission," which has hitherto described the work in and around Sierra Leone, the title "Sierra Leone Mission" will in future be adopted. This will obviate confusion, and save the necessity for explanations to which the old title gave rise.

See of Western Equatorial Africa.

Appointment of Bishops Hill, Phillips, and Oluwole.

The acceptance by the Archbishop of Canterbury, in July, 1892, of the Committee's nomination of the Rev. Joseph Sidney Hill to the see vacated by the death of Bishop Crowther, and Mr. Hill's visit to the West Coast before his consecration, in accordance with the Archbishop's expressed wish, were mentioned in last year's Annual Report. It was also stated that Mr. Hill, before his return to England from this preliminary visit, recommended that two African clergymen, the Revs. C. Phillips and I. Oluwole, should be invited home, and, with the Archbishop's concurrence, presented for consecration at the same time as himself as his Assistant Bishops. Upon their arrival at home in April the Senate of the University of Durham gracefully offered to confer the degree of honorary D.D. on the three Bishops-designate, one of whom, Dr. Oluwole, was already a graduate of that University.

Their Consecration.

On St. Peter's Day, June 29, 1893, their consecration took place in St. Paul's Cathedral, at the same time that Bishop Sheepshanks was consecrated to the See of Norwich. It is interesting to recall that it was on St. Peter's Day, 1864, twenty-nine years earlier, that Samuel Crowther, the first Native African Bishop, was consecrated in Canterbury Cathedral. The Archbishop was assisted in the laying on of hands by an unusual number of Bishops, namely, by the Bishops of London, Liverpool, Oxford, Rochester, St. Albans, Bedford, St. Andrews, Algoma, Adelaide, and by Bishop Cheetham. Bishop Hill was presented by the Bishops of London and Liverpool, and Bishops Phillips and Oluwole by the Bishop of London and Bishop Cheetham. The Bishop of St. Andrews, Bishop Wilkinson, formerly of Truro, by the Archbishop's choice, preached the consecration sermon from the text, "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever."

Bishop Wilkinson's faithful reminder of the Lordship of Christ over His Church, and that He can govern it better than the wisest and best of His servants, is a comfortable one to remember upon reviewing the brief episcopate of one of those to whom his words were solemnly and affectionately addressed. Five months after his consecration—five intensely busy months, occupied in conference with the Committee and Secretaries at Salisbury Square, and in visiting all parts of the country and calling forth in every place the prayerful sympathy of the Lord's people—Bishop Hill, accompanied by a large party of recruits for Sierra Leone, Yoruba, and the Niger, sailed on November 22, and arrived at Lagos on December 13. Bishop Ingham, who had arrived there a few weeks before, held a Diocesan Conference on December 19, when he announced that he had appointed Bishop Hill to the Archdeaconry of Lagos, and intimated that in all probability, on his (Bishop Ingham's) vacating the See of Sierra Leone, Lagos would become a part of the diocese of Western Equatorial Africa. On Christmas Eve Bishop Hill held a Confirmation Service, and on Christmas morning, and again on Sunday morning, December 31, he preached at Christ Church. On January 1 he became ill with fever, and on the afternoon of January 5 he died. Mrs. Hill, who took the fever on the same day as her husband, suffered with him during the four days, and then, just after midnight on the morning of the Epiphany, followed him to the presence of their Redeemer, after an interval of only a few hours. Singularly appropriate to their case was one of the texts of the Bishop's last sermon, 2 Sam. i. 23; they were indeed "lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their deaths they were not divided." The funeral took place in the afternoon of Saturday the 6th. Besides Bishop Phillips, six Native and six European clergymen were present in their surplices, and a vast congregation united in singing:—

Death of Bishop Hill.

"Thou wast their rock, their fortress, and their might;
Thou, Lord, their Captain in the well-fought fight;
Thou, in the darkness drear, their Light of light.
Alleluia!

"From earth's wide bounds, from ocean's farthest coast,
Through gates of pearl streams in the countless host,
Singing to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost,
Alleluia!"

The letters received from the missionaries witnessed how thoroughly the late Bishop and Mrs. Hill had endeared themselves during the short time of their mutual acquaintance. Bishop Phillips wrote: "Never have I felt any bereavement so keenly since I lost my own parents." And Bishop Oluwole, who was at Abeokuta when their deaths occurred, wrote: "He has made me love him as a brother. My acquaintanceship with him was a school of love, kindness, devotion, and thorough unselfishness."

On the receipt of the news in England the Secretaries immediately communicated the sorrowful tidings to the Archbishop of Canterbury, who wrote the following reply:— Letter from the Archbishop.

"Addington Park, Croydon,
"Jan. 8th, 1894.

"My dear Mr. Wigram,—I feel indeed utterly stricken by this terrible news from Lagos. So much arrangement and deliberation and work on the part of so many earnest minds seems utterly lost—but κατ' ἄνθρωπον λέγω. That is the comfort and strength. We shall see God bring some new force out of our defeat, and accomplish all in His own way. We merely are dumb at the mysteriousness of the bar in what seemed His working. . . . Those poor children!

"Ever yours sincerely,
"E. Cantuar."

The Committee, on January 9, an exceptionally solemn meeting, adopted a minute from which the following paragraphs are abstracted:— Minute of the Committee.

In deepest sorrow, and with fullest trust in Him that doeth all things well, the Committee receive the intelligence of the home call of the Right Rev. Joseph Sidney Hill, D.D., Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa, and of Mrs. Hill, which occurred just as the Bishop was entering on the peculiarly difficult and responsible duties of the office for the fulfilment of which he appeared to be singularly gifted and prepared of God.

Mr. Hill received at the Church Missionary College his training for the Mission-field, and was ordained and appointed to Lagos, whither he went out with Mrs. Hill in the year 1876, but was speedidly invalided home. In 1878 he was transferred to the New Zealand Mission, and in 1882 resigned his connexion with the Society, important evangelistic work amongst English-speaking people having opened up before him there. After his return to England, Mr. Hill was accepted by the Society for work on the Niger in November, 1891, and was appointed Director of the whole of the Niger Mission. In the following May, before he had entered on his onerous charge, he was nominated to the Niger Bishopric.

In Mrs. Hill, whose missionary zeal equalled that of her husband, the female workers on the Niger were looking forward to welcome a truly valuable, efficient, and sympathetic counsellor and guide.

Consecration of Bishop Tugwell.

The Archbishop wrote letters of sympathy and counsel to the two African Bishops, and, after a full discussion of the position with two of the Society's Secretaries, expressed his willingness to consecrate a successor to Bishop Hill without delay, and most kindly and spontaneously waived his usual claim to have two names submitted to him to choose from. Earnest consideration was at once given to the subject, and on January 17, at a special meeting of the General Committee, it was resolved to nominate to the Archbishop the Rev. Herbert Tugwell, Secretary of the Yoruba Mission; a nomination which his Grace instantly accepted. A telegram was accordingly despatched to Mr. Tugwell at Lagos, and he reached England on February 26. On March 4 the Consecration took place in Lambeth Palace Chapel, the preacher being the Rev. Robert Lang, Rector of Old Warden, Bedfordshire, formerly Secretary of the Society, whose text was from 2 Corinthians iv., 1, 7, 16. The new Bishop is a son of the late Rev. F. Tugwell, Rector of Havering-atte-Bower, Essex; brother of Mrs. Henry Lewis, whose husband was a Missionary of the Society in the North-West Provinces; and nephew of Canon Tugwell, late Rector of St. Mary-le-Strand. Bishop Tugwell is a graduate of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and was ordained in 1880 to the curacy of Petworth, in Sussex. He joined the Yoruba Mission, of which he was appointed Secretary, in 1890, and was one of the outgoing party which was taken leave of on January 20, 1890, when Exeter Hall was used for the first time for a C.M.S. Valedictory Meeting. He sailed with Bishop Crowther on his return to Africa from his last visit to this country, and with the Soudan party under the Rev. J. A. Robinson and Mr. Graham Wilmot Brooke. A touching reference to this occasion was made by Bishop Tugwell at a Meeting held on March 9 at Exeter Hall, to bid God-speed to Bishops Tucker and Evington and himself; while the Chairman of that Meeting, the Bishop of Carlisle, invited in his behalf the sympathy and earnest prayers of those present. He said:—

Exeter Hall Farewell Meeting.

I beseech you, therefore, that you will specially remember him in your prayers. We feel assured that he will not be found wanting. He has been trained as few men have been trained. He stood by the death-beds of those of whom I have spoken. His hands ministered to their dying needs and soothed their pillows, his ears listened to their last blessed words, and as he sat there at night to send the message home by the light of the lamp, he saw the pale white face of the dead Bishop. There was that dead Bishop vested in his rochet by the dark loving hands of Bishop Charles Phillips, the Native Bishop. I cannot but think that in that experience Bishop Tugwell must feel he has been trained, and there are elements of hope. We are told of the tomb of Elisha that when the man was let down into it to be buried, as soon as his bones touched the prophet's bones he revived and stood up. Our brother, Bishop Tugwell, has touched the bones of Elisha, and I am quite sure that after that experience, though he is a saddened man, he is a strengthened man, and that he will be found, by God's grace, in answer to your prayers, equal to that honourable but most difficult post to which he is going.

SIERRA LEONE MISSION.

Africa was the first field entered by the Society. Its first two Missionaries were sent in 1804 to the Susu tribes on the Rio Pongas. In 1816 the Society's efforts were concentrated upon the colony of Sierra Leone, which had, since the abolition of the slave-trade in 1807, become the depôt for negroes rescued from slave ships by the British cruisers. Much blessing attended the labours of W. A. B. Johnson and other Missionaries, and in 1822 nearly 2,000 of the freed slaves, adults and children, were in the Mission Schools, several thousands were attending public worship, and some hundreds had become sincere Christians. The work continued to prosper, but at a great cost of life; fifty-three Missionaries and Missionaries' wives dying between 1804 and 1824. In 1851 the Bishopric of Sierra Leone was founded, and the first three Bishops—Vidal, Weeks, and Bowen (the two latter C.M.S. Missionaries)—died within three years of their consecration. In 1842 a Parliamentary Committee attributed the "considerable intellectual, moral, and religious improvement" of the people to "the valuable exertions of the Church Missionary Society more especially." Port Lokkoh was occupied in 1876.

In 1862 the Native Church was organised on an independent basis, and undertook the support of its own pastors, churches, and schools, aided by a small grant from the Society. It now also carries on the outlying Missions established by the Society in the Bullom, Quiah, and Sherbro countries. About seventy African clergymen have been ordained on the West Coast (including Yoruba and the Niger). Several of them are Government chaplains.

Bishop Ingham's Triennial Charge.

Bishop Ingham delivered his third Triennial Charge to the Clergy and Laity of the Sierra Leone Church in St. George's Cathedral, Freetown, on May 3, 1893. The Cathedral was the scene of an interesting service on St. Peter's Day, June 29, 1893. The object of the service was to intercede for Bishops Hill and Phillips and Oluwole, who were being set apart at that very hour to the episcopal office in St. Paul's Cathedral, London. Again, on Advent Sunday, Dec. 3, Bishop Phillips and the Rev. H. Tugwell, who had arrived at Sierra Leone, en route for Lagos, a few days before Bishop Hill and his larger party, preached in the Cathedral to large congregations, and the former remarked in his sermon on the striking coincidence that exactly fifty years before—on Advent Sunday, Dec. 3, 1843—Bishop Crowther had preached his first sermon in Africa, after his admission to Holy Orders. A few days later a crowded and enthusiastic meeting was held in the Wilberforce Memorial Hall, to welcome Bishop Hill and his party to Africa, and to bid them God-speed on their mission; addresses of welcome were read from the Sierra Leone Church and from the students of Fourah Bay College.

Services in St. George's Cathedral.

Death of Rev. E. Leversuch.

The Rev. Edward Leversuch died at Sierra Leone on April 23, 1894. He had just returned from a visit to Port Lokkoh, whither he had gone four months before at the request of the Sierra Leone Finance Committee to report on the opportunities for extension in the Temne country. He was suffering from fever when he returned, and died a few days afterwards. Mr. Leversuch was a student at Islington College, and passed first class in the Oxford and Cambridge Preliminary Theological Examination in 1889. He joined the Mission the same year, being assigned to work among Mohammedans, but he was through the exigencies of the Mission frequently called upon to engage in other duties.

Reinforcements.

The Committee were thankful to receive the offer of an Oxford graduate, Mr. Thomas Edgar Alvarez, B.A., of Jesus College, Oxford, for the post of Vice-Principal of Fourah Bay College, for which vacancy prayer had frequently been made since 1889, when the last Vice-Principal, the Rev. H. McC. E. Price (now of the Japan Mission), left through ill-health. They have also appointed Miss Florence E. Thornewell and Miss Alice Jane Long to this Mission; the former to labour among the Temne people at Port Lokkoh, and the latter to assist at the Annie Walsh Institution. Mr. Alvarez and Miss Thornewell sailed with Bishop Hill in November, Miss Long with Bishop Tugwell in April. The Rev. W. J. Humphrey came home in June, 1893, and returned in September; Miss H. Bisset returned to the Mission after furlough in January, 1894; Miss M. Williams came home the same month, and Canon Taylor Smith and Miss E. Dunkley in April.

SIERRA LEONE.

Sierra Leone Church.

The finances of the Sierra Leone Church continue to improve. The funds of the Native Pastorate Auxiliary Association showed a credit balance of nearly £1,000 in April, 1893, and this would have been still greater but for the fact that a sum exceeding £100 was sent from one of the Pastorates too late to be included in the financial statement of the year. The receipts of the year amounted to £2,066, which included a sum of £500 bequeathed to the Association. Annual subscriptions to the fund amounted to £605; two-thirds of the "class pence" contributed to the several pastorates is forwarded to the funds of the Association, amounting to £699; and one half the pew rents, £68. The subscription list occupies fifteen closely-printed double-column pages of the Report. Some 1,800 separate contributions—those under 2*s*. are lumped together—are acknowledged; and the list includes 144 donations of over 10*s*. and less than £1, 132 of over £1 and less than £2, 69 of over £2 and less than £5, 4 of £5, 2 of £10, and 1 of £100.

The Bishop made a confirmation tour through the Pastorates in April and October, visiting Sherbro, Kent, York, and Bananas on the former tour, and Hastings, Regent, Gloucester, and Bathurst, also the stations of the Sierra Leone Church Missions in British Quiah and Bullom, on the latter. Canon Taylor Smith conducted a parochial mission at Hastings in November.

The Sierra Leone Church Missionary Society supports one ordained and six lay agents, whose fields of operation are in Bullom and South British Quiah. The receipts of 1892–3 amounted to £454.

Fourah Bay College, during the Principal's absence on furlough, was under the late Rev. E. Leversuch, who was appointed Acting Vice-Principal in April. He was relieved upon Mr. Humphrey's return in October, 1893, accompanied by the Rev. T. J. Dennis, whom, though assigned to the Niger Mission, the Committee had requested to stay temporarily at Sierra Leone, and to act as Vice-Principal of the College. This he continues to do, giving opportunity to Mr. Alvarez to commence his study of the language. Mr. Humphrey reports a marked improvement in the tone of the College, which he attributes largely to the influence of one or two very earnest Christians among the students. Fourah Bay College.

The Grammar School has 169 pupils, but its Native Principal, the Rev. Obadiah Moore, complains of the short periods that the boys continue at the school. Upon his return from England in April, 1893, after an absence of less than a year, one-third of the boys who were at the school when he left had been removed. In June the Colonial Government held a Civil Service Examination, in which present and past pupils of several schools competed. All the four successful candidates out of twenty-six that sat were Grammar School boys. Eighteen of the youths were confirmed. Through God's blessing on the unsparing and able efforts of Mr. Lucia, sent out from England by the Committee for the purpose of superintending the building, the new wing of the Annie Walsh School, which fell down in the summer of 1892 when nearing completion, was finished and opened in October. The teachers and scholars showed their interest in the enlargement of the school by collecting from their friends a sum of £63 towards the cost, which has been great. The pupils increased in numbers during 1893 from 86 to 103—namely, 59 boarders and 44 day-scholars. In December, 1892, ten of the girls entered for the College of Preceptors' Examination, and all except one passed. In October, 1893, a pupil of the school was a candidate in the Durham University Proficiency Examination, and gained a first class in Religious Knowledge and Geography, and second class in English, Arithmetic, and English History. The girls receive instruction in the performance of household duties and in needlework. The members of the School Branch of the Y.W.C.A. sent 90 garments to be distributed among the Mission stations of the Sierra Leone Church Missions. Miss E. Dunkley wrote of much spiritual joy in the work, which was not, however, unattended with causes of sorrow. Grammar School. Annie Walsh Institution.

PORT LOKKOH.

In July, 1893, the Union Jack was hoisted at Port Lokkoh, which is 60 miles north-east of Freetown, in token that it and the neighbouring territories were thenceforward included within British territory. The Rev. J. A. Alley expresses thankfulness Port Lokkoh included in British territory.

for this, as it will arrest the trade in slaves, which had continued, as it does still elsewhere on the coast where no controlling power is present to prevent it. The rice crops of Port Lokkoh were seriously damaged by swarms of locusts which appeared three times during the year, a visitation which had not been experienced in the neighbourhood for about 50 years. Numberless sacrifices and charms were made by the Mohammedans and Heathens, but Mr. Alley and his helpers tried to turn them from these vanities to the living God. The Sunday morning Temne Services, at 7.30 A.M., have an average attendance of 41, while 67 Sierra Leonians and Temnes attend the English service at eleven.

The Rev. W. J. Humphrey, Miss Dunkley, and Miss H. Bisset visited Port Lokkoh and its out-stations, Makori and Makomp, in December, 1892. Miss Bisset wrote regarding Makomp and the villages around it:—

Night School at Makomp.

The part of the work which interested us most at Makomp was the school. It is quite impossible to get hold of the children in the daytime, as they are all sent to work on the farms, &c. The parents consider the work far too important to be set aside for books. School commences every evening at 7 P.M., when about sixty children come together for instruction, after a hard day's work. It is conducted by two Native workers, whose zeal and patient perseverance deserve the highest commendation. To see the gusto with which the children set to work at their lessons was most refreshing. There was no loitering or indifference, all seemed really intent on what they had to do. After they had been at lessons a short time, books and slates were laid aside. Then they sang a few Temne songs and went through some calisthenic exercises. Mr. Alley asked them a few questions on Scripture, which they answered remarkably well.

Evangelistic Meeting.

The following evening an evangelistic meeting was held in the royal compound [in which the Church services and school are held]. The king was invited, and he came in just at the opening prayer. About six hundred heathen people were present, who heard the simple Gospel message. Many of them came from distant villages, having had to cross streams and walk along narrow footpaths in the dark to get there. Such a gathering, simply to hear God's Word, had never been known before in the history of the Makomp Mission.

Superstitious practices of Temnes.

Leaving the royal compound we passed on to several villages. Mafaki was the first place where a halt was made. This village was entirely surrounded with charms hung on a string, suspended from tree to tree. Here also was an Am-baki-house, i.e., old men's house, which contained many stones a little larger than one's fist, into which the spirits of the departed old men of the village are believed to have passed. The transfer is supposed to take place in this way. When an old man dies a stone is placed upon his chest and left there till the time for burial. During the interval the spirit is supposed to have passed from the body into the stone. It is then removed and laid up in the Am-baki-house along with many other similar stones. In times of trouble or difficulty the people of the village pray to those stones for help, and believe their prayers are heard.

Translations.

The Books of Joshua, Judges, Ruth and 1 Samuel were translated into Temne by Mr. Alley during the year, and the late Rev. C. F. Schlenker's translation of St. Matthew was revised.

YORUBA MISSION.

From this country, which is 1,000 miles east of Sierra Leone, had come a large proportion of the freed slaves gathered at the latter place. About 1840 many of them, having now become Christians and traders on their own account, returned to their fatherland. The result was the establishment of Missions at Badagry (1845) and Lagos (1852) on the coast, and at Abeokuta (1846), Ibadan (1852), Ode Ondo (1876), and other towns and villages in the interior.

Bishops Phillips, and Oluwole.

THE consecration of the Revs. C. Phillips and I. Oluwole on St. Peter's Day, June 29, 1893, has been mentioned in the remarks introductory to the West Africa Missions. Bishop Phillips is a native of Sierra Leone. His father belonged to the Egba tribe, the same to which the late Bishop Crowther belonged, and was rescued, like the latter, from a slave-ship by an English vessel. The Bishop's early training was received at Abeokuta, after which he laboured as a schoolmaster at Breadfruit Station, Lagos. In 1876 he was ordained by Bishop Cheetham, and proceeded the following year to Ode Ondo, where he laboured perseveringly and not fruitlessly until his call to the higher office. Bishop Oluwole was born at Abeokuta in the days when the late Rev. H. Townsend was working there. His parents had been converted to Christianity a few years before his birth. In 1865 he entered the Training Institution under the Rev. J. A. Maser, and after its transference to Lagos he was promoted to the post of tutor in it. Later he studied at Fourah Bay College, and he was one of the first three Africans to take the Durham B.A. under the then new scheme of affiliation. He was ordained in 1879; he visited England the same year to gain practical experience in educational work, and returned as Principal of the Lagos Grammar School.

Reinforcements.

The two Assistant Bishops and Bishop and Mrs. Hill arrived at Lagos on December 13, together with Miss J. J. Thomas and the following reinforcements: Messrs. Ernest Fry and John McKay, Islington men; and Misses Elizabeth Ballson, Sarah Caroline Grover, Agnes Jane Hudson, Phyllis Leach, and Jessie Palmer. The Rev. William Ernest Godson, B.A., Oxford, Curate of Redditch, sailed in April, 1894, with Bishop Tugwell.

Deaths of Rev. J. Vernall,

Within a few weeks after the arrival of the former party, Bishop and Mrs. Hill were taken from their midst, and a few days later the Rev. James Vernall, on January 20, succumbed to fever. As Acting Secretary during the Rev. H. Tugwell's furlough, Mr. Vernall, and also Mrs. Vernall, had been unsparing in their efforts to provide accommodation for the unprecedentedly large party, consisting of five for the Niger Mission, as well as those mentioned above; and through the trying time of sickness which prostrated several in turn, and proved fatal to no less than six, their attendance on the patients never flagged, and could not be restrained. Bishop Ingham, who was Mr. Vernall's guest at the Mission-house before the larger party arrived, when he considerately removed elsewhere, wrote :—

I can truly say I have never met a more splendid missionary, and I have never been more impressed with him than during this last visit. We practically lived together till the large party came, and I know that we have lost a thorough missionary. He had a beautiful spirit, a most practical mind, was most painstaking and thorough in everything he did, and seemed quite unwearied.

Mr. Vernall was educated at Islington College, and read the Gospel at the Bishop of London's Trinity Ordination in 1886. He sailed that year to this Mission, and took charge as Principal of the Lagos Training Institution, in which work he laboured with some interruptions until his death. He was eminently qualified for the work, both mentally and spiritually, and there is good reason to believe that under God it is mainly due to his influence that when openings occurred in Ijebu, and the Lagos Church was disposed to enter in, there were found young men of missionary spirit trained and willing to be sent.

Rev. W. Moore, and Mrs. Townsend.

The Rev. William Moore, of Abeokuta, died on December 1, 1893. He was ordained in 1857, and retired several years ago from the active labours and responsibilities of a pastoral charge. Mrs. Townsend, widow of the late Rev. Henry Townsend, one of the pioneers of this Mission, died at Exeter in February, 1894. In addition to these losses through death, sickness compelled two other missionaries to retire. The Rev. R. Kidd, who was married to Mrs. Manley, of Dublin, in September, after one month spent with his wife at Ibadan, felt obliged, in consequence of her illness from fever, to return to the Coast, and eventually to proceed to England and resign his connexion with the Society. The Rev. M. A. and Mrs. Dodds, who came home in May, 1893, for the same cause, the illness of Mrs. Dodds, have also retired from the work. Miss M. Goodall came home on furlough in January, 1894.

Ordination

Bishop Ingham arrived at Lagos on November 28, and on December 10 he admitted the Rev. J. S. Williams, the pastor of Ebute Meta, to Priests' Orders. On the 19th the Bishop held a Diocesan Conference.

LAGOS.

Christ Church, Lagos.

The charge of Christ Church, Faji, is usually a part of the responsibility which rests upon the Secretary of the Mission. The congregation contributed for all purposes £686. 5*s*. 10*d*. in the years 1892–3, of which amount, £233. 17*s*. 10*d*. went to the funds of the Pastorate Auxiliary. Owing to the death of Mr. Vernall no report of this charge, nor of the Book Shop and Printing Press, nor of the Training Institution, has been received. There were twenty-six students in the latter in April, 1893, and eight in the Preparatory Class. The Rev. F. G. Toase gave assistance in the Institution during the latter months of the year. The Rev. F. M. Jones, of the Niger Mission, has, on the invitation of the Committee, assumed temporary charge. Mr. Vernall strongly advocated the removal of the Institution to the interior—to Oyo or Ogbomoso—and the Committee have been led to contemplate a change of locality when plans shall be further matured. The Grammar School has lost its Principal, owing to the consecration of the Rev. I. Oluwole, and no report has been received. The Girls' Seminary was fuller during 1893 than for several years past, with fourteen boarders and about fifty day pupils. Four of the young Native teachers and two of the senior pupils passed the College of Preceptors' Examination. These were prepared by Miss M. Goodall during "spare time" in 1892. In 1893 she gathered a class of teachers—throwing it open to those of other schools—for lessons on school management, method of teaching, &c., and endeavoured to impress on them the dignity and privilege and responsibilities of their work. Miss Higgins and she also visited these teachers at their several schools, and found that a large proportion of their children were from Heathen and Mohammedan homes. The visit of Miss Thomas and Miss Higgins to Ilaro, which was mentioned in last year's Annual Report, led the girls of the Seminary to take a more real interest in the work with which the school was already associated through its supporting a catechist there. A Native merchant of Lagos presented £5 worth of print, from which the girls made garments for their heathen brothers and sisters. Miss E. Ballson took charge of the Seminary on Miss Goodall leaving for England. The ladies of the Seminary also conducted Bible classes for the women and girls connected with Christ Church congregation.

Girls' Seminary.

Lagos Church Missions.

The Lagos Church Missions employ fourteen agents, all laymen—namely, three at Badagry and its neighbourhood, two in Iganmu district, one at Igbogun, one at Isagabedo, and seven in the Ijebu country. The sums raised yearly amount to about £430. The S.P.C.K. made a generous grant through Bishop Oluwole of £200, to be used towards meeting the expenses of erecting school-churches in the Ijebu country.

The Rev. D. Coker refers to parties of open-air preachers among his congregation at BADAGRY, and of an association for affording relief, presumably for those in poverty. The statistics of the station, however, still show a tendency to decrease.

The out-stations at Leke, Itebu, and Ayesan were visited in May, 1893, by the Rev. F. G. Toase.

INTERIOR MISSION: ABEOKUTA AND IBADAN.

Abeokuta

The Rev. T. Harding removed from Ibadan to ABEOKUTA in the spring of 1893, when the Rev. J. B. and Mrs. Wood came home on furlough. Mr. T. Jays, on the other hand, went to Ibadan from Abeokuta in June. Miss M. Tynan and Miss A. L. Wright returned from furlough in May, 1893, and Miss J. J. Thomas in February, 1894. Mr. E. Fry, Miss P. Leach, and Miss J. Palmer, three of the year's recruits, were stationed at Abeokuta.

Native Church.

In connexion with the Native Church Mr. Harding opened a church at Gbagura, an out-station of Igbori, within the walls of Abeokuta, in April, which was completed in 1892, but could not be opened because of the blockade. Some 600 people were present at the service, and on the following Sunday the Rev. Samuel Doherty baptized three adults and five children. Regarding the spiritual state of the Church in Abeokuta, Mr. Harding writes:—

Sorrows and encouragements.

There is much to praise and thank God for, and very, very much to humble one. The independent and disobedient spirit shown by many of our young men and women; the little regard paid to God's Day and reverence in God's House; the great amount of immorality, some cases even happening among agents, causing us deep soul-trouble; the lying against each other, and I might even say rejoicing in the downfall of some; the increase of drunkenness, and consequent riot and strife at funerals, marriages, and baptisms—of all these it is a shame to think, much more to write about, and they are so many hindrances to the growth of the Church and conversion of the Heathen.

But, thank God, there are encouragements as well as sorrows. There is a Young Men's Christian Association, and though there are only between thirty and forty members belonging to it, and scarcely any new members have joined during the last year or two, yet we thank God for its existence, and pray that it may exercise a power for good among the young men in our Church.

There is also a society formed by the agents, to which most of them belong, for watching over one another and exhorting each other to purity of life and conduct. This ought to be a great help to them. We little know the awful temptations to which our young men are exposed, and all who have the building up and extension of Christ's Kingdom at heart should pray "that they may be kept from the evil of the world." I believe also that many of the Christians exercise influence upon the Heathen in their work and trade. Sometimes this influence is greatly marred, but I believe, and thank God for it, that individual Christians talk to individuals about giving up their idolatry and also try to bring them to God's house. We cannot measure the power of such influence, nor tell the effect upon the whole mass of Heathenism.

Work among Women.

The Work among Women presents features of encouragement. Miss Tynan and Miss Wright have gained more facility in speaking, and in addition to holding classes for young girls and for slaves and pawns, and a mothers' meeting, they visited the heathen women in their compounds. Miss Tynan wrote in September:—

Several of the women we have been visiting among the Heathen are now beginning to come to see us, and we hope in time, with God's help, to form a class for these. The men in the compounds generally come to listen also, and they are even more attentive generally than the women.

Two heathen women have quite lately been induced to give up a very large collection of idols, and to come to church regularly, with a view of joining the inquirers' class, and so by degrees be led to believe altogether in Jesus; and this good work has been done through the means of a very old, poor, and very infirm woman whom we know. Week after week she brings them to church, and is so anxious that the Lord may accomplish that which He has begun in them.

Poor, aged, and infirm, but full of zeal.

The band of women workers in connexion with the churches of Ake and Iporo continue to do a splendid work, preaching the Word of God faithfully Monday after Monday in different parts of the town. May God the Holy Spirit bless their work exceedingly!

Ibadan.

The Rev. S. S. and Mrs. Farrow returned to IBADAN after furlough in May, 1893. They were called upon to give back to their Heavenly Father their little child in January, 1894, during a visit to Lagos. Soon after their return they were joined by Miss S. C. Grover and Miss A. J. Hudson, who had spent several weeks at Abeokuta, whence they were escorted by Mr. Harding. The direct road between these two towns, which had long been closed owing to disputes between the respective inhabitants, was declared open in July, 1893, in consequence of which a journey of two days suffices to traverse the distance.

Mr. T. Jays took up his residence at OGBOMOSO during the year, and was joined there by Mr. J. McKay in the spring of 1894.

Confirmations.

Visits by Bishop Oluwole to Abeokuta, Ibadan, Ogbomoso, Oyo, and Isehin were much appreciated. He confirmed about 450 candidates.

ODE ONDO.

Ode Ondo.

A lay catechist, Mr. Lijadu, was in charge at this station after the departure of the Rev. C. Phillips in April, 1893. Possibly the absence of Mr. Phillips may have afforded an opportunity for an act of wickedness which, had he been present, would not have been committed. It was mentioned in last year's Annual Report that human sacrifices had not been offered after the death of a king in 1892. It was not pretended that this was owing to any abhorrence of the practice, and that it certainly was not appears from the following. The late Rev. J. Vernall wrote:—

Deeds of Darkness.

We are deeply grieved to learn that human sacrifices were offered in Ode Ondo, in honour of the dead body of the head chief Sasere, on July 30th last, although that chief had before his death declared against the practice, and when dying pronounced bitter curses on any who should thus honour his body. The agent writes: "Every precaution was taken to ensure secrecy: the poor victims (a male and female) were not chained to posts during the ceremonies of the preceding days, nor were they exhibited for show, as was usual, in honour of the dead, but the dark deed was done in the darkness of the night. We were the more saddened to think that only last year we were rejoicing at what we thought was going to be the total abolition of all these wicked practices. Last year passed away without any, and the Esu (Devil) had not the usual human sacrifices this year. We fear, now that the Sasere is dead, the fetish priests will try all in their power to influence the other chiefs to revive the practice. It was only the presence of the Mission which prevented them from killing some ten or fifteen human beings."

NIGER MISSION.

In 1841 a Government naval expedition, accompanied by a C.M.S. Missionary, the Rev. J. F. Schön, and by Samuel Crowther, a liberated negro slave (who in 1864 was consecrated Bishop of the Niger), explored this great African river. In 1854 a second expedition penetrated up the stream 500 miles, and found the Natives everywhere ready to receive Christian teachers; and in 1857 Mr. Crowther, accompanying a third expedition undertaken for commercial purposes, laid the foundation of the Niger Mission by establishing three stations. One of these was Onitsha. Other stations were subsequently occupied by African teachers, under the direction of the Bishop—viz., Lokoja, 1865; Bonny, 1866; Brass, 1868; Asaba, 1875; Gbebe, reoccupied, 1879; Okrika, 1884; Ido, reoccupied, 1887; Ogbonoma, 1888; and Obotshi, 1890. Bishop Crowther continued to labour zealously in the Mission till the end of 1891, when he died at Lagos.

The superstitions of the people, and demoralisation caused by the increasing European traffic and by the general low tone of Christianity on the West African Coast, have proved formidable obstacles to the spread of the Gospel; but more than 4,000 persons have been baptized, including several influential chiefs, and some of the converts have exhibited Christian fortitude in enduring persecution, and liberality in contributing to the building of Mission churches, &c. At Bonny the once famous idol temple, decorated with human skulls, has been destroyed. Nevertheless, a higher standard of Christian life is much needed.

In 1890 a party of Missionaries went out under the leadership of the Rev. J. A. Robinson and Mr. G. Wilmot Brooke, with the idea of residing at Lokoja, on the Upper Niger, and thence making an effort to reach the Mohammedans of the Soudan. The climate, however, shortly proved fatal to both the leaders, and drove the rest home.

Reinforcements.

THE Committee had great pleasure in sending forth in the autumn, under the conduct and direction of Bishop and Mrs. Hill, a goodly band of recruits for this Mission. They were: the Rev. Edgar W. Mathias, B.A., St. Catherine's College, Cambridge, who was ordained Deacon by Bishop Hill, acting under a commission from the Bishop of London, at St. Paul's Church, Onslow Square, London, on October 29, 1893; the Rev. Charles Ernest Watney, B.A., Corpus Christi College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, Curate of West Ham; the Rev. A. E. Sealey, student of Islington College, who was admitted to Deacons' Orders by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday; Miss Florence L. Mansbridge, who was trained at The Willows; and Miss Louisa M. Maxwell, who had been at the head of the Cottage Hospital at Mildmay. The Rev. T. J. Dennis, of Islington College, was also assigned to the Niger, but was sent temporarily to be Acting Vice-Principal of Fourah Bay College, Sierra Leone. He was admitted to Deacons' Orders by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, May 28, 1893.

The Divine appointment, however, for many of the above proved to be very different from what the Committee had planned. Of the party of seven, including Bishop and Mrs. Hill, one only was suffered to reach the destination which all had in view. While staying at Lagos, Miss Maxwell was the first of the party to suffer from fever, but her life was mercifully spared. It was necessary, however, for her to return at once to this country. The health of Miss Mansbridge—who had been invited by the Committee, before sailing from England, to render help at the Lagos Girls' Seminary for a few months—began to fail while she was engaged in assiduously nursing the invalids at the Lagos Mission House during that terrible first week in January. She died on the 23rd of the same month. Two other deaths, however, preceded hers. On Sunday, January 14, the Revs. E. W. Mathias, A. E. Sealey, and C. E. Watney sailed from Lagos to proceed on their journey to the Niger. On the following Wednesday, the 17th, at 7 P.M., Mr. Mathias died on the Forcados River; and on Sunday, the 21st, Mr. Sealey died at Warrie. An unfinished private letter of Mr. Mathias, found after his death, ended with these words: "I want to be just willing to be anything, as long as His name may be glorified in my body, whether by life or by death." Mr. Watney wrote:—

Deaths of Miss Mansbridge, and the Revs. E. W. Mathias and A. E. Sealey.

> Looking forward, we cannot see much to encourage on the Niger; the labourers are few (few indeed now), and the work is so very, very great. Lagos is dark, very dark; what must the interior be? Do pray, and do get others to pray, and pray with tears, that God would send more labourers here, especially men. I think I have wept more tears since landing in Africa than I had in all my life before. It is so pitiable to see so many Heathen and not be able to tell them of Jesus, and then to be so few to do it.

The pitiable state of the Heathen.

Another touching fact, worthy to be recalled, is that on the Sunday before he left England, Mr. Mathias, preaching in the Mission Room connected with St. Paul's, Onslow Square, in which parish he had previously worked as a layman, chose for his text, 2 Timothy iv. 6, "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand."

"Ready to be offered."

Mr. H. Proctor came home invalided in November, 1893, and Misses E. A. Warner and R. Frisby on furlough in February, 1894. The Rev. F. Melville Jones, at the Committee's request, went to Lagos in February to assist temporarily in the work at that place.

DELTA AND LOWER NIGER.

THE Committee were glad to receive from the agents of the "Bonny Pastorate" and their wives an expression of sympathy with the Society on the death of Bishop and Mrs. Hill. Much had been hoped from the late Bishop's intercourse with the clergy and congregations of the Pastorate, and prayer is asked that Bishop Tugwell may be guided from above in all his relations with these and the other congregations on the River. It is satisfactory to observe that the expenses of the Pastorate during 1893, amounting to £748, were met entirely, so far as appears from the printed financial statement, from Native sources.

Bonny Pastorate.

When the Royal Niger Company received its charter in 1887, BRASS and the country around it elected to be excluded from the Company's territories; and as a consequence, the trade goods from the interior, which before that year had flowed to Brass and Nembe, and rendered them prosperous communities, were subsequently diverted to Bonny and other Delta towns. Now the houses of chiefs built in European style in past years are dilapidated, and foreigners, whether Sierra Leone Africans or Europeans, are treated with marked coolness by the people, and especially so are the Christian teachers, who are inconsistently blamed for the losses which have resulted from the people's own choice. The Committee hoped that one of the Europeans sent out to reinforce the Mission would have resided at BRASS. Mr. H. Proctor also was to have gone there at the close of the year, but his state of health necessitated his taking a sea voyage before settling there; and, as stated above, he then returned to England. The Rev. P. J. Williams was consequently single-handed in the work of Brass and its out-stations, Nembe and Akassa. He reports that he had no occasion to exercise discipline by removing any of the Christians from Church privileges; on the contrary, he had the joy of re-admitting several who manifested penitence for past sins. The classes for confirmation candidates are, however, badly attended. Mr. Williams hopes this may be better when his knowledge of the Idzo language enables him to go in and out more freely among the people. He can now conduct the services, he says, "without the use of a crutch." While studying the language, he also engaged, to the best of his ability, in translating and revising parts of the Old and New Testaments and Prayer Book. The New Testament only wanted the three last chapters of the Book of Revelation to complete the version, when Mr. Williams wrote in November.

Mr. J. Allen, the Sierra Leone agent at Nembe, is winning an influence over the people. At the beginning of the year 1893 a deputation from the town was sent to an oracle at Aron called "Long Juju," in the Ibo country, to inquire as to the cause why trade did not prosper, and the reply received was, the ringing of the church bell had driven away the "Juju" which had helped the people to make money! However, as the year wore on, so far from the church being pulled down, as was threatened, it was repaired, the Church members supplying logs of wood and rendering help in other ways. The baptized Christians number 150; the largest number present at the Holy Communion during the year was twenty-six. The Rev. H. H. Dobinson visited OGBONOMA in August, and again in February. On the latter occasion he found that the chiefs, taking advantage of the Rev. J. D. Garrick's absence on furlough, had placed two of the Christians in irons for attending church in defiance of their prohibition. Sir Claude Macdonald, the Consul-General of the Niger Coast Protectorate, intervened and dissuaded the chiefs from endeavouring to expel the Mission.

An Ibo oracle.

Ogbonoma.

At ONITSHA the people "begin to realise that business is meant," Mr. Dobinson wrote in December. The signs of progress were the following:— Onitsha.

First and foremost, our new and vigorous Bishop, with so many resources and so large experience. Then a large staff of Europeans here now in place of the one or two solitary individuals of three years ago. Prospects of a new church and training school, hopes of opening three new stations very soon, fine and commodious houses for the missionaries being erected, medical work begun on good and sound lines, work renewed among women and girls: these are a few of the things that give us all hope of a more vigorous work and a greater blessing.

Some of the chief features of progress in the prospect proved disappointing, through the inroads of death and sickness; but it may be hoped that the disappointment will prove short-lived, and that the plans and preparations made in faith and prayer will ere long be rendered effectual. Besides Mr. Dobinson, who arrived at Onitsha after his furlough in March, the European staff consisted of Mr. H. Proctor, Mr. G. D. Wilson (a probationary student sent out to the late Bishop Hill), Miss E. A. Warner, Miss R. Frisby, and Miss M. Taylor, whose main work was that of learning the language. Mr. Proctor, who received some medical training while at Islington College, opened a humble mud hospital, in which Nurse Taylor ministered to the patients; and the other ladies took classes of catechumens and confirmation candidates and young children. Of the last-named Miss Frisby says:—

They are such bright, intelligent little things, but find it very hard to keep awake sometimes, and often stand up of their own accord to do so. Much prayer is needed for these dear little lambs of Jesus, that He will keep them safely in His fold, and make them grow up to be bright, shining lights for Him in this dark country. When asking these children the other day what they would like to ask God to give them, after such answers as "cloth," "dress," "food," one said, "That God will wash away the sin inside my heart." "The sin inside my heart."

Visits to the homes in Onitsha town (the Christians mostly reside at the "Waterside," some short distance from the town) are warmly welcomed. The king of Onitsha was particularly cordial to Mr. Proctor, and the ladies' visits to his wives gave much pleasure. Thirty-two adults were baptized on the last day of 1893. The Rev. F. Melville Jones, who arrived on the Niger in March, 1893, and was stationed at OBOTSHI, was encouraged on the whole by what he found as compared with what he had been led to expect. He wrote:— Obotshi.

I came out expecting to find things in a bad way. I had heard so much of the unsatisfactory state of the churches on the Niger that I was ready for the worst, and one approaching the work in this frame of mind cannot help finding many things to encourage him. On the other hand, I can well understand that any one coming here, expecting to find the Mission churches purer and more perfect (as many persons seem to do) than other churches, would be sadly disappointed at the state of things on the Niger. There are tares with the wheat in this part of the field, but I am sure that wheat is by no means wanting, and some of it is of fine quality; and I think this last is especially true of this Abutshi Station, where I have the good fortune to have been put in charge.

The Christians attend regularly the means of grace and are zealous in their efforts to make the Gospel known to their countrymen. One adult was baptized during the year. Some of the adult Christians, by regular attendance at the Sunday School, have learned to read, and Mr. Jones said it was good to see them poring over the Gospels which are now published in the Ibo language. Some of them who could not find the money to purchase a copy gave a day's work instead. Mr. Jones had several lads under his care for training; two of them were sent to him by the Christians of Osomari, who have no teacher, that they might, after training, return and teach their brethren. Preaching to the Heathen was regularly conducted in Obotshi and some neighbouring towns, especially Oba, some four miles off, which was visited weekly. One of the villages of this township has asked for a teacher, offering materials and site for a house. In July Mr. Jones visited Ichi and Ruago, eight and twelve miles respectively from Obotshi. Short as the distance was, it appeared to be the first time that many of the people had seen a white man. Of his experience at the former place, Mr. Jones wrote:—

Efforts of Christians at Osomari to obtain teachers.

Curiosity at the sight of an Englishman.

Such was the press that it was with difficulty we managed to cook and eat our food. It was a new experience to be thus looked at, and I could not help being amused when a deputation waited on me, to ask that I would sit in the door-way, where they could all see me. Presently came a deluge of tropical rain, but even this did not damp their interest; as many as could, crowded into our hut, and the rest stood outside in the pouring rain, watching the stranger, and listening to his music, for I had brought a celestina (or paper organ) with me, which proved an additional attraction. We spent all that afternoon in alternately playing and preaching to an ever-changing audience, and several hundreds must have heard our words; it made one's heart glad to have such an opportunity of telling the love of God to so many dark hearts.

The same curiosity was manifested at Ruago, but the king for a time refused to see Mr. Jones, lest he should put his name in a book and so cause his death! The poor man's life is spent in constant fear of being poisoned by his people. Mr. Jones was greatly struck with the populousness of the country:—

A populous district.

As we left the bush in which Ichi is built, and emerged into the open country which divides town from town, our guide pointed out to us patches of forest in which no less than six large towns were lying concealed, the population of each probably numbering several thousands. These towns seem to succeed each other at regular intervals of about four miles, spreading out in all directions; so that taking any one town as a centre there would be six more within a circle of four miles radius. No one knows how far this state of things extends, but the general lie of the country, together with what we could gather from the people, led us to suppose that it probably went on indefinitely into the far interior. Hundreds, probably thousands, of large towns lying within easy distance of each other, all speaking the same (Ibo) language, ready (as we have proved) to listen to the Gospel,—here is an opportunity indeed; yet "how shall they hear without a preacher?"

Asaba, on the opposite side of the Niger to Onitsha, boasts 500 kings, only one of whom is a baptized Christian; one other attends the services, but is still a polygamist. Thirty adults were baptized, 25 by Bishop Hill in January 1893. The Rev. A. C. Strong was in charge at this station, Mr. J. H. Spencer, the lay catechist, being absent on furlough at Sierra Leone. He made several visits to villages some nine or ten miles from Asaba. Mr. Strong was bereaved of his wife in July. Asaba.

SOUDAN AND UPPER NIGER.

LOKOJA was visited by Mr. Dobinson in May, 1893. He reported that he found Mr. J. J. Williams "working away very steadily, with decidedly improved congregations and attention." He administered the Holy Communion, which the Christians had had no opportunity of receiving since his previous visit in February, 1892. He also baptized five adults and three children. One of the former and two of the latter were brothers of Mr. Bako, the schoolmaster, and Mr. Williams recalls that the late Mr. G. W. Brooke had invited the communicants on one occasion to join him in prayer for the conversion of this family. Two others, one a Mohammedan and the other a Kakanda man, had been treated by Dr. Battersby. Another, who had visited Europe in his childhood, and had there come under Christian influence, belonged to the Abume tribe. The last was a woman, who was led to the Saviour by one of the communicants, with whom she lodged. Mr. Williams found the Hausa translation of St. Matthew's Gospel, by the late Rev. J. A. Robinson, very helpful in teaching Hausa traders visiting Lokoja, but these are less numerous now than they were before the roads to Lagos viâ the Yoruba country were open. He writes:— Baptisms at Lokoja.

> I read the Arabic St. John's Gospel with some Mohammedan traders. They begged for copies, which I distributed to some of them. I found a few afterwards transcribing in their houses "The New Birth" and the "Death and Resurrection of Lazarus," subjects which they had read with me. The Hausa St. Matthew's Gospel, by the late Rev. J. A. Robinson, which was copied and sent out to us by Mrs. Brooke, has been of great good to our reading. I taught a very large number at the compound, at their houses, and at the market.

During Mr. O. Thomas' furlough, after 20 years of service on the Niger, only broken by four months at Sierra Leone, Gbebe also was under Mr. Williams' charge. Mr. Williams visited several Basa villages, which, unlike the Ibo villages, are built on hills, so that they can be seen from a great distance. He made this visit in company with two earnest Christians of Gbebe, regarding one of whom he tells the following touching story:—

A slave instructs his Heathen master about Jesus.

John Kefaimo was a slave at Gbebe, who was converted under the Rev. P. J. Williams. In June last, whilst cutting wood on the opposite bank of Gbebe for his maintenance, he was kidnapped by some Nupe marauders. He managed his escape with shackles on his feet; he was compelled by hunger to expose himself in search of food. So he was caught in a farm and re-sold to Adana Kpa, a village on the bank of the river about six miles below Gbebe; poverty prevented his former master from redeeming him when he was brought to Gbebe in September. It was at this time that he had leave from those who were selling him to accompany me to Basa; he is now very much distressed under his new master. He told me that he always teaches his Heathen master and the inmates of his compound about Jesus. It may be that God wants him to be useful in this position, and I trust that He will open the way for his bodily relief.

Idols given up by Basa villagers.

At Ake, we soon had a crowd around us. I urged them to believe in Jesus Christ the Son of God as their Saviour, and to give up their idols at once. An old man who had given me some of his the first night brought the rest. The people shouted against him, but as I continued to show them the foolishness of their worship, their sins, and the great love of God towards them, the head man of the compound allowed me to pull down a very long pole, on which hung very many superstitious objects of worship; this I did at once. The people all wondered that their gods were unable to wreak vengeance on me for this assault, and said to each other, "Our gods are false gods. Jesus the Son of God whom the alfas (or ministers) tell us about is the true God." So saying, some of them entered their houses, returned, and cast strings of cowries, broken calabashes, feathers, and beads out before us, with promises to put their trust in Jesus and worship Him.

Mr. Dobinson writes: "I know of no district so completely open to evangelistic work as the Basa country."

Mr. J. J. Williams, since writing the above, has gone to Sierra Leone on furlough.

EASTERN EQUATORIAL AFRICA MISSION.

In 1844 Dr. Krapf, having lately been expelled from Abyssinia, established himself at Mombasa, and in the following year was joined by the Rev. John Rebmann, who opened the station at Kisulutini (Rabai) in 1846, and laboured on the coast twenty-nine years. Their remarkable journeys into the interior led to all subseqneut geographical and missionary enterprise in East Africa. It was chiefly through the Society's efforts that the Parliamentary Committee of 1871 was obtained, which led to Sir Bartle Frere's Mission to Zanzibar in the following year. In 1874 the Rev. W. S. Price, formerly in charge of the Asylum for rescued slaves at Nasik, Western India, was sent out; some 200 African Christians from the freed slaves entrusted to his care were collected as the nucleus of an industrial colony; land was purchased for a settlement, which was named Frere Town, in honour of Sir Bartle Frere; and some 500 rescued slaves were, in 1875, received from H.M. cruisers, and housed, fed, instructed, and led to work for their living. A Mission was started in the Taita country in 1883, and in 1885 a Mission was founded in the Chagga country, at the base of the snow-capped mountain Kilima Njaro, but the latter Mission was removed in 1893 to Taveta, in British territory.

The first impetus to the exploration of Africa from the East Coast was given by the Society's Missionaries, Krapf and Rebmann. In November, 1875, in consequence of information sent home by the traveller Stanley of the readiness of Mtesa, King of Uganda, to receive Christian teachers, and of two anonymous donations of £5,000 each being offered to send a missionary expedition to his dominions, the Society resolved, in dependence upon God, to organise a Mission in Uganda, and a well-equipped party proceeded accordingly to East Africa in the spring of 1876. The first leader, Lieut. G. Shergold Smith, R.N., and Mr. T. O'Neill, were killed; others have died, or been invalided home; but the Mission, in the face of tremendous difficulties, maintained its position in Uganda from July, 1877. A French Roman Catholic Mission arrived in Uganda in 1879. King Mtesa died in 1884, and Mwanga acceded to the throne. The new king, in 1885, was led to regard the Missionaries with suspicion, and the Mission was in danger. The storm reached its climax in the arrest of many Native Christians, and several were tortured and burnt to death. In August, 1888, King Mwanga was driven from the throne. In October, through the hostility of the Mohammedan Arabs, the English and French Missionaries were expelled from the country. A period of revolution and bloodshed ensued. In October, 1889, exactly a year from the Missionaries' expulsion, Mwanga re-entered Uganda, regained his throne, and the Missionaries returned with him. King Mwanga accepted a British flag from the representatives of the Imperial British East Africa Company in 1889.

Intermediate stations between the East Coast and the southern shore of the Lake have been established in the Usagara hills—at Mpwapwa in 1876, at Mamboia in 1879, and at Nassa, the south end of the Lake, in 1888.

For these Missions a new bishopric was established in 1884, with the title "Eastern Equatorial Africa," and the late Rev. J. Hannington was consecrated the first Bishop on June 24th, 1884. He was murdered on October 31st, 1885, in Busoga, by the orders of King Mwanga. His successor, Dr. H. P. Parker, formerly a C.M.S. Missionary in North India, was consecrated on St. Luke's Day, October 18th, 1886, but his episcopal career was also of brief duration; he died from fever on March 26th, 1888. The present Bishop, the Right Rev. A. R. Tucker, was consecrated by the Archbishop of Canterbury on April 25th, 1890.

Rapid development of the Mission.

THE rapidity of development which has marked the history of this Mission is without a parallel in the annals of the C.M.S. In 1873 John Rebmann was alone, old and blind, at Rabai. There Sir Bartle Frere found him, and urged the C.M.S., upon his return to England, to establish a Freed Slaves Settlement, to which Mr. Salter Price went out in 1874. Livingstone's death at the same time (in 1873) roused England and Scotland, and led to many African expeditions, both missionary and for other purposes. Stanley's challenge to Christendom from Uganda came two years later. The result of the co-operation of these causes twenty years ago, with God's continued blessing on the efforts to respond to His providential calls, has been that the one aged and infirm missionary of 1873 was multiplied to fifty before the close of 1893.

Reinforcements.

The additions to the staff since the last Annual Report were the following: the Rev. Henry Richard Sugden, B.A., Exeter College, Oxford, curate of Bermondsey, grandson of the late Lord Chancellor Sugden; the Revs. Frank Rowling and John Edward Hamshere, of Islington College, who were admitted to Deacons' Orders by the Bishop of London on May 28 (Trinity Sunday), 1893; Mr. Thomas Benjamin Fletcher, of Islington College; Mr. Ernest W. Doulton, sent forth by the New South Wales Association, who visited England before proceeding to the Mission; and seven ladies, namely, Miss Rose Colsey, Miss Florence Instone Deed, Miss Annie Isabel Grieve, Miss Maggie Jardine Lockhart, Miss Elizabeth Ellen Waite, Miss Emily C. Wilde, and Miss Alice Higginbotham, the last-named being in local connexion. Miss Grieve, Miss Colsey, and Miss Deed were trained at The Willows. Messrs. Sugden, Rowling, and Fletcher sailed in June, 1893; the ladies, except Miss Higginbotham, who was already in the Mission, in November; and Mr. Doulton in March, 1894. On the other hand, the Rev. R. P. Ashe, Mr. F. C. Smith, and Miss E. S. Perrin have retired; Dr. Gaskoin Wright, on grounds of health, has been transferred to the Palestine Mission; and Miss Louisa Bazett, by her marriage with Mr. J. R. W. Pigott, Acting Administrator of the I.B.E.A. Company, a warm friend of the Mission, and a member of the Frere Town Finance Committee, has retired from the list of agents of the Society, but not from missionary work.

Death of Mrs. Douglas Hooper.

Another loss to the Mission staff must be mentioned—a very heavy one. In October, 1893, Mrs. Hooper, the wife of the Rev. Douglas A. L. Hooper, was called to her rest from Jilore, her husband's station. Mrs. Hooper, who was the daughter of the Rev. F. Baldey, Vicar of St. Simon's, Southsea, had offered for service in East Africa before her engagement to Mr. Hooper. She sailed first with her husband in January, 1890. After two and a half years in the Mission her health obliged her to come home in 1892 for six months' change and rest. She returned in February, 1893, and died in October. Bishop Tucker wrote:—

> Humanly speaking, her loss is simply irreparable. No words of mine can truly tell what she was to the work out here. Her saintliness and holiness of life impressed all with whom she came in contact. Her love and gentleness won the hearts of even the most unimpressionable. Her faithful witness to the truths of the Gospel has borne, and will yet bear, more fruit in the days that are to come. We are impoverished—terribly impoverished by her absence—but richer, unspeakably richer by her life and noble example. The box of ointment has indeed been broken, but the fragrance is all around—the fragrance of a life of holy living, unwearied toil, and self-sacrificing labour in the cause of Christ. None of us who had the privilege of knowing Mrs. Hooper will ever forget her. As we thank God for all His servants departed this life in His faith and fear, we especially thank Him for Edith Hooper. Jilore is indeed bereaved! As we pray for him who has lost the sharer of his toils, and the partner of his life, as we ask that God may uphold and sustain Mr. Douglas Hooper in this season of deep sorrow, let us also pray for that little flock to whom Mrs. Hooper was like a nursing mother in her sweet tenderness and love—the infant Church of Jilore.

Bishop Tucker's movements.

Bishop Tucker was in Uganda from December 23, 1892, until June 2, 1893. At the latter date he started for the Coast, travelling by the old route, and visiting the stations in Usukuma and Usagara. In August he made a tour through the Giriama country and visited Jilore and Rabai. When the arrival in this country of Sir Gerald Portal was expected, anticipating that important questions regarding Uganda would speedily be under consideration by the Houses of Parliament, the Bishop was invited by the Committee to come to England, which he did in November.

Ordinations.

Three ordinations took place at Mengo during the year. On January 15, 1893, Bishop Tucker admitted Mr. J. Roscoe and Mr. E. Millar to Deacons' Orders; on April 9 Mr. E. H. Hubbard also to Deacons' Orders; and on Trinity Sunday, May 28, he admitted the Revs. J. Roscoe, E. Millar, W. A. Crabtree, and E. H. Hubbard to Priests' Orders, and Henry Wright Duta, Yairo Mutakyala, Yohana Muyira, Yonathani Kaidzi, Nikodemo Sebuwato, and Zakaria Kizito to Deacons' Orders.

The Bishop has appointed the Rev. R. H. Walker to be Archdeacon in Uganda.

Translations.

The printing of the following translations made by the Society's East Africa Missionaries has been taken in hand by the British and Foreign Bible Society and the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge. The former Society has undertaken St. Matthew's Gospel in Kigiryama, as a tentative version, prepared by the Native Catechist, Yohana Gona; Genesis, the Psalms, and Daniel in Luganda, prepared by Mr. G. L. Pilkington; and the Gospels of S. Matthew and S. John in Kimegi, prepared by the Rev. A. N. Wood. The latter Society has taken in hand parts of the Prayer Book and a small Hymn Book in Kitaveta, the MS. of which was brought home by the Rev. A. R. Steggall; the primer in Kigogo; the Prayer Book (revised), Catechisms and reading-sheets in Luganda; and a Hymn Book, Reading Book, and portions of the Prayer Book in Kimegi.

I. MOMBASA: FRERE TOWN, JILORE, AND RABAI.

Miss M. L. Holmes returned to the Mission in November, 1893, and Miss M. R. Gedge in April, 1894; Miss M. A. Ackerman came home on sick leave in June, 1893; and the Rev. F. Burt, Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Edwards, and Mrs. A. G. Smith came home in April, 1894.

Mombasa.

The Rev. W. E. and Mrs. Taylor and Miss Bazett took up their abode at MOMBASA in November, 1892, and Miss E. M. Furley and the Misses M. and S. Bazett entered into residence there in the following March. Later, they were joined by Mr. J. A. and Mrs. Wray, and, later still, by Miss A. I. Grieve and Miss M. J. Lockhart. The chief work during the year consisted in personal dealing with the people in their homes, and public preaching and hymn-singing. Several friends in the island, officials of the I.B.E.A. Company and others, have undertaken the erection, without cost to the Society, of a Mission Hall for evangelistic preaching. Mr. Taylor mentions that a large subscription was given towards this object by a gentleman who had returned from a hunting excursion in the interior, he having been much pleased with the Mission people who accompanied him on his expeditions. Failing such a building, the public preaching was conducted either in the market-place or in the basement of the ladies' house. Of the former Mr. Taylor says:—

An offering prompted by gratitude for services of Native Christians.

Preaching in the Market-place.

The market-place, the private property of H.E. the Arab Governor, is a piece of land adjoining the bazaars, occupied in almost its whole extent by several large and high palm-leaf roofed sheds, and surrounded by the shady recesses of the "gahawas," or coffee-shops, where buyers and dealers solace themselves in the intervals of business. Here amongst the fish, flesh, and fowls, and the piles of country produce and cries of Native auctioneers, in a motley crowd of Swahilis and Swahili-speaking people from the up-country tribes, the coast, and shores of Asia, we have found a regular preaching site in a shed devoted to barbers and razor-grinders, and seek to preach by word and song the Gospel, which we know is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, to the Greeks foolishness, to the Jews a stumbling-block, and to the Mohammedans both these; but to them that are called—Jews, Greeks, and Mohammedans—Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God. Some Greek Christians (natives of Corinth) are among our most frequent hearers, and have begun to attend our Sunday English services. Two of them are very interesting people, but unfortunately they are engaged in the liquor trade, against which we have to speak with no uncertain sound, whether among Natives or Europeans. We have very varied experiences, whether in the market or the other meetings, and it is the same in our visiting.

That there is a Spirit moving through the surging masses there can be no manner of doubt; and sometimes, when one has felt oneself more than usually tried, one and another have come in private, and started the subject of all subjects without waiting to be invited, and have seemed to be brought near to the Kingdom. Wherever one goes one hears the words, "Tela sizue!" (Taylor, don't make innovations!) being the refrain of one of the most popular songs, a sort of parody of one of our choruses; or else it is "Stop and tell us something about Isa (Jesus)!"

Miss Mary Bazett says:—

Visiting the women.

I have had some very happy times amongst the women in our visits. We now go about quite freely, as we should in England, each to our different houses, and almost everywhere are welcomed. Some parts of the town we have as yet not touched, and these we can only hope to reach by degrees, as it seems more important to follow up where the Word has been welcomed. We have come across some very bigoted women at times, but many have quite changed their behaviour when they found we were willing to tend them in sickness, and sympathise with them in suffering. These women are, many of them, quite refined and gentle, and as loveable as any white sisters could be.

I have one house specially of which I am most hopeful. Two quite young girls live with their grandfather, who is an influential Arab. These girls are eager listeners to the Gospel, and have learnt many sweet hymns, which they sing alone, as correctly as any English child. We have free permission to visit them, though the old man knows what our message is quite well. Every Sunday afternoon I go to teach them, and have most delightful times.

Former pupils of an Indian Mission School at Mombasa.

Miss Sibella Bazett refers to daily visits from the children of a Persian Christian, two of whom had been students at the Robert Money School in Bombay,—all "clever children" and "earnest Christians," though their mother is still a staunch Mohammedan. The ladies hold a weekly meeting for women only; those who attend, owing to the seclusion of the better class women, are chiefly of the slave class, but they are "wonderfully quiet and attentive," Miss Furley says.

The new Hospital was entered by Dr. C. S. and Mrs. Edwards in November, 1892. It is built at Mzizima, on a piece of land 20 acres in extent, generously given by the late Sultan of Zanzibar; it is on the northern side of the island, immediately opposite Frere Town, and about one mile from the town of Mombasa. In November, 1893, it contained fifty beds, of which thirty-five were occupied. Three patients were baptized: one a Mteita woman, who died; another a Mchagga, who was a slave in Mombasa, and was thrown out as dying; the third is the son of a Rabai chief who was slain by Masai. Of this last and of another patient Dr. Edwards says:—

Baptism of Hospital patients.

This lad was one of our first patients at Rabai, and has been my dear, faithful boy for nearly five years. It seems that when he first found himself getting better, he said he would give himself to God if he was cured. He has been rather better than his word, for at any time a journey or lack of food will cause his sores to return. Still he is as merry as a cricket, and I have never known him to lie or steal, still less sin more grossly.

"A raw lad from the hills.

Buni, another notable patient, who has been with us four years, is wishing to be baptized. Though a raw lad from the hills, he has been the sole overseer of the work, taking orders and seeing them carried out. He began learning his alphabet a long time ago, when there was a spare moment in the work, and I drew the letters for him in the dust on the ground, and since we came here to live my wife has taught him and other boys systematically to read. He is fearless, and has gone flying more than once after a cocoanut-thief, and what with his impetus and noise, aided, let us hope, by the conscience of the thief, has captured the booty, though quite unable himself to hold the thief; he has movement in very few out of the numerous joints of his arms and hands.

The Native staff of the Hospital consists of James Ainsworth, Charles Semler, and Rose Bai, the matron; and to their hands Dr. Edwards entrusted the work when his health obliged him to come home. He had left it to them on a previous occasion during an absence of several weeks at Jilore, and he was not disappointed in his confidence.

Work among freed slaves.

An out-station has been opened at Kilindini, a place on the island where some 300 freed slaves rescued by the Company are settled. The work was commenced by two Native Christians, whom the Company had placed in charge as overseers. In August Bishop Tucker requested Mr. J. A. Wray to make these people his special charge. A church, which seats 300 (and cost less than Rs. 100 !), was opened in October, and in the following month there were 131 candidates—56 men and 75 women—under instruction for baptism. Mr. Taylor's linguistic work during the year consisted in translating some 80 hymns, publishing in Arabic character a Swahili tract on "Unhampered Happiness" (which he claims to be the first book in Native character to be printed and published in East Africa), another tract with a poetical "Life of our Lord," and part of the first chapter of St. John's Gospel.

Translations.

Frere Town.

The workers at FRERE TOWN realise the privilege of united prayer and of mutual exhortation to love and good works. Daily they meet at mid-day for prayer and a short address, and weekly for a Bible reading. In addition to these stated occasions, they twice during 1893 arranged to enjoy "Quiet Days," namely, in April, when the Rev. D. A. L. and Mrs. Hooper were on a short visit to Frere Town, and in August while Bishop Tucker was there. One of the missionary ladies, who sent home an account of the gatherings on the former occasion, said: "Our desire is that other missionary brothers and sisters may share the like blessing with ourselves by starting similar meetings, that they may gain, as we have done, a deeper, closer walk with God."

Schools.

All the schools show reduced numbers, the elder pupils having left for trades, &c. The seven Native teachers in the Boys' School, under the Rev. T. S. England, were, with one exception, all formerly slaves rescued and brought to the Mission at Frere Town by H.M.'s ships (921 were received between 1875 and 1890) and there tended and instructed; five out of the seven are communicants. A Boys' Band of Hope was started at the beginning of 1893, and 76 pledges were taken during the year. In connexion with it Mr. England has trained a drum-and-fife band, the instruments for which were supplied by friends in Leicester. The Girls' School has 53 on its roll. It is very rarely, Miss L. Hill says, that punishment has to be inflicted. The Infants' School, with 73 children, boys and girls, was for the greater part of the year under Mrs. Smith, the wife of the Rev. A. G. Smith, the Acting Secretary. A new stone Dormitory was opened for the boarding girls on November 1. Mrs. E. Gardener has the care of these girls. The Rev. F. Burt reported improved attendance at the Services; but there is room for further improvement. Daily services are held at 6.15 A.M., and after the day's work the people meet again in the various classes. Mrs. Gardener speaks of one woman who is never absent from any meeting:—

She says she loves to hear the Word of God. One day I asked her if she was not afraid to walk home alone in the dark, her house being at some distance. She said, "No; I pray to God, and He takes care of me in the way."

"God takes care of me in the way."

Mr. England has a Men's Bible Class on Sundays, which numbers 70 names on the register. The settlement has been divided into districts for house-to-house visitation, which has been systematically carried on since September. Miss L. Hill says of this branch of her work:—

The district which has been entrusted to me is not a very large one, though the houses are rather scattered. Every Monday, as far as possible, we gather together at one of the central huts for a short service. As yet I can only do a little in the way of talking, but I hope to make still greater advances as the time goes on. The people are very fond of hymns and of learning texts, which they say very patiently over and over again. At the close we all kneel down, and after a short prayer, we repeat together the Lord's Prayer.

"People very fond of hymns."

Amusing incidents sometimes happen. At one hut I found a man sitting outside, busily engaged in basket-making. I sat down, and asked if he would like a hymn. He readily assented, and called his wife to come and listen. I asked him if he could remember one that he had heard in church, as he had told me that he went every morning. But his reply was that his house was so far off, by the time he got back he had forgotten. So I chose "One there is above all others," thinking he would be able to sing with me. But I had not reckoned on the help he would give, for besides making a great effort to sing, he also saw fit to cough, when I found it necessary to clear my voice. He evidently thought that part of the tune.

Services are also held at Maweni, a place about two miles from Frere Town, to which some of the people have removed from the latter place in order to be near their shambas. The Rev. J. E. Hamshere and Miss E. C. Wilde, two of the year's recruits, joined the Frere Town staff.

JILORE had a second visit from Bishop Tucker in August. He reached it by an Arab dhow from Mombasa to Melindie, which is 15 miles from Jilore. The Bishop wrote the following remarkable testimony to the vitality and prosperity of the work:—

Jilore.

Some eighteen months had passed since my previous visit. In a moment I saw that many changes had come over the scene. First of all there was a new Mission-house. This house is to my mind almost a model mission-house. It is built on a raised platform of stone some five or six feet above the level of the ground around. It consists of three rooms, a store, and a small study used by Mr. Hooper. The roof is of Indian tiles, and so ventilated that even should they become heated the warm air is at once carried off.

Bishop Tucker's visit.

But perhaps the greatest change apparent in the settlement was in the great progress made in the work. Everything seemed to have gone forward. The Church is organised, and the services arranged and carried on in the most regular manner. The day is a very full one. At 5.15 A.M., the bell is rung throughout the settlement. At 5.45 it is once more sounded. The interval is supposed to be spent in prayer and quiet before God in the home.

At the second bell the people assemble in the church for public worship. This service usually lasts for half an hour. School is the next engagement. I had the pleasure of visiting the children during school-hours, in company with Mr. and Mrs. Hooper. I was greatly pleased with all I saw. The repetition of Scripture was quite striking in the evidence which it gave of a close attention on the part of the teachers. The work of the school is carried on mainly under the superintendence of Mrs. Hooper and Miss Wyatt. Perhaps the most interesting feature in connexion with the work at Jilore is the band of young men whom Mr. Hooper is training for evangelistic work. I do not know whether there is anything in this coast part of the Mission that so rejoices my heart as this band of young men. Every one, and there are eight of them, seems thoroughly in earnest—eager to do the Master's work at whatever cost. Rapidly they seem growing in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour. Mr. Hooper's plan is to give them regular instruction and systematic training continuously until next year. Then he proposes to launch them forth into the country round to preach and to testify to God's love and grace. I ask for very earnest prayer on behalf of these young men.

A Training Class.

Sunday Services.

Sunday, August 13th, was a very busy but yet a very happy day. The morning service commenced at nine o'clock. The sight that greeted me as I entered the newly erected church was a very striking and interesting one. The Christians were all dressed in white; the men sitting on one side of the church, and the women on the other. Near the Communion rails was a seat on which Gona, Andreas, and those who are recognised as teachers were sitting. On the other side of the church was the harmonium, at which Mrs. Hooper presided. At Jilore the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper is administered every Sunday, and the Holy Table was, as usual, covered with a fair white cloth. The service was of the heartiest description, everyone apparently entering into it. Gona, the catechist, read the lessons. This man is one of the most earnest, faithful, and self-denying Christians known to me in East Africa. His stipend as catechist is 10 rupees per month, but regularly he gives back one-half for the work of the Lord. Early and late he is at work—always about his Master's business. Perhaps the most significant feature in the work at Jilore is the large number of communicants compared with the population. Every confirmed member of the Church is a communicant. Should one or other be absent at any time, the cause is at once inquired into. If sickness has been the cause, everything is done that is possible for the ailing brother. Should, however, the cause be a spiritual lapse, spiritual help is given, and no effort is spared until the wanderer is brought back again. On August 13th, thirty dear members of the flock of Christ gathered around the Table of the Lord. As I remembered so well the beginning of the work some two years previously, I could not but thank and praise God with a very full heart. At both the morning and evening services I preached, and Mr. Hooper interpreted for me. I also took the afternoon Bible-class. On each of these occasions the hearers seemed to listen with all their ears, and to drink in what was said. I shall not readily forget Sunday, August 13th, at Jilore.

A self-denying Catechist.

Every confirmed person a communicant.

On Monday I spoke to Mr. Hooper's band of evangelists, and afterwards saw the Confirmation candidates. The examination of the school and an address to the teachers filled up the remainder of the day.

Confirmation.

On Tuesday, August 15th, I held my second Confirmation at Jilore. The first was on March 27th, 1892, when ten candidates were presented. On this occasion, eighteen were confirmed. I believe that every one of the former band is living a consistent Christian life. Very earnestly indeed do I ask for prayer on behalf of those who have so recently confessed Christ as God and Saviour in Confirmation. A meeting for prayer in the evening concluded an intensely interesting day.

On Thursday, August 17th, my visit to Jilore came to an end. Altogether

I had spent five days in this remarkable sphere of work. Certainly one of its distinguishing features is the completeness of its organisation. The settlement is governed by a Church Council, the head of which is the missionary in charge (Mr. Hooper). This Council consists of five Church members, i.e., communicants, whose duties are set forth by themselves in the following terms:— Church Council Rules.

(i.) Remembering that we have been put in trust of the Gospel, and that an account will be asked of us of that which we have received, it behoves the Council to see that the Gospel is preached every day in the villages of the Giriama district. This is the work of the Church of Jilore.

(ii.) To consider the question of any one wishing to build in our village.

(iii.) To make regulations for the village, and to see they are carried out.

(iv.) to appoint two men to count the Church money every Sunday. The Council will decide how the money shall be used.

(v.) All offences shall be brought before the Council.

(vi.) Caring for the sick. A Church member appointed to look after them, and to report to the Council.

(vii.) To see that all in the village attend the Church services every day. A member appointed to inquire after those who absent themselves and to inform the Council.

(viii.) To attend to the church and its furniture, and to see to the repairs of the roof, &c.

(ix.) To see that the church is ready swept for service, and that the people are seated properly in their places; that strangers are not left standing, but shown seats immediately. A member appointed for this work.

This will, I think, serve to show how thoroughly everything is supervised with respect to the Church: but in addition to this there are a number of regulations with respect to the government of the village, all made by the Natives themselves, which testify to the reality of their religious convictions.

I mentioned in the beginning that the young men had volunteered to carry my loads for me, and this was not only from Melindie to Jilore, about sixteen miles, but from Jilore to Rabai, a distance of seventy miles, and all without recompense of any kind. They did it because of their love to their Saviour, and because they believed that by so doing they were furthering His cause. Certainly their self-denial and self-sacrifice has taught me a lesson, and I trust it may teach many others. It is impossible for any one to visit such a work as that at Jilore without learning many lessons. The energy and intensity of the convictions of the workers have impressed themselves indelibly on the lives of the members of the Native Church. The result is apparent on every hand—in the church, in the school, the class, the home, the field and the road. May God greatly bless His servants in their faithful labours! May the Native Church be built up and established in the faith, and many go forth into the country round to tell of the Christ who has come, and who is to come again! Voluntary Christian workers.

The "New Mission-house" on which the Bishop remarks was built under the supervision of Dr. Edwards, whose services as an architect and surveyor, though without professional training in this matter, have been of the greatest value to the Mission. But the Rev. D. A. L. Hooper, after Mrs. Hooper's death, left the house to the ladies, Miss Higginbotham and Miss Wyatt (the latter of whom went out independently with Mrs. Hooper), and returned to the mud and wattle house built for him originally by the Natives, which he says is "most comfortable, and all that a man can need." Of the late Mrs. Hooper her husband writes:—

"All on the altar."

Often have I emphasised the need of our all being on the altar, at the Master's disposal, devoted; little did I dream how He was going to emphasise it, and come suddenly and call her who was loved so well, and who was so happy spending and being spent in the work. There was nothing being done but she was in it—translation work, doctoring, tailoring, cooking, gardening classes, meetings, and even building, for she would point out what was not straight and then give a helpful suggestion—her hymns are sung in school, and not least of all, the telling work of close dealing with individual souls. A man from an outside village only last week told me how he had often watched us two together, but he said the Wagiriama do not know of such love.

Native Itinerants.

The congregation has undertaken, without assistance from Europeans, to maintain a teacher for itinerating, and to keep the church in repair. Writing in December, Mr. Hooper said of the itinerating:—

Last month six of the class went out itinerating in couples for the inside of a week, and ninety-six villages were visited. Just now eight are out in couples for a fortnight. They will all spend Sunday together at a village some thirty miles from here, and then separate again.

More prayer for Native Christians.

Mr. Hooper pleads earnestly for more prayer for Native Christians. "Will not you in England," he writes, "begin joining us in prayer that God may show what He can do by Natives?" And, in juxtaposition with this appeal, it may be well to quote from a letter he wrote in September, 1892, in which also an explanation occurs of a reference in Bishop Tucker's remarks quoted above to "a bell rung through the settlement at 5.15 A.M." After describing a remarkable revival in that month (see last year's Report, p. 41) he said:—

"A morning watch."

I simply write to the praise of the glory of His grace. I want this to encourage some despondent ones. Only in the afternoon I was thinking over Ps. cxxvi. 6. Take heart and peg away, my brethren. Do not be afraid of too much teaching of the Word. For these people I have three Bible-readings a week, and a prayer-meeting on Saturday, besides the Church service daily, which includes expounding the Word. We need to pile up the wood. The Wind bloweth where it listeth. The fire is promised, and will certainly come; let us prepare for it. Then let us not tire of impressing our people with the importance of cultivating the habit of private prayer. It is two months since I started going out every morning at 5.15, ringing a bell for the benefit of those who wished to enjoy a morning watch. I never tried to find out who got up. We have church at six o'clock. Then I tried and got them to have a short time at mid-day. Some went daily together; others have their time alone. Lastly, let me testify to the help confession of sin has been. It has been humbling; but, after all, it is only taking the bull by the horns.

At Mwaiba, which Mr. Burt made the base of his itinerations in the Giriama country until his removal to Frere Town in March, 1893, a share was experienced in the same spiritual blessings, largely due, Mr. Burt believes, to the prayers of the friends at Jilore. Five adults were baptized, and several of the Christians were very earnest in proclaiming the Gospel.

Rabai.

RABAI is the name of a district inhabited by the Warabai, a division of the Wanyika people. The small piece of land at Kisulutini which was originally given to Krapf and Rebmann in this district in 1846, has long since proved too narrow for the population, which now numbers some 1,500, most of them freed slaves, representing almost every tribe from Nyassa northwards, but there is also a fair proportion of Natives of the immediate district, Warabai, Waduruma, Wagiriama, and others. The work among them is of a pastoral character, and is under the superintendence of the Rev. E. A. Fitch. Daily services, with exposition; classes for Bible study for men and women and young people, and these multiplied to suit the various standards of knowledge, namely, those in the stage of catechumens, those preparing for confirmation, &c.; prayer meetings; and schools make a busy programme of work. The Native pastor, the Rev. W. H. Jones, was himself rescued in his youth from a slave ship. That, however, was before Frere Town was founded for the reception of freed slaves. He was taken to Bombay, and committed by the Government to the care of the Society's Mission at Nasik, in Western India. Mr. Jones spent several months on privileged leave in Bombay during the past year, and on his return was accompanied by five African girls, who had been rescued from slave dhows in 1889 and taken to Bombay, where they were sent by the authorities to the C.M.S. Orphanage at Sharanpur, near Nasik. They were baptized by the Rev. W. A. Roberts in 1891. One of them received a two years' training as a nurse in Bombay. Mr. Jones' return to Rabai was welcomed by the Christians with much enthusiasm in October. The Boys' School is under Mr. J. Burness, and the Girls' School under Miss J. B. Tobin. The latter has 95 names on the register, with an average attendance of 70, and Miss Tobin says:—

Freed slave girls from Nasik.

Nearly all the children, except the very tiny ones, know the Hundred Texts. I find the girls affectionate and almost all intelligent, and several of my own girls are capable of being taught almost anything; they are very fond of arithmetic, and an English lesson is looked for anxiously.

Loving little hearts.

Some of the little children in the school are very fond of each other. I had to put one in the corner one day for some trifling offence (I must uphold the teachers' authority); she had been standing there only a few minutes, when I heard a howl from the other end of the room, and saw a small object coming slowly up (howling all the time), who proved to be a small sister of the culprit's; she came straight up to the corner and stood near her sister, stroking her arm, and looking up into her face with looks full of love; it was such a pretty sight; one of my girls said, "Ah! she does love her much." She stood with her until the punishment was over.

Miss F. I. Deed is stationed at Rabai. The out-stations, Chaa Ngombe and Kisimani, are worked by five catechists, who meet together on one day every week for united prayer.

II. TAITA AND TAVETA.

Sagalla. As mentioned in last year's Report, Mr. J. A. Wray visited SAGALLA, in the Taita country, at the beginning of 1893. He returned again and spent three months there in April. The people attended the services in large numbers at first, but the interest diminished by degrees. Several of the young men learned to read St. Mark's Gospel. In July, Mr. Wray was appointed to labour in the island of Mombasa, as the state of Mrs. Wray's health rendered it undesirable that they should be at an interior station, where medical assistance could not be obtained without a journey to the Coast.

Taveta. The Rev. A. R. Steggall came home from TAVETA in June, 1893, sailing again in March, 1894. Taveta is a Republic, and is governed by a council of elders chosen from the people. Its sanitary reputation as an abode for Europeans has not been good, and Mr. A. McGregor was down with fever 60 days during the nine months from February to October, but the attacks were not serious, and he was never once disabled from attendance at the Sunday services, at which the congregation averages about 40. Two lads were baptized at Easter, before Mr. Steggall left, and Mr. McGregor had 31 youths staying with him when he wrote in October (since increased to 48), representing ten different tribes, but "agreeing together on the whole astonishingly well," he says. Mr. McGregor writes :—

Love for God's Word.

> It is very encouraging to see the love some of the boys seem to have for reading the Word. I have several times seen one of them sitting down by the roadside, reading to a group of five or six persons, including old men.

III. USAGARA AND USUKUMA.

Mamboia. MAMBOIA welcomed back the Rev. A. N. and Mrs. Wood in January, 1894, and with them two recruits, Miss R. Colsey and Miss E. E. Waite, the first unmarried ladies to occupy an up-country station. Bishop Tucker confirmed 17 candidates on his way from Uganda to the Coast.

Mpwapwa. The Rev. J. C. Price continues to labour at MPWAPWA; he baptized six adults—all Wagogo except one—on Whit-Sunday, 1893, and Bishop Tucker confirmed eleven candidates in July, on his way down to the Coast. Mr. Price is encouraged by visits of inquirers, who, though dull intellectually, appear to be under the influence of the Holy Spirit in the desire they manifest for instruction and counsel. Moreover, a class varying from 12 to 20 remain with him every evening after the public prayers for Scripture reading; with them he was, in December, reading through the Old Testament a second time in Swahili. With the help of two Native Christians Mr. Price was translating St. Paul's Epistles—the four Gospels and the Acts are already translated. The Wahehe continue to be a terror to this district, and there were rumours of an approaching attack by them in December, but, happily, the attack did not take place. Mr. E. W. Doulton left the coast for Mpwapwa in the middle of April. His arrival would be especially welcome, as Mr. Price has been without a fellow-helper for several years.

At KISOKWE, the Rev. H. Cole reports that a new stone church was built during the year, under Mr. J. H. Briggs' supervision, and the attendance much improved. The school attendance also increased threefold on the number of 1892. Twenty-one adults, including chief Madimolo, were baptized. The Rev. J. E. Beverley returned to Kisokwe in February, 1894, accompanied by Mrs. Beverley (née Miss C. E. Taylor). Kisokwe.

Mr. E. H. Hubbard, of NASSA, visited Uganda in the spring of 1893, and was admitted to Deacon's and Priest's Orders by Bishop Tucker in April and May respectively, as already mentioned. In March he was joined at Nassa by Mr. J. P. Nickisson, and in November, when Archdeacon Walker and the Rev. E. C. Gordon and their party arrived at Nassa, en route for Uganda, finding Mr. Hubbard and Mr. Nickisson in indifferent health, they requested the Rev. F. Rowling to stay there temporarily, which he did. The first fruits of this station were baptized in June, in the persons of two Wasukuma, one of whom received the name of William David; the other was a lad named Nkuba. Mr. Gordon wrote in November :— First fruits at Nassa.

It has made my heart very glad to hear Daudi Mbasa lead the evening devotions and offer spontaneous prayer in the church here. I take a deep interest in the Wasukuma or Wanyamwezi, as I have lived amongst them, and can talk to them in their own tongue. This man Daudi Mbasa has been helping Natanieli to translate the Gospel of St. Matthew into Kisukuma. With another Native of Msalala whom I taught to read long ago, I made a tentative translation of the Gospel of Mark. This I had type-written in England, and used it on the road up-country, reading to the porters, and here also when I read it almost every word is understood by Daudi Mbasa. I hope to complete it with the help of my friend from Msalala and Natanieli. The two Buganda teachers, Natanieli and Henry Mukussa, have done excellent and invaluable work here. During our stay there has been regular teaching of the lads, taken by Henry, Daudi, and two elder Buganda lads, Simeoni and Danieli. I have been here three Sundays, and Natanieli has spoken twice and Henry once. Each time after they had spoken and told the Gospel story plainly, I have spoken and been struck with the attention given. Natanieli has also written out the morning service and some prayers. Both Natanieli and Henry speak hopefully of the work, and want to return to continue it after a visit to Buganda. Natanieli is going to Buganda to get married, and Henry, who has been here about a year, wants a rest. Natanieli has been here the longest and knows the language best. He has written out his translation of the Gospel of Matthew with his own hand and the help of Daudi, and it is very well done, needing little correction except in spelling. This Gospel, with Hubbard's corrections, has gone, or is going, to Buganda to be printed. Good work of Buganda teachers.

A visit was paid in August, at the invitation of King

Lukongeh, to the island of Ukerewe, the place where Lieut. Shergold Smith and Mr. O'Neill were murdered in 1877. Mr. Nickisson made a short stay, but very few boys were sent to him for instruction.

IV. UGANDA.

Visit of Queen's Commissioner to Uganda.

THE event of chief interest in the political history of Uganda during 1893 was the visit of the Queen's Commissioner, the late Sir Gerald Portal, Consul-General of Zanzibar. He arrived in March, but, preceding him, Captain Macdonald, who had previously conducted the survey for a railway from the Coast, had returned to Mengo on December 9. As mentioned in last year's Report, he had met Bishop Tucker as he was nearing the Coast after completing the survey, and the Bishop informed him of the decision of the Government to assist the I.B.E.A. Company to continue its occupation of Uganda until the end of March, whereupon Captain Macdonald turned back to carry the news to Uganda. He had a public interview with King Mwanga on December 11. A fortnight later Bishop Tucker and his party of six recruits reached Mengo.

Sir Gerald Portal's arrival.

Sir Gerald Portal's arrival on March 17, and his public reception, are thus described by the Bishop:—

March 17.—This has been a day of great excitement. Sir Gerald Portal, the Imperial Commissioner, arrived this morning at about ten o'clock. Three days ago Zachariya—one of our Church Council—was sent by the king to meet the expected party and bid them welcome to Uganda. Yesterday Captain Portal arrived with the news that the Consul-General was only one day's march away, and that in all probability he would arrive in the morning. Early this morning large crowds went out to meet the Commissioner. All the principal chiefs, with their followers, joined in the outgoing crowd. Accompanied by Captain Portal, I walked out a short distance and was a witness of the deep joy of the people at the arrival of the representative of the Queen. They feel convinced now that all will go well and that the country will not be abandoned. That they may be under the protection of "Queenie," as they term Her Majesty, is to them a thought of great joy.

It was really an impressive sight, the entrance of the travellers into Kampala. They were all, more or less, sun-burnt and travel-worn, but thoroughly well and hearty. The Waganda, in their terra-cotta-coloured bark clothes and their snow-white garments, lined the roads on either side. Now and again a great chief advanced and was introduced to the Consul-General as he rode on horseback; then he fell back to the rear and was succeeded by another, who in his turn made way for others who wanted to be introduced. Thus the progress was slow. Drums were beating on every hand, and as we drew near to the fort the clash of arms drew our attention to the Soudanese soldiers, who, in their snow-white tunics, were paraded outside the gates and presented a very smart appearance as they presented arms. Thus Kampala was entered and the long journey at an end.

His public reception by Mwanga.

March 20.—This morning the king held a barazza for the public reception of Sir Gerald Portal. The scene was a very brilliant one, the sun shining gloriously, and the white dresses of the chiefs and the glittering arms of the Native soldiers seemed to sparkle in the sunlight. Sir Gerald Portal was in full uniform and attended by his staff. The Sultan of Zanzibar's soldiers headed the procession, and, as they filed off to the right and left, the Commissioner and his staff advanced through their ranks. We of the Mission party were already in barazza, and as the king rose to greet the Consul-General we also stood, and remained standing until the king and his guests had taken their seats. All the great chiefs of the country were present; many of them were dressed in very gorgeous attire. But without question those dressed simply in white looked the best, both from an art and common-sense point of view. The king sat in the gilt chair lately presented to him by the Company. The carpet (to tread on which is a high crime and misdemeanour) was one that I brought up with me as a present to the king. The barazza did not last long. Greetings were exchanged. The Consul-General expressed his pleasure at being in Buganda; the king his pleasure at seeing him; and so the interview came to an end.

At the termination of the three months, as arranged between the British Government and the I.B.E.A. Company, the rule of the latter in Uganda ceased, and the Union Jack was hoisted on April 1. Bishop Tucker commented thus on the event:—

Union Jack hoisted at Mengo.

That the hauling down of the Company's flag was not the termination of the British rule and influence in these regions is indeed a wonderful answer to prayer. Our hearts are full of thankfulness and praise. One of the happiest features connected with the movement (which we have recently witnessed) of public opinion in Great Britain, is the way in which Christians of all schools of thought have united in urging upon the Government the necessity of maintaining British rule in Uganda. I am sure that those warm-hearted friends who, at the Annual Meeting of the Gleaners' Union in 1891, so lovingly and cheerfully gave of their silver and their gold for the cause of Christ in Uganda, see that their money was not thrown away. Indeed, I make bold to say that the money subscribed on that never-to-be-forgotten night saved Uganda. It secured exactly what we wanted—breathing time—time in which to inform and move public opinion. All has been Divinely ordered, and already fruit is being borne.

How Uganda was saved.

Sir Gerald Portal's Mission was to report on the actual state of affairs in Uganda, and on the best means of dealing with the country; but he evidently interpreted his instructions as authorising him to do his utmost to negotiate terms of amicable arrangement between the rival factions in Uganda, as the absence of such an understanding seemed likely to render impossible any satisfactory "dealing with the country." He invited the two Bishops, Bishop Tucker and Mgr. Hirth, to meet in conference in the presence of himself and Captain Macdonald, the result of which meeting was their agreeing to submit to the chiefs of the respective parties, and to recommend to their acceptance, the terms of a treaty as a final settlement of the difficulties which had long been matters of contention between them. The treaty was drafted by Sir Gerald, and after it had been signed by the chiefs of the two parties the king added his signature on April 19. It is clear that it was a matter of the greatest difficulty to arrive at this settlement, and much of the success is doubtless due to the weight which attached to Sir Gerald Portal's position, and to his tact and candour and impartiality in presiding at the discussion between the Bishops. "The French Bishop's demands were very large," Bishop Tucker wrote immediately after the conference, and Sir Gerald's despatches show that he more than once despaired of a satisfactory issue. Sir Gerald expressed the following frank testimony to Bishop Tucker's conciliatory attitude :—

Settlement of matters in dispute between Romanist and Protestant parties.

Bishop Tucker's conciliatory attitude.

I am unwilling to conclude this despatch without placing on record my sense of the straightforwardness and conciliatory tone adopted by Bishop Tucker throughout these negotiations, and of the anxiety which he manifested to come to an agreement which should secure a peace with some prospect of permanence, even at a sacrifice of some of the territorial possessions of the Protestant party.

The terms of the Agreement arrived at were as follows :—

"Agreement between the chiefs of the Catholic and Protestant Missions concerning a redistribution of offices and country, which they engage to support.

"Article I.—Two Katikiros (Ministers of Justice) to be appointed, one for the Protestants and the other for the Catholics. The appointment to these offices must receive the approval of the Resident. The office of Kimbugwe is abolished.

"Article II.—Two Miyais (commanders of troops) to be appointed, one for the Catholics and the other for the Protestants ; both to reside in the capital, and to be placed under the chief command of the Resident.

"Article III.—Two Gabungas (commanders of canoes) to be appointed, one for the Catholics and the other for the Protestants. The appointments must receive the approval of the Resident.

"Article IV.—Rubuga (the king's sister) is a Catholic. On her death her office becomes extinct.

"Article V.—Besides Buddu, the Catholics to receive the province of Kaima, Sese Island, and the district of Lwekula, as well as the Shambas (plantations) of Mwanika through the province of Mugema up to the capital.

"Article VI.—The sons of Karema to be brought forthwith to the capital, and to reside under the care of the Resident and within the circumvallation of the fort.

"ALFRED, Bishop of Eastern Equatorial Africa.
"HIRTH, Apostolical Vicar of Nyanza.
"GERALD H. PORTAL, H.B.M. Commissary and Consul-General.
"JAMES R. L. MACDONALD, Captain, Royal Engineers.

Sir Gerald Portal left Mengo for the Coast, viâ Kavirondo, on May 30, and Bishop Tucker started three days later to cross the Lake in order to proceed to the Coast by the route through the German territory, and thus to visit the Usukuma and Usagara stations on the way. A few days before he left, the Bishop wrote, "The position of our friends is absolutely secure, in our opinion."

A new danger.

But a new danger was imminent. The Mohammedan faction had never loyally acted up to their engagements made by treaty with Captain Lugard in the summer of 1892 (see last year's Report, page 54). They professed, indeed, to accept Mwanga as their king, but they declined to evidence their subjection by paying tribute and by performing the works allotted to them. On the day before leaving, Sir Gerald Portal had an interview with the two leading Mohammedan chiefs, Mr. Pilkington acting as interpreter, and the Commissioner told them that he should await in Kavirondo news of their conduct, and that if they continued to give trouble he should deport them out of the country. The discontent of this party had been increased, it appears, through the refusal of Sir Gerald to add to their territories as he had to those of the Roman Catholics. But the real danger lay in the possibility of a coalition between them and the Nubian soldiers, under Selim

MAP OF UGANDA.

Bey, whom Captain Lugard had brought to Uganda from the Equatorial Province, the remnant of Emin Pasha's forces left behind when he accompanied Stanley to the Coast. Selim Bey at this time was at Ntebe, or Port Alice (a place on the Lake-side which it was proposed to make the port for steamboat communication with Scio Bay, the terminus of the proposed railway), for the benefit of his health. On Saturday, June 17, Captain Macdonald, having received a note from Selim of a mutinous character, intimating that he should assist the Mohammedans if they were attacked, immediately sent runners to recall Sir Gerald Portal. The prompt measures taken by Captain Macdonald, however, proved entirely successful, through God's great goodness, and the most serious danger, perhaps, which has hitherto threatened the country and its infant Church was averted. Selim Bey was made a prisoner, and died on the way to the Coast with Sir Gerald Portal, who also took with him one of the two young boy princes, sons of Kalema and cousins of Mwanga. The Mohammedans fled, and the three provinces which had been assigned to them by Captain Lugard, and confirmed to them by Sir Gerald Portal, were declared confiscated; Kitunzi was allotted to the Protestants, Kasuju to the Roman Catholics, and Katambala was bestowed upon those Mohammedans who had remained loyal.

Mohammedan rising quelled.

An incident connected indirectly with Sir Gerald Portal's visit must not be entirely passed over. The Times newspaper sent a Special Correspondent to Uganda a few weeks in advance of the Commissioner, and that gentleman, in one of his reports, made some strictures on the Society's missionaries and their methods which naturally attracted attention. A reply was made in the C.M. Intelligencer for August, and in due course Bishop Tucker replied in a letter to the Times of October 31, 1893 (see Intelligencer for December, 1893). After dealing with the specific charges the Bishop proceeded in his letter to comment on the Correspondent's omissions in the following words:—

Strictures of Times Correspondent.

Bishop Tucker's reply.

But your Correspondent has produced an inaccurate picture of the English Mission in Uganda as much by what he has left out as by what he has put in. The spectacle of a vast assembly, sometimes numbering 5,000 souls, who only a few years ago were sunk in the grossest Paganism, now reverently worshipping the true God every Sunday, in a noble building erected by their own hands, was surely worthy of a passing notice by a thoughtful and unprejudiced observer.

Medical work.

And your Correspondent is silent with still less cause about the excellent work done by the medical branch of the Mission. He must have known that every day scores of sick, halt, lame, and blind were treated by a fully qualified English doctor. Many could have told him what was being done. The French Bishop could have told him, for not only he, but his people were freely attended (a sufficient answer, by the way, to the charge of religious bitterness which has been brought against the missionaries). The Resident (Captain Williams) could have told him, for he also shared the benefit. His own porters could have told him, for they too were among the doctor's patients.

A unique phenomenon.

It is strange also that the representative of the greatest newspaper in the world should have passed over with the barest reference the remarkable results of the printing-press in Uganda—probably a unique phenomenon in the history of civilisation. He speaks warmly of Mackay, but it is with the very type which Mackay cut with his own hands that his successors to-day are doing the work which lay nearest the heart of that remarkable man. It was Mackay who kindled that thirst for reading which has grown almost to a popular passion; and for that very kind of reading for which your Correspondent has only a sneer.

Still more remarkable is the brevity with which your Correspondent notices what is an evidence of one of the most wonderful social revolutions which have taken place in any nation—the declaration, published by you some months ago, which was signed by forty of the principal chiefs in Uganda, expressing their desire to abolish not merely slave raiding and trading (that had been abolished previously), but the whole system of domestic slavery. This, as I was able to show at the time, was a direct outcome of the work of the missionaries of the Church of England. When it is remembered how many centuries passed before the Christendom of Europe reached the same stage of enlightenment which this people barely emerging from barbarism have gained in little more than two decades, your Correspondent's description scarcely shows a sense of historic proportion. Social revolution.

I will not follow him in his invidious comparisons between Protestant and Roman missionaries. It is impossible that men will ever see alike on such matters. I will, however, state a few facts which may serve as a more accurate basis for those who wish to make comparisons, and may show that self-denial and heroism are not confined to missionaries of one creed. In 1890 a reinforcing party of ten missionaries was organised for the Lake, of whom six were graduates of Oxford or Cambridge. One of these men had gained a first class in Classics, and had open before him a brilliant future at home. Of the four non-graduates, two were ordained and two were laymen. Of the ordained men one had gained a first class, and the other a second in the Cambridge Preliminary. Of that party five are in their graves; one only has returned home after having been twice as near death as it is possible for a man to be without dying. And the remaining four, of whom one is the writer, are at this moment at work in Africa. I myself have stood by the graves of fifteen missionaries of the C.M.S. who have laid down their lives for the cause of Christ in Eastern Equatorial Africa. I will say nothing of those who survive, but that I believe them to be endued with the same true martyr spirit as those who have lived and laboured and died for their fellow-men. The devotion which has led them to sever the ties of home and country, to leave the pleasures and lawful ambitions of civilised life, and to encounter the dangers, depression, and difficulties of a life in Darkest Africa, asks for no praise or compliment from men; but at least it might be spared the sinister criticism of those who are scarcely in a position to sit in judgment on them or their work.

The graves of fifteen Missionaries in East Africa.

The history of the declaration of the chiefs on the subject of domestic slavery, referred to in the above, and quoted on a previous page (see page 12), was thus given in one of the Bishop's letters written from Uganda in April:—

Early in the month of March certain slaves who had been ill-used by their Mohammedan masters took refuge with some of our Christian people. A demand for their surrender was made but refused. The Katikiro was appealed to in one particular case—that of Bartolemayo. He ordered the slave to be produced that the case might be tried. Bartolemayo refused to yield. An appeal was made to the king, who ordered the slave to be brought before him within fifteen days, but without effect. The slave was not produced, and the ground of the refusal was said to be a conscientious scruple on the question of slavery. I was asked to meet the chiefs in order that this matter might be brought before me, and so I might be in a position to advise them. We all met in the church. I was then informed of the details of the case I have mentioned, and my opinion was asked on the matter. I said that without question as long as slavery was the law of the land they were bound to deliver up all runaways, and more especially when ordered by the king and Katikiro. I added that if they thought the law a bad one, they should try and get it altered. I then told them what I thought about slavery, but dwelling more especially on what I believed to be the teaching of Scripture on the subject. I spoke to them of the law of Love, the new commandment, of Philemon and Onesimus, &c., and then I recommended them to pray over the matter, and to talk it over amongst themselves, with constant reference to the Word of God. Should they come to any conclusion on the subject I said that I should be glad to know what it was. The answer came in due course. It was the enclosed paper, signed by forty Protestant chiefs, including nine of the great chiefs of the country. When we remember that there are only thirteen great chiefs in Uganda, the full significance of the declaration will at once be apparent. Whether the emancipation of all slaves in Uganda will be the result of this movement among the Protestants will depend largely on the action of the Roman Catholics. Should they agree to the measure, then freedom for all slaves will be the law of the land. The Mohammedans will, of course, object to it. But when nine-tenths of the people declare for such a constitutional change, then the minority must give way. Of course it means the deathblow to Mohammedanism as it has existed here in the past. Should the Roman Catholics decline to join in this measure of freedom, then I trust that our people may have grace given them to free their own slaves.

Declaration of Protestant Chiefs.

Sale of books.

The "thirst for reading," to which the Bishop's letter to the Times referred, is illustrated by the fact that during 1893 between 35,000 and 40,000 books, reading-sheets, &c., were sold, in return for which over £300 was received. Upwards of 5,000 copies of the Gospels and Acts were included in these sales. The Rev. E. Millar wrote in April, 1893:—

The eagerness for books is enormous and very surprising, as it is not a sudden rush and then all over, but day after day, day after day, the stream goes on. Last year it is calculated that about 20,000 reading-sheets were sold. This year, i.e., since December 27th last, when a new lot of loads came up, the sale has been over 11,000; this is an increase. We were selling reading-sheets at the rate of about twenty per day, or perhaps twenty-five, up to March 25th, when some new books came up with Mr. E. H. Hubbard from Nassa. When we came up here, arriving on December 23rd last, we brought fourteen loads of books, the greatest number by far that has ever come into the country at once. We sold off 5,000 large reading-sheets in a little over a fortnight, I think, and people were asking for more up till quite lately. I did not take over the book department till a little later, so can give you no accurate statistics as to the number of Gospels, &c., sold; all I can say is that the cowries, or shells as we call them here, came in so fast that it took a man nearly six weeks to count them and tie them all up in bundles of 5,000 each; the sale, of course, all this time was diminishing. On February 18th we sold 500,000 shells to the camp, i.e., about £112; this was all from the sale of books in seven weeks. The sale has been 7,271 books of all kinds, an average of over 660 books per day; this includes 4,521 large and 141 small reading-sheets, 441 St. Matthew, and 162 of the other Gospels, and 85 copies of the Four Gospels and Acts. The people, as you will perceive, prefer Matthew to the other Gospels, and very much prefer it; the greatest number of any other Gospel sold in the last fortnight is 91, and those are copies of St. John. The reason of this preference is that Mackay translated Matthew, and so the people know it better than any other Gospel. St. John has been known some little time. St. Luke is not well known compared to the other books, but sells fairly wel., 53 copies in the last fortnight. St. Mark is very little known, and the Acts practically not known at all.

Average sale of 660 books a day.

Indeed, it appears that the Roman Catholic Bishop, finding it impossible to prevent his people from reading the New Testament which was circulating among them, came, after much hesitation, to the conclusion to authorise the preparation of a Roman Catholic version of the same.

The Mission Staff.

Dr. E. J. Baxter returned with Bishop Tucker to the Coast (and preceded the Bishop to this country), leaving the following eight missionaries in Uganda: four, the Revs. J. Roscoe and E. Millar, Mr. G. L. Pilkington, and Mr. R. H. Leakey, who laboured at Mengo throughout the year; two, Messrs. C. A. Günther and A. B. Fisher, who commenced work in Singo in April, but the former returned to the capital after a few months; and two, the Revs. G. K. Baskerville and W. A. Crabtree, who opened a station at Ziba, in Kyagwe, in February. Mr. Günther came home by doctor's orders in November. Archdeacon Walker, the Revs. E. C. Gordon and H. R. Sugden, and Mr. T. B. Fletcher arrived at Mengo viâ the German sphere on December 18.

Of those in MENGO, Mr. Pilkington was chiefly engaged in translation work, revising the Luganda New Testament, &c.; Messrs. Millar and Leakey applied themselves to the study of the language; while the work of daily instructing the classes of learners in Scripture knowledge devolved upon Mr. Roscoe, who wrote in April:—

Classes of Catechumens.

We have on the books this year 400 names for baptism, the largest number there has ever been at one time; they are divided up into classes of about ten, and are taught by some of the best of our teachers. We have a regular course for them: first they learn a small catechism almost like the one for the Indian Christian Vernacular Education Society, when they pass that they go on to a Gospel, and from that to general teaching by one of the most able Native teachers, and lastly to one of us; in this way they have three examinations before they are baptized. Pilkington helps me in this work each day, as a change from his translational work. Each morning the Natives assemble in the church from about seven to nine. They form themselves into classes and read under a teacher, chiefly the Gospels; others teach letters and syllables; and Henry W. Duta the Epistles at nine. We have a short service, then those who are forced to leave go; the others again form classes for baptism or confirmation until about eleven o'clock. In the afternoon the teachers take classes at their homes for baptism and confirmation for those who are unable to attend in the church.

Mr. Leakey describes the process of instruction and probation in somewhat greater detail. He says:—

First, each candidate has to learn by heart a small catechism as published by the Christian Vernacular Education Society, but translated by Pilkington into Luganda with a few alterations to suit this country, and approved by the Bishop. When they have learnt this they are examined in it by a Native, Henry Duta, I think, and then, if they are leading consistent lives, they are brought forward by some of the church elders and enrolled as candidates for baptism. They then have to read with some appointed (Native) teacher the Gospel according to St. John, and are examined on it by a Native appointed for the purpose. They also read in the same way one of the other Gospels and are examined on it as before. They are then all, one by one, examined by one of the Europeans, who has a few special classes with them on such points as the Natives have not been able to fully explain, and on the life and walk of a Christian, and they are then baptized; and I would not fear to place any who have been through this course with the majority of people who call themselves Christian at home, for I know they are able to fulfil 1 Peter iii. 15. If any do not pass any of the examinations they have to read their subject again, and it is pitiful to see their real disappointment if they are turned back. They often shed tears at it. Each baptized person is taught that it is his or her duty to try and teach others, and I believe that in most cases they do so.

"Able to fulfil 1 Pet. iii. 15."

Baptisms.

The number baptized during the Bishop's six months' stay in the country was 153 adults and 53 infants, and 109 adults were baptized during the three months after his departure. Yet in September there were still 335 names (81 of them women) on the list of those under instruction. Again, on November 19, thirty-seven adults were baptized, and forty others were awaiting their final examination. The Bishop confirmed 141 candidates on three successive occasions. The ordination of six Native deacons on Trinity Sunday, 1893, has been already referred to. The Bishop wrote the previous January:—

Choice of Deacons.

Some little while ago I asked the Church Council to look out "men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom," who might be appointed to the office of deacons. They submitted to me a list of about fourteen names. Out of this list, with the advice of the missionaries, and guided, I trust, by the Holy Ghost, I have selected seven, whom I hope, God willing, to ordain deacons on Trinity Sunday. Their names are as follows: Zakaria Kizato, Nikodemo Sebwato, Henry Wright Duta, Yonazani Kaidizi, Thomasi Semfuma, Jairo Mutakyla, Johana Mwiro.

Two Permanent Deacons.

The two first are two of the greatest chiefs in the country. It would be manifestly unwise for them to give up this position of influence in the counsels of the nation when such a sacrifice is not required in order to fulfil the office of a deacon. For priests' orders chieftainships would of necessity have to be given up, but not, I think, for deacons' orders. I look upon Zakaria and Nikodemo as members of an order of permanent deacons.

Supported by Native Church.

The Native Church will support all those who may be ordained. I have made it quite clear to the Church Council that I cannot ordain unless a maintenance is provided for those ordained. The way in which this provision will be made for those ordained will probably be this. A garden or shamba will be given, most likely by a wealthy chief, to the Church Council. This will be regarded as Church property, and registered as such in the Company's office. For each man ordained there will be assigned a sufficient amount of land to maintain him and his family. It will not be regarded as his freehold, nor will it be of such a value as to make it an object for seeking ordination. It will just provide a decent maintenance. This will be the beginning of an endowment. I would gladly do without it if I could; but I see no help for it. All the candidates for ordination except one are men of property, so that at present no great demand will be made upon the Church for their support. The time between now and the ordination will be spent in close preparation. Mr. Pilkington will take the candidates twice a week in the Articles. Mr. Roscoe will take them in the Prayer Book and Church History. I hope to take them in Pastoral Theology. Thus every day for the next four months there will be continuous instruction. This will only have been a part of their preparation. Three of the candidates have been for the last two years acting as licensed lay-readers, and all of them for several years have been among the most prominent of the Native teachers. Their work has been entirely voluntary, and altogether unpaid. It has not been occasional work, like that of Sunday-school teachers in England, but daily work, continuous work. As lay-readers they have been performing nearly all the duties of deacons, with the exception of taking part in the administration of the Sacraments. And to refuse them deacon's orders would have been, in my opinion, not only impolitic, but positively wrong. This ordination will, I believe, have a most important influence in Church extension here. Nikodemo Sebwato is the Sekibobo, chief of the country of Kyagwe; that is to say, that under Mwanga he is the ruler of the whole of the country between Mengo and the River Nile. Theoretically, the whole of Busoga is under his government as well. The legitimate influence which may be brought to bear on the whole of this great extent of country in the direction of Christianity by one occupying the position of Nikodemo, and having his heart full of love to Christ, is very great indeed, and will have an important bearing on the future of the Church. Zakaria is another of the great chiefs of Uganda. He rules over a province scarcely smaller than that ruled over by Nikodemo, and his influence will all be in the same direction. Similarly, Jairo and Yonazani have the country within the limits of their respective chieftainships, in which their work of teaching will be carried on. I need hardly say that these candidates for ordination were not chosen because of their position, and the influence which in virtue of that position they would be able to exert.

Influential Chiefs ordained.

The Bishop selected seven, but one of them begged to be excused from undertaking so grave responsibilities, and he was licensed instead as a lay evangelist, with nine others, on the same day as the ordination took place. These ten were: Natanieli Mudeka, Yoswa Kute, Anderea Dugwandaga, Bartolemayo Musake, Sira Nlulume, Tomasi Semukasa, Kamu Mukasa, Eri Ngiri, Samwili Naganafa, and Tomasi Semfuma. All these were recommended by the Church Council, whose recommendation was endorsed by the whole body of the missionaries. Regarding the gifts and powers of some of these men as preachers, the Bishop wrote in March:—

Lay Evangelists.

Last Sunday (March 12th) we had two remarkable sermons—one by Yairo (candidate for ordination), and the other by Natanieli, who, I trust, may be ordained when he is a little older; at present he is under age. The latter sermon breathed a true missionary spirit. It was based on the text, "A new commandment give I unto you." The former preacher took as his subject the work of the Holy Spirit. The services were entered into by the people most heartily. As a rule, just before the commencement of the service the whole of the Church elders (or Council) meet the clergy in the vestry for ten minutes' prayer. First one and then another offers prayer, and the European missionary closes, so that ten minutes are rarely exceeded.

Ten minutes' prayer in the vestry.

Concerning the services in the church the Bishop wrote somewhat later, "Never in my life have I attended any service either in church or cathedral at home more orderly, more reverent, or more solemn than those in the church at Mengo." And concerning the church itself he wrote in February:—

Yesterday I held my second Confirmation in Uganda. Seventy-five were confirmed, all adults. This was the first Confirmation in the new church, or—as I think I must call it—the Cathedral. It is certainly worthy of the name. For Central Africa it is as wonderful a building as Durham Cathedral is for England. There are nearly 500 trees used in it as pillars; some of them were brought five and six days' journey, and needed several hundred men to carry them. The order and decency of the services is most admirable. The Confirmation was a far more reverent ceremony than many which I have been at in England.

A beautiful illustration of family religion in the homes of the leading Christians is given in one of the Bishop's letters. He was away from the capital and without his tent, so he spent the night in a Native house. He wrote:—

Family religion.

The people of the house were most kind. The master, a chief named Luka—a Christian man—was away, but his son, Selorsi, entertained me. How many families in England, even when family prayers is a regular thing, omit these prayers when the master is absent; but in Luka's family his absence made no difference. Both morning and evening there was family prayer conducted by this young man. The prayers in the morning were a little after five o'clock, before it was light; those in the evening at sundown.

PLAN OF CHURCH AT MENGO.

Influence of Christian Chiefs.

The influence of the Christian chiefs over the king in council and in the administration of justice is witnessed by the following, from a letter of the Bishop in March:—

To show the influence that Christianity is having in the country, I may mention that some little time ago, when a case was being tried, a Christian chief who was present intervened with the happiest results. Sentence had been given by the king to this effect—"that so many cattle and sheep were to be paid by the offender as a fine, together with two women." The Christian chief interposed, "But Christians do not give men or women; they give cattle and goats."

King Mwanga.

Indeed, there are hopeful signs that the Gospel has begun to assert its power over Mwanga's own heart and life. In September, 1892, Mr. Baskerville wrote: "Roscoe has been to the king's. He goes three times a week to teach him." And in August, 1893, Mr. Leakey said:—

The king is very fond of Roscoe, and he goes up to the palace three days a week to teach and read with him. About six months ago Roscoe had some serious talks with him on the subject of bhang-smoking and other sins that he gave way to. The king said he would like to give them up, but that he should have to do it gradually, as he would find it very hard to do, especially giving up the bhang, of which he was very fond. From that time Roscoe heard no more on the subject till a day or two ago, save that a boy or two who were suspected of bhang-smoking had been dismissed by the king. But a few days ago we heard from some of the chiefs that the chief bhang-smoker at the king's had given it up, as had many others, while some who would not give it up had left for Busoga. In the evening Roscoe asked the king if this was so, and the king said "Yes," and that he had told them that they must give up bhang and another sin or must leave the palace, as he was going to give up both himself. He did not want temptation about him, as he knew the fight would be hard enough as it was. Many of us might take a lesson from him on this point, I think. He is never seen drunk now, and he used never to be sober. He says he knows he needs power from on high if he is to keep from sin. He is now most earnest in his inquiries, and shows that he thinks over and talks over passages between the times of Roscoe's visits, and he is most anxious to read all he can. I believe there is a real work going on in his heart. Pray for him.

A hard fight.

The "regions beyond" have not been neglected by the Native Christians. In March a solemn valedictory meeting was held to bid farewell to three Baganda teachers going to Busoga. The Bishop wrote: "The Dismissal was entirely one of the Native Church. They prayed for the men and, indeed, are sending them forth. It was like an incident in the Book of the Acts."

A Dismissal by the Native Church.

While these pages are passing through the press tidings of much spiritual blessing having come down upon the missionaries and Native Christians at Mengo are received. Mr. Pilkington, who had been on a visit to the island of Kome, returned to Mengo on December 7, reporting that while there he himself had received great spiritual blessing, and that many of the people, including some baptized Christians, had testified for the first time to the saving power of Christ. About this time an event occurred which gave much sorrow at the time, but led shortly to very happy consequences. One of the Christians, named Musa Yubuganda, told the missionaries that as he obtained no profit from Christianity he was about to return to Heathenism. It was felt that this was a reproach to the Church, and it was decided to hold a special Mission on December 8, 9, and 10. The results were very remarkable. At each service large numbers professed to receive new light and new power. Some of the oldest teachers even said that they had never before understood the blessedness of life in Christ, or experienced in the same way the presence of the Holy Spirit. Musa was among those who received a blessing. These services were followed by daily Bible-readings. Mr. Roscoe, in a private journal, wrote on December 10:—

Spiritual revival at Mengo.

A Special Mission.

We are in the midst of a great spiritual revival. To the Lord be praise and glory and honour! Our joy is beyond expression. After the morning service fully 200 stayed to be spoken to, and I believe the majority went away rejoicing in the Lord. This afternoon I took the service and preached at court on St. Luke viii. 46, on the difference between nominal and real Christians; between those who go with the multitude but get nothing, and those who touch, accept, appreciate the gift of eternal life. Some thirty or forty stayed for personal inquiry, and most of those who did went away looking happy.

Mr. Pilkington accompanies the army.

Early in December, Colonel Colville, who arrived at Mengo in November to succeed Captain Macdonald as British Resident, decided to send an expedition against Kabarega, King of Unyoro, and Mr. Pilkington decided to accompany the army solely in order to enjoy the opportunity of preaching the Gospel to the people in the ranks and en route, many of whom seldom or never visit the capital. He travelled with the Baganda, not with the English officers. He wished, indeed, to go without a tent, but was overruled in this particular by his brother missionaries and his Native Christian friends. In letters to Mengo he stated that some 25 had professed having received salvation since he left the capital, and the Mohammedans were listening eagerly to the Gospel, even their chiefs attending the services. Mr. Pilkington had four times preached to audiences of over 1,000 people, and on the Sunday after leaving Mengo, his companion, Zakariya, had preached a capital sermon to some 2,000 people.

Singo.

The opening of a station in MITYANA, the capital of Singo, has been mentioned. Singo is in area the largest of the ten provinces into which Uganda is divided. It lies to the north-west, and is adjacent to the Mohammedan kingdom of Bunyoro. The chief official's title is "the Mukwenda," and he who holds this office at the present time is Yona Waswa, the only one of the important chiefs who has visited Zanzibar. Bishop Tucker visited Mityana in May, a few days after Messrs. Günther and Fisher, accompanied by Mr. Pilkington, had gone thither. The Bishop's account of his journey from Mengo, and of the situation of the new station, conveys an excellent idea of the country—the discomforts it presents to the pedestrian, and the lovely landscapes with which it recompenses the artist. He wrote:—

I started on my journey of fifty miles on May 9, and, about two hours from Mengo, came upon a long and dismal swamp. This passed, the road is a good one until the capital of Mugima is reached. There I camped for the night. The people of the place were most hospitable. They cooked food, not only for me, but also my men—some twenty in number. Here mosquitoes simply swarmed. Happily, I had brought my net with me, and so slept in comfort; but my boys had a very bad time of it. It was very delightful to find that my Waganda porters were readers, and many of them Christians. Both night and morning prayers were said, and generally conducted by one of their own number. Before daylight the murmur of voices told me that the men were engaged in prayer, not in my presence, but at a distance, in their own sleeping-place. It was interesting to notice how one was chosen by the rest, and that without any formal election, to be the leader in their devotional exercises. He seemed naturally to fall into the proper place. I called him the "minister," and certainly he deserved the title. He truly served his people. The road to Singo is, I think, without exception the very worst road I ever travelled. Instead of going round the base of the hills, the path generally goes over the tops; and when it would be possible to avoid a swamp by going over the hills, the road generally runs through the valley.

After four days of marching by such roads as I have described, through swamp and forest, and over hill and down dale, I found myself on the morning of the fourth day within sight of the capital of Singo. The country seat of the Mukwenda—the Earl of Singo—is strikingly situated on the brow of a hill overlooking the Lake of Wamala. This lake has, I should imagine, about the same area as, say, Lake Windermere; it is not so long, but much wider. The whole country of Singo is a very fine and open land, and I should think very healthy. The view from the Mission-station is most beautiful. The Lake of Wamala can be seen almost from end to end, sometimes glittering in the sunlight, sometimes overshadowed by a passing cloud, but always beautiful. Then beyond lie the hills, undulating and in some places like extinct volcanoes, on the borders of Bunyoro. Down below in the valley between the Mission-station and the lake is a beautiful forest of trees, varied in form and colour. Altogether the picture is a very charming one—one that will often linger in my memory when far away.

Site of Mission-station.

Mr. Fisher was assisted by three Native teachers sent to him by the Church Council at Mengo, but he found much difficulty for a time in devising means to instruct the people in consequence of the distances separating the scattered hamlets. In his Annual Letter written in January, 1894, he explains how he endeavoured to meet the difficulty:—

It became evident that as most of the gardens were from two to four miles away, it would be impossible to get the people to attend classes here daily. We therefore devised the scheme of building reading-houses in each garden, and in that way reaching the people. The scheme has, I am delighted to say, now been almost carried out. There are now twenty reading-houses, or, as the Natives call them, Synagogi, built and in good working order, at a distance of from two to twenty miles right round the station. They have all been built by the people after much prayer and work, inviting me only to select the place and size. The small chiefs in whose gardens they are built will be responsible—(1) for cleaning and keeping them in repair; (2) selling books; (3) gathering the people to daily classes; and (4) bringing them in here on Sundays, if possible, to church. After Sunday morning service a short prayer-meeting and conference is held at my house for chiefs of synagogues and teachers, when reports of progress are given in, &c., and the whole work brought to God in prayer. We have sent out fourteen boys to teach reading in gardens where we found no one knowing how to read, seven of whom are baptized, and the others are converted boys themselves reading for baptism. Every week all the synagogues within three hours' march are visited by myself and the other five teachers here, three of whom have been sent me by the Church Council.

"Synagogues."

The average daily attendance at each of these out-stations was twenty, and eighty at Namukozi, the central Mission, making an aggregate of 480 people under daily instruction. The Sunday congregations in December were 400 and 280 in the morning and evening respectively, but on Christmas Day over 800 people attended. Three islands on the Wamala Lake were occupied, notwithstanding opposition for awhile from the

Sunday services.

Lubare priests and from bhang-smokers. Each of these islands has a small church built by the people, with an attendance on Bagwe Island of twenty, of sixty on Tigwe, and of thirty on Keraza. A fort erected at Mityana was occupied by 1,000 of the Nubian soldiers, and the officers agreed to their being instructed in reading and writing and in the Christian religion. The Rev. H. R. Sugden, on his arrival in Uganda, went at once to join Mr. Fisher.

Instructing Nubian soldiers.

Kyagwe.

The Revs. G. K. Baskerville and W. A. Crabtree occupied ZIBA in Kyagwe on February 15, 1893. The place chosen is on the main road from Mengo to Busoga, and is about half-way between Mengo and the Nile, being some thirty miles distant from each—a journey of two days. The Rev. Nikodemo Sebuwato, one of the two permanent deacons, is the head chief of the whole province, and he removed his country residence in order to be near the Mission-station. At the close of the year he was collecting materials for a large church to measure 72 by 56 feet. The Rev. Yonathani Kaidzi was also stationed at Ziba. The Sunday congregations numbered, at the close of the year, about 200, and the daily classes about 70. Mr. Baskerville was at Mengo in December with the object of meeting Archdeacon Walker and his party on their arrival, and he was present to share in the spiritual blessings which were experienced at that time. After his return to Ziba he wrote, "The blessing has come on here; the first Sunday I was back we had a remarkable service, a whole congregation professing salvation, and I personally heard of five definite cases of salvation." Mr. Baskerville calculated that there were about 500 readers in and near Ziba, and some 900 in the province. Thirty-two adults and 13 children were baptized during the year, and there were 46 in a catechumens' class in January, 1894. Mr. Baskerville and Mr. Crabtree diligently visited the neighbouring chiefs, spending now and then several days away from home. The following extracts from Mr. Baskerville's journal for a single week in July will illustrate the nature of the work:—

"The blessing has come on here."

How readers are recognised.

Last Monday week we went to a large garden belonging to Sabadu, one of Timoteo's underchiefs. (N.B.—Nearly every big chief has a Sabadu.) It is rather over half an hour's walk from here, and we left about 3 P.M. We do not have set forms of service on these occasions, but just a straight talk, based on one of the hymns perhaps, or else on a passage of Scripture, and then prayer. I can generally gauge our audience by noticing how many have the little skin, calico, or barkcloth bags, which shows me that they have a book and either read or are learning. This day at Sabadu's I do not think that there were more than two or three book-bags to be seen; and last week, Crabtree, who went, scarcely saw anyone, and when he asked for the names of those who read, only got about six or seven. This is out of an immense garden with certainly about 30 or 40 houses on it.

The next day we went to Yohana Gabili's, Nansambu, whose place is called Bulaji, and is just one hour to our west on the Mengo road. I expected to see more people at this place, and we were rather disappointed not to do so. We had about 30, but they were nearly all readers, and, in fact, the majority are in Crabtree's baptism class.

On Wednesday we went to Nakirindisa's, the principal chief under Timoteo; his place is about one hour also, but on the east side, and commands a very extensive view of the country to this side—in fact, the Natives say you can see Mengo on a fine day, or rather Namirembe, the hill on which the church is built. Nakirindisa's name is Elisa (Elisha) Mamuli, and of course he, as nearly all the chiefs round here, is off on this expedition against the Mohammedans; but I found his good wife Luzi (Ruth) with about 27 people waiting for us, and we had a nice little service.

On Thursday we went in a south-west direction to Mulwanyi's place—his name is Semu (Shem) Kiwanuka, but he is also away. We got about 27 here again, and after service, as it was still early, we took a walk round his gardens.

On Friday we went again in an easterly direction to Mworogoma's, which is an hour off, on the Busoga road. We expected to get very few here, as I had seen very few at our services from his place. The chief is a catechumen and was reading with me before I went up to Mengo in May, but I did not baptize him as all his ideas seemed very shady—still I think he wants to know. His name is Buledi. When we got to his "embuga" (enclosure of a chief so called, the capital of a king being called "Kibuga;" but in another sense every man's bed is his embuga) we found the place all shut up, and it was evident that since he had gone off to this war the fence gate had not been opened, for under it the earth had collected and it was fast barred inside, a good type of the heart shut against Christ. We saw two men in the distance and called them to ask where the musigwe, or caretaker, lived, and presently saw him coming. He told us they thought we were coming at three instead of four o'clock, and that the people who had collected had gone away. So I determined that while they were assembling again to go on a little through the gardens, asking the people to come, and the final result was that where we expected to get very few we had 31, more than we had had at any other place.

Saturday was a rest-day. The effect of this week's visiting was seen on Sunday, for the church was crowded morning and afternoon, people crowding behind the table and a lot being unable to get in. We had never before had the place more than barely full. In the morning there may have been 200 people. Church crowded.

All the missionaries press the importance of sending out large reinforcements. The masses of the people are still in heathen darkness, and the friendliness of the present chiefs is undoubtedly a strong reason for making every effort to supply the teachers asked for. Call for reinforcements.

Another argument for strenuous and immediate endeavours in this direction is supplied by the announcement of the Government, made to Parliament in April, 1894, in the following terms:—"After considering the late Sir Gerald Portal's report, and weighing the consequences of withdrawal from Uganda on the one hand, and on the other of maintaining British interests there, Her Majesty's Government have determined to establish a regular administration, and for that purpose to declare Uganda to be under a British protectorate." This important announcement must be regarded as an answer to the Church's prayers, and it assuredly lays upon the members of the Church Missionary Uganda a British Protectorate.

Society a heavy responsibility. The opportunity is presented for evangelising and instructing the people before the railway, which it may be anticipated will be constructed ere long, introduces in full force the influx of Europeans, whose advent must inevitably prove an occasion of severe temptation to the people. With security from external aggression, with a strong and just administration of law, with a Native king and Native chiefs favourable to the propagation of the Gospel, with marvellous assurances of the Divine favour afforded by the past history of the Mission, and no less marvellous evidences of the Holy Spirit's presence in the records of more recent events, the call is surely peculiarly loud and urgent. The Committee's hope and prayer is that the response will be prompt and adequate, and that remarkable as the past development of this Mission may seem, as has been shown in the opening remarks, its future progress may be far more commensurate with the opportunities presented by a gracious and compassionate God.

EGYPT MISSION.

The original object of the Missions formerly grouped under the heading of the "Mediterranean Mission," which were begun at Malta in 1815, at the close of the great war, and which were afterwards extended to Egypt, Abyssinia, Greece, Turkey, Asia Minor, and Palestine, was twofold: firstly, to revive the Eastern Churches; and, secondly, through them to evangelise the Mohammedans. Some very able and devoted Missionaries have been employed in this work—Jowett, Gobat, Krapf, Pfander, Koelle, &c. But the hopes of the first founders of the Society were not fulfilled. Oriental Christendom manifested no readiness to be quickened into life by emissaries from the West; and Moslem fanaticism, which barely tolerated Greek and Armenian Christianity, utterly repudiated the Gospel when presented in a pure form. Despite treaties and concessions on paper, Missionary effort among the Moslem population of the Turkish Empire is carried on under the most vexatious restrictions, and a Mussulman can only become a Christian at the imminent risk of liberty and life.

As above stated, the Society had formerly a Mission in Egypt, as part of its scheme for the revival of the Eastern Churches. Many of the Coptic clergy, and one Bishop, were trained in the C.M.S. Seminary at Cairo; but the visible results were small. In 1882, in response to the appeals of the late Miss Whately, and in consequence of the British occupation of Egypt, the Rev. F. A. Klein, formerly of Jerusalem, was sent to Cairo to begin a new Mission among the Mohammedans. A Medical Mission was opened in 1889, and ladies were added to the staff in the following year.

Return to the Mission of Dr. F. J. Harpur.

THE Committee have had much satisfaction in reappointing Dr. F. J. Harpur, B.A., M.B., B.Ch., Dublin, to this Mission. He joined the Society in 1885, and was deputed to commence a Mission at Aden. In 1889 he was transferred to Cairo, where he opened the Medical Mission; but in consequence of Mrs. Harpur's state of health, he felt obliged to retire in 1892. Miss E. Kauffman has been transferred to this Mission from Palestine; on the other hand, Mr. G. F. and Mrs. Packer have been transferred to the Palestine Mission. Mrs. Bywater came home under medical orders in July, returning to the Mission in October; and Mrs. P. G. Wood came home in May, 1894. The Rev. F. F. Adeney, the Secretary of the Mission, and Mrs. Adeney, visited Palestine, the scene of their former labours, in the summer, and while there had the sorrow of losing their little child. The missionaries spent an enjoyable day in united prayer and the study of God's Word at Helwan, 16 miles from Cairo, with which it is connected by railway, and where Mr. and Mrs. Adeney reside, in November.

"None of us here are 'effectives,'" one of the missionaries writes. The study of Arabic still engages a good deal of the time of most of the staff, and one of them says:—

Difficulties of language study.

I feel strongly that those who are studying the language have, if possible, even more need of the prayers of friends at home than those engaged in the actual Mission work. It is not easy, after years of active Christian work in England, to settle down to exercise-books and reading-lessons, and much patience is needed before such a language as Arabic can really be used, to good account, in the service of God.

In CAIRO, the Rev. P. G. Wood superintends the Arabic services and Boys' Schools, while Mrs. and Miss J. B. Bywater,

Miss J. Ellis and Miss M. Cay, who live together in the heart of the Moslem quarter of the city, labour among the women and girls, by visiting and in the schools. The attendance of girls at the Day School increased considerably during the year; more than two-thirds of these girls are Moslems, the rest Jewesses and Greeks. The work of visiting the Moslem women is thus described by Miss Ellis:—

When first we came, last autumn, to this entirely Moslem quarter of Cairo, called Sayida Zeynab, it was very difficult to know where to visit, as we did not know any people in this part of the town, but by slow degrees we got an entrance among them, and found open doors. At first many of the women were quite afraid of us, and wondered what we had come to see them for, but now we are always well received and welcomed. We visit in a great many houses where three or four families live in different rooms; and also in large yards and courts, where we find groups of women sitting on the ground, sifting their corn. We sit down with them and read and talk to them; they generally listen most attentively, and are very pleased to hear the stories of the life of Jesus. Sometimes, almost before we have sat down, they say, "Read, read." They often say, "The words are sweet and very good; the Christians are much better and kinder than the Moslems."

"The words are sweet and very good."

We read and talk with, as a rule, eighty women a week, and the Bible-woman has now some pupils who are learning to read; two or three seem anxious to learn, but it is very slow work for them, as they have never tried to learn anything before. We visit in a few houses of upper-class women, some of whom are very interesting, and here and there we find one who can read, but most of our visiting is among quite poor women, called here the Fellaheen.

Mr. Adeney truly says:—

Old defeats to be retrieved.

Islam is a far greater disgrace to us Christians than Heathenism, for Mohammed came after Christ, and Islam is flourishing where once the banner of the Cross waved. It is not a question here of gaining new victories, but of retrieving old defeats. Surely this should nerve the soldiers of the Cross to greater effort.

And again:—

With God all things are possible; but when we see mosques being rebuilt on all sides, and crowded with worshippers, and think of our weak little band, we feel as if we were trying to destroy a great mountain with a child's wooden spade. But "who art thou, O great mountain? Before Zerubbabel thou shalt become a plain."

Miss E. Jackson and Miss L. M. Mann reside and labour in Old Cairo, a suburb four miles from Cairo, where also the Hospital is situated.

PALESTINE MISSION.

The work in the Levant has for some years been confined to Palestine, to which the Society was invited by Bishop Gobat in 1851. The following places are occupied: Jerusalem, 1851; Jaffa, 1876; Nablous, 1876; Nazareth, 1852; Salt, 1873; and Gaza, 1878.

Inscription on the Great Mosque at Damascus.

"THY Kingdom, O Christ, is a kingdom of all ages, and Thy dominion from generation to generation." This inscription on the Great Mosque at Damascus, placed there centuries ago when the mosque was a Christian church, and still there and still intact notwithstanding that a fire in October, 1893, almost wholly destroyed the mosque itself, is an inspiring reminder of a blessed truth, and an eloquent though silent preacher of patience and holy confidence to the labourers in Mohammedan lands. On the very front of Islam faith can read its doom; and when a testing more severe and searching than that of war or that of time shall have consumed its withered and lifeless worship, the doctrine of the Kingship of the Lord Jesus will stand out clear and bright amidst the ruins of its fall. That the Church of Christ cannot read defeat in the fact that the land of its sacred memories, where its Lord lived and spake and wrought and died, or failure in the fact that the faithful labours of many years have resulted in few conversions, is attested by the yearly reinforcements of ardent recruits to the ranks of the small but sanguine besieging force. The progress in the numbers of the C.M.S. European staff has been very marked. In 1873 only Jerusalem and Nazareth were occupied by two ordained and two lay missionaries. On June 1, 1894, the four men had become fifteen men and twenty single women.

Reinforcements.

During the year the following joined the Mission: the Rev. James Henry Sedgwick, M.A., Pembroke College, Oxford, Curate of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, formerly, from 1874 to 1883, missionary of the Society in South and Mid-China; the Rev. John Goodenough Bayly Hollins, M.A., Hertford College, Oxford, Curate of Christ Church, Ramsgate, and Mrs. Hollins; the Rev. Donald Marten Wilson, M.A., New College, Oxford, late Assistant Chaplain at Bilbao, Spain, brother of the Rev. C. T. Wilson of this Mission; Dr. Gaskoin Wright, transferred from the Eastern Equatorial Africa Mission; Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Packer, transferred from the Egypt Mission; and Miss Elizabeth Emily Brodie, of Eastbourne. Mr. Sedgwick and Miss Brodie sailed in October, 1893, Dr. Wright in January, 1894, Messrs. Hollins and Wilson in March, and Mr. Packer in April. Miss A. H. Wilson came home in June, Miss E. E. Newton in July (returning in October), Mrs. Gollmer in July, Miss Coote in August, Miss Campbell in September (returning in May, 1894), the Rev. C. H. V. Gollmer in April, 1894, and Miss E. Armstrong in May. Miss E. C. Wardlaw Ramsay returned to the Mission in November, and Mrs. Sterling sailed to join her husband in February. The senior missionary on the staff of this Mission, the Rev. James Jacob Huber, died on July 18, 1893. He joined the Society from the Basle Seminary in 1850, and, after serving for two years at Badagry in the Yoruba Mission, was transferred to Palestine in 1853. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Gobat in 1877, and priest by Bishop Barclay in 1880. His long service of forty years in Palestine was spent at Nazareth and Gaza, and was only interrupted by three short visits to Europe. He was loved and respected by all, and has left behind him a record of quiet and faithful service in his Master's cause. The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. R. Elliott, Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Bailey, Miss K. Sachs, and Miss M. Nevill have resigned their connexion with the Society; Dr. and Mrs. Elliott in consequence of home claims, the rest mainly on grounds of health. Miss E. Kauffmann has been transferred to the Egypt Mission.

Death of the Rev. J. Huber.

Ordination.

Bishop Blyth admitted Mr. Nicola Abu Hattum to Deacon's Orders at Jerusalem on February 18.

JERUSALEM.

Jerusalem.

Institutions.

The Revs. J. H. Sedgwick and D. M. Wilson have joined the staff at JERUSALEM, the former with the view to reopening the Theological Class, the latter while studying Arabic. The Preparandi Institution, under the Rev. J. Zeller, sent out four students to take up posts as catechists and teachers. There were 18 under training at the end of 1893. More than 40 applications for 22 vacancies in Bishop Gobat School were made on its reopening after the holidays. At the public examination, of the boys there was present among the visitors the head of the Jerusalem Board of Education, Arif Bey, a descendant (the forty-first) from Fatima, the daughter of Mohammed. Before leaving he expressed his pleasure at having been present and his satisfaction at the proficiency of both teachers and scholars. The Printing Press issued "Church Lessons for Young Churchmen," "The Baptism of the Holy Ghost," a pocket edition of the Book of Psalms, a tract by Bishop Ryle on Evangelical Religion, &c. The Girls' Boarding and Day Schools, under Miss A. Welch, with Miss G. F. Tindall in charge of the housekeeping, have 75 pupils; 12 in the High School, of whom eight are boarders. Threats from Government officials induced the parents of some 20 Moslem girls to withdraw them from the Day School. Miss E. Kauffmann took for a time a Men's Bible Class in German and another for girls in Arabic, and visited a poor child in the hospital, to whom she ministered Gospel comfort in French.

Visiting was not opposed, as in the previous year, by the authorities, and Miss A. M. Elverson was encouraged by the friendliness of the Moslem women. She endeavoured to awaken a sense of sin, and some of the village women asked her how they should pray for forgiveness. The superstitious practices of Roman and Greek Christians are a serious stumbling-block to the Mohammedans. Miss Elverson says:— Visiting the women.

The Moslems' opinion of Christianity is based on what they see and hear around them, especially in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and of the Nativity (in Bethlehem). One cannot help sympathising with their feelings of disgust when they tell of the images decked with gold and precious stones which the so-called Christians kneel before and kiss, and of the quarrelling and even murder that take place in these holy places between the different branches of the visible Church. It is most important to explain that all this is opposed to the will of God as revealed in our Holy Book, and I often invite them to come and see the difference between our divine service in church and all this that they have seen or heard. A serious stumbling-block.

A class of about 35 women, most of them belonging to the Greek Church, is held by Miss Elverson; as also is a Night-school. Miss H. Attlee, who lives with her father (the Rev. S. Attlee) in a hamlet, Et Tur, on the Mount of Olives, was able by simple remedies to relieve many in their sickness, and her help is in constant request. Her father and she are regarded by all the villagers as "Turryeen," i.e. "belonging to their village." At Anathoth she was entertained in the village guest-chamber, and all the sick were brought to her. Her medicines ran out, but they listened to Bible stories, and begged her to "come every day." On the day she wrote her Annual Letter, the following occurred:— Ministering to the sick on the Mount of Olives.

I was told to-day that the Mufti of Jerusalem had been interrogating our landlord about our doings, hoping that we were not "making Christians" of the children; and the reply given was that we were "doing nothing but good, teaching the words of Sayyidna Isa, which were all 'tayyil' (i.e., good), and telling people that if they steal and lie, &c., they will not go to heaven, and (best of all, in his eyes) that we give medicines and are kind to the poor sick people." I was very thankful for this testimony from a man who has only recently returned from the Hadj (pilgrimage to Mecca), and therefore is supposed to be particularly zealous for his own religion. Testimony from a Mohammedan to a lady Missionary's good work.

Ramallah and its out-stations, Tayibeh, Jiffna, Bir Zeit, and Abood, have very few Mohammedan inhabitants, but numerous Moslem villages are in the immediate neighbourhood, and were visited by the ladies, Miss F. Nuttall, and Miss C. C. Coote before she left invalided. In one of these a sheikh's son not only reads the Bible, but explains it to others; and when his mother remarked that in her recent illness she had prayed to Jesus and to Moses and all the prophets, he replied, "No, my mother, it is no use to pray to the prophets, who are sons of Adam, like ourselves; but Jesus is quite different; he is the Son of God—is God." The sheikh of another village, which Ramallah.

the ladies had not visited for several months, cordially invited them to repeat their former visits, frankly adding, "The Government complains that you corrupt our religion." The attendance of the Ramallah congregation, under Mr. G. Nyland, averages about 60. A certain number of the women of the congregation were brought up in the Greek Church, and still retain much of its superstition, especially with regard to the Holy Communion. Miss F. Nuttall says:—

Superstition of the women,

The more godless and ignorant a woman is, the more anxious she is to take the "Corban," fully believing that it has some mysterious power to cleanse her heart and take her to heaven. I therefore started a special communicants' meeting, which all are expected to attend who wish to partake, and as very few take the trouble to come to this, the number of communicants has speedily dropped to five or six, and these, I do trust, desire to amend their lives. The utter carelessness which prevails on this point has been a great trouble, for a woman who has knelt with apparent devoutness would go straight from the Lord's Table to dance at a wedding, to work just as hard as on any other day, or to curse, lie, and quarrel as before. In the Greek Church at Ramallah the little schoolboys will run in and out, and take the Corban five or six times in one service, and very few, except the old women, will even go to confession beforehand; so that when they marry Protestant men, and attend our services, it is no wonder that the irreverent habits in which they have been brought up still cling to them.

The low esteem in which the women are held by the men (and in this respect there does not appear to be much difference between Greeks, Latin, and, alas! Protestants) has much to do with their moral and spiritual condition. Quoting Miss Nuttall again:—

Everywhere one hears the same words, "Oh, lady! we have no time to learn. How should we understand? we are only goats and donkeys. You are a sitt, and have nothing to do but read. No one ever taught us." Some time ago we found the wife of a Christian in a distant village dangerously ill. We left the Bible woman to nurse her back to health, and she ministered not only to her body, but to her soul. I believe the poor woman is now truly converted, and the whole household much happier. But when she was ill one of the men said, "What a fuss to make about her! What does it matter if she does die? If your donkey dies you can buy another, and if your wife dies you can do the same."

The Conference agreed to request Miss G. F. Tindall and Miss E. E. Brodie to reside at Bir Zeit for village work. A Native pastor, the Rev. Hanna Musa, is stationed at Taiyibeh.

JAFFA.

Jaffa.

Much sickness of a very fatal character was rife in Jaffa in the spring and summer of 1893. An epidemic of malarial fever is computed to have caused no fewer than 1,500 deaths out of a population of 20,000. The Rev. T. F. Wolters did not escape illness, but it was not severe. He does not think the difficulties in the way of access to Mohammedans are less than they were fifteen or twenty years ago—rather the reverse; but he does think that Medical Missions and house-to-house visitation by ladies are being used, and have a prospect of being used in the future, to break down the intolerance and prejudice of the people. A room was rented in a part of the town where very little work had hitherto been attempted, and where the Moslems, though extremely poor, are also exceedingly bigoted, and ready to dispute on the respective merits of Christ and Mohammed. The tact of the Bible-woman, Miss A. Armstrong says, usually succeeds in obtaining a quiet hearing. The schools, which are considered by Miss Armstrong the most promising branch of the work, show somewhat reduced numbers, owing to the opening of a Greek school, but a marked improvement is manifest in the behaviour and intelligence of the boys. The Saturday morning Bible Class, referred to in the Report of 1890–1 (page 67), is specially interesting, and the number of boys keeps up well. The Rev. and Mrs. J. G. B. Hollins are located at Jaffa. The Conference decided with the Bishop's concurrence to transfer the Rev. Y. Zorab from Ramleh to Gaza, and the Rev. H. Dimishky from Lydd to Ramleh.

GAZA.

The Rev. Dr. R. Sterling, upon his arrival at Gaza in April, 1893, at once reopened the Hospital, which had been closed for several months. He writes :— Gaza. Hospital.

The authorities are most friendly, and express their thankfulness again and again at having an English doctor among them. Yesterday the Governor and his brother from Jerusalem, who holds a high position under the Government, visited me a second time. They were accompanied by another gentleman. The visit lasted over two hours, and an interesting discussion took place on the Old and New Testaments ; it was conducted in Arabic by my dispenser, who knows the Koran very well. On learning what the Ten Commandments were, the Governor remarked that if our Bible was all like that it must be very good. Several of the better class people here possess some knowledge of our Holy Book. I never saw a more interested group of hearers than the dispensary patients, especially the men : our friends at home would be delighted to see their faces as they listen to some parable or miracle ; it is new to them, and their attention is riveted throughout both to the reading and the address which is given by the catechist or teacher.

The out-patients numbered 10,530 during seven months, and the Hospital was full until the number was limited in order that the European missionaries, Dr. Sterling, Miss F. Patching, and Miss A. A. M. Bedells, might have some time for language study. Miss H. Campbell, upon her return to the Mission in the spring of 1894, was invited by the Conference to go to Gaza, and Miss Bedells to Nablous.

NABLOUS (DENIS CROFTON MISSION).

The Hospital at Nablous also was closed for a few months after Dr. Bailey left until the arrival of Dr. Gaskoin Wright in February, 1894. The Moslems offered some opposition to the latter, but patients were numerous. The death of the Mufti of Nablous Nablous removed one who had long been an enemy of the work, especially the schools, of which he was an Inspector. Small congregations of generally less than twenty exist at the out-stations, Rafidieh, Nisf-el-Jebel, Tobaz, and Zebabdeh.

NAZARETH, HAIFA, ACCA, AND KEFR-YASIF.

Nazareth. The Rev. Chalil Jamal, pastor of NAZARETH, broke his leg by falling from his horse in June, when on a visit to one of the out-stations. He was, in consequence, laid up for some months, and the whole burden of the pastorate fell on the Rev. C. H. V. Gollmer. It proved no light burden, owing to the conduct of some refractory members, whom eventually it proved necessary, with the assent and support of the Bishop, to publicly excommunicate. The Bishop's sympathetic co-operation is gratefully mentioned by Mr. Gollmer. The effect of this drastic remedy was that a degree of quietness and unity prevailed which had not been known for many years. Mr. Gollmer cannot bear a good testimony to the spirituality of the congregation, or to their independence. Mr. Gollmer has been obliged to come home, Mrs. Gollmer having preceded him by a few months; both had suffered in health.

Haifa. At HAIFA the congregation has increased since the Rev. Murad-el-Haddad removed thither in 1892. In the summer of 1893 Miss M. A. Daniels succeeded Miss M. Nevill as the fellow-labourer of Miss Barker. The difficulties adverted to in last year's Report still exist, but the seal of God's blessing rests upon the work carried on in faith and patience. Some 80 Moslem girls attend the school, Moslem women in large numbers attend the meetings, and the Bible is listened to gladly in Moslem homes.

Acca. Miss E. C. Wardlaw Ramsay returned to ACCA after furlough in December, joining her sister, Miss A. Wardlaw Ramsay, and relieving Miss Low to join her mother at Kefr-Yasif. The Girls' School was closed for four months in 1892, but was reopened in October, and the numbers rose to over 70. The elder girls started a weekly prayer-meeting, and three Moslem girls joined them, offering their petitions in the name of Jesus with the others. The Sunday School had an average attendance of 30. The houses of some of the leading Turkish officials are among those visited.

Kefr-Yasif. Mrs. Low writes in warm terms of the catechist at KEFR-YASIF, Khuri Girius, who was formerly the Greek priest of the village, and whose eyes were opened by the study of God's Word. He has evidently profited by the time spent in the Preparandi Institution at Jerusalem in 1892–3; he preaches "excellent sermons, simple and earnest, and shows himself by his life to be a true Christian." The services are held in the house of the Protestant sheikh, who has given a piece of land as a site for a place of worship when a firman for its erection can be obtained from Constantinople.

SALT AND THE HAURAN.

The Rev. H. Sykes returned to Salt in June after his temporary absence, discharging important duties in Egypt. No report of the work has been received.

In the Annual Report for 1887–8 (pages 74 and 75) it was mentioned that a visit had been paid to Madeba and Kerak, on the eastern side of the Dead Sea, in the Land of Moab, by the Revs. W. F. Connor and H. Sykes, in response to an invitation from a number of Latin and Greek Christians at the former place for an agent to be stationed amongst them. Messrs. Connor and Sykes reported Madeba to be a place of great importance as a sphere for work among Moslems, but inasmuch as a Wesleyan gentleman, Mr. Lethaby, was engaged in Christian work at Kerak the Committee decided not at that time to open a station in the district. At the close of 1893 Mr. Lethaby informed the Rev. J. R. L. Hall that a Governor appointed by the Turkish Government had been accepted by the people of Kerak, who had previously been practically independent, and the new Governor had prohibited his educational and medical work, and that in consequence of the altered circumstances he wished to withdraw. He invited the Society to take over his work. He stated that the population is between 6,000 and 9,000, of whom about 1,000 are Christians. Mr. Sykes visited the place in the spring of 1894, and upon his report it was agreed to take up the work, and two agents, Mr. Forder and Miss Arnold, who had laboured with Mr. Lethaby, were invited to continue their labours there for one year.

PERSIA AND BAGHDAD MISSION.

Until a very recent period, Persia was quite closed to the Gospel. Henry Martyn stayed ten months in the country in 1811. Since 1834 an American Mission has laboured with much blessing among the Nestorian Christians. In 1869 the Rev. R. Bruce, of the C.M.S., visited Persia on his way back to India, and finding the Moslems of Ispahan and its neighbourhood not unwilling to discuss religious subjects, he took up his abode there, and gathered round him some few of these, and a considerable number of Armenian Christians who were dissatisfied with their corrupt form of worship, besides opening schools, &c. In 1875 the Society formally adopted his work as one of its Missions.

In 1882 the Mission was extended by the occupation of Baghdad, which, though in the Turkish Empire, is a place of great importance for Persian work, being in the immediate neighbourhood of the sacred places of the Shiah Mohammedans, and therefore the resort of thousands of pilgrims from all parts of Persia.

Bishop Stuart's offer for Persia.

THE resignation by Bishop Stuart of his New Zealand Diocese, in order that he may devote the residue of his life to Missionary work among Mohammedans in Persia, is an event of the deepest interest and importance in the story of this Mission. On September 11, 1850, Edward Craig Stuart and Thomas Valpy French, the former a Medallist of Trinity College, Dublin, the latter a First Class man and Fellow of University College, Oxford, sailed for India and founded together St. John's College, Agra. After a few years their paths parted asunder, but though widely separated in space they have presented a remarkable parallelism in some particulars. In the same year and the same month, in December 1877, both were consecrated, Stuart at Napier to be second Bishop of Waiapu, and French in Westminster Abbey to be first Bishop of Lahore. Ten years after his consecration French resigned his bishopric and went as a pioneer Missionary to the Mohammedans of Western Asia; and now, after an episcopate of sixteen years, Stuart is about to follow him to the same regions. French's noble spirit was called away in Arabia, and his remains lie on the Arabian coast where it looks across the Gulf of Oman towards Persia. Bishop Stuart goes to Persia itself. French was only permitted to labour for a few months. God grant to Bishop Stuart, not months, but years of happy and faithful service.

At the time when Bishop Stuart was consecrated the Rev. R. Bruce had for eight years—for seven years before the Mission was taken up by the Society—been occupied in "gathering out the stones," to use his own phrase, in preparation for the future day of ploughing, and seed-sowing, and reaping. That day appears to have arrived. In the judgment of Dr. Bruce and of all the Missionaries, the time for a real advance in aggressive work for the evangelisation of Persia has come. The blessing which has attended women's work, especially when some knowledge of medicine was possessed by the agents, and the encouragements which itinerations have met with in the cities and villages of the land, have led the Committee to share the hope which the Missionaries entertain, and they will follow with prayerful interest the gradual development of the work, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit of God. There seems to be "an open door," but—as will shortly appear under "Julfa" —there are also "many adversaries;" and the Committee invite much and frequent prayer for the Missionaries and all the agents, that at all times a holy prudence may be mingled with a holy zeal, and that by well doing they may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men.

A doctor and two ladies have joined the Mission: Dr. Donald W. Carr, M.B., London, brother of the Rev. E. S. Carr, of the Tinnevelly Mission, and Mrs. Carr; Miss Eleanor C. Davies-Colley, an experienced Christian worker of Chester; and Miss A. Stirling, trained at The Willows. The ladies left England in November, 1893, travelling viâ Odessa and Batoum, and reached Julfa two days before Christmas; Dr. and Mrs. Carr left in April, 1894. The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Bruce came home in June, 1893, and the Rev. C. H. and Mrs. Stileman, after an anxious journey viâ Shiraz and Bushire, as cholera was raging in several of the villages through which they passed, in November. Reinforcements.

JULFA.

The Rev. W. St. C. Tisdall writes in grateful terms of the faith and zeal and love of some of his Armenian fellow-labourers, some thirty in number, engaged as teachers in the schools, helpers in the dispensaries, catechists, &c. He has striven to help them all to recognise the privilege they enjoy in being called to preach the Gospel of Christ in Persia. To some of them he has given instruction in Arabic, that they might be the better fitted for effective work among their Moslem fellow-countrymen. Persians are usually present, sometimes as many as twenty-five at a time, at the Sunday morning Armenian Service, and at Mr. Tisdall's Sunday afternoon Bible Class. The Armenian Boys' School, under an Armenian master, Mr. C. M. Johannes, has been remodelled somewhat on the plan of the Robert Money School at Bombay, with which Mr. Tisdall was familiar while in the Western India Mission, the examination standards being conformed as nearly as possible to those of the Bombay Education Department. Mr. Joseph Aidinyantz is head master of the Persian Boys' School; and Mrs. Aidinyantz, née Miss Read, of the F.E.S., conducts the Girls' School, in which she is assisted by Miss L. Stubbs. Miss M. R. S. Bird was laid aside by an attack of diphtheria in the spring, and was in feeble health for several months afterwards. In July she was well enough to reopen her Dispensary-room for two days weekly. In four months the attendances registered were 2,244. Miss Bird was sent for at the beginning of 1893 to Ispahan to attend a sick lady in the household of the Julfa. Schools.

A lady Missionary sent for to the palace of the Prince Governor.

Prince Governor, and a carriage and pair, preceded by horse-riders shouting, "Make way for the hakîm (doctor)," was sent for her conveyance. This was her first visit to Ispahan, but subsequently so many doors opened there that she went once a week. The owners of two houses lent her rooms, into which as many as thirty at a time crowded and listened attentively to the reading and prayer. In July an opportunity occurred of renting a house in Ispahan, with the concurrence of the British Consul. When, however, this house was soon afterwards put to use as a dispensary and Bible depôt, the Prince Governor, instigated, Mr. Tisdall believes, by an influential and intensely bigoted Mullah, required that the dispensary and depôt should be closed. Under pressure from H.M. Ambassador at Teheran and the Consul at Ispahan, the Prince Governor eventually sanctioned the house being used as a residence, and the Rev. H. Carless moved into it in January. About the same time an excited crowd followed Miss Bird when returning from visiting a patient near Julfa, but, though violence was threatened, their hands were restrained. In March Mr. Tisdall wrote that the excitement had quieted down.

Najifabad.

Najifabad, a town of 13,000 inhabitants, some twenty miles from Julfa, was occupied as an out-station by one of the Armenian dispensers and a catechist in March, 1893. It is a stronghold of Babîs, and Mr. Stileman had a most friendly reception by many of this sect when he went there in April. On the last day of his visit he had a long interview with the leading Babî (or "Behai." as he calls the sect) in the place, of which he gives the following account:—

Interview with leading Babîs.

In the afternoon Johannes and I went to the appointed house to meet the chief exponent of Behāi principles, and had a most interesting time with him, and a room full of his co-religionists. We had, of course, taken the Word of God with us, and for three hours and a half we studied it together, and pointed out passage after passage bearing upon their particular views, and especially combating the position that our Lord's Second Advent took place fifty-two years ago. They were all most friendly, and it was evident that many of them were much struck by the accumulation of proofs from God's Word that Christ has not yet come again as He promised: even their leader admitted that perhaps Christ will after all come again in glory; but then he added, "See how few Mohammedans you Christians have as yet won for Christ! Now, there are thousands upon thousands of us who have been brought away from Islam by one man; all of us were previously just as much bigoted Moslems as any in the country, like them we blasphemed and denied that the Gospel is the Word of God, but now by the instrumentality of one man we have been brought to acknowledge the Truth, and to acknowledge the Gospel as without doubt a true revelation from God. Is not that a sufficient proof that the one man who has accomplished this in fifty years must be Christ Himself, who has returned as He promised?"

Sufferings undergone by Babîs.

One thing which especially draws out one's sympathy for these poor people is the terrible sufferings which they have undergone for what they believe to be the Truth. Many hundreds of them have been put to death in different parts of Persia; here in Najifabad itself seven have suffered martyrdom, many others have been killed in the villages round, and they are always being more or less persecuted on account of their religion. The man who sat immediately opposite me during the conversation just mentioned, had been imprisoned for six months, beaten, and then mutilated by having part of his ears cut off. The man who sat on my left hand told me that his own father was murdered for being a Behāi. But one and all declare that they will die rather than renounce their faith, and though very many have been killed, I have not yet heard of one who has abjured his faith. This makes one long still more that these dear people should become true followers of our Lord Jesus Christ, as "the fear of man" which "bringeth a snare" is certainly one of the greatest difficulties against which we have to contend, and we specially need in Persia a little band of converts who are prepared, if necessary, to lay down their lives for the Master and Saviour who laid down His life for them.

Two whole families were under preparation for baptism in November.

Itinerations.

The Rev. H. Carless, on his way to Julfa from Baghdad, which he left in May, 1893, stayed some days at Kermanshah, an important city on the route of the Persian pilgrims to Kerbela, and there he found an earnest young inquirer with whom he afterwards corresponded. Towards the close of the year he took a five weeks' tour to Ardekan and Yezd, neighbouring towns, in the latter of which he baptized a Moslem convert —a Babî and a well-to-do young merchant. The Armenian dispenser, Mr. Johannes M. Pryantz, mentioned above by Mr. Stileman, and a catechist, Paul Petros, remained at Yezd during the winter months.

Baghdad.

For over two years, except for the few months of the Rev. H. Carless' visit at the beginning of 1893, Dr. H. M. and Mrs. Sutton have had no fellow-helpers in their difficult work in this large Turkish city. Two severe epidemics of cholera occurred in the autumn, which rendered Dr. Sutton greatly in request. One apparently sincere inquirer, a young man of good education, holding a Government office, encouraged him in his labours. Yakoub, the convert referred to in last year's Report, is still detained at Hillah, where Mr. Carless visited him in the spring before he left Baghdad.

INDIA.

Official Report of Census of 1891.

THE official report of the Census of India (including British Burmah) in 1891 was published during 1893, and is deeply interesting and suggestive to those who watch and labour for the salvation of India's people. The vastness of the task of counting one-fifth of the world's inhabitants is illustrated by the fact that the schedules, in 17 languages, were prepared from 290 tons of paper! During the decade since the former census the population of the country increased nearly 11 per cent.; that of the Christians increased nearly 22 per cent. The Christians are less than one per cent. (0·80) of the population. The census gives the number as 2,284,380, of whom 89·1 per cent. (2,036,000) are natives of India, 7·4 per cent. (168,000) Europeans, and 3·5 per cent. (79,790) Eurasians. Again, 57·5 per cent. of the Christians belong to the Church of Rome, which entered the field two centuries earlier than the Reformed Churches; 8·75 per cent. belong to the Syrian Church, and 33 per cent. to the Protestant Churches, of whom rather less than half belong to the Church of England. About three-fourths of the Native Christians are in Madras and the Malabar State.

Illiteracy of the people.

The census discloses an appalling prevalence of illiteracy. Less than six per cent. of the whole population can read or write. Among women the proportion is only one in 330. Of Christians the proportion is 34·3 males and 13·6 females per hundred. No separate return is given under this head for Protestant Christians, among whom the proportion is no doubt much higher. Among Mohammedans, less than one woman in 300 is able to read and write.

Large proportion of rural population.

Another striking feature in the distribution of the population is noteworthy. It is that whereas in England 53 per cent. of the people live in towns of over 20,000 inhabitants, in India less than five per cent. do so. The Committee are very wishful to increase the number of bands of Associated Evangelists in order to bring the Gospel to these masses in the rural districts. An appeal from the leaders of the existing bands was published in the October Intelligencer.

The minutes of the first General Conference of C.M.S. Indian Missionaries, held at Bombay in January, 1893, on the subjects which the Committee had suggested for discussion (see Annual Report for 1892-3, pages 76 and 77), were carefully considered by the Committee. The following were some of the resolutions adopted:—

Desire for more of the power of the Holy Spirit.

That the Parent Committee heartily thank God for the determination of the Conference Delegates to seek for more of the power and grace of the Holy Spirit in their life and work, to surrender themselves more entirely to the Spirit's leading, and to encourage one another to a more vigilant use of the means of grace, especially of private and united prayer and study of the Word of God. It is the earnest prayer of this Committee that they themselves may be helped by the Holy Spirit of God to realise more deeply the responsibility lying upon them in the part which they are called to take in connexion with this great work, and with His help to do it more than ever before with a single eye to His glory, and with more diligence and earnestness.

That the Parent Committee fully acquiesce in the view of the Conference of the desirableness of men of spiritual power being occasionally sent out from England as special Missioners to the Native Churches of India, and will seek to arrange for such a visit as soon as possible.

That the Parent Committee desire to express their highest approval of such measures as will secure that local C.M.S. Conferences should commence with a day devoted to united prayer and meditation, and would also express their desire that when devotional gatherings are so arranged in connexion with the meetings of the Missionary Conferences, all missionaries and other workers associated with the Mission should be left free and encouraged to attend.

That the Parent Committee cordially concur in the steps suggested for deepening the spiritual life of Native Christians, viz., the holding of special Missions among Native Christians, and the regular calling together of Indian Missionary Agents for purposes of mutual counsel and edification on spiritual lines. The Committee would invite proposals as to the ways in which they can render help as (e.g.) with regard to the supply of European and Native Missioners.

That the Parent Committee concur in the proposal to foster evangelistic zeal among Native Christians in a systematic manner by emphasising the aggressive character of the Church, by spreading Missionary information through Vernacular Missionary magazines and regular Missionary meetings, and by organising voluntary efforts in connexion with congregations and boarding-schools. The Committee heartily wish such efforts God-speed.

Visit of Revs. E. N. Thwaites and Martin J. Hall to India.

An opportunity of carrying out the second of the above resolutions was providentially supplied in the autumn. The Rev. E. N. Thwaites, Rector of Fisherton, near Salisbury, during the meetings of an Annual Conference at Salisbury for the deepening of the spiritual life, at which he presided and the late Bishop Hill pleaded the claims of the heathen world and of the infant Christian congregations struggling in the midst of a heathen environment, was led to express a desire to pay a few months' visit to some C.M.S. Mission-field and conduct special services. The interest awakened by this avowal was so great that the funds necessary to meet the expenses of such a journey were contributed on the spot. The Committee thankfully accepted Mr. Thwaites' offer, and requested him to visit Bengal and South India and Ceylon. They subsequently invited the Rev. Martin J. Hall to be his companion in journeying and in labours. These brethren sailed in December, and returned home again in April. Their visit was richly blessed of God. Wherever they went the Lord worked with them, and confirmed the Word with signs following, and the missionaries wrote home testifying of spiritual refreshment, and of new joy in their Saviour and His work.

BENGAL MISSION.

Lutheran Missionaries under the S.P.C.K. laboured in India in the last century, and many thousands of converts were baptized; but the Missions, after the deaths of Schwartz and other leaders, languished, and at length only a few Christians remained in the South. For some years prior to the renewal of the East India Company's charter in 1813, no Missionaries were allowed to reside within the British Dominions, and Carey, the famous Baptist Missionary, and his companions, had to take refuge in the Danish Settlements. Among the Government Chaplains, however, there were men like Brown, Buchanan, Henry Martyn, Corrie, and Thomason, who did what they could to prepare the way for future work. The C.M.S. had an important share in the establishment of the Bishopric of Calcutta in 1814, by its publication of Claudius Buchanan's work on the subject; and it granted the first Bishop, Dr. Middleton, £5,000 towards the cost of Bishop's College. Before India was open to Missionaries, a Corresponding Committee of the C.M.S. was formed at Calcutta, of which the above-named chaplains were members, and several influential laymen. Two English Missionaries were sent to Calcutta in 1816; Burdwan was occupied in 1817; Krishnagar in 1831; and Bhagalpur in 1850. Great interest was aroused by a remarkable movement in the Krishnagar district, Bengal, in 1838, when some 3,000 persons forsook Heathenism, and on one occasion 900 were baptized in the presence of Bishop Daniel Wilson. Work was begun among the Santâls, an aboriginal tribe in Bengal, in 1860.

Reinforcements. Two Missionaries and their wives have been transferred to the North-West Provinces on grounds of health: the Rev. and Mrs. J. Tunbridge, of the Santal Mission, and the Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Hall, of Calcutta. On the other hand, the following four recruits have been added to the staff: the Revs. Charles Hughesdon, W. P. Parker, and Mr. E. G. Clowes, Islington men, and Mr. Henry C. Tugwell—son of the Rev. L. S. Tugwell, formerly a Missionary for a short time in the North Pacific Mission, and cousin of Bishop Tugwell, of Western Equatorial Africa—sent out by the Victoria Association. Messrs. Hughesdon and Parker were admitted to Deacon's Orders by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, May 28, 1893. All the above arrived in Calcutta in the course of November and December. The following came home during the year: Mrs. Santer in March, 1894; Mr. S. W. Donne and Mr. A. Le Feuvre in April; and the Rev. and Mrs. H. Brown in May.

On the outward passage of the P. and O. s.s. Mirzapore, by which one of the above-mentioned Missionaries and others of the North-West Provinces Mission journeyed, a Missionary meeting was held at which Sir Charles Elliott, K.C.S.I., the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, took the chair; and a few days after his arrival in India, he again presided at a Missionary Meeting. The latter occasion was the annual Meeting of the Calcutta C.M.S. Association, at which Sir Charles Elliott made the following appreciative remarks on the influence of Missionaries in promoting the moral and educational interests of the people of India:—

Sir Charles Elliott on the value of Educational Missions,

These are the very objects which Government proposes to itself: its devotion to these objects is among the main reasons which justify our presence in this country; and I think there are many of us who would even say that they would not consent to serve Government at all if they did not believe that its aims and efforts tended in this direction. From this point of view no officer of Government can fail to recognise in the noble body of missionaries an auxiliary force of the greatest value, fighting in the most effectual manner on our side, using weapons of precision and weight, and taking a most important part in the campaign, because they occupy a portion of the field which it is vital to success to hold, but which we from our very limitations are unable to occupy. And I for one should feel it a never-ceasing source of regret if I lost any opportunity of expressing the admiration which I feel for the self-sacrificing and devoted lives of missionaries, spent in this country under circumstances of much trial and physical suffering, actuated by no hope of gain, and stimulated by no reward from men—such lives as serve as a standard and example which all of us would wish to follow.

and on the self-sacrificing devotion of missionaries.

The Rev. Raj Kristo Bose died on April 28, 1894. He was ordained deacon in 1870. His work among educated Hindus in Calcutta is referred to below.

Ordinations.

The Bishop of Calcutta admitted the Revs. J. F. Hewitt, Luke Horish Chundra Dey, and Tushtu C. Tarafdar to Priest's Orders, at the Cathedral, Calcutta, December 21, 1893.

CALCUTTA.

Old Church.

The Old Church is a rallying point for Churchmen who love a simple Evangelical service, being the only church in Calcutta of this kind. The Rev. H. Gouldsmith, the Minister in charge, finds it a busy and happy sphere. The number of Communicants during the year was 3,318, at 58 administrations, an average of 57; and the amount received at the offertories was Rs. 8,411. The sum of Rs. 2,546 was raised by the congregation for C.M.S. work. A Parochial Temperance Society has 460 members, with a Hindustani branch having 63 members. This latter was an outcome of a weekly mothers' meeting which has an average attendance of over 100. Bible-women visit from house to house in the district attached to the church. A Free Day School was opened during the year for the poor of the district, who before were dependent on the Roman Catholics for the education of their children. Efforts are also made to reach the Jews, who are numerous in Calcutta. A young Guzerathi lady, who had been educated partly in England, where she had learned much of the Christian faith, was baptized in this church in December. Miss H. J. Neele, who prepared her for baptism, says she is the only member of her family who has confessed belief in Christ. Soon after her baptism she was married to a Christian Bengali civilian. The first fortnight of the visit of the Revs. E. N. Thwaites and Martin J. Hall to Calcutta was spent in holding daily services and meetings in connexion with the Old Church. During the first ten days the addresses were made more especially to the unconverted. Some 200 persons professed to have received a definite blessing, and three expressed the desire to be baptized. The last four days were devoted to the edification of believers. The Rev. H. D. Williamson, the Acting Secretary of the Mission, wrote :—

We are all rejoicing and praising God for His blessing upon the missioners' visit to Calcutta. There has been very evident blessing upon each part of their mission. Many of our Old Church congregation testified in the after-meetings either to conversion or to definite help to their Christian life. The believers' meetings were marked by a truly happy union of all denominations, by large attendance at each of the three meetings day by day, and by a real stirring up of many to a fuller apprehension of Christ.

The last week was given to services and meetings at Trinity Church for the Bengali Christians. The addresses were interpreted. A writer in the North India localised Gleaner remarked about this effort :—

To us who have known Trinity Church for many years, it was a soul-stirring sight to see the building packed night after night to its utmost capacity with an earnest throng of Bengali Christian men and women, including not a few Hindus. The average evening attendance was 550. The services came to a conclusion on Thursday morning, when Mr. Hall gave a very appropriate address from the words, "Jesus Himself drew near and went with them." At this closing service the Holy Communion was administered to 210 communicants.

A widow and her two children (one of the latter was already married) were baptized at Trinity Church in May, 1893. They were led to Christ by the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies at Burdwan. The Rev. A. Stark was in spiritual charge of this congregation, as well as of that worshipping at Entally Church, and of the Christian lepers in the Leper Asylum. The services in the Leper Church are conducted in English and Bengali, each sentence being given in both languages. Mr. Stark says that two Europeans, both professing the Roman Catholic faith, an Englishman and a German woman, were converted during the year. The Rev. E. T. Sandys, who has charge of Christ Church, was married in December to Miss E. T. Sampson, of the C.E.Z.M.S., daughter of the Rev. J. E. Sampson, Vicar of Barrow-on-Humber.

Leper Church.

The Rev. R. K. Bose, whose death has been referred to above, was away from Calcutta by doctors' orders for three months of the year, and he took the opportunity of visiting the chief centres of the Hindu religion and learning, such as Mattra, Brindaban, Delhi, Agra, Benares, Allahabad, and Cawnpore, and he preached Christ and His Gospel of salvation to hundreds of men, inhabitants and pilgrims. His work in Calcutta was especially to visit the Educated Classes of Hindus in their houses, and he wrote :—

Work among Educated Classes.

With regard to my visits, I am glad to state, under the Holy Spirit, I was able to convince many a Hindu gentleman of the emptiness of his ancestral religion, having a hold nowhere but on the blindness of the heart, while proving unquestionably the superior claim of Christianity, not only over Hinduism, but all other creeds of the world. In this connexion I often had to be wholly engaged in discussions most difficult and abstruse ; but by the grace of the Holy Ghost I invariably succeeded in pushing all my disputants into the corner. It may not be here out of place to mention that the arguments generally resorted to by the modern Hindu pundit are so replete with all the accumulated wisdom of the past ages, that they frequently become most metaphysically abstruse and incomprehensible. But it is noteworthy that, with all his erudition, he is found to lack that logical training in controversy which characterises the discussions of the Western savant. Another noticeable feature in the Hindu gentlemen and pundits with whom I had to discuss is this, that they generally want that character which enables a man to act and live in accordance to his own belief. For instance, it is an everyday occurrence to come across many gentlemen who, though at times they had been sincerely convinced of the Truth, and may even have had devout feelings towards Christ, suddenly turn violent assailants.

Mr. Bose was privileged to baptize a Native doctor who had lately been in Government employ, but at the time of his baptism was, or soon afterwards became, engaged as assistant surgeon under the London Missionary Society. He had been an inquirer for several years.

Mohammedan Mission.

The Mohammedan Mission is under the Rev. Jani Alli, and is mainly carried on in two schools, one at Garden Reach, the other at Matiaburj, in which are 420 boys—not all Mohammedans, however—of ages from six to sixteen. One of the masters of the former school applied for baptism, having desired it for several years, but he had been prevented by his father's opposition. Three days after he spoke on the subject to Mr. Alli, and before his wish was realised, he was accidentally drowned.

Divinity School.

The Divinity School was re-opened in March, 1893, with 14 students. Altogether 22 men were reading for longer or shorter periods, of whom four were converts from Hinduism, four from Mohammedanism, and the rest were sons of Christian parents. Two of those ordained priests in December, with two others one of whom was not presented and one failed to pass, formed a special class in the school. The principal, the Rev. W. H. Ball, edits a small monthly paper called Friendly Greetings, for English-speaking non-Christians. Though only commenced in May, 1893, it attained a monthly circulation of 1,000 by the end of the year, and several missionaries in the North-West Provinces and in Sindh refer to it in terms of approbation.

Boys' Boarding School.

The Boys' Boarding School, under the Rev. F. B. Gwinn, has fifty-five pupils. The headmaster of this school is Mr. Krista Das Banerjea, an account of whose conversion was given in the Annual Report for 1891–2 (page 85), and Mr. Gwinn attributes largely to him the successes which the school has recently secured in the public examinations. Four passed out of five boys sent in to the University Entrance Examination. Of the spiritual work in the school Mr. Gwinn says :—

Our close and constant contact with the boys, and with each individual boy, has given us a very clear insight into each boy's character and disposition, and, so far as it be possible to judge, we have every cause for thankfulness at what outward manifestation we see of a real godly tendency in almost all the boys, and, in many cases, a real indication of a change of heart also.

In addition to the morning and evening prayers, both the little and the big boys have of their own accord started little meetings for prayer in their respective dormitories. Of course, they conduct them entirely themselves, and, although attendance at them is perfectly voluntary, I am told it is very seldom any boy is absent.

We have in addition to the Sunday and Thursday evening services in church, a Sunday-school, Bible-searching classes, a Gleaners' Union, School-boys' Scripture Union, monthly communicants' meeting, outdoor preaching band, and a homely meeting for singing and "straight talks" to the boys in our drawing-room on Sunday evenings.

Mr. Gwinn adds some very interesting particulars of some of the boys:—

Although we have not had the privilege of bringing converts into the fold of Christ, our privileges and responsibilities have been almost as great, in having converts sent to the school immediately after their baptism, and their influence and example have without exception been remarkably blessed. It can be easily understood that if a new boy surrounded with friends and comforts, and with good worldly prospects, is prepared to sacrifice all, and become an outcast from his own family, poor and despised, and all for the name of Christ, that his faith has passed through a furnace which must have refined and strengthened it.

We have had several such lads, one in particular coming from a home where he enjoyed all that money, position, and influence could secure. His father publicly disowned him after his baptism and now considers him as dead. The lad has been one of the foremost and most zealous in our street-preaching, and his earnest words and powerful personal testimony have again and again riveted the attention even of haughty Babus, who are accustomed to pass street-preaching with a sneer.

Another of our boys, a Hindu convert, has passed through even deeper waters. His conversion having taken place in a small village where people are less enlightened, aroused such a feeling of indignation and hatred that the lad's life was in danger. His conversion led on to a long and wearying police case, in which his own family and relations were against him, but the brave lad fearlessly and unflinchingly openly declared his faith in Christ and his determination to stay with the missionary who had been instrumental in his conversion.

Strange to say, after this his faith gave way, but God intervened in a most unmistakable manner. Every device had been brought to bear to induce the boy to recant, and his elder brother's influence seemed particularly strong. At last, in abject fear, he signed a document in which he said he renounced Christianity and returned to Hinduism. But God laid His hand upon him, and in such a way that it could not be misunderstood. The very hand which had signed the false document a few days after became powerless, and the right arm and side developed symptoms of paralysis. The boy at once regarded this as God's rebuke, and patiently accepted this affliction as a call to return to Christ, which he at once did, and not only so, but he began to preach with such earnestness and power that the very worst emotions of the villagers were aroused, and for his own safety the boy was sent to us to school. His consistent life has made a lasting impression on the school. His recovery has been equally remarkable. For some months he was placed in hospital, but nothing could be done for him, and he got no better. I had brought out from England a galvanic battery, and though I had no faith in these means, as they had been unsuccessfully tried in hospital, yet to sustain the lad's hope I told him to come to me three times daily, when we would together lay the matter before our Heavenly Father and use the battery. In my own heart I felt that as soon as the lesson intended had been learnt, that God might remove what was so heavy a trial to the poor lad—and He did.

In a short time the boy could raise his hand above his head, then he began to run about, and when he left school, a few weeks ago, he was one of the foremost in our football team and cricket eleven, and could wield Indian clubs as readily as one of the strongest. He was a very fearless preacher of the Gospel at our street preaching, and his life and conversation in school had so impressed the boys, that in awarding our annual silver medal to the best boy in the school, this boy and another secured an equal number of votes.

The Girls' Boarding School spent the year in temporary quarters pending the erection of new buildings, which, owing to various causes of delay—in which Miss H. J. Neele has the earnest sympathy of the Committee—are only now, in the summer of 1894, being commenced. There were 59 boarders and 42 day-scholars on the roll at the end of the year. Two of the girls successfully passed the Calcutta University Entrance Examination. Fifty girls went up in December to the public examinations in the Senate House, about one-tenth of the whole number who were presented. The school has a flourishing branch of the Gleaners' Union. Miss A. Sampson conducted the meetings. She writes :— Girls' Boarding School.

Our Gleaners' meetings are held on Sunday mornings, about once a month. I do not conduct them entirely myself now, but nearly all the Gleaners take part. We choose a country, and they glean information beforehand, and tell it in turns, and our meetings have become much more interesting since we began this plan.

Nearly all the girls who competed from this school in the Scripture Union Examination of 1892 were successful. A large proportion of the former pupils, Miss Neele says, are engaged in Mission work. The Agarpara Orphanage has about 100 inmates, among whom are some infants under two years old, rescued, in one instance, from infanticide, and in others from extreme neglect. Some also are deficient in intellect. Fifteen of the girls passed different standards in the Government Examinations, of whom three obtained scholarships. Agarpara Orphanage.

The band of Associated Evangelists, consisting of the Revs. C. B. Clarke (the leader) and J. F. Hewitt, and Mr. F. W. Bourdillon, were engaged chiefly in studying Bengali, for which purpose the first two members of the band spent three months at Santirajpur, and subsequently the last two spent some time at Burdwan. Mr. Bourdillon, in company with the Rev. E. T. Sandys, witnessed a painful exhibition of Hinduism in the spring of 1893. Hearing that the Charakpuja, or "Swinging Festival," was celebrated annually at a village called Bakra, only 17 miles from Government House, Calcutta, they made their way thither. Mr. Bourdillon thus describes what they saw :— The "Swinging Festival" celebrated near Calcutta.

In the open fields, 150 yards distant, was a large scaffolding-pole, or "tree," and across the top of it a long and strong bamboo rod; from one end of this a man was suspended in the air, some twenty feet from the ground, and whirled round by two men who weighed down the other end of the bamboo. Enjoying the spectacle were a crowd of men, with some women and children, the centre of the crowd being composed chiefly of Brahmin priests, and of men nearly nude, dancing to the sound of tom-toms and of their own shouts. When we got opposite to the swing Mr. Sandys jumped down from the bund and forced his way through the crowd, I following him. This was the signal for the revolution of the swing to be suddenly stopped, the man let down, untied, and told to disappear. But he was so drugged or drunk that he was only just getting on his legs when we got hold of him. We then had an opportunity of examining him, and found that he had round his chest the cloth which we had seen, and some cords of cocoa-nut fibre which no doubt bore the main part of his weight, but connected with these ties were two large hooks, which were passed through about 2½ inches of the skin and flesh of his back, about the level of the bottom of the shoulder-blades. The hooks were of steel, about the thickness of the shank of a table-fork, and that these hooks had borne some, at least, of the weight of the body was apparent from the look of the wounds. We had just time to fix this on our minds, and decide that it was a case that ought to be reported, when the crowd got very excited. The men round us were mostly more or less excited with drink, and we made the mistake of trying to drag the man away, so as to examine him more completely. But in this we naturally failed, and had to let him go.

The man swung was a poor wretch of the lowest caste, and no doubt he was well paid: certainly he had been liberally plied with drink, and possibly his sensitiveness was further numbed by drugs. But the whole scene was degrading, and a fitting example of what Hinduism left to itself is. Probably not a soul there had the least intention of worship, but the ceremony is popular, in some part perhaps from the attraction which cruelty has for debased minds, as in the old Roman circus and the modern bull-fight, but chiefly from the fact that it is but the prelude for drink and unrestrained debauchery.

An example of what Hinduism is.

Since writing the foregoing, a case arising out of our report of this festival has been tried in the Alipur Deputy-Magistrate's Court. Four men had been arrested by the police, with wounds in their backs, and after trial were sentenced to a fine of five rupees each (equal to a month's wages) or a week's imprisonment. The sad part was that as each man was asked why he had broken the law, he replied with the set formula, "God told me to." They were all low-caste, and utterly ignorant men, the real offenders being those who are responsible for the annual recurrence of a degrading festival, and who are of course quite untouched by this trial.

The Rev. G. H. Parsons refers to signs of encouragement in the Evangelistic Work. Attentive crowds are always present at the bazaar-preaching, and on Sunday evenings large numbers of Baboos listen for upwards of an hour to addresses in English in College Square. Mr. Parsons has a Bible-class for Native gentlemen, which he conducts in English. Their regular attendance even during the hottest months of the year encourages him greatly.

BURDWAN.

Burdwan.

The Bishop of Calcutta dedicated the new church at Burdwan, the erection of which was referred to in last year's Report, on February 12th, 1893. The Bishop of Worcester, the Archdeacon of Norwich, and the Master of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, have placed a marble pulpit and memorial tablet in the church in memory of their parents, the late Rev. J. and Mrs. Perowne, who laboured at this station from 1820 to 1827. Some members of the Native congregation were a cause of much trouble, and one who had been excommunicated brought an action against Mr. Santer for defamation. This, however, served one good purpose, as it gave an opportunity for some of his Hindu friends to manifest their kindly feelings. He says :—

Hindu pleaders conduct a Missionary's defence, and decline fees.

When the Criminal Court case against me came on, I consulted one pleader with whom I read very regularly, and who thoroughly understands and appreciates the high claims of Christianity, and he undertook my defence. Another gentleman, one of the leading members of the Bar himself, came forward and offered his services. On the day of the trial both were present and conducted my defence, and they had to get a case, on which they were engaged elsewhere, postponed. Neither of them would hear of accepting a fee! I only had to pay for some minor expenses. I wanted to make a present of a book to the son of the one, and, when pressed, he asked for an annotated edition of the Bible. The other pleader was greatly pleased with Drummond's Natural Law in the Spiritual World.

A good number of the Babus in the town are constant readers of the Bible with Mr. Santer, and he visits some of the Raj College students in their hostel.

The baptism of a widow and her two children at Trinity Church, Calcutta, in May, 1893 (see supra, page 82), was the fruits of the labours of the Misses E. and S. Mulvany and Miss Edwards, of the C.E.Z.M.S. The relatives of one of the children, a married daughter ten years of age, prosecuted the mother in the Criminal Court for kidnapping her child. The case was transferred to the Civil Court and during the hearing, in June, the carriage in which the girl with Misses Mulvany and Edwards were leaving the Court was attacked by a crowd, and the mother and her daughter were seized and taken away. The judge and the Rev. A. J. Santer were roughly handled in their efforts to protect the ladies. Mr. Santer wrote :—

Mission ladies attacked by a Hindu crowd.

One man got into the gari and beat Miss E. Mulvany on the back with his fists while she bent over the terrified woman and her child; another hit her on the head with a stick or umbrella. Miss S. Mulvany sustained severe injuries to her arm, and Miss Edwards was hit on the neck and back of the head. Finally, the three ladies were pitched out head-foremost from the gari and caught by others, who dragged them to the ground. It was at this point I succeeded in getting back to them. The poor woman and her child were seized and placed in the bottom of the gari, and, as we learned from the mother subsequently, some men got in and sat with their feet on them, and stamped and kicked them till the child fainted away!

NUDDEA DISTRICT.

The occupation of Ranaghat by Mr. J. Monro, C.B., and his family in November established another link in the chain of stations occupied by European missionaries extending from south to north, through the Nuddea district. Ranaghat is ten miles from the southern limit of the district, Krishnagar is eleven miles further north, Chupra and Bollobhpur (the latter hitherto the residence of the C.E.Z.M.S. Village Mission ladies, but they have lately removed to the neighbouring village of Ratnapur) each another ten miles, from Bollobhpur to Santirajpur is twenty-six miles, and the latter place is ten miles from the northern limit at the Ganges. Mr. Monro was accompanied, on his return, by his son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Monro, and has been joined by his daughter, Miss Jessy Monro, whom he had left in India during his visit to England. They are not on the Society's list of missionaries, but they labour in the closest possible bonds of mutual co-operation with the C.M.S. and C.E.Z.M.S. missionaries, and Mr. Monro is a member of the Calcutta Corresponding Committee. Soon after his return Mr. Monro wrote in a private letter :—

Mr. Monro and family stationed at Rana ghat.

"The door is wide open."

Verily the door here is wide open, and the people are willing to hear. What more do we want? Access is all that we can expect: opportunities to sow, and those we have in abundance. I have no doubt that the prospect of medical aid opens many a door, but this of course is just one of the objects of providing such aid; and if doors are opened that way, is not that the very object we are aiming at? The Babus are very friendly and very civil. Altogether we have the very greatest reason for thankfulness at the cordial reception which has been accorded us, and from January 1st we shall go steadily through all the villages in the vicinity. The news of our being in one village reaches to the next, and thus we shall make each village pave the way for a visit to its neighbour. What the result may be is not with us. "In due time ye shall reap, if ye faint not," and all that we have to do is not to faint in sowing. The due time for reaping will come when He wills. If people at home would only cease praying for an open door, and come out and enter through the door which is wide open! These prayers for a door being opened, when it is open, are nothing but distrust. How do they expect them to be answered, when God has already opened the door? "Wherefore criest thou unto Me? Bid the people go forward."

Krishnagar Training School.

Proceeding northwards in the order above enumerated, KRISHNAGAR, on the Jellingee River, is reached. The Training School, under the Rev. E. T. Butler, has been raised to the First Grade standard. Four students passed out to take up work. Twelve out of sixteen presented gained Government certificates, and two others Tonic Sol-fa certificates. Two of the students headed the list in an open Scripture examination in connexion with the Bengal Christian Conference, one gaining the Silver Medal of the Conference; while another gained first prize in a public examination on General Scripture Knowledge. With his students Mr. Butler preaches in the bazaar, and he also visits the Native gentry. He has formed a branch of the Anglo-Indian Total Abstinence Society, which 300 gentlemen and students joined. In the Annual Report for 1891–2 (page 170) mention was made of a Mr. Wilson, a professed convert to Mohammedanism from Christianity. This gentleman visited Nuddea in the spring of 1893 to collect funds to build a mosque in America. The Native gentleman who presided at a lecture by Mr. Wilson wrote afterwards to Mr. Butler as follows :—

Mr. Wilson professed to lecture on the duties and beauties of Islam ; but during the course of his address, which had neither method nor arrangement of any sort, he simply praised Islamism on the ground of its being favourable to fellow-feeling, unity, respect for the dead, &c. But while speaking on these subjects rather at random he could not avoid making sarcastic and sometimes improper remarks against Christianity, which were not in good taste. Therefore, after he finished his address, I distinctly told him that although he had perfect liberty to speak about the beauties of his own religion, it was not proper for him to speak disparagingly of Christianity or of any other religion. I should, however, tell you that he appeared to me somewhat crazed, and I did not think it necessary to be very severe in my condemnation of his remarks.

A Hindu gentleman's view regarding a pervert to Mohammedanism.

Mr. Butler mentions four adult baptisms: a Brahmin widow who was qualifying as a nurse in the Medical College Hospital and was brought to him by a Christian fellow-nurse; a weaver of Santipore; and two women instructed by the catechist at Nadiya. During the Rev. E. N. Thwaites' visit in February, 1894, the church at Krishnagar was filled with Hindu gentlemen, who seemed greatly impressed. The Girls' Boarding School was under the charge of Miss Annie Sampson, of the C.E.Z.M.S., who came home in April, 1894.

Baptisms.

The Rev. W. Wallace resided at Krishnagar during the hot and rainy seasons and itinerated in the villages in the cold months. He found himself out of touch with the Natives in Krishnagar while residing in the English quarter, so he hired a house in the Native quarter, where numerous visitors went to him, usually after nightfall. He wrote :—

We have much to be thankful for, but the saddest part is to see how much more slowly the work of building up proceeds than the work of throwing down. In every direction, but especially among the educated, belief in Hinduism and obedience to its rules are lessening. But it dies hard, and too often doubt—not Christianity—comes in to take its place. The position, indeed, of a Hindu at present is such as might well move the hardest heart to pity. All that he has been taught to hold sacred is being held up to ridicule and detestation, and he finds it impossible to defend it. The faith in which his fathers lived, which has twined itself round his life and fixed its roots into his inmost being, is being torn from him, and he is powerless to keep it.

Pitiful position of educated Hindus.

The Rev. I. W. Charlton resides at CHUPRA, but, as Superintendent of the Native Pastorates, he, with Mrs. Charlton, is continually journeying from village to village. He writes :—

It would take much more than one year to thoroughly understand the state of the Christian Church, or to see that which is beneath the surface, but I may mention one or two of the self-evident shortcomings which are a great hindrance to the work, and which it must be the aim of all interested in the condition of the Christian community to overcome.

(1) A lack of independence of character, with all its attendant evils, insincerity, apathy, and feebleness.

Shortcomings of Native Christians.

(2) Neglect of children, with its accompanying results—ignorance, disobedience, and neglect of aged parents, &c.

(3) An indefinite, confused, feeble grasp of Gospel truth, which robs the otherwise religious man of that joy in the Lord which ought to be his strength, and which leaves the sermon or address without that definiteness of appeal which God so often uses.

Added to these there is a decided lack of spiritual appetite, and no desire to evangelise the Heathen around, nor are there those bright exceptions which one meets with in home parishes of the strong, spirit-taught, praying Christian man or woman who is looked up to and loved by all, and with whom the worker finds it refreshing to hold communion. There are, taking the Christian Church as a whole, a goodly number of well-disposed, honest people who are interested in the things of God and in the well-being of the Church; but, on the whole, it must be with sorrow confessed that the pulse of the Christian Church in Nuddea beats very feebly indeed.

Special Missions in Nuddea district.

Mr. Charlton, with the assistance of other Missionaries when attainable, held Special Missions at Bollobhpur, Kapasdanga, Chupra, and at many of the other villages. Special services were held for the Chupra agents in April, 1893, when the Rev. H. Gouldsmith, of the Old Church, Calcutta, and another gentleman gave most fervent and helpful addresses. In February, 1894, the Rev. E. N. Thwaites held meetings at Krishnagar for the Native Christians and for the agents, also for Europeans, and one for non-Christian Native gentlemen. At Chupra also meetings for agents were held on two succeeding days, while the Rev. Martin J. Hall conducted Mission Services at Kapasdanga. At this last-named place a singing band was formed to sing at the meetings and to visit all parts of the town. Mr. Charlton says:—

A singing and praying band.

Before service on Sunday morning, after visiting some parts of the village they invited me to join them in going round the remainder. I gladly went. Never was I more surprised. We walked slowly for a short distance, playing and singing hymns as usual, when suddenly down went the whole party on their knees, regardless of dust and dirt, while one led in the most fervent prayer for the people living near—and Sunday morning too! with clothes just put on clean for morning service! Of course, in spite of my trousers having come straight from the wash, down I had to go, nor could I pay much attention to brushing myself clean again lest I should be thought too particular about my clothes. So on we went to another corner, and down they all went again, and again another fervent prayer, and again we went on, and to my surprise and delight before we arrived back at the church these Bengali brothers had held (I think) six of these fervent prayer-meetings in one small portion of the village. On Sunday afternoon Mr. Hall and I strolled into the village; we soon came across the singing band still intent on their work again: and not merely singing! far from it; preaching, praying, testifying, and exhorting as if they would never be tired, and all this without anyone to lead them who has ever in any degree been before recognised as a leader in such work. Then came the evening meeting, at which the Spirit of God was very manifest.

Meetings of District Council.

Meetings of the Nuddea District Council were held in May and November. At the former the subjects discussed were "The Purpose of the Native Church Council, and how far it has been fufilled," "The Church's duties towards 'Widows indeed,'"

"Voluntary Work in Sunday Schools," "Maintaining of Missionary Interest," "Prayer Book Instruction," &c. At the latter a feature of interest in the proceedings was the reading of the report of his work by Babu Gorachund Biswas, a missionary to the Santals, supported since 1889 by the Nuddea Church Council.

SANTIRAJPUR, in the north of the district, proves to be a hard field of labour. It is the home of the Associated Evangelists—viz., the Rev. R. B. Marriott and Messrs. A. Le Feuvre, S. W. Donne, and P. H. Shaul—under the leadership of the Rev. A. G. Lockett. Mr. Le Feuvre, who, as also Mr. Donne, has come home, wrote:—

Spiritually I could hardly imagine it to be worse, for whether one considers the Hindus or Mussulmans, they all alike seem to have utterly divorced religion from morality, and to be able to live grossly immoral lives and to profess faith and trust in their so-called religions at one and the same time. The people do not want Christ, they do not want holiness or free forgiveness of sins, if it involves a changed life. They are content to be let alone, even as a man who is unconscious with malarial fever. This does not, I take it, lessen our responsibility towards them, and to leave them in this callous, lethargic state would be as great a sin as to leave the man struck down with fever to restore himself while we ourselves stood by with the only means of restoration in our hands and watched him die.

"The people do not want Christ."

And Mr. P. H. Shaul says, "The people have no more idea of becoming Christians than we have of becoming Hindus or Mussulmans." The labourers, however, are not discouraged; they see some progress made, although the masses seem unaffected by their presence. The dispensary worked by Paulus, the Native doctor, was visited by 4,535 patients, and numerous cases were also treated in camp during itinerations in the cold season. The four schools are a source of special encouragement. "The keenness of many of the boys is very delightful," Mr. Lockett writes; and the Native masters are "for the most part earnest, diligent, spiritually minded men." The first convert of the district was baptized at the beginning of 1894. He belonged to the Kayestha caste of Hindus, and received the name of Andrew, the first disciple of our Lord. He had long been dissatisfied with Hinduism and had consulted many pundits. One said to him, "You will never know God until you have been born again." He said to Mr. Lockett, "I know now what the new birth means." Allah-Durga, one of the two out-stations, is fourteen miles east from Santirajpur. From it over thirty villages are accessible within a three-mile radius. The Rev. P. T. Biswas spent some weeks in the winter of 1893-4 with Mr. Le Feuvre at this place, and he writes:—

First-fruit at Santirajpur.

We visited about thirty villages, and everywhere we saw the wretched condition of the people, both physically and spiritually. We did not see even one educated man throughout all those villages. They are so covered with jungles that the bright sun can seldom be seen, even in the middle of the day. We scarcely saw a house which was not attacked with fever or cholera; and many children, young and old, have passed away without any remedy given in time. People are so very ignorant that they do not know what to do in such a time of calamity. They are more unwilling to care about their souls than their bodies. There is only one servant of Christ to go round so many villages and see to the physical and spiritual condition of the people. He doctors and nurses them in their sickness, gives proper advice to the parents, and allows everybody to come to his hut at all times; sick children are often found laid down upon his own bed. He takes a child and makes him sit on his knees, and teaches him the precious words of the Lord, sings to him some Christian Native hymns, sets a far better example of a guru than the Hindu priest. Oh! it is truly a lovely sight, and a loving example in this dark land of ignorance and cruelty.

Loving ministrations during an epidemic.

The other out-station is at Murutiah, nine miles south-west of the main station. Mr. S. W. Donne spent ten months of the year in itinerating either in tent or in boat, or else residing at one of the out-stations.

SANTALIA.

THE Committee have decided to supply a band of Associated Evangelists for this Mission when the men are available.

The Rev. J. Blaich, as Chairman of the Church Council, superintends the ten Pastorates. Two of these pastorates are across the Ganges, one at Pandur, and the other at Santalpur, in Assam. At the latter of these places some 500 Santals, who migrated thither in 1891 and 1892 under the conduct of Mr. H. R. Shields (brother of the Rev. A. J. Shields, formerly of this Mission), occupy a piece of land in the Alipur Duars at the base of the Himalayas, which the Government has reserved to them at nominal rents. There were in the spring of 1893 five villages within an area of five square miles, and each village supplied two delegates to the Pastorate Committee. These trans-Gangetic pastorates were not visited by Mr. Blaich during the year, on account of their remoteness. The Council employs five evangelistic agents. Eighty-five adults were baptized in connexion with the pastorates during the year.

Christian Santal Colonists.

The Rev. H. J. Jackson assisted Mr. Blaich, and the Rev. D. M. Brown had temporary charge during the year of the Taljhari Boarding School with over 150 boys, about two-thirds being Christians. Mr. Jackson has since succeeded to the charge of the school temporarily, and Mr. Brown has been removed to Hiranpur.

Taljhari Boarding School.

The Rev. J. Brown at BAHAWA conducted a Preparandi Class with four students, and also had two Native deacons reading with him for Priest's Orders. He prepared a first edition of St. John's Gospel in Bengali-Santali, and the Book of Proverbs in Santali. There were 12 adult baptisms. Mrs. Brown superintends the Girls' Boarding School.

The Rev. F. Etheridge has been joined at GODDA by one of the year's recruits, the Rev. C. Hughesdon. The former had a serious illness in the autumn, and was sent by doctor's orders to Ceylon. His case was considered hopeless on reaching Colombo, but he was mercifully raised up, and after a few months returned to his station and resumed work among the Santals and Paharis. Ten adults were baptized. Mr. Etheridge finds a humming-top, fitted with concertina reeds, which plays a succession of melodious chords when the top spins, a useful auxiliary for collecting the simple Paharis to hear the Gospel message. The Pahari Boys' Boarding School had fewer pupils than usual in consequence of cholera making an entry and causing the death of one of the five boys who were baptized at Christmas, 1892. Godda.

BHAGALPUR.

The Rev. J. A. Cullen has forwarded no report of his arduous work at this station.

NORTH-WEST PROVINCES MISSION.

Under Corrie's auspices at Agra, Henry Martyn's solitary convert from Mohammedanism, Abdul Masih, was stationed there in 1813; the Society's first agent in India being thus a Native. Abdul Masih was ordained in 1826 by Bishop Heber, the first Indian clergyman of the Church of England. Mirat was occupied in 1815; Benares, 1817; Gorakhpur, 1823; Azimgarh and Jaunpur, 1831; Jabalpur, 1854; Lucknow, 1858; Allahabad, 1859; Faizabad, 1862; Aligarh, 1863; Mandla (Gônd Mission), 1879; and Kherwara (Bheel Mission), 1880. A remarkable work was done by W. Smith and C. B. Leupolt at Benares, which began in 1832. In 1853, St. John's College at Agra was opened by T. V. French (late Bishop of Lahore) and E. C. Stuart (late Bishop of Waiapu). The Sepoy Mutiny of 1857 destroyed much of the Society's property, but the deep interest aroused by it caused a great extension of the work afterwards. Lucknow was occupied immediately on its re-conquest, on the invitation of the Chief Commissioner, Sir R. Montgomery. Allahabad was also occupied, and Christian villages established there and at Gorakhpur. In 1892 a new diocese (Lucknow) was formed out of the See of Calcutta, the Bishop (Dr. Clifford) having episcopal supervision of the whole of the North-West Provinces.

Reinforcements.

THIS Mission has gained by the transfer to it, mainly on grounds of health, of three married missionaries, two from Bengal and one from Mauritius. They are the Rev. James Tunbridge, who laboured in Santalia from 1877 till 1882, when he came home, and Mrs. Tunbridge; the Rev. John William Hall, who went out to East Africa in 1878, and later, 1881, joined the Calcutta staff, and Mrs. Hall; and the Rev. William Latham, who was in this Mission before from 1882 to 1890, and was transferred to Mauritius in 1892, and Mrs. Latham. Mr. Hall during his furlough took his B.A. degree at Durham. He was one of the first three Islington men to take advantage of the recent affiliation of the College with Durham University, the other two being the Rev. J. J. Bambridge, of the Sindh Mission, and A. K. Finnimore, now of Mauritius. The other reinforcements were: the Rev. James Marsh Challis, M.A., Cambridge University and Ridley Hall, Curate of Jesmond, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and Mrs. Challis, née Polhill-Turner; the Rev. William Archibald Culling Fremantle, M.A., Balliol College and Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, Curate of Aston, near Birmingham, and Mrs. Fremantle; the Rev. Ernest Augustus Hensley, B.A., St. John's College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, Curate of Christ Church, Hampstead; the Rev. Herbert William Vincent Birney, Islington College, who was ordained deacon by the Bishop of London on May 28, 1893; Messrs. Herbert Bennett and John Fryer, also Islington College men; and Miss Anna Bunston, trained at The Willows. Mr. Challis is a grandson of Professor Challis, and Mrs. Challis a sister of the two well-known missionaries of the China Inland Mission; Mr. Fremantle is a son of the Hon. and Rev. Canon Fremantle of Canterbury, grandson of the late Lord Cottesloe and great-nephew of the Dean of Ripon, and Mrs. Fremantle a daughter of the late General Burrows, and niece of Professor Montagu Burrows of Oxford; and Mr. Hensley is a brother of Miss Hensley of the C.E.Z.M.S. Calcutta Mission. The Committee also authorised the Allahabad Corresponding Committee to receive Miss Evelyn H. Collisson, sister-in-law of the Rev. H. D. Williamson, of the Gond Mission but now temporarily at Calcutta into local connexion. Miss Collisson travelled from Australia to India with Mr. Eugene Stock and the Rev. R. W. Stewart in 1892.

Further additions to the staff have been made by the marriage of missionaries: the Rev. C. H. Gill was married in July to Miss Margaret Mary Thorp, a lady missionary of the C.E.Z.M.S. in the Nuddea district; the Rev. J. A. F. Warren married Miss Mary Kathleen East, daughter of the late Admiral East, in December. The Rev. J. N. Carpenter's marriage in September to Miss E. M. Bateman did not introduce a new worker to the Mission, as Miss Bateman was already one of the staff, and the same may be said of the Rev. R. J. Kennedy's marriage in March, 1894, with Miss Von der Ropp of the Berlin Society. Mr. Gill, who came home on short leave in July, returned with Mrs. Gill in September; the Rev. A. E. and Mrs. Bowlby and the Rev. E. P. Herbert sailed in October, together with most of the recruits; and the Rev. G. Litchfield, who took his B.A. degree at Trinity College, Dublin, during his stay at home, sailed in December, Mrs. Litchfield having preceded him by a few weeks. The Rev. A. E. and Mrs. Keet came home in July and August, 1893, respectively; the Rev. H. and Mrs. Stern, the Rev. J. and Mrs. Haythornthwaite, and Miss A. H. R. Bull in May, 1894.

Deaths of Rev. W. J. Ball, Mrs. Bell, and Rev. D. Mohun.

The following deaths of ex-missionaries and of one retired Native clergyman occurred during the year: Mrs. Bell, who laboured with her husband, the Rev. R. J. Bell, for nearly thirty years in this Mission and at Calcutta, died in May, 1893; the Rev. W. J. Ball, who laboured in this Mission (after four years' work in the Punjab) from 1859 to 1866, when his state of health obliged him to return to England, and he was never able to return to the Mission-field, died in September; and the Rev. David Mohun died on December 26. Mr. Ball was well versed in Hindustani, Hindi, and Persian, and was for some time Deputy Lord Almoner's Reader in Arabic at the University of Cambridge. Mr. Mohun was converted, together with his mother, at Chunar, his native place, through the instrumentality of the Rev. W. Bowley, in 1831. After training in the Bishop's College, Calcutta, he worked for a time as an Evangelist at Chunar, at Benares under the Rev. C. B. Leupolt, and at Lucknow. At the instance of Sir William Muir, he was appointed in 1859 to the spiritual charge of the Christians who had fled from Secundra to Allahabad during the horrors of the Mutiny, for whom the Christian colony at Muirabad was founded. In this charge he continued for over thirty years. Owing to increasing age and infirmities he resigned his charge in 1891, and in the summer of 1892 he was seized with paralysis and lost the power of speech. The Bishop and Archdeacon of Lucknow were present at his funeral. The Rev. J. P. Ellwood wrote regarding him :—

If asked to sum up the characteristics of the Rev. D. Mohun's life, I should certainly put in the forefront the following traits manifest to all who knew him :—(1) His simple, practical, Christian life, which manifested an extra share of common sense with a wise discretion in all things pertaining to his ministry and family life. (2) His great personality as a factor in the North Indian Church. Many of our Indian brethren can scarcely realise how much he has had to do in moulding their characters and forming a public opinion amongst Native Christians. He was never ashamed of his opinion, and when it was examined by the most sceptical European it was always found to be deserving of respect. (3) The fatherly way in which he brought up his children and gave them the best education possible for a poor pastor, showed how he realised Christian family life. No children could have greater respect for the memory of a father than the Rev. D. Mohun's, and I believe he realised as few Christian parents do his responsibility to them. (4) I have heard many preachers address our Indian congregations who may have been more talented and learned in the theology of the schools, but none who could touch our Native Christians so truly and make their hearts respond to his words as David Mohun. This was especially manifest before his declining years set in. He was so perfectly natural and real that men felt he was not drawing pleasant pictures, but giving facts out of his own experience, and yearning to bring sinners to Christ.

Ordinations. On December 24, 1893, the Bishop of Lucknow admitted Babu Timothy Noah to Deacon's Orders, and the Rev. S. Nihal Singh to Priest's Orders, in All Saints' Cathedral, Allahabad.

Annual Conference. The Annual Conference of the Missionaries was held at Allahabad from October 24 to 28. On the first day the Rev. G. A. Lefroy, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission, gave three helpful addresses on "Faith, Hope, and Charity." On the second day the Bishop of Lucknow gave an address at the morning service, and the Rev. Dr. Hooper addressed the members of Conference in the Cathedral in the evening. The Conference sermon was preached by the Rev. C. H. Gill, and a Missionary meeting was held in All Saints' School-room, at which the Bishop presided.

Central Council. The Central Council, consisting of delegates from the District Councils, met at Benares on November 9. The Rev. B. Davis preached the sermon in Hindi from Deut. viii. 2, and Gal. v. 6. The Bishop of Lucknow presided. He expressed the great interest he took in the occasion, saying, "I look upon it as one of the most interesting gatherings with which I have to do, for one cannot but see in it the foreshadowing of much greater and more important assemblies in the future, when the Indian Church will become an influential and independent body." He also referred to a most important point in which he considered a word of exhortation and admonition was required. He said:—

The thing most of all wanted.

Perhaps the thing we most of all want is thoroughly spiritually minded men to be pastors and leaders of the Church. Nothing more needs our earnest attention than the development of a wise, good, earnest, holy Indian Pastorate. I long to see a healthy public opinion created on this subject. I long to see the day when our best men will be giving their most promising sons for the ministry of God's Church. As it is now, when a man sees his son doing well at school, he as a rule sets his heart on his obtaining some lucrative Government employment; he has no ambition for him to devote himself to God and His Church. All this needs changing. I put it before you as a matter in which each one of you can help. Try to create a healthy public opinion on this subject of the ministry. So bring up your sons that they shall think no honour so great as that of being ministers of Christ and ambassadors for Him. It is quite true that the profession of a clergyman will never be a remunerative one. But surely there is something better than money to be sought after. It is a reproach to us that we seek worldly position for ourselves and our sons rather than the service of God and the souls for whom Christ died. If you look at Hindus you find no lack of men among them who put their religion before gold.

NORTH-WEST PROVINCES.

ALLAHABAD.

Allahabad.

In this city, the seat of government for the North-West Provinces, the Rev. G. B. Durrant, the Secretary of the Mission, is stationed, and the Corresponding Committee which administers the Mission holds its meetings.

At the instance of the Bishop of Lucknow, who resides at Allahabad, the Government have transferred to the Society the ministerial care of Holy Trinity Church and the district attached thereto. The Committee invited the Rev. W. Latham on his return to the North-West Provinces from Mauritius in 1893 to take this ministry, which he did. There were 17 students in the Divinity School at the close of the year, and the Principal, the Rev. A. E. Johnston, was encouraged by their progress in knowledge and in their conduct, although, in the latter respect, one or two exceptions of an exceedingly painful kind occurred. Three of the students are learning Greek and five are studying Hebrew. Generally, Mr. Johnston says, eagerness to acquire Christian knowledge and anxiety to walk in the Christian path are conspicuous in the same individuals. Besides the Vice-Principal, the Rev. J. N. Carpenter, the Rev. S. Nihal Singh gave assistance in the College. Mr. Singh has translated into Urdu a catechism on the Prayer Book which Archdeacon Wolfe, of the Fuh-Kien Mission, published some time since in the form of a tract.

Divinity School.

While "Allahabad" (city of God) is a Mohammedan name, the city stands close to one of the most sacred Hindu spots in India—the junction of the two rivers Ganges and Jumna. The annual Méla, held in January, was specially sacred in 1894, because the fakirs, having completed their cycle of visits to holy places, returned to Allahabad. The Rev. W. A. C. Fremantle, who was prevented sailing in October by Mrs. Fremantle's state of health, and was instructed on her account to spend the hot months of 1894 on the hills, was invited to Allahabad for the remainder of the cold season, and arrived just in time to visit the Méla. He wrote :—

Scenes at the annual Méla.

Our first interest was the great yearly Méla or religious fair, attended by 2,500,000 people, who came to bathe at the "new-moon day" in the sacred water at the junction of the rivers Ganges and Jumna, and some of whom camped out in booths for a month. There must have been a thousand fakirs there, mostly smeared with white ashes. One had not lain down for years, and another had held his arm up for 26 years. I took a photograph of one on a bed of spikes (I counted seven such), like 800 open knives an inch apart, and all sharp too. His hair was in long twists reaching to his feet. They usually wear it coiled on their heads. He told me in English that he had been educated at a Government College, where they do not teach the Bible, or he might have learnt better ; and he said, "I am so holy that whoever gives me anything gets good for himself."

Itinerations.

Mr. Carpenter and Mr. Singh led a band of students and others—25 in all—on a three weeks' itinerating tour in December, 1893, and January, 1894. By separating daily into four or five companies they preached at 1,519 different stations, and estimated that their audiences numbered about 38,000. In one district Mr. Carpenter was exceedingly struck with the readiness of the people to listen. All the men in a Brahmin village in this district expressed their willingness to become Christians. The following are extracted from Mr. Carpenter's journal :—

Dense ignorance of the people.

December 30*th*, 1893.—We recorded 67 preaching stations, with 1,646 men and 334 women listeners. On the road many conversations are held, and these enable one to see the dense ignorance of the people, and their seeming want of power to grasp the Truth. It would be hard to say which gives the greater shock, the low and mean thoughts of God which some display, or the lofty ideas of their own greatness and holiness which others present.

January 2*nd*.—Many incidents were written down to-day. One has a touch of humour. An old woman was weeping while listening to the preaching, not on account of her sin, but "because" she said "the preacher reminded her of her son who also went mad, and was a great talker." In one village a local magnate bought some books, and a man followed from place to place listening to the preachers. In another place some women asked for proofs from the gospels, and were satisfied with the verses quoted. Some men also said, "You only come once a year. We have learnt that the true Incarnation we are expecting has come—come and teach us more."

"You only come once a year."

5*th*.—In one village the people said, We will worship Christ for four months, then send some one to us and we will be baptized. In another village the poor people could not find a pice ($\frac{1}{4}d.$), but sent a lad running to a man in some distant fields who was known to have one, so that they might buy a Gospel. We very rarely give away books, and as a rule we have no difficulty in selling them.

6th.—One band sold 18 Gospels. Another band were taken by a merchant to the Maulvie that he might hear also. The Maulvie has asked for an Arabic Bible for the purpose of comparing the O. T. with the Quran.

10th.—Two men shook hands publicly, and promised to observe all that they had heard. Another man heard of Christ five years ago, and since then has worshipped Him. The people of the village bore witness that he had left idolatry and done as he had said. He wanted our men to stay longer, but they were unable to remain. A Brahman in another village, through the influence of the Arya Samaj, has left idolatry; he followed our preachers for some distance after the preaching.

Heard of Christ five years ago and worshipped Him since.

17th.—Several to-day heard and received the news of Christ. One who had heard long ago and forgotten, heard again and went away continually repeating the name, lest he should again forget.

Muirabad.

The Rev. Mark Drummond is the pastor of the Christian village of Muirabad, "the prettiest place I saw in India," Mr. Eugene Stock wrote, "not unlike an English village with its church, only no English village is shaded by and embowered in such a grove of splendid mango trees." Many of the inhabitants are Government clerks and others employed in Allahabad.

BENARES.

To see Hinduism one must go to Benares; and Mr. Eugene Stock, after going to Benares and seeing Hinduism, as much of it, that is, as a pure-minded Englishman would wish to see, wrote:—

Hinduism as seen at Benares.

There are depths of abomination not to be looked at or spoken of. But what we saw was painful enough: multitudes of people hastening from shrine to shrine, sprinkling countless hideous idols, and still more hideous symbols, with flowers, and with water from the holy river Ganges, prostrating themselves before them, and making their little children also touch the ground with their foreheads. The memory will never fade of those dirty, narrow lanes in which famous (but squalid and unkempt) temples and shrines abound, and in which one is jostled by eager crowds of men, women, and children, with their brass vessels of Ganges water and their handfuls of yellow flowers. Here one recoils from an appalling figure crouching on the ground, a living, naked man, covered from head to foot with grey ashes, looking like death personified; and there, to make room for a great sacred bull to amble lazily by, one squeezes oneself into a little shop filled with little brass images of Vishnu (incarnate as Ram or Krishna), or Siva or his wife Parvati, or Ganesa with his elephant's nose, or Hanuman, the monkey god.

Baptisms.

But the arm of the Lord is revealed from time to time in turning men and women born in dark and sinful Benares to the Lord Jesus. Five adult baptisms occurred. The first was one whom Miss Fallon of the Z.B.M M. at Faizabad had led to Christ, and who was baptized by Dr. Baumann while visiting some relatives at Benares. The second was a lad taught by Miss Davis, daughter of the Rev. B. Davis, in a day-school which she conducts in the Mission compound. The third was a poor woman who also owed to Miss Davis her knowledge of Christ and His salvation. The fourth and fifth were a Mohammedan named Jan Ullah and his wife. This man received the name of Dilawar Khan. Dr. Baumann sends the following interesting particulars of his history and conversion :—

An educated convert from Mohammedanism.

The family he comes from is highly respectable, but not wealthy. His father, Abdul Hamid, owns a manufactory of kincob, or silk worked with gold and silver flowers, a fabric for which Benares is famous. His grandfather was at one time possessed of such wealth and influence that he was popularly called the Chhotā Rāja, or the Kingling of Benares. When a youth Dilāwar received a good education as a Mohammedan, being instructed in Arabic, Persian, and in the rudiments of Moslem theology. At the age of twenty he joined his father's business, which he conducted with such skill and energy that the old gentleman left it entirely in his hands. But good as his worldly prospects were, and though highly esteemed by his people for his religious tone of mind, his unimpeachable character and excellent manners, Dilāwar was not satisfied with himself, and in his leisure hours he turned his attention to a deeper study of Islam, seeking peace and contentment by associating with maulvis and mullas, and practising conscientiously the rules and rites of the Sunnis. Besides the Qurān, of which he learnt large portions by heart, he acquainted himself with the Hadīs, or the traditional writings of his religion, and took special interest in all that related to the personal life and character of Mohammed. However, the great inconsistency of conduct of his fellow-believers, especially of the Mohammedan priests, shocked his sense of truth; and, forsaking the society of the Sunnis, or orthodox Muslims, he joined the sect of the Shiahs, who strenuously maintain that they are the "true believers." This change of views created some sensation among his family and friends, and exposed him to a certain amount of annoyance and trouble. But he recked it little, being convinced in his mind that now he was on the fair road towards happiness. He had not been long among the Shiahs before he discovered that they, too, were not actuated by high principles of truth and justice, and the former uneasiness of mind began to trouble him again.

The instrument of conversion an old copy of the Urdu New Testament.

About this time, or when he was about twenty-six, he discovered one day among the household books an old copy of the New Testament in Urdu, which had been given to his father many years ago by the Rev. W. Smith, the well-known C.M.S. Missionary of Benares. The interesting book, which is now in my hands, bears the marks of two kinds of readers—of one who scored it with a view to oppose the Gospel, and of another who studied it with an honest heart. The first represents the father, who delighted in religious controversies with Christians; the second, the son, who allowed the force of truth to act on his heart. No sooner had Dilāwar finished the book than he told his father what he thought about it, and that Christ, not Mohammed, had a higher claim on the faith and homage of mankind. After many vain attempts to obscure the dawning light, and finding that the impression of God's Word was deep and lasting, the father endeavoured at last to persuade his son, whom he loves as the apple of his eye, to continue a Mohammedan outwardly, whilst with the heart he might serve Christ.

But this state of things could not be for very long. Dilāwar felt that either error must be wholly forsaken, or truth would depart. Having experienced in some degree the "power" of the Gospel, he became anxious to know more about it. Sometimes he would attend the Christian preaching in the streets, sometimes sit on a bridge close to the Sigra Church, praying that God would make him acquainted with a true Christian who could show him Christ more clearly, and deliver him from some Mohammedan prejudices that were still rankling in his mind. At last he addressed himself to our catechist, Jagannath Singh, who brought him to me. This happened about a twelvemonth ago. Since then he came regularly for instruction, either at noon or after sunset, and also attended divine service on Sundays.

By-and-by he became anxious for baptism, but the way was beset with difficulties. It was thought well, in the first instance, to get his wife to give her consent to follow him. The lady, however, refused, and declared she would rather jump into a well than follow her husband into the Christian camp. But oh! the grace of God, which can melt the stoniest hearts! Before three months were over, during which she was faithfully taught by Dilāwar, and much prayer was offered up on her behalf, she suddenly declared to her delighted husband that she, too, believed in the Son of God, and that henceforth his God should be her God, and his worship her worship.

Would rather jump into a well than become a Christian.

The bitterest trial for Dilāwar was, however, reserved to the last. About a fortnight previously to his baptism he announced to his venerable and beloved father his intention of joining the Christian Church. The effect was terrible. The poor man, overwhelmed with grief, lost all self-control, and, prostrating himself again and again before his son, and weeping incessantly, he tried what he could to shake the young man's constancy. One morning before dawn I was awakened and told that the inquirer was at the door, urgently desiring to see me. Dilāwar, whose eyes were red and swollen, told me with a choked voice that his father was quite unmanned by his resolve to be baptized, and refused to be comforted. "Oh! the persecution of tears! I could bear beating and being sold into slavery, but my father's tears are hard to bear."

"Oh! the persecution of tears."

After Dilāwar's and his wife's minds were fully made up, there appeared no necessity for much delay before their baptism, and so Sunday, September 17, was selected as the day on which to administer the sacrament to them. It was with difficulty that they could leave their paternal home and join us at the Mission compound. Violent efforts were made to hinder them; their children were snatched from them, and hidden away in some distant part of the town; and when recovered, the whole family left under cover of night, not being able to take anything along with them except the clothes they had on their bodies.

At the time of the baptism the Church of St. Paul was surrounded by crowds of Mohammedans; and the vacant spaces inside, which were not used by the congregation, were allowed to be filled by them. Though I apprehended a disturbance, all behaved with the greatest decency and order, owing to the accidental presence of some English soldiers, who were attracted thither by curiosity; and there being also a full congregation, the sight was a very moving one, as may be imagined.

After his baptism Dilawar went to Allahabad to be trained at the Divinity School. These baptisms, Mr. Davis thinks, affected the number of pupils at Jay Narayan's School, which was lower than usual. Four of the youths passed the Allahabad University Entrance Examination. A Sunday-school is held in the school at 6 A.M., attended by from 50 to 100 boys, the head-master leading the hymn-singing on his violin. The Orphanage, under Miss A. H. R. Bull (whose health has obliged her to come home), sent out two of its inmates to engage in Zenana work, and two to be trained as teachers, and received into its circle such as the following:—

Jay Narayan's School.

Orphanage.

Our last four who were admitted came to us in September last; they came from an asylum in Benares, which was founded and endowed by a pious Hindu for the blind and destitute, and thither come people from all parts of India on pilgrimages, many of whom are in the last stages of disease, and come to die in what to them is the "highest odour of sanctity." Such was the case with the parents of these four little ones, and they were left to exist as best they could, just getting food and a shelter as animals might. When all the necessary information had been gathered about them by the Government authorities, they came to us, and one evening I went with the Civil Surgeon to fetch them. As they had no clothing at all, with the exception of a very dirty waistcloth, I had taken skirts and jackets with me for them. When I dressed them their wonderment and joy at having some real clothes was almost saddening, while at the same time it was laughable to see the funny way they capered round and round, not quite knowing what to do with their limbs, and it was some days before they got accustomed to walk properly wearing a skirt. As with their bodies, so, or worse, with their minds, which were quite blank, but quite ready to grasp new ideas and teaching. I am now preparing them for baptism, and they will all, I trust, before receiving that rite, understand a great deal of its real meaning. "Love has been the conqueror" indeed with these. One of them said, a few weeks ago, looking up into my face, "Miss Sahib Ji, it is so nice to be loved." There is a great deal to be done for them yet; but from their amenability to control, and intelligence in learning, I am looking forward to a bright future for them on the Lord's side.

"So nice to be loved."

Normal School.

The Normal School was conducted by Mrs. Barr of the Z.B.M.M., and the industrial department is under Miss E. Bedford. Fancy needlework has been introduced, the material having been purchased with money kindly contributed by the Baroness Burdett-Coutts. A prize was given during the year by the Rani of Partabgarh. The girls learn simple Church music to qualify them for rendering assistance in the services of the Native congregations.

All these institutions are at Sigra, a Christian village, a suburb to Benares, where the C.M.S. Mission compound is situated. The services are shared by Mr. Davis with the Native pastor, the Rev. D. Solomon. The Rev. W. A. C Fremantle has been assigned to this station.

The Rev. E. N. Thwaites visited Benares on his way to Calcutta, and was shown "this great city of idolatry" by Mr. Davis, whose father, when rector of a country parish in the West of England, had baptized him more than 50 years before. Mr. Thwaites addressed a gathering of some 200 Natives by interpretation, and visited the several Mission institutions.

GORAKHPUR.

Gorakhpur.

The Bishop of Lucknow and Mrs. Clifford visited this station in March, 1893, when the Bishop preached by interpretation at the Hindustani service, confirmed 76 Native Christians, and distributed the prizes to the boys of the Mission High School under the Rev. J. M. Paterson. In September the Rev. H. Stern baptized ten persons at Basharatpur. Among them was a family consisting of husband, wife, and three children, and the old grandmother, who was totally blind. Mr. Stern wrote:—

Baptisms at Basharatpur.

The family is of the Chamar caste, and cultivators by profession. Their joining the Christian Church is one of the results of the labours of the Native Missionary Association in Basharatpur. The husband can read and write Hindi fluently, which, as a boy, he learnt in our school. He is very eager to communicate his knowledge of Christianity to his former friends and acquaintances. Not long ago he came to me asking me for a lantern, so that he might the better be able to go to his friends in the late evenings to preach to them and invite them to follow his example.

Departure of the Rev. H. Stern.

Mr. Stern has come to Europe on furlough. He left the station after forty-two years of service with the feeling that his return to it was scarcely a probable contingency. "Naturally," he writes, "I feel very keenly and painfully the severance from a Mission which has become dear to me, and in which I have spent the greater and the happiest part of my life." Since he went to Gorakhpur, in 1853, two new agricultural settlements, Sternpur and Dharmpur, have been founded, a new station at Basti with its flourishing High School has been opened, other schools with 1,000 children on the rolls have been instituted, and Christianity has taken a firm root in Gorakhpur itself. Mr. Stern says:—

Progress in forty years.

When I look back on the last forty-two years, I cannot fail to see the immense difference there is between now and then, and to notice the progress which the cause of Christianity has made in the opinions and conduct of the people towards Christianity. There is no more that open hostility, but—especially among the educated classes—a spirit of toleration and even of goodwill for its success. God's own time will yet come, when all the unceasing Christian efforts for the conversion of India will be owned by the God of Missions, and will be crowned with success.

Mr. Stern received many tokens of respect and affection from both Christians and non-Christians when he left the station in March, 1894. The Rev. J. P. Ellwood has succeeded Mr. Stern in the responsible charge which he has vacated.

LUCKNOW AND FAIZABAD.

Lucknow.

Several additions have been made to the staff at LUCKNOW, The Rev. G. Litchfield has been assigned to open a new Normal School; the Revs. E. A. Hensley and H. V. W. Birney have joined the band of Associated Evangelists, as also has Mr. J. W. Goodwin, transferred from the Gond band for health reasons. The band has, however, lost the Rev. J. S. Gray, who for the present is located at Secundra. The English congregation which meets for worship in the Mission Church at Lucknow lost one of its leading members in the summer of 1893 by the death of Mr. H. J. De Cruz, a Eurasian gentleman, who was beloved and respected by all. For 24 years Mr. De Cruz had superintended the English Sunday-school which is held in the Zahur Baksh (an old Mohammedan palace which the Government after the recapture of Lucknow offered to the Mission at a nominal rent, and which the Society afterwards bought; it affords accommodation in one wing for the Associated Evangelists, in another for the ladies of the Z.B.M.M., and also for a girls' boarding-school), and during the whole of that time, it is stated, he was not absent from his post half-a-dozen times. The Rev. J. S. Gray says :—

Death of an earnest Christian Eurasian gentleman.

He was thoroughly in earnest, and whatever Church work he undertook, he did it with all his heart. Many boys and girls in his Sunday-school will remember how earnestly he pressed upon them to present themselves and their first-fruits a living sacrifice to the Lord.

The Associated Evangelists had the temporary leadership of the Rev. Dr. W. Hooper of Jabalpur, and the further advantage of Mrs. Hooper's housekeeping experience in their itinerations during the winter 1893–4.

AGRA, MATTRA, AND ALIGARH.

AGRA, the oldest station of the Society in India, received as reinforcements the Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Challis. Mr. Challis has joined the staff of St. John's College. The Principal, the Rev. J. Haythornthwaite, who has come home on short leave, reports an encouraging year. The first five candidates from the College for the Allahabad University B.A. Examination (occasional students have gone up since 1864 to the Calcutta B.A.) were presented, and four of them passed; in the F.A. Examination 13 out of 25 passed; and 14 out of 22 passed the Entrance. One Entrance student obtained a First Class, and received a Government scholarship; and four B.A., eight F.A., and four Entrance students obtained Second Classes. In August Mr. Haythornthwaite applied for and obtained recognition for the College up to the M.A. standard, placing it in this respect on a par with the best colleges in the North-West Provinces. In the Government "Middle" Examination the School Department was less successful, only passing 11 out of 35. The numbers in this department now exceed 400. The Christian Hostel, under the supervision of the Rev. R. J. Kennedy, had 70 boarders, some of whom took part in open-air services. The Principal notices the superiority of the Christian youths over their heathen companions in athletics. In the Government Athletic Tournament for the N.W.P., St. John's College was placed second, obtaining eight prizes, and of these eight, seven were awarded to Christians. One of the students of the College, a Mohammedan named Rahim Bakhsh, was baptized in November. His conversion, under God, was mainly due to the zeal of two of the Native Christian masters, one of whom, Mr. Thomas, was his godfather, and gave him the name of "James." The youth's mother was much distressed at first, but later desired to read for herself the book, the Bible, which had led her son to forsake Mohammed for Christ. In January, 1893, the then newly appointed Governor of the North-West Provinces and

Oudh, Sir Charles Crosthwaite, K.C.S.I., visited the College attended by his staff. Mr. Haythornthwaite says:—

Visit of Governor of N.W.P. to the College.

He expressed himself as pleased with all he saw, and in his speech to the assembled students declared his sense of the great work such institutions were doing, and of the indebtedness of the Government in consequence, concluding with an assurance that, as far as possible, consistently with the claims of other branches of education, he would ever be ready to help on educational missionary work. A month later His Honour gave a proof of his recognition of the position of St. John's College in the N.W.P. by granting the privilege of nominating one of its graduates every other year for a probationary Deputy-Collectorship.

Death of an old and faithful servant.

In November an old and faithful servant of the College was removed by death. Sita Ram was engaged as jemadar or head servant by the Rev. T. V. French when the College was opened in 1853, and during the Mutiny he defended the Principal's house and College buildings at the risk of his life, and received from Government a reward of Rs. 100 in acknowledgment of his bravery.

The Girls' High School, under Miss C. Lancaster and Miss E. E. Thompson, was opened in July with five pupils, which increased to 12 boarders and two day-scholars by the end of the year.

The Bishop of Lucknow preached on two occasions to the Native Congregation, under the pastorship of the Rev. W. Seetal. He wrote in the church book:—

A Native pastor and his congregation.

There are probably few churches in North India where there are so many intelligent young people to be found in the congregation as there are at St. John's, Agra. I am thankful that they have in the Rev. W. Seetal a pastor so well qualified in character and attainments, to lead them in the right way and give them suitable and helpful instructions. I was well pleased with what I saw, and had evidence that a good work is going on.

"Like a fresh breeze from home."

A short visit by the Revs. E. N. Thwaites and Martin J. Hall in January, 1894, was much appreciated by the missionaries. "It was like a fresh breeze from home," one of them wrote. The students in the College listened attentively to their earnest words, and 300 people were present at a service in the College Hall—the church being then under repair—of whom 160 remained to an after-meeting.

Baptisms.

Instructed in the Gospel thirty years before baptism.

The Rev. W. McLean has charge of the Evangelistic Work in Agra and the district around. Three married couples were baptized with their children. One of these couples were employed at the Zenana Mission House, and were led to Christ by Miss Bland of the F.E.S.; another couple were first instructed in Gospel truth by the late Rev. H. W. Shackell while at Agra some thirty years before. Another of the converts, a Mohammedan, was an indirect fruit of the educational work of the London Missionary Society. While at that Society's College at Benares the seed of Bible knowledge was sown, and four years after leaving it, when engaged in the Government Record Office, he commenced to read the Bible for himself as well as Dr. Imad-ud-din's books on Mohammedanism. The violent opposition of his friends and relatives to his confessing Christ led him to resign his appointment and go to Agra. Having received an excellent report on his character and conduct from the Deputy Collector, a European, who wrote, "He was one of my best men, and I would have been very happy could I have pushed him on," and his knowledge and zeal having been tested by his engaging in discussion with Mohammedans, in which his acquaintance with the Koran rendered him more than a match for his opponents, Mr. McLean baptized him in July. The eighth convert was a Mohammedan woman belonging to Tundba, one of the out-stations. The Christian Postmen's Association, through its Missionary Secretary, Miss Hodgkin, of Reigate, enables Mr. McLean to engage a catechist for work among postmen who show willingness to be instructed. Mr. McLean spent the whole of the cold season in the district with eight catechists, and visited 800 villages. The villagers were generally willing to converse and to buy books. The evangelistic work owes much to the help of Miss Bland, Mrs. Rait, and Miss Brownell of the F.E.S.

Secundra. A goodly band of thirteen European workers are at SECUNDRA. This number includes the ladies of the Berlin Ladies' Society, and also of the Z.B.M.M., which has sent out a band of Associated Evangelists under Misses Spackman and Kerry to evangelise the villages. The C.M.S. staff consists of the Rev. A. H. and Mrs. Wright, the Rev. W. and Mrs. Newby Fraser, and the Rev. J. S. Gray (here while studying the language). A woman and her two children were baptized in August, the fruits of Miss Goetze's labours.

Mattra. Rev. P. M. Zenker reports that the spirit of inquiry is increasing among the educated Hindus and Mohammedans in and around MATTRA. There is daily preaching in the bazaars, and houses are visited. The marriage of Miss Bateman to the Rev. J. N. Carpenter brought a loss to Mattra, but Miss A. Bunston's arrival filled the vacant place. Miss W. B. J. Wilkinson had typhoid fever in the summer, which retarded her progress in the language. Her cousin, Miss H. Wilkinson—an independent missionary—also suffered in health. The other two ladies, Miss M. Stratton and Miss K. Batten, both passed their respective language examinations.

Aligarh. At length, after two and a half years without a resident missionary (since the death of the Rev. J. W. Stuart), ALIGARH has received the Rev. A. E. and Mrs. Bowlby on their return after furlough. Bishop Clifford confirmed 16 candidates, eight in the Mission Church and eight in the English Church. One of the former was the Mohammedan convert mentioned in last year's Annual Report. One of the latter was an Eurasian, the Sub-Registrar in the town of Aligarh, who often uses his knowledge of colloquial Hindustani in holding services for the Native Christians. The history of this person is a very remarkable one. Mr. Zenker says:—

He is about fifty-three years of age. Though his name is Bailey, he is really a descendant of the Bourbons. His ancestor, a prince of the royal house, had to leave France for some reason or other during the last century, and in the course of his wanderings entered the service of the Shah of Persia. His son or grandson found his way to India, and entering the service of the King of Oudh changed his name of Bourbon into Bailey, and was the father of our friend. Young George Bailey was born a Roman Catholic, and he did good service to Government during the Mutiny, being in Lucknow with General Havelock, and receiving for his bravery the honorary rank of Ensign and a wound-pension. Subsequently the American Methodists persuaded George Bailey to leave the Roman Church, and he not only became a Protestant but also one of their preachers. For a number of years he served with the Methodists, but disagreeing with their practice of administering baptism wholesale to such as are quite unprepared, he left them, and through the interest of some friend received a subordinate Government appointment.

A confirmee with a remarkable history.

Mirat.

The Rev. J. P. Ellwood sends a full report on the pastoral, educational, and evangelistic agencies of this Mission. The Native Christians are somewhat fewer than the number stated in last year's Report, but this is owing to migrations. The Rev. D. Jeremy, though disinclined to adopt new methods of pastoral work, which is natural in one of his advanced years, "tends his flock like a good shepherd," Mr. Ellwood writes, and is himself "a standing witness to the power of Christ." Bishop Clifford confirmed 25 candidates in February, 1893, and wrote in the Record Book:—

I consider the prospects of the Mission more encouraging than they have been of recent years, but Mr. Ellwood will have a difficult task in infusing into the Church here that wholesome spirit of independence and energy which it ought to be showing, but for which it cannot at present be said to be conspicuous.

High School.

The High School headmaster, Mr. Har Saran, is described as a "whole-hearted man, full of zeal for the Lord Jesus, and most active in His work." The Christian boys in the school won the approbation of the Inspector of Schools at the Athletic Tournament, to which reference has already been made under "Agra," for their pluck in cricket. The headmaster holds a Sunday-school on Sunday mornings for boys of this and other schools. Mr. Ellwood gives a number of examples of inquirers, Hindus and Mohammedans, who in various ways proved disappointing. One of the three adult converts of the year was a Hindu woman of Ghaziabad, the first-fruits of that place. She first heard of Christ from two Native Christians at whose house she worked from time to time. Mrs. Ellwood describes the scene between her and her mother on the evening preceding her baptism:—

Mr. Ellwood and I went down to Ghaziabad by the evening train on Friday, and her baptism was fixed for 9 o'clock the following morning. Long before we were out of our tent, we heard a disturbance outside. We asked what it all meant, and found it was the mother, with the daughter and an elder sister followed by a crowd, come to try and frighten us. The mother was dragging the daughter along with her. She said to my husband, "You people traverse the country all over to try and make good people unbelievers." She accused her daughter of bringing disgrace upon the family by joining such low caste people as Christians, who were no better than mehtars (sweepers, low caste). Mr. Ellwood said she could ask her daughter whether it was by force or of her own freewill she wished to become a believer. The girl stood perfectly calm and quiet, and said in a clear voice, "You may take my life if you like, but I shall die a Christian." The poor woman had been ill-treated all the day before, and had had no food for nearly two days; still, she was very brave. At this juncture the mother became very frantic, and said to Mr. Ellwood, "Kill me here rather than I should live to bear such disgrace." After this she made a rush for the well which was close by, and but for the intervention of one of the Christian masters would have thrown herself down; he had a great struggle with her. Meanwhile we sent for a policeman, and she was removed.

Preaching at a Méla.

The Rev. W. G. Proctor went to a large Méla in November at Gharmakhtesar, on the banks of the Ganges, at which he calculates that at least a million people were present, and he could not discover that any other Gospel preachers than himself and his four catechists were present. Their preaching-place was in the very heart of the Méla, and with scarcely any opposition the Gospel was preached for five or six hours daily for four days; many portions of the Scriptures were sold and tracts distributed. In one village, on the same tour, the reading and explanation of the Scriptures were continued till 11.30 P.M., and then the villagers had to be requested to leave. The night following they were loth to go even after midnight.

The Rev. J. W. Hall has succeeded Mr. Ellwood in the charge of this station, and the Rev. W. B. Collins has also been transferred to it from Kherwara.

DEHRA DUN.

Thirty candidates were confirmed at ANNFIELD by the Bishop of Lucknow, who also visited all the Christians in the several Christian villages. A house-servant at Landour was baptized during the year. The Rev. T. and Mrs. Carmichael went in the summer on a preaching tour over the Jaunsar Hills. Mr. Carmichael has translated the Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments, and the Beatitudes into Jaunsari, and the Gospel of St. Matthew into Garhwali, the latter made with the help of a hill woman of Garhwal, a convert of the late Rev. C. T. Hœrnle. These translations were very helpful in the itinerations. Mr. Carmichael writes :—

There is a smile at once, and a brightness overspreading their faces, as soon as they hear the Word of God in their own patois. In one village the people laughed with pleasure, and a girl clapped her hands and danced to hear one of Christ's parables in the common idiom of her own village.

Lepers on the hills.

There are many lepers on these hills. Mr. Carmichael heard that more than sixty were to be found in two large villages. One of these pitiful objects accosted Mr. Carmichael and his son as they were endeavouring to make their way to a village, and invited them to climb up to his wretched hut, which they did. Mr. Carmichael says :—

We climbed up to him, and beheld a ghastly and horrible spectacle. He was a leper, with fingers and feet all twisted out of shape, eyes and mouth dragged open as it were by violence, face distorted hideously, the very picture of a ghoul or ogre, from which human beings might flee in terror. We were struck with pity, and drawn at once to him, having learned to feel a deep interest in lepers since we began to visit and preach among the lepers of the Dehra Asylum. He very politely dragged out a charpoy, and we sat down beside him and had a long conversation about his affliction, his present life, and the sympathy and love of the Saviour. We found he could both read and write in Hindi, and was a very active fellow, notwithstanding his crippled state.

We sang a hymn in Hindi, with a sweet chorus, and at the end of each verse the poor leper, whose very soul seemed excited by the words, clasped his hands, bowed down, and said, "Dhar, Maharaj!" (Jaunsari for "Thanks, Lord!"). As we had some copies of separate Gospels in Hindi and other Christian books, he purchased seven of them and promised to read them. Before he would let us depart he sent his servant to bring us some pure, fresh milk from his cows, bidding him first "wash out the vessel carefully and make it fit for the Sahib to drink out of." We directed him to the Saviour, and commended him in prayer to God, asking that we might be permitted to see him again, and sow deeper in his mind the seeds of Truth.

CENTRAL PROVINCES AND RAJPUTANA.

JABALPUR.

Jabalpur.

"No great visible results" occurred at Jabalpur during the year, the Rev. C. H. Gill reports, but he believes the workers faithfully sowed the seed of the Word and gave witness to Christ. The catechists encountered opposition from members of the Arya Somaj and from Cow Protection Societies. The objects of the latter are thus stated by Mr. Gill :—

Cow Protection Societies.

Efforts are now being made by Hindus to revive the worship of the cow. Societies, similar to our own, are being formed, and supported by voluntary subscriptions, which send forth paid preachers, armed with tracts on the subject, to exhort Hindus to reverence the cow, and never to sell their kine, lest they become meat for Mussulman or Christian. No doubt the movement is largely political; but it is also rousing dormant Hindu sentiment. It is bound up with two of their leading doctrines, cow worship and transmigration of souls; for, according to the latter, to kill any animal becomes a crime, and how much more the cow.

High School.

The High School, under the headmastership of Mr. K. N. Basu, M.A., passed seven pupils in the Allahabad Matriculation Examination. The Rev. J. A. F. Warren went out to India with a decided disinclination to engage in educational work, and his first disappointment was great on finding himself at a station with which 10 schools with an aggregate of 1,100 pupils are connected. He soon, however, saw reason to change his mind. He says:—

A young Missionary changes his mind respecting the value of Educational Missions.

Shortly after my arrival I began to teach Scripture in the senior class at the High School, and continued to do so until Mr. Gill's departure for England in June, when the general superintendence of the Mission, together with my language studies, occupied the whole of my time. In January I took up the senior class in our Sunday-school (over 150 boys attend quite voluntarily every Sunday). I commenced with seven, and now rejoice to state that I have 29 boys, or rather young men (the majority are married), on the roll, with an average attendance of 22.

Very shortly after my arrival I saw good reason to change my mind and to thank God for having led the Committee to appoint me to Jubbulpore. A few visits to the bazaar with the catechists led to this change of opinion. I could not help contrasting the different conditions under which the catechists and I did our work. It has been my privilege Sunday after Sunday to talk quietly with my boys in a comfortable class-room with nothing to distract their attention, and with no opposition to contend against except the opposition to the truth of the Gospel which is to be found in every unregenerate heart.

Murwara has now a resident ordained pastor, the Rev. Timothy Noah. Mr. Noah was for many years the head catechist at this out-station; he returned to it after completing his studies at the Allahabad Divinity School, and after being admitted in December to Deacon's Orders. Mr. Gill is anxious to see Damoh occupied by European missionaries. The district contains 325,000 inhabitants, and it is the only large station, he says, in the Central Provinces now left without a missionary. The Rev. Dr. W. Hooper itinerated between Damoh and Murwara in the winter of 1892–3, and writes:—

Eagerness to hear.

Our journey from Damoh to Murwara was over the roughest ground over which I have ever travelled, the rocks and rivers being left almost in their natural state; but it was a very delightful journey from the willingness—nay, in some places, eagerness—of the people to hear. This was specially noticeable in the part of the Panna State through which our way lay. A large place in this part, which we only passed through instead of camping there, because we did not know of it in time, not only showed great interest in the Message when it was preached en passant, but on Sunday evening, just after we had finished service among ourselves under the trees, a deputation of 200 men from the place we had passed through, headed by the Tahsildar, who was son-in-law to the Raja, made their appearance, having walked over two miles in order to persuade us to return to their place, and stay at least a few days with them.

Isolated Christians.

In this same journey, near Murwara, we found a Christian couple living right away among the heathen, and yet, to some extent at least, shining for Christ. By a happy coincidence, the village is called "Ujiyārpur," i.e. Light-town. The man was a native of it, but migrated to Natal and married. After a while, man and wife were brought to Christ, and prospered in every way. But a home-sickness came over him, so he turned his property into money and bought land in his own village here.

Dr. Hooper is supported partly by the British and Foreign Bible Society while engaged in the revision of the Old Testament in Hindi. With the Rev. Dr. Kellogg, of the American Presbyterian Mission, as his colleague, the books of Genesis, Exodus, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Lamentations, and the Minor Prophets from Hosea to Nahum have been translated. This work Dr. Hooper does during the summer months, which he spends at Mussoorie. Revision of Hindi Old Testament.

At the request of the Allahabad Corresponding Committee, he has temporarily transferred his cold season sphere to Lucknow, in order to lead the Associated Evangelists in their winter itinerations, and to give its members assistance in the language.

MANDLA, MARPHA AND DIUARI (GOND MISSION).

The first Gond confirmation took place in March, 1893. The Bishop of Calcutta, in whose diocese the Central Provinces and Rajputana are, visited MANDLA for the purpose. There were 13 candidates. It was with much difficulty that those from the villages, five in number, were prepared, owing to the distances apart of their several villages. The first Gond convert was among the candidates presented. The Bishop expressed himself as pleased with their intelligence and simplicity, and was specially pleased with the hearty singing at the service. Many Gond Christians besides the confirmees visited Mandla for the occasion to pay their respects to the Bishop. Mandla.

Two members of the band of Associated Evangelists, the Rev. E. D. Price and Mr. J. W. Goodwin, spent the rainy season at Mandla to direct the work there. MARPHA, however, is the home of the band, and there several adults were baptized. Two families of Gonds, all relations of one of the Marpha Christians, were baptized in May, and five others later. The Rev. H. J. Molony, the leader of the band, writes :— Marpha.

On Trinity Sunday I had the great joy of baptizing six Gonds, two men with their wives and two children ; they were all relations of one of our Marpha Christians. One of the men had before been accustomed to taunt the Christians ; now one of them asked him how it was he, too, had become a Christian. He answered, "God has turned me." This was true ; it has proved so in his heart and life. We hoped to have had rather a remarkable baptism, that of a devotee who has for over 30 years sat on the banks of the "holy" Nerbudda River, but he went back at the last, attracted by worldly gain. He has a great reputation for holiness and virtue, and earns a living by his prayers for sick people ; of course he must give up this reputation and the livelihood it procures if he becomes a Christian. We hope for him yet ; he has for years been visited and prayed for by one of our Christians. This year he has been brought very near the Kingdom ; may next year see him within it ! Gond converts. "God has turned me."

We were confined to the house a great deal during the rainy season, but we were cheered from time to time by baptisms ; first that of two young men from villages near Marpha, one five miles and the other eight miles away. Neither of these villages had produced any fruit before; each now gave us an earnest young man, who could both read a little, and both were evidently sincere in their profession. The very day they were baptized an old man came and asked to be baptized with them. He was the head-man, the bhoi, of the village next to Marpha; he was shortly afterwards baptized with his old wife and their grandson. And again, another Sunday a young man was baptized from a village about 35 miles off. He had heard one of our catechists preach in the hot weather, and came to live with a Christian relative near Marpha; his, too, appeared to be a real conversion.

Shyness of Gond children overcome.

The shyness of the children is gradually yielding to the friendliness of the missionaries. The Rev. E. D. Price says:—

The children here are slowly getting to know and trust us. There seem to be seven stages in their knowledge of us. The first is one of fear, when they fly from us in all directions and hide in their houses, or, if they are too far off, in the jungle. In the second stage we see them stalking us just as if they were stalking deer. They run from bush to bush just when they think we are not looking, and peep cautiously at us through the leaves. In the third stage they venture near us, often under the protecting care of their fathers, and seem quite proud of their daring, looking back to their companions as much as to say, "See how close we are to the sahib; it's more than you dare do!" Then perhaps they will sit down close to the tent and gaze at all the curiosities inside, yet at such a distance as to be able to run away easily at the first sign of danger. In the fourth stage they venture right up to us, and will look at our pictures, &c., and feel our clothes and boots, &c., and begin to find out we are not such awful beings as they imagined. In the fifth stage they come in the hopes of getting a picture or a marble, &c. In the sixth stage they come of their own free will to see what we are doing, and because they like coming, and feel that, after all, we are their friends, and only desire their welfare. Oh, pray that many may reach the seventh stage, and come to us because they desire to hear of Jesus.

Hindrances.

Some of the chief hindrances are enumerated by Mr. Molony:—

Ignorance is very great, and there is no desire for learning. Our schools constantly struggle for an existence, but we feel it our duty to persevere. Some of the Christian children are being taught, and will eventually, we hope, be able to teach others.

Superstition is being really overcome, I think, by the distribution of a few simple medicines. People come constantly to us and confess that their own medicine-men can do no good, but that our medicines do benefit them. I believe most strongly in a little simple doctoring of these superstitious people.

Drunkenness is very common among Gonds, and our own people are not quite free from it. We do not feel justified in making total abstinence a condition of baptism, but we are trying to press it on the people, and hope that before long we may have a Temperance Society or some practical measure to meet the evil.

Social exclusiveness.

Social exclusiveness—we can hardly call it caste, for it is certainly not religious but social—prevents our Gond Christians yet from eating with us. We hoped that this would be broken down this year, and we still hope that the people may willingly do it. Some have now joined us in the Holy Communion, but there is still a real barrier which must be overcome before we fully realise our brotherhood in Christ.

The social exclusiveness referred to by Mr. Molony is explained by Mr. E. R. Jackson in the following extract from his Annual Letter:—

At Christmas we assembled as many Christians as we could and endeavoured to impress upon them the why and wherefore of Christmas Day,

Upon this gathering we had prayed for a blessing, especially that grace might be given them to break through the barrier that prevents their eating with us. Our hopes ran high, so much so that order was given to cook food for them. God saw fit to disappoint us; about two o'clock news reached us of their declining to eat with us. This dashed our hopes to the ground, and seemed to damp our ardour for the rest of the day. The matter was discussed next day with them, and although they saw and acknowledged their duty, yet, for the sake of their children, they held back from doing it. They were and are afraid that having eaten with sahibs, their neighbours and acquaintances will not eat with them or give their sons and daughters in marriage with their children.

As already mentioned, the Associated band has lost Mr. Goodwin temporarily, but it has received Mr. J. Fryer and Mr. H. Bennett.

The Rev. E. P. Herbert, on his return to DIUARI after 18 months' absence on furlough, was welcomed back with evident joy, and was much cheered by the general aspect of the work.

KHERWARA (BHEEL MISSION).

Kherwara.

The Rev. C. S. Thompson, after 13 years spent at Kherwara without taking furlough, expresses his conviction that education is essential to successful work among the Bheels, and that merely secular education would do little towards promoting a real improvement. He thus describes the Bheel children in their natural state:—

Bheel children worse off than the wild beasts.

I was passing through a densely wooded part of the country the other day, and came suddenly upon three little fellows quite naked, sitting under a tree eating wild berries. They were a true type of many Bhíl children, as we first find them. A Bhíl boy may be described as naked, dirty, often hunger-bitten, affectionate, and with no one to care for him. The wild beasts of the jungles have better shelter from the elements than have, in many cases, the little Bhíl children. In a few districts the houses are pretty good, but in others they are simply made of wattle and daub with a roof of leaves. These erections are not unfrequently allowed to fall to pieces to such a degree that to all outward appearance they are but heaps of sticks and leaves. In these places the children, even in the rains and in the cold weather, have to sleep on the ground with little if any covering. Is it any wonder that to little ones brought up amid such surroundings our school-rooms should have some attraction?

Schools.

Small day-schools have been opened at six out-stations, namely, at Lusaria, Bilaria, Kotda, Ghoradar, Sarsau, and Baolia, in which about 200 Bheel boys are instructed up to Standard VI. These schools were opened in 1887, 1888, 1891, two in 1892, and one in 1893, and Mr. Thompson has been much encouraged by the sustained interest in them shown by some of the Native princes. The Maharajah Sahib of Idar in particular gave generous pecuniary assistance on several occasions.

Baptisms.

The Rev. W. B. Collins reports two baptisms, that of a young fakir on Easter Day, 1893, and that of a female Bheel teacher in October. The latter was strongly opposed by her parents, but she preferred to give up her home rather than keep away from Christ. When asked by Mr. Collins what Jesus was to her, she promptly answered, "He has borne my sins." Mr. Collins spent three months in itinerating. In November he went to Rickapnath, a sacred town ten miles north of Kherwara, where day by day he had good audiences and sold 40 single Gospels in the Hindi-Nagari character, Brahmin boys willingly paying the price for these books. During this tour he went to a Bheel village where, such is the timidity of the people, he expected at the most to get audiences of three or four to listen once or twice a day. His experiences were better than his anticipations. He says :—

"He has borne my sins."

Aguru and his disciples profess a desire to become Christians.

On the first afternoon we walked up to try and meet a Bhagat guru, who, with his pupils, was said to have cast off all idolatry. He was out, but at the first house we sat on the threshing-floor and sang. As the sound floated out over the valley, men kept dropping in by twos and threes till we had about thirty listeners, including the guru and nearly all his disciples, while we spoke of the living God and of life through Him. On the next three days we had a gathering each afternoon at my camp; about twenty came and listened once for three hours, finally telling us through their chief men that they wish in a body to follow our religion.

The presence of Christian Bheels with Mr. Collins was a great help in overcoming the shyness of the people. Mr. Collins has been transferred to Mirat.

PUNJAB AND SINDH MISSION.

The Punjab Mission was begun in 1851, soon after the annexation of the province to British India. The first station was Amritsar, the sacred city of the Sikhs; Kangra was occupied in 1854; Peshâwar, 1855; Mûltan, 1856; Dera Ismail Khan, 1861; Kashmir, 1863; Bannu, 1864; Lahore, 1867; Pind Dádan Khan, 1876; Batála, 1878; Dera Ghazi Khan, 1879; Quetta, 1886. At Lahore, the capital of the province, the Divinity School was founded in 1870 by the late Rev. T. V. French. Mr. Gordon (who was killed at Kandahar, August 16, 1880) established, mainly at his own expense, stations at Pind Dádan Khan and Dera Ghazi Khan, the latter as a base for work among the Beluch tribes. Several other stations fringe the British frontier, the most important of which is Peshawar, where a Mission to the Afghans was established in 1855 under the auspices of Sir Herbert Edwardes, then Commissioner of the district. In the valley of Kashmir a Medical Mission was started by the late Dr. Elmslie in 1865, which has been a great blessing to the people, especially during the famine in 1880, and the earthquake in 1884. The work in the Punjab is deeply indebted to men like Lord Lawrence, Sir H. Edwardes, Sir R. Montgomery, Sir D. McLeod, Generals Lake, Taylor, and Maclagan, Colonel Martin, and others, who nobly exerted themselves to bring the Gospel to the people under their administration.

The Sindh Mission is older in date, having been begun in 1850, but is far behind in progress, owing mainly to its having always been quite undermanned. Yet important fruit has been granted to the patient labours of the Rev. J. Sheldon and others at Karachi (commenced 1850) and Hyderabad (1856), and more recently (1887) at Sukkur, on the Indus.

The Diocese of Lahore was founded in 1877, the Rev. T. V. French, the veteran C.M.S. Missionary, being the first Bishop. On his retirement in 1887, the present Bishop, Dr. Matthew, succeeded.

Reinforcements.

THE Staff of this Mission has been strengthened by the following additions: the Rev. Cecil E. Barton, B.A., Trinity Hall and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, son of the Rev. John Barton, Secretary of the Church Pastoral-Aid Society, formerly Missionary in North India and Madras; Dr. William F. Adams, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P. London, formerly Worsley Scholar of King's College, London; Dr. John O. Summerhayes, L.R.C.S. and L.R.C.P.; Miss Lucy A. Currie; Misses Maria Jane and Mary E. Farthing, of Bridgwater; Miss Bertha H. Nevill, formerly of Sierra Leone, and sister of the late Rev. Frank Nevill, of that Mission; and Miss Katharine C. Wright, fifth daughter of the late Rev. Henry Wright, Honorary Secretary of the Society, and the fourth of his children to go to the Mission-field. The Rev. J. H. and Mrs. Knowles, Dr. S. W. Sutton, and Mrs. F. Lawrence returned to the Mission. The Rev. H. E. and Mrs. Perkins, the Rev. F. A. P. Shirreff, the Rev. and Mrs. E. Guilford, Dr. M. and Mrs. Eustace, Dr. Ernest F. Neve, Mrs. Robert Clark, Mrs. D. Davies, Miss L. Ellwanger, and Miss A. F. Wright have come home—Mr. Perkins in consequence of Mrs. Perkins' state of health, she having had a serious illness in the winter of 1893–4; Mr. Guilford and Dr. Eustace on short leave, and for the same cause, the illness of their wives; Mr. Shirreff with the expectation of being obliged to retire, as the doctors give no hope of Mrs. Shirreff, from whom he has long been separated, being able again to reside in India; Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Davies, and Miss Wright on doctors' certificates; and Dr. Neve and Miss Ellwanger on furlough.

The Rev. G. R. Ekins and Miss C. L. Warren have retired, Mr. Ekins on account of health, and Miss Warren in consequence of her marriage in January to Mr. E. Nicholl, the Secretary to the Amritsar Municipality.

Death of Rev. T. Edwards,

The Rev. Thomas Edwards, Native Pastor at Simla, died suddenly of pneumonia on Sunday, January 28, 1894. He had been to Amritsar for a change under medical orders, and had preached to the Native congregation there on December 24. He was ordained Deacon in 1883, and Priest in 1888. The Rev. R. Clark wrote, "He was an earnest and a true and faithful labourer."

and of Miss C. M. Tucker.

Another death must be very specially referred to. It is that of Miss Charlotte M. Tucker, Honorary Missionary of the Church of England Zenana Society. Probably no other missionary has ever done what Miss Tucker did, namely, go out to India in her fifty-fourth year, and labour there for eighteen years until her death, without once returning home. The Rev. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht, of Batala, writes:—

Though she belonged to the sister Society, yet the work that she did for the C.M.S. was scarcely, if any, less than her labours for the women of Batala, to say nothing of her writings, by which she influenced myriads, both of Christians and non-Christians, throughout India. Indeed her chief standing memorial in Batala is the Tucker-Baring Mission School, opposite our church, which she founded and endowed with £50 per annum, while Mr. Baring provided it with the cost of a commodious and substantial building.

Besides starting this school of her own, Miss Tucker bore no small part in the maintenance of the Baring High School after its foundation in 1878, when she and Mr. Baring settled together in Batala (though Miss Tucker had twice lived there before for several months). Classes in English history and language were her special charge; in the religious instruction of the boys she took her part, and her spiritual and social influence on them was very powerful in many ways, for she ever strove to make them not only learn, but think; not only believe, but love. It was she who wrote their school songs, and who provided most of the scholarships for deserving poor boys or new converts, and for eighteen months or more, during Mr. Baring's absence, she was the only European in the Mission, a strength and a comfort to all the workers. During late years she gradually retired from her connexion with the school, after she had ceased to reside there in 1886; but her interest in the boys never flagged, and her memory will long remain green in the hearts of many, while her example and influence will continue to shape their characters and stimulate their Christian zeal.

A few weeks before her last illness began she wrote to the Rev. R. Bateman:—

I am well, thank God, but old. "My days are in the yellow leaf," but I am rather inclined to parody than to quote—

"My days are in the yellow leaf,
But still some garnered fruits are mine;
'Tis not the cankerworm and grief,
But peace, and hope of joys divine."

The Bishop of Lahore on December 17, 1893, admitted the Rev. John Williams, the Native Medical Missionary at Tank, to Priest's Orders. Ordination.

The Rev. Robert Clark still continues, after forty-three years of missionary service, to discharge the onerous duties of Secretary of the Mission. At the Missionary Conference held at Amritsar in December he delivered a very forcible address, reviewing briefly the work in the Mission during 1893, and dwelling upon its encouragements, its trials, and its needs.

AMRITSAR.

The pastoral and evangelistic work in this great commercial city, the headquarters of the Sikh religion, and in the district around is under the supervision of the Rev. T. R. Wade, assisted by the Rev. H. F. Wright. The attendance at the Services was larger and more regular than in the previous year, and there was evidence in some of the Christians of an increased love for the Bible. A member of the congregation commenced a Sunday-school in his house. Fifty were confirmed. There was less open opposition when the Gospel was preached to the Heathen. Twenty-one adults were baptized, and some 50 were under instruction for baptism in the villages and in Clarkabad (which is also under Mr. Wade's superintendence). A young inquirer at Jandiala, whose father is reputed a rich man, left his home and wife for Christ's sake; and another, a Mohammedan, ran away from home in order to escape the necessity of a marriage which he feared would increase the difficulty of his becoming a Christian. "The villages are all open," Mr. Wade writes. There was a great demand for tracts, and Mr. Wade distributed monthly about one thousand. Amritsar. Converts.

The Rev. D. J. McKenzie reports on the Boys' High School and its branches, with 562 pupils on the rolls. The eight presented for the Punjab Matriculation all passed. Twenty out of 38 passed the Middle Examination, and 35 out of 37 the Upper Primary. Not a few of the boys, Mr. McKenzie is assured, "have a truer idea of their duty to God, of the reality of sin, and the need of a holy life" through the Bible teaching in the school. Boys' High School.

Of the Society's two Girls' Boarding Schools, one, the Alexandra School, is conducted by Miss Cooper and other ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S.; the other, the Middle Class School, is under Mrs. Grime, assisted by Miss M. H. Millett, and now also by Miss B. H. Nevill. Both schools are for Christians. The former charges higher fees, and its inmates are mostly daughters of influential converts. Miss A. F. Wright, who taught in this school (she has unfortunately been invalided home) wrote of the great joy she found in the work, and of the lovable character of many of the girls. The five girls in the training class of the Middle Girls' Boarding Schools.

Class School mentioned in last year's Annual Report all passed the examination, and one of them headed the list of candidates in the Province. This girl distributed her first salary among the girls, to be placed by them in the offertory at church as a thankoffering for her success. All these five are now engaged as teachers. The subjects studied by the girls, Miss Millett states, are arithmetic, Urdu grammar, history, geography, English, Hindi, elementary science, physics, hygiene, household economy, and physiology. The Bishop of Lahore visited the school in December, and wrote the following remarks in the record book:—

A girl's thank-offering for success in examination.

The Bishop of Lahore's testimony to Scripture knowledge of Mission School girls.

It is difficult to give expression to the impression produced by hearing the knowledge of the various classes tested in Holy Scripture without appearing to write extravagantly. I can only say that this school holds the first place in sacred as (according to Miss France's report) it does in secular subjects. From the lowest class to the highest the accuracy and intelligence of the girls alike please and surprise. Mrs. Grime herself was kind enough to question the children, and thus I heard a great deal more than could possibly have been elicited if I had conducted the examination myself. I did, however, several times make inquiries of my own, and never found the children at fault. To hear Mrs. Grime question the children is to get an explanation of her success. Her energy and enthusiasm and love of her subject are unmistakable, and the whole school reflects them. I also found that the Church Catechism was well known.

Mr. Eugene Stock has described in the C.M. Gleaner what he saw at this station, and the following quotation relates to the Medical Mission, under Dr. Henry Martyn Clark:—

Medical Mission.

At Dr. Clark's hospital and dispensary the Native dispensers and assistants assembled in the morning for prayer, and I had the privilege of addressing a few words to them, Dr. Clark interpreting into Urdu. Then we stepped out into the verandah, and there I beheld one of the most artistically picturesque groups I ever saw in my life. Some fifty or sixty patients, men, women, and children, were sitting, squatting, lying, standing, leaning about in every variety of attitude and costume: the mother with her sick child, the blind man and his boy, the haggard, half-starved woman, the helpless cripple. Dr. Clark stood in the midst of them, and read to them out of his Urdu Bible, and talked in his familiar and winning way, and then prayed. Meanwhile Dr. Arthur Lankester was making preparations inside, and presently, one by one, the poor creatures passed in to be examined and treated by him.

Mr. Stock also describes a service at which he was present at Sultanwind, where there is one of the several branch dispensaries:—

Service in a branch dispensary.

In the prayer-room there was no furniture, only a low daïs and a low round pedestal in the middle of it. About twenty Christians came in and squatted on the floor, and as many Heathen behind them. Close to the daïs squatted (literally) three C.E.Z. ladies, Miss Wauton, Miss Tuting, and Miss G. Clarke, who had come to lead the singing, and on the daïs squatted Dr. Clark and myself—at least I did my best to do so, but not with the ease and dignity of a Punjab missionary! Two or three long bhajans (Native hymns) were sung, Miss Wauton accompanying on a concertina. These strange musical compositions seemed to "begin at both ends and leave off in the middle." If my readers will just sing a verse of the familiar tune

St. Ann, and when they get to the end of it go back to the first line and sing half of it and then stop abruptly, they will get an imperfect idea of what the tune of a Punjab bhajan is like. Dr. Clark read a simplified Liturgy, including General Confession, Lord's Prayer, Creed, Ten Commandments, and responsive prayers; and I felt how far more effective this was in teaching these ignorant people to pray than extempore prayer. When kneeling, the converts leaned forward with their faces in their hands upon the ground. Then Dr. Clark stood to read the chapter, but preaching must be done in these country parts sitting (comp. St. Luke iv. 16, 20), so he instructed me to get on to the little pedestal and sit there cross-legged while I gave my address, which he interpreted sentence by sentence. How can I give the least idea of the emotions awakened by such a service? One thought of the Lord's words, "I thank Thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes."

Important public controversy between a Mohammedan and a Native Christian.

At Jandiala, another out-station of the Medical Mission, some opposition was experienced from Mohammedans, and at length Dr. Martyn Clark, in the hope of silencing the troublers, sent in the name of the Christians a challenge to a public disputation to the Moslem teacher. The chosen champion of the Mohammedans was a certain Mirza Ghulam Ahmed, of Qadian, a man of Moghul descent, and deeply imbued, Dr. Clark says, with rationalism; he had, indeed, been excommunicated by the orthodox Moslems. The Christian champion was Mr. Abdullah Athim, one of the earliest converts from Mohammedanism. The controversy took place in Amritsar, in the verandah of Dr. Martyn Clark's house, and lasted two weeks. A verbatim report was taken of the speeches, and an enterprising Mohammedan publisher printed and published the reports daily. Dr. Clark wrote as follows of the discussion and its results:—

Each champion was allowed three helpers. The Mirza had as his a moulvie, one of his followers, from Bhopal, another from Behra, and for the third a noted opponent of Christians was fetched all the way from Ludhiana to find out the Scripture texts quoted pro and con, at which he proved himself an expert. Mr. Athim chose as his helpers the Rev. G. L. Thakur Dass, of the American United Presbyterian Mission at Gujranwala (only present part of the time); the Rev. Mr. Abdullah, of the American Presbyterian Mission; and the Rev. Thomas Howell, of the C.M.S., Clarkabad. As helpers from time to time we had the Rev. Ihsan Ullah, C.M.S., Narowal; the Rev. Fatteh Muhammud, C.M.S., Fathgarh; and Dr. Mayut Ullah Nasir. The management was in the hands of Mr. F. Lahiz, eldest son of the Rev. Moulvie Imad-ud-din.

The disputants sat facing each other in the middle of the verandah; behind them sat their helpers, and then their friends. The Mirza's disciples came from many different places; a number came daily by train from Lahore, Jullundur, and Batala; others had come from Peshawur, on the one hand, and various parts of the N.-W. Provinces on the other. On the Christian side was a goodly array of converts from Mohammedanism, and it was very delightful to see the keen interest and practical help and steady endurance of the younger members of our Punjab Church. Their sound good sense, as well as zeal, augurs brightly for the future.

"A goodly array of converts from Mohammedanism present,

In addition to the disciples of the Mirza, there was a very large attendance of orthodox Mohammedans, men mostly of affluence and position, and, as such, not usually reached by existing methods of work. Herein lay one delightful feature of the controversy. There they were, influential wealthy men, Government servants and what not—men, as a whole, quite beyond ordinary reach—sitting hour after hour for a couple of weeks, listening most attentively to expositions of Scripture, to the claims of Christ, to the eternal verities of His truth and the falsity of all beside for acceptance with God, salvation, and life eternal. Had the controversy achieved nothing else, this in itself would have been a great gain.

"Indigenous Christians fought the battle."

Another unique feature was that the attack on Islam and the exposition of the truths of Christ were, for the first time in such a discussion, almost exclusively carried out by members of the Punjab Church. Indigenous Christians fought the battle, and this was keenly felt by the Mohammedans.

Details of the discussion are not necessary here. The interest constantly increased. The same Mohammedans sat day by day, listening with absorbing attention. The fortune of debate varied daily, but the result steadily shaped itself. Bit by bit objections were met, arguments silenced, the claims of our Lord pressed home; and at the close of the first week the victory was, as it ever must be, to our God and His Christ.

The discussion closed in unique fashion. A leading Mohammedan gentleman of Amritsar moved a vote of thanks to me for organising the controversy. This was cordially agreed to, and after much mutual handshaking and protestations of friendship the audience dispersed. Some months have now passed, and we are able, in a measure, to make a fair estimate of what has been done. There is reason for the greatest thankfulness and praise. We have gained much and lost nothing.

The humility and patience of the Christian advocate.

The fruits of the Spirit of Christ in His followers have been abundantly manifested, and the Mohammedans present have realised and admitted the difference between us and them. They fought for victory; we, as we told them, had no thought of either victory or defeat: our one desire was that the glory of God should be made evident. Mr. Athim's words have been good, but better far have been his unfailing Christian humility, patience, gentleness, and forbearance. His practical Christianity produced a grand impression. On one occasion, after an irritating and insulting piece of bluster on the Mirza's part, Mr. Athim's kindly Christian dignity and meekness won all hearts. "Allah ho Allah (God He is God). Wonderful people are you Christians. Had this been a discussion between Mohammedans, long ere now we should have been tearing each other's throats. You invite us to your house, arrange for our comfort, and, with unfailing courtesy, listen to all we have to say against your faith! Wonderful!" was what was said to me in effect over and over again. Said another Mohammedan: "I never enjoyed a controversy so much. After all, God alone knows His own truth best. But you Christians are men." The Mirza himself, in a speech delivered to some of his admirers after the controversy was over, gave us high praise: "They honoured me, and were never wroth, even when my words were irritating. It is the only discussion I have had in which I have not been insulted." In good sooth he may well say so. He has not been happy in his experiences of discussions with his co-religionists. He has had a number, and there has been a sort of sameness about them all. Chased out of one mosque, and in dire straits how to save life and limb; assaulted in another; mobbed in a third; almost always under police protection—our Holy War struck him as a pleasant contrast, and one which has had its effect far and wide. It has, I think, been realised that Christians seek truth and are not afraid of it, and are willing to hear it at all costs. A great moral result and victory this.

"They honoured me, and were never wroth."

During the first portion of the discussion a somewhat amusing incident occurred. As a proof of the divine nature of Mohammedanism and the Quran, the Mirza offered to work miracles. He challenged us, if we were indeed followers of the truth, to do no less. He referred so often and in so many ways to the miracles he was prepared to do, that at last we thought it would be well to answer the fool according to his folly. We found a man whose leg had been amputated, another who is dumb, and one who is totally blind. These three were kept in reserve, and at the proper time produced in the assembly. We said, "Mirza Sahib, if you really care to perform a miracle, we have no objection to witness it. Cure whichever of these afflicted beings you like—or cure them all. Or tell us what sort of a case you want and we will get it for you"—in fact, we made him welcome to the whole resources of the Amritsar Medical Mission in this particular, and the more so that the controversy was organised and carried on in connexion with this special work. The whole scene was dramatic in the extreme, and the effect indescribable in the assembly and in the city, where the news of the Christian's reply to the Mirza's offers, and his lamentable failure, rapidly spread. The Mirza, though ashamed and confounded, made a gallant fight. He retorted by telling us to cure them ourselves, in conformity with Mark xvi. 17, 18; but the three incurables continually present were too much for him. He could not rally, and at the close he and his followers went off much depressed to the city, where he soon found his prestige very seriously impaired.

Miracle claims tested.

While the discussion was in progress, a most painful exhibition of the nature of Mohammedanism was presented in connexion with the Moslem controversialist. Dr. Martyn Clark continues:—

The Mirza is a heretic. The vast majority of Mohammedans are ranked against him. Though he has made great stir, his actual followers are extremely few; nevertheless the dispute between them (or rather the Mirza) and the orthodox has been long and exceedingly acrimonious. Things have come to such a pass that both parties finally resolved to resort to a mubahilla. In this each party states its position, commends its cause to God, appeals to Him as against its adversary, and prays that the most withering curses may blast whichever of the parties is in the wrong. It is this imprecation of Divine vengeance which is more particularly technically termed mubahilla. This extraordinary ceremony, though well known, has, it is said, been but once practised in the whole history of Islam. That was by Mohammed himself, who on a certain occasion resorted to it as the final appeal between himself and certain of the Jewish unbelievers in his prophetic claims. Now were we to see in Amritsar a thing unknown since the early days of Islam! The representative of the orthodox against the Mirza is an Afghan moulvie from the city of Ghazni. Preliminaries had been settled and the date fixed some time beforehand, and when it was seen that the date fell during the controversy, the Ghaznavi moulvie at once wrote to delay the mubahilla. "Heretic though thou be," wrote he to the Mirza, "thou art fighting the battles of the Lord against the enemies of Islam and of our holy prophet, on whom be the peace of God, and I would not do aught to weaken or distress thee in the fight." The Mirza, however, elected to abide by the arrangements made, so on a certain afternoon, having finished the morning's discusssion with us, he prepared for his other opponents. The Mohammedan population of Amritsar, and of many another place, was in wild ferment. Outside the city there is a huge enclosure, where prayers are offered up on the festival of the Eed at the close of the month of fasting. This Eedgah, as it is termed, which is capable of holding many thousands of people, was the rendezvous. After solemn prayer and a sermon the parties were ready. One last effort at pacification was made; it failed, and the two factions sat glaring at each other. A great silence fell on that vast assemblage, though from the hatred and passion evident on their faces one could realise something of the volcano pent up within, and could quite understand that the Mirza's best friends at that moment were to be found in the strong body of police posted about the Eedgah. Then at the command of one of the honorary magistrates of Amritsar, a Mohammedan, the parties approached each other. The Ghazni moulvie delivered a solemn form of imprecation to the magistrate, who handed it to the Mirza. He looked it over, then read it out in a loud voice: "I follow the truth, but, O God, if I am a liar, infidel, faithless, as this man avers, may I—" and then followed a series of imprecations and curses, too horrible to transcribe. As the Mirza read out the curses, a heartrending wail burst from his friends; they covered their faces and sobbed aloud. It was a weird sight, this company of forty strong men, under agony of grief, while the rest of that great congregation stood by, every nerve strained to the utmost. Three times the Mirza read the appeal to heaven, while his friends wept and wailed. The paper was then handed back by the magistrate to the Ghazni moulvie, who read: "I follow the truth. This man, Ghulam Ahmed, of Qadian, is an enemy of the truth of God, a liar, deceiver, faithlesss: let Thy curses be on him, and if I be wrong then may I—" and he repeated the imprecations and curses which the Mirza had read, making the necessary changes. His friends did not weep. He read the declaration three times, and at the close of each time the people shouted "Amen," as they had also done in the case of the Mirza. The parties then resumed their original places, and the mubahilla entered on its last stage. The rival factions gave themselves up to "prayer," which consisted of the most horrible imprecations on each other. I was standing by the Ghaznavis; I heard them pray with almost incredible intensity of feeling: "Lord, may this man not go hence. Change him into a bear, and a monkey. Blacken his face, destroy him, destroy him. May that happen to him which in Thy most terrible wrath has never yet happened to the vilest of sinners"—and so on. The Mirza and his friends were meanwhile not idle; they in turn continued to bann the Ghaznavis root and branch. The scene was intensely interesting, yet withal most painful. It was a striking exemplification of the spirit of Islam, and in keeping with the practice of its apostle.

Mutual imprecations.

The Mirza wanted to have a mubahilla with us, but we told him that while the children of darkness might curse each other, we followed the Prince of Peace, and we were commanded to bless and curse not. Our prayer for him and his friends was that they might obtain eternal life—that is, know the only true and wise God, and Jesus Christ His Son, whom He hath sent.

Rev. Dr. Imad-ud-din's paper read at Chicago.

The Rev. Dr. Imad-ud-din was invited to attend the "Parliament of Religions" at Chicago, along with Buddhists and Mormons and Positivists, but he declined to go. He sent a paper, however, for publication, giving an account of his own conversion and the effect of the teaching of the Bible amongst Mohammedans of India, with names of 90 converts of some note in the Punjab, and 27 in other parts of India, excepting South India; also giving a list of 27 controversial and exegetical works by himself. The paper was published in the Intelligencer for August, 1893.

BATALA.

Baring High School.

The Bishop of Lahore confirmed 29 candidates at Batala in December. Eight boys from the Baring High School, under the Rev. E. F. E. Wigram, were among them. At the urgent request of the townspeople, the Rev. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht assumed a second time the Presidency of the Municipality of Batala, which gave him opportunities, he says, of preventing a certain amount of chicanery and oppression. The Christians in the Villages of the Batala Tahsil number over 600 souls. The Census Report shows an increase of the Christian population in the Gurdáspur district (of which the Batala Tahsil is about one-third part) during the ten years from 1881 to 1891 of 1,912—from 157 to 2,069. This large increase is owing to the movement among the Chuhras. Altogether there are eleven more or less settled congregations in as many villages, besides some fourteen other villages with one or more Christian families in them. There are prayer-rooms in eight places—mud buildings with one exception—and five elementary schools. The Evangelistic force consists of one Native deacon, one catechist, and nine village readers. Two cases are mentioned by Dr. Weitbrecht which illustrate, as he says, the ramifications of missionary work and their interaction :—

Movement among Chuhras.

One day I was examining a catechumen who had been away for many months employed on frontier roadworks. "You have forgotten a good deal, I dare say, away from all Christians?" was my remark. "No," he said, "there was a babu (official) at —— who used to teach some of us." "Was he a Christian?" "No; he belonged to the Dev Dharma Samaj, but he used to call us in on Sunday when he found we were Christians and tell us stories from the Injil and exhort us to follow Christ, and we used the Lord's Prayer together." As a matter of fact, I found on examination that this man had gained rather than lost in religious life during his absence. The Dev Dharma Samaj is a small religious society of Reformed Hindus with its headquarters in Lahore. Its members approach even more nearly to Christianity than those of the Brahma Samaj; and I am told that they read the New Testament and the Imitation of Christ at their religious meetings. I identified by inquiry the official in question as one who is particularly friendly to Christians. Surely one who has thus ministered to Christ's little ones will not lose his reward! Would God that it might be the full knowledge and following of Him whom he already reveres!

A religious society of Reformed Hindus in the Punjab.

The other case was this. In my absence from our camp, Mrs. W. was accosted by a rather seedy-looking man in pigeon-English. She referred him to me, and on my return I heard his story. He was a Mohammedan of Kashmiri extraction, whose family was settled in a village near Fathgarh. As a lad he had joined a gang of labourers hired for the sugar-estates in Demerara. There he had come under the influence of missionaries, was baptized and confirmed, through the medium of English. He could say the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, and several collects in a lisping fashion.

Dr. Weitbrecht also mentions a Hindu gentleman of position on whom he called, and who assured him, truthfully he believes, that he gathered his family together morning and evening, including the women and children, and offered up prayer and thanksgiving to God in his own tongue.

A non-Christian has family prayer.

The Rev. Fath Masih is stationed at Fathgarh, from which place he superintends the congregations in the surrounding villages, and is responsible for making the Gospel known to a population of 100,000 souls occupying about one-third of the Tahsil. "As Mission-fields go," Dr. Weitbrecht writes, "this population is well provided for."

NAROWAL.

Narowal.

A new church was opened at Narowal by the Bishop of Lahore on February 28, 1893. The first church which this one succeeded was built in 1874, on ground formerly occupied by the house of the first convert, Hussain Baksh, whom the Rev. T. H. Fitzpatrick baptized in 1854 by the name of Paulus, and whose son is the Rev. Mian Sadiq, pastor of Ajnala. The new church is thus described by Dr. Martyn Clark :—

New church.

Certain points about it are noteworthy. The idea of large covered cathedrals for Oriental worshippers has been here for ever abandoned. There is a large open courtyard, which is to be flanked by a double row of covered verandahs, the upper for women and the lower for men. In the courtyard are mats for the congregation ; the spaces between the mats are so planned that worshippers can place their shoes in orderly rows before them. At the west end of the courtyard (for in Narowal they worship towards Jerusalem, not towards the unenlightened East) a couple of immense sliding doors lead into a covered chancel ; at one side is the vestry ; fronting it we have the font. The communion table, of plain wood, stands on a floor of blue tiles, and the chancel steps are similarly tiled.

The workmanship of the building is thorough. The whole is simple, chaste, decent ; everything is in order, and, from the point of view of village needs, is exquisitely adapted to its purpose.

Bell of temple lent for opening services.

The site, which is beautifully surrounded by water, making the tout ensemble to be somewhat like that of the Golden Temple at Amritsar, was given by an old pupil of Dr. Bruce's, now the Hindu Abbot of Narowal; and as the bell destined for the Cathedral was yet tolling to the music of the Red Sea waves, the Abbot lent the bell from his own particular temple to grace the scene and summon the worshippers, which it duly did at 8 A.M. the next morning.

The Bishop confirmed 38 candidates on the same occasion, and 120 received the Holy Communion, in administering which two Narowal converts, the Revs. Mian Sadiq and Ihsan Ullah, assisted the Bishop and the Rev. R. Bateman. The Rev. T. Holden has been transferred to Narowal from Clarkabad, and the Rev. F. Lawrence from Narowal to Lahore.

BAHRWAL.

Bahrwal.

At this station also a new church was opened by the Bishop during the year, on October 26. The stone was laid the previous January by Mr. Eugene Stock. The style of architecture is described by the Rev. H. E. Perkins as "Rustico-modern." Two other places of worship of still more humble pretensions, if that were possible, were erected in the district, one at Kasel, where there are 120 Christians. There were 47 baptisms, all, except one, of the lowest class socially ; the exception was a Mohammedan, whose wife forsook him before his baptism, taking off their only child. The Rev. Wadhawa Mall is in charge of the pastoral work during Mr. Perkins' absence in England on account of Mrs. Perkins' state of health. Before coming home Mr. Perkins generously conveyed his property at Bahrwal to the Society.

TARN TARAN.

The Rev. E. Guilford, who, to accompany Mrs. Guilford, as already mentioned, has come home on short leave, had three congregations under his care, with an aggregate of 170 souls, and with no other pastoral assistance than that afforded by a single catechist. He was especially glad, therefore, to have the companionship and help of the Rev. F. A. P. Shirreff for a few months while the latter was engaged in preparing some theological literature in Urdu before leaving the Punjab. For the Tarn Taran congregation there are daily morning and evening services, with catechetical instruction on the lessons for the day. In the Lepers' Congregation a catechist is supported by the Mission to Lepers. Mr. Guilford says of these Christian lepers:— Tarn Taran.

I never go to them without feeling that my faith in the reality of the Communion of Saints is quickened. A beautiful remark was made by one man some time ago in answer to something a gentleman from England who visited the place with me said to them. In the course of a short address the speaker said it was probably a mystery to them why they were afflicted in such a terrible manner. After the address the man said, "Sir, my affliction is no mystery to me, for I recognise in it God's loving kindness. Before I became a leper I was an utterly godless man, but after I was smitten with this terrible disease I began to reflect on things spiritual, and eventually I was led to Christ. In Him I have found something far more precious than mere bodily health, and it was that I might obtain this, I believe, that God afflicted me." A leper acknowledges the benefits of affliction.

The third congregation is at Zunnárdár, 16 miles from Tarn Taran, where nine farmers' families who till their own land profess the faith of Christ.

CLARKABAD.

The Rev. T. Holden was transferred to Narowal in November, and the pastoral work of the settlement was placed under the Rev. T. Howell, Native pastor, superintended by the Rev. T. R. Wade, of Amritsar. The two sisters, Misses M. J. and M. E. Farthing, were assigned to this station, and arrived in February, 1894. But Miss L. Ellwanger had already left en route for Europe, and Miss Warren, through her marriage, had removed to Amritsar. Some of the children in the Girls' Orphanage, under Miss G. L. West, had a merciful escape in September, as a portion of the verandah roof, under which the children had been sitting two minutes previously, fell in. The children are taught to pick and spin cotton, beat out Indian corn, do cooking and other household work, learn needlework, how to make buttons, dye their own clothes, and such other occupations as are likely to be of service to them in after life. Clarkabad.

LAHORE.

The Rev. H. G. Grey has succeeded the Rev. F. A. P. Shirreff as Principal of St. John's Divinity School, and the Lahore.

Divinity School.

Rev. F. Lawrence, transferred from Narowal, has joined the school staff. The year was a disappointing one in respect of two or three of the students. Others, however, left the class to engage in Mission work, with prospects of much usefulness. Five were admitted during the year, all converts from Mohammedanism. Among them was a blind Hafiz from Delhi. The presence of this man—a convert of the Cambridge Delhi Mission, who was formerly one of the leading controversialists against Christianity at Delhi—with the bazaar preachers at the city gates excited the fanaticism of the people, and great efforts were made to decoy him. Mr. Shirreff, with the help of a former student of the Divinity School, wrote a small commentary on the Thirty-nine Articles, based on one by the late Archdeacon Norris, and translated a sermon on Ordination by Bishop Daniel Wilson, and another on Confirmation by Canon Hoare.

KANGRA, KOTGUR, AND SIMLA.

Kangra.

Kotgur.

Mrs. Däuble, the widow of the late Rev. C. G. Däuble, still resides and labours at KANGRA. The number of Christians at KOTGUR and the number of schools in the district are unchanged since the last Report. Six Native evangelists, four men and two women, declare God's Word among the various hill states. A preaching tour was taken into Kulu, as far as Sultanpur. Mr. H. F. and Mrs. Beutel accompanied a party to the annual fair at Rampur, the capital of Bisahir, and thence proceeded to Chini and Pangi. Mr. Beutel says :—

Itinerations among Tibetan-speaking Buddhists.

From Rampur we travelled on—80 miles beyond, or 100 from Kotgur—to the interior, visiting and preaching in most of the villages to the right and left, until at length we came to Chini and Pangi. At the latter place, where we spent a Sunday, we preached in two or three different places to about 100 souls by interpretation. Most of the inhabitants in these "abodes of snow" are Buddhists. A huge prayer-wheel, with thousands and thousands of inscriptions of the deadening ritualistic prayer, "Om mani padmi hom," enclosed in it, is daily turned round some hundred times by a Lama. The dialect spoken there is far more Tibetan than Hindi. Our interpreter was the Mukhya (tax collector) of the place, a Hindu, who had also been at Rampur, seen and heard the explanation of the pictures shown there, and of which he remembered a good deal.

Overtaken by snowstorm on the mountains.

On our way back we were overtaken, at an elevation of over 9,000 feet above sea-level, by a snowstorm, and had to do double march in order to escape. What it means to have a snowstorm at such an elevation, surrounded by chains of mountains with perpetual snow, and then on a narrow road, in many places sloping, and only six to eight feet wide, and precipices or cliffs of 3,000 to 4,000 feet deep, in some places straight down to the river, can only be understood by those who have seen or experienced it.

Again, down in the narrow Sutlej valley (the "valley of the shadow of death," as it has been called), somewhat beyond the Wangtu bridge, some of our party had a narrow escape from being hit and wounded, if not killed, by huge stones coming down from a considerable height, with a tremendous noise, just a step or two behind the men who were carrying my wife. After having preached the Gospel in several other villages along the road, we returned all safely to Kotgur by the end of November.

The death of the Rev. T. Edwards, Native pastor of SIMLA, has already been mentioned. No report of the year's work has been received. Simla.

PIND DADAN KHAN.

The Missionary Conference has recommended that the head-quarters of the Salt Range Mission shall be transferred from Pind Dadan Khan to Shahpur. No Annual Letter has been received from the Rev. W. E. Davies.

MULTAN.

The Rev. T. Bomford has for several years borne alone the burden and heat of the day at Multan, which is a specially trying station in some respects, and his health has unhappily suffered. The Committee have assigned the Rev. C. E. Barton, at his own request, to labour here, and it is hoped that he will have the benefit of the counsel and experience of Mr. Bomford during his period of preparation for service. Multan.

DERA GHAZI KHAN.

A very severe epidemic of cholera prevailed at Dera Ghazi Khan in the winter of 1892-3, but through God's mercy none of the Christian congregation suffered. Dr. A. Jukes mentions in his Annual Letter numerous inquirers, but he could not feel sure that their motives were pure. An inquirer from Batala, a Mohammedan, sent to Dera Ghazi Khan by Dr. Weitbrecht, his life being threatened at the former place, lost property to the value of Rs. 3,000 through cleaving to Christ. In order to save this, he returned to Batala; but his journey was unavailing, except to afford him an opportunity of showing a Christ-like spirit when reviled. He and his two children were baptized in April, 1893. The amount contributed by the Native Christians was Rs. 242, an average for every bread-winner of Rs. 19. Dr. Jukes asks, "Do many churches in England do as much?" The out-patients treated at the Hospital during the year numbered 13,349, and the in-patients 113; there were 68 major and 452 minor operations; and 588 visits were paid to homes of zenana patients. Dr. Jukes gave much of his time to literary and translation work. He revised the Multani version of St. Matthew, St. Luke, and St. John, and the Multani dictionary. The Rev. M. Ishaq went southward some 80 miles on a preaching tour in the spring of 1893, and in the autumn accompanied Dr. Jukes to Fort Munro, where he preached to the hospital patients and assisted in the work of translation. Dera Ghazi Khan. Losses for Christ's sake. Translation work.

DERA ISMAIL KHAN, BANNU, AND TANK.

In lieu of the Rev. D. and Mrs. Davies, transferred to Peshawar, DERA ISMAIL KHAN has received the Rev. H. J. and Mrs. Hoare; Dr. J. O. Summerhayes also is located here while learn- Dera Ismail Khan.

ing the language. A servant of Dr. Pennell, a Pathan from Cabul named Jan Khan, was baptized in July. Several members of his tribe from different places endeavoured to shake his constancy, saying that he was "the first Cabuli Pathan who had brought disgrace on his tribe by becoming a Christian." The Rev. F. Papprill mentions the following incident of his itinerating work:—

The first Cabuli Pathan convert.

In one village the mullah was very bigoted, and tried to hinder our work: a few kind words told on him, leading him to change his attitude. In the evening we were surprised to see him at our tent, and glad others had come with him. We had a very friendly and profitable talk together, and at his request I gave him a New Testament on his promising to read it.

When we visited the village some two months later, we met our friend, who had the New Testament in his hand. I asked him to let me see it, when I found he had well marked it and had written out a good many references on the inside covers.

This was encouraging, and although he had only read the Book in a critical spirit, and was still very bitter against the Christian religion, yet we thanked God he had searched the Scriptures, and prayed they might be blessed to him.

Dr. Pennell, who succeeded in the course of his first year in the Mission in passing both his first examination in Urdu and first and second Government examinations in Pushtu, removed to BANNU in October. Dr. Thomas Soloman, a Native doctor from Dera Ghazi Khan; Munshi Jalal-ud-din, a catechist from Dera Ismail Khan, a converted Afghan; and Mr. Benjamin, a schoolmaster, are his assistants. The Mission School has 258 boys reading up to the Middle Standard. An extemporised Dispensary was opened in November, and a few days later there was a daily average of about 200 out-patients. Among these are found, Waziris, Zadrans, Ghilzais, Dauranis, Kutaks, Khortis, Cabulis, and Persians. Two temporary Hospital Wards were opened and occupied, of which Dr. Pennell wrote:—

Bannu.

Dispensary.

Many nationalities in Mission hospital.

In the wards are found a Mullah, or Mohammedan priest, bedridden by a parasitic disease of one leg, and deeply interested in a Pushtu version of the Psalms which the catechist has lent him, and which he is always reading; a Waziri lad, who has just had an operation on his ankle, and listens daily with increasing interest to the Gospel story; and a Povindah from Ghuznee, who, cut short on his journey by an attack of pneumonia, has found an asylum with us.

Regarding the recent Mission of Sir Mortimer Durrant to Cabul, and its bearing on the evangelisation of the country, Dr. Pennell says:—

Sir Mortimer Durrant's Mission to Cabul.

According to the published accounts of the results of this Mission, Waziristan, which is that part of Afghanistan inhabited by the independent tribes to the west and south-west of Bunnu, is to be a British dependency, and a British post is to be established in their rear on Wana, only the small tract known as Birmal remaining under the Amir's influence. These interesting people, the Waziris, whose capital town, Kanigoorum, is marked on the map just to the south-west of Bunnu, may, under the grace of God, form a cradle for this portion of the Afghan Church, should these changes eventuate, as we may hope and should pray they may, in rendering it possible for a medical missionary to establish himself among the hills, and more particularly at Kanigoorum. Last season some of the chief men of that place asked me to spend the warm weather there, and offered to be responsible for my safety. I feel sure that, though at present it might be dangerous, most of them would welcome a medical missionary, and now the season seems approaching when a Medical Mission might be formed there as an outpost of Bunnu, till at last it should become an independent centre. So I would ask friends to regard this Mission specially in its relation to these now wild and barbarous border tribes, and to pray for and expect the time when they shall sit humbly at the feet of Jesus to learn of Him."

Translation of Old Testament into Pushtu.

The Rev. T. J. L. Mayer, formerly stationed at Bannu, now at home, is engaged in revising the Old Testament in Pushtu. He wrote in December :—

"Twenty years ago an Afghan dared not send his son to a Mission school. In January, February, and March of this year, three Afghan boys out of the Bannu Mission school were engaged in writing out the Word of God night and day, so as to enable me to send nearly the whole of the Old Testament to Peshawur to be revised and copied by the Katib (who writes a splendid hand and is also an Afghan) ready for the press. In the midst of constant sickness and much discomfort and trial I was spared in God's mercy to complete the third revision of the Prophets before I left, also Job, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Song of Solomon, i.e. the remaining poetical books. In addition to this the translation and first revision of Joshua, Judges, Ruth, and 1 Samuel. Since my return to England, after being quite laid on the shelf during May and June, Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Job have gone through their final revision, and gone to the Bible House to be printed. Hosea and Joel are with me, waiting to go up. A big batch ready for final revision is daily expected from Peshawur, which will, I trust, enable me to complete the Prophets before long.

It was once supposed, and alas ! repeated at missionary meetings, that the Afghans had the Word of God. They never had anything but the New Testament and the Pentateuch by Carey in 1818 and 1824, and Löwenthal's revision of the New Testament in 1863, but of all this Robert Clark's translation of the Gospel of St. John was the only portion clear enough to be understood by the people.

Tank.

The Rev. John Williams has sent no report of his work at TANK. The Civil and Military Gazette, in noticing Mr. Williams' admission to Priest's Orders, gave the following interesting particulars regarding his antecedents :—

A Native clergyman descended from converts of Xavier.

Mr. Williams is the descendant of converts baptized by St. Francis Xavier in the 16th century. His father's original name was Pedro. This was changed to Williams when he left the Roman communion for the Church of England. Mr. Williams, senior, left his home at Patna, and settled as a farmer at the Christian village of Basharatpur, near Gorakhpur, where his children were brought up. His son John was trained to be an army apothecary, and for some time was in charge of a Sikh regiment at Benares. When the regiment was sent to Lahore to be disbanded, Mr. Williams accepted medical service on the frontier, and was stationed at Dera Ismail Khan. There he was met in 1862 by Mr. (the late Bishop) French, who prevailed upon him to take up missionary work under the C.M.S. In 1868 Mr. Williams was sent to the isolated outpost of Tank to found a Medical Mission for the benefit of the frontier tribes, and there he has steadily worked for the last twenty-five years, being ordained deacon in 1873. The tribesmen, at least on one occasion, have shown their regard for Mr. Williams by sparing his dispensary when they looted the rest of Tank; and many of them have learned something of Christianity; but, owing to their lawless fanaticism, the life of a convert is in peril, and one lately baptized was terrorised till he recanted. There is, however, a little Christian flock in Tank, due to immigration, and to these Mr. Williams will now be able to minister the Sacraments. The prayers of Christians in easier surroundings may well be asked and given for him and his work.

PESHAWAR.

The city of Peshawar.

This city struck Mr. Eugene Stock as quite unlike any other he had seen in India. He wrote:—

It looked more what we at home understand by "Oriental," and reminded me of pictures of Syrian or Egyptian cities. Two months afterwards I found Cairo (i.e. the real Mohammedan quarters of it, not the boulevards and hotels where tourists congregate!) very similar. The Peshawar streets were full of tall, bearded men, with large white turbans, and all fully clothed—some, indeed, from the mountains, in sheep-skins—as unlike Tinnevelly or Ceylon as possible. Few women to be seen, and most of them dressed in the well-known long white Egyptian garment covering head and face, and leaving only small apertures for the eyes. Very few horses, but plenty of asses, and a good many camels.

Work of C.E.Z.M.S. ladies.

The C.M.S. Mission-houses are in the "cantonments," or English quarter, outside the city. They were not built or purchased by the Society, but originally provided by the Christian officers who founded the Mission. One (if not more) is let, and the rent helps the Mission expenses. Another Mission-house was provided within the city, indeed within the citadel (the Gurkhatri), a historic enclosure on a hill; but it was not used as a dwelling until the Zenana ladies came, and they have lived there ever since. They have a female hospital named (by permission) the Duchess of Connaught Hospital, which is a great blessing and gives them access to the Afghan women as nothing else would; and they have school work and visiting besides. It is only within the last dozen years that ladies could possibly work in Peshawar, and even now they are liable to unspeakably gross insults if they venture to walk through the city unprotected. We in England can little conceive what it costs a refined Englishwoman to go among the people of Peshawar; and of course the "ladies of the station," i.e. the wives and daughters of the British officers in the cantonments, see and know nothing of it. They would not dream of going on foot into the city without husbands or fathers.

Bitter and determined opposition.

The Rev. W. Thwaites, who was in general charge of the agencies throughout the year, says that he has "met with no place so hard, so difficult, so bitter and determined in its opposition to Christ as Peshawar." Mr. Thwaites personally superintended the Edwardes High School for a few months after the Rev. H. J. Hoare left. The Rev. D. Davies has now relieved him of this duty. The Congregation consists of about forty, including children; the majority of the bread-winners among them are Mission workers. In the Edwardes High School, as well as in its branch schools, Mr. Thwaites says Scripture teaching is more thorough than was formerly the case. A Sunday afternoon class for the hostel boys is taken by Miss Robertson of the C.E.Z.M.S. The Anjaman, or Mission-room, which holds over a hundred, is sometimes crowded, notwithstanding continued opposition and a close watch by the Mohammedans of the city on the people who attend. Bazaar-preaching caused special excitement and opposition. Mr. Thwaites says:—

Bazaar-preaching.

Mohammedan preachers were sent to oppose us, and on several occasions one has stood close to my elbow and given his opinions of our work in no very gentle language. I think Peshawar bazaar is the only place where the epithet "pig" has been applied to me, and various other words of abuse quite too impolite to write down here. We were informed that the Mohammedans of Peshawar had taken an oath that no convert should ever be made from the city, and in the carrying out of this they did not hesitate to send away two young men who began to visit and talk with us too seriously. Friday is a particularly noisy day, and after our first Friday's work the Superintendent of Police wrote to the Deputy Commissioner to ask him to forbid the missionaries to preach in the main bazaar of Peshawar, especially on Friday. I went to the Deputy Commissioner and gave an account of our preaching, and promised to be always present on Friday if possible, and said that if the Mohammedans had their open-air preaching, it could not be against the law for Christians to have it too. He answered, "that, as far as he was concerned, there was nothing to prevent us, only he advised us to avoid anything in the shape of a disturbance, which could do us no good." So the work went on, but it is by no means easy among Mohammedans of the type of those of Peshawar to avoid disturbance. The simplest things, if they are not in accordance with the teaching of the Quran, are made the cause for noise, excitement, and disturbance. I cannot speak too highly of the patience and courage of two of our C.M.S. catechists, Aziz-ud-din and Hamid Ullah. It has been a pleasure to stand by their side and help them a little in bearing the fierce abuse so freely given by the Peshawar Mohammedans to those two who had once been of "the faith," but are now Christians. The abuse did not always stop at words; stones and filth were thrown, and blows from sticks had to be suffered in patience. We carried on the work regularly till the middle of June, when, I am sorry to say, the heat and dust of the bazaar, and the constant strain of several hours daily spent in work which was not only deeply interesting, but very exciting, proved too much for my health.

Courage and patience of catechists.

The greatest results, so far, from the bazaar-preaching have been the greatly increased attendance at our evangelistic services in the Anjaman. Not only was the attendance greater, but more heed seemed to be given, more questions were asked, and altogether more interest was shown in the message we had to deliver. Music is one of our helps in the Anjaman; there is an harmonium which my wife sometimes plays, and we have very well-known hymns. Then we have our musical evangelist, Ashiq Ullah, who plays the sitar and sings Gospel bhajans. It is real Gospel-singing, and many who would not listen to preaching listen to him as he gives the Message in the music and poetry of the country.

Gospel singing.

Of the advantages of the Hujra or Mission Guest House, when the staff admits of a Pushtu-speaking missionary itinerating in the district, and another remaining in the city with time to give to the guests, Mr. Thwaites says:—

The Mission Guest House.

These conditions were fulfilled all last cold weather, and I consider that during that time the Hujra was a success, and the number of guests who came and sat with me, sometimes in the Mission library, sometimes in our own drawing-room, was large, and the conversations I had with them were interesting and encouraging. Questions which are debated with considerable heat and excitement in the bazaar can be discussed with much more calmness and advantage when the men are guests sitting round your fire, and some of them drinking tea with you. I think that in this way I have talked over with Mohammedan guests in a quiet and friendly manner nearly every knotty question that has been brought forward in our bazaar-preaching; and these guests come in from every part of the Peshawar district and from across the border—Mullas from Swat and Bonar, Maleks from the Khaibar Pass and from the hills in the Kohat direction, heads of villages from the Eusufzai district, old pupils of the school.

The Rev. C. H. A. Field was married in January, 1894, to Miss Julia Däuble, daughter of the late Rev. C. G. Däuble, of Kangra. The Rev. Imam Shah has been temporarily transferred to Multan.

KASHMIR.

Floods in Kashmir.

A disastrous flood occurred in Kashmir as in other parts of the Punjab in the summer of 1893. Six of the seven bridges in Srinagar were washed away and part of the city was submerged. When the Rev. J. H. and Mrs. Knowles returned in December, they found their house uninhabitable. With good reason Mr. Knowles wrote, "Poor Kashmir, what with famine, and cholera, and earthquakes, and fires, and floods, she has a hard portion. I cannot understand how any but missionaries can stay here. And yet I would not change places with anyone in the wide, wide world." The printed report of the Medical Mission describes Srinagar as "a City of Death." It says:—

"A City of Death."

We are looking from the bows of our mat-roofed boat for the first sight of Srinagar, the so-called Venice of the East. The turbid and lazy stream sweeps against the prow masses of dirty foam, floating straw, dead bodies of dogs, and all the other garbage of a great city. How can one admire the wonderful sweep of snow mountains, the deep azure of the sky, and broad rippling sheet of cloud and sky-reflecting water when every sense is assailed by things that disgust? Upon one bank stands a neat row of wooden huts. This is a cholera hospital. Upon the other bank the blue smoke curling up from a blazing pile gives atmosphere and distance to the rugged mountains. It is a funeral pyre. And as our boat passes into the city, now and again we meet other boats, each with their burden of death. All traffic seems suspended. Shops are closed. Now and again from some neighbouring barge we hear the wail of mourners, the shrieks of women as in a torture den, echoed away among the houses on the bank.

Srinagar, the city of the sun, is indeed the filthiest city under the sun. The streets, as we enter them, are ankle-deep in liquid black mud, many of the alleys are simply impassable; while the river bank is rendered hideous by an utter disregard of the first principles of sanitation. Little wonder is it that cholera should have claimed so many thousands of the citizens for its victims.

But a change for the better is perceptible. Competent English officials are giving attention to sanitation and education, repressing corruption and bribery, and relieving the peasantry from old burdens of forced labour and illegal taxation. And a consequence of these improvements at the hands of Europeans is that the latter are much respected. Especially is this the case in the villages, and Dr. A. Neve writes:—

Mission Hospital widely known and gratefully remembered.

In no part of Kashmir, within a radius of 70 miles, would the people be found ignorant of the name of the suburb of Drogjun, in which stands the Mission Hospital. Many would be found to know the name of Dr. Downes, as well as of the present surgeons. To come from the hospital is the best of credentials; friendship and confidence are at once guaranteed. There can be few, if any, of the thousands of villages which have not sent forth a contingent of patients to us. Thus the influence of practical Christianity has had a good chance of making itself felt.

Dr. E. F. Neve crossed a mountain range to the Wardwan, a valley 80 miles from Srinagar, where the Gospel had probably never before been preached. The Leper Hospital had 18 patients at the close of the year.

Two "quiet days" were held by the Missionaries in June, 1893, when addresses were delivered by the Rev. H. E. Perkins and others. The gatherings were held in one of the royal gardens on the banks of the Dhal Lake, which was kindly lent by the Maharaja.

The Rev. C. E. Tyndale-Biscoe had a long and serious illness in the winter of 1893–4, but he has been mercifully raised up.

QUETTAH.

Quettah.

Dr. and Mrs. Eustace left this station in October, just after Dr. S. W. Sutton returned to it. The Rev. C. M. Gough has become an Honorary Missionary. He writes:—

It is not easy to write one's impressions of the first few months of missionary work. Perhaps that which comes most prominently before one is the drudgery of learning the languages. Probably my seven years of active clerical work in England makes me feel this going to school again more keenly than I otherwise should. But the discipline and humbling is profitable. There is much to discourage: the greatness of the work, the hardness of men's hearts, their utter indifference, their frequent inability to see the force of the most cogent argument—all these tend to depress. But we have the promise of the Lord Himself that "His word shall not return unto Him void." If we cannot convince and convert, we can at least testify, and in so doing we are fulfilling the purpose and will of Him who said, "Ye shall be witnesses unto Me." Results must be His care, for He alone can produce them; our part is to obey and to persevere, looking forward to the day when, however much discouraged we may have been here below, we shall obtain our reward.

Things which tend to depress a missionary.

Often in England have I listened to the story of the greatness of the harvest and the scarcity of the reapers; often have I urged the same from the pulpit or the platform, and now I see with my own eyes that it is so. Figures alone may tell something of the need of more labourers, but when to vast numbers we add the depravity of the human heart, the density of the ignorance and darkness around us, the fetters of inherited religions and customs, the difficulty of the languages, the trying climate of many places—we do indeed realise how pressing is the call for more workers, more heart-whole consecration, more prayer, more of the power of the Holy Ghost.

The need for more labourers realised in the field.

SINDH.

THE work in Sindh is of a waiting and preparing character, as the Bishop of Lahore justly remarked in his Visitation address in April, 1893. No adult baptisms are reported from any of the stations. All the more do the missionaries and other agents labouring at these stations need the Church's sympathy and prayers. The Rev. A. W. Cotton has felt obliged to retire owing to family circumstances. Mrs. R. Heaton came home invalided in April.

Ordination.

The Bishop of Lahore admitted Mr. A. E. Redman to Deacon's Orders on February 18, 1894.

KARACHI.

Karachi.

The Rev. A. E. Ball says of Karachi :—

For forty years the Word has been preached, and individuals have been gathered into the kingdom, and though the mass of the population remains practically untouched, the influence of Christianity is spreading, and not a few are almost Christians. In the meantime Islam is strong, gaining occasionally a proselyte from among the Hindus, while Hinduism shows but little sign of decay. The year has seen three new idol temples built, at a cost of some Rs. 60,000, and a fourth is nearing completion.

New idol temples.

The High School, under the Rev. W. J. Abigail, was successful in winning two Government scholarships, each of five rupees a month, against eight competitors of the Government and Mohammedan schools in the town, which was a source of great encouragement. Mr. Abigail gives the following account of his own part in the work of teaching :—

Scripture teaching in High School.

My day is as follows : I open school (at 10 A.M.) with a few verses (the portion in Daily Light) and prayer. I then go to my class-room, and the four upper divisions come, each for a 40 minutes' lesson. This continuous three hours' talking is very tiring (to the flesh), but very delightful. The boys are from about 12 to 20 years of age. They are most of them married, and many are parents of children. All this teaching is in English. Our headmaster takes the second standard, and a catechist the two Sindhi divisions (of younger boys). We resume at two, and I am present at two more Bible-lessons given to the younger Gujerati boys by two excellent young Christian masters. I hope to help to make these good teachers. English for an hour with the matriculation class brings my day to a close.

The Congregation numbers betweeen 80 and 90, under the Native pastor, the Rev. B. N. Ghose, but their spiritual state leaves much to be desired, Mr. Ball says. Bazaar-preaching is daily—and sometimes two and three times a day—carried on in Sindhi, Hindustani, and Gujerathi. Mr. Ball met on one occasion a fakir who accosted him in good English, and whom he found on inquiry to be a graduate of Calcutta University. He had resorted to this mode of life after the death of his wife and children. A band of Evangelists, consisting of the Gujerathi masters, under the manager of the Book Depôt, went out 72 times for preaching during the year. An old Mohammedan who had been an inquirer for several years, but was prevented from being baptized by his wife's influence, died in the autumn. He was so deaf that intercourse with him was necessarily by writing. He had a small library of Christian books, but he died outwardly a Mohammedan. Twenty-four English Lectures were delivered, the first by the Rev. J. G.

A University graduate fakir.

Watson, Association Secretary in the Midland Counties, while on a tour round the world. The Bishop of Lahore gave a lecture on "The Bible." The Vernacular School had an average daily attendance of 363. The sale of vernacular books from the Book Depôt was 16,491, of which 1,131 were Scripture portions.

HYDRABAD.

The Rev. J. Redman feels ready to cry, like the prophet of old, "I have laboured in vain." The agencies are the same in kind as those at Karachi. Mr. Redman says:— Hydrabad

We have had no baptisms during the past year. The seed still falls on stony places, where there is not much earth, and little fruit is brought forth into the garners of the Heavenly Husbandman. Meanwhile, work in schools, bazaar, book shop, and the districts round has been carried on, but not with the vigour one would wish, for we still mourn the paucity of workers, and ill-health has somewhat hindered.

SUKKUR.

A small church to seat 70 people was opened at this station on January 6, 1894.

WESTERN INDIA MISSION.

For fifty years after Bombay became a British possession the English had neither church nor chaplain in the city, and it was not till a century later that any effort was made for the evangelisation of its inhabitants. The first missionary of the C.M.S. to work in Bombay was the Rev. Richard Kenney, who landed in 1820; Nasik was occupied in 1832; Junir, 1846; Malegâm, 1848; and Aurungabad, 1860.

Reinforcement.

THE only reinforcement sent to this Mission during the year was the Rev. William Hope Dixon, M.A., Hertford College, Oxford, Curate of Crewkerne in Somersetshire. He sailed in October in company with the Rev. Ruttonji Nowroji, who returned to India after a six months' visit to this country. The Rev. E. J. and Mrs. Jones sailed in November, 1893, after furlough, and the Rev. A. and Mrs. Manwaring in January, 1894, after a short visit necessitated by Mr. Manwaring's health. The Rev. J. A. and Mrs. Harriss came home invalided in September, 1893; the Rev. W. A. Roberts in December, on furlough; Mr. J. Jackson in January, 1894, also on furlough; Mrs. A. H. Bowman in April, on sick leave; and the Rev. A. A. and Mrs. Parry, in consequence of Mr. Parry's state of health, also in April.

Deaths of Mrs. Jackson and the Rev. Appaji Bapuji.

Mr. Jackson had the grief of losing his wife after a long illness on August 15. She was an adopted daughter of the late Rev. John Stuart Struan Robertson, of this Mission. The Rev. Appaji Bapuji, who had charge of the Marathi congregation at Poona, died on January 16, 1894. He had a serious illness at the beginning of 1893, and became paralysed in July.

BOMBAY.

Bombay.

The Rev. W. G. Peel is the Secretary of the Bombay Corresponding Committee. Two valuable papers which he read at the Diocesan Conference, on "The Missions of Christendom and the Overflowing of the Living Waters," and "Spiritual Loss and Gain," were printed in the Intelligencer for August and November, 1893.

Serious religious riots took place in Bombay in August, 1893, the result of antipathies between Hindus and Mohammedans. The former had inaugurated a "Cow Protection Society," for the purpose of preventing, or at least of discouraging, the slaughter of an animal for food which is to them an object of religious worship. The Mohammedans resented the agitation as a blow aimed at their daily food, and endeavoured to avenge the insult. The Rev. A. H. Bowman gives some particulars of the painful scenes of mutual animosity at this time:—

Religious riots.

On Friday, for several hours the Mohammedans seemed to get the better of their opponents, and did a large amount of damage; but the victory was short, seeing that they are outnumbered by the Hindus nearly four to one. Late in the evening the mill-hands turned out from their work. They number about 100,000 men, of the lower class, mostly strong and well built. They attacked the Mohammedans without mercy, desecrated their mosques, destroyed the tombs of their saints wherever they could. The scene had now reached its climax, and it became necessary for the military to charge the mob with fixed bayonets and to fire upon them. This, of course, had a great effect in driving back the crowds.

Here in the streets you may see, torn to shreds, the Koran; a little farther away, a Hindu idol thrown out of its temple; presently a funeral party, under strong armed escort, bearing the dead to their last resting-place, or to the consuming fire. So bitter has been the feeling aroused, that the Hindus have shown no respect even to the dead of their opponents, for they have hurled missiles upon the biers from their houses as they have passed by. Now we meet a man, carried by another, who has been pierced by a bayonet; or one with his own head bound up, carrying on his back a brother who has been shot in the feet, with his wife following behind, weeping piteously.

In the midst of all these sad scenes there have not been wanting relieving features in the dark picture, pointing out to us the great truth of the universal brotherhood of man. For Christians have, at great personal risk, been sheltering Mohammedans from danger; Parsees have done likewise; and even Mohammedans have sheltered Hindus.

As far as is known at present, between 50 and 60 have been killed, a great number wounded either by the rioters or by the military, and over 1,300 are in gaol.

Mr. Bowman himself had a narrow escape from falling among a party of the rioters on his way home from ministering to Mrs. Jackson on her dying bed. He relates how Miss Schwarz of the Z.B.M.M. was providentially preserved from a still greater danger:—

Merciful preservation of a Zenana lady.

One of our missionary ladies, Miss Schwarz of the Z.B.M.M. Society, had a most providential escape. She has a school in the most disturbed part of the Mohammedan quarter. On Friday afternoon she reached the school in a hired conveyance with a Mohammedan driver, and found the children in a state of panic. Her first work was to drive about a dozen of them to their homes; this was, under the circumstances, a most dangerous undertaking. Presently her own conveyance came, with a Hindu driver. The mob at once set upon him, and struck the carriage with their sticks, and told Miss Schwarz if she dared to get into it they would smash up the carriage and her too. The crowd were awed by her great courage and wonderful command of their languages. But, after all, we must trace her merciful preservation to the good hand of God upon her.

Girgaum Church.

The English congregation worshipping at Girgaum Church gives liberal support to Missionary work. A Gleaners' Union branch, with 74 members, helps to maintain and increase interest in the Missionary cause. Mr. Bowman, the minister of the church, mentions with thankfulness a Mission for Young Men which was held under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. in rooms close to the church, at which 35 young men professed to surrender their hearts and lives to their Saviour.

Mohammedan Mission.

The Mohammedan Mission had a fruitful year. Seven persons, after due preparation, were baptized, a larger number than the Rev. J. G. Deimler has ever been privileged to receive into the Church in one year. One of the converts was a Hindu, but

Baptisms:

A convert from Islam who was formerly a Hindu; had become a Mohammedan through the influence of some teachers and fellow-students in a Government school. Hearing that a distinguished moulvie, a champion of Islam, had become a Christian, he visited him in company with other moulvies, and after listening to a discussion between them was inclined to become a Christian. On several occasions he was assaulted and had to obtain police protection. After his baptism he was sent to Allahabad Divinity School. Another was a native of Kerbela, the sacred place of the Shiah Mohammedans in Asiatic Turkey. He was at Cawnpore at the time of the Mutiny, and the inward struggle which issued in his baptism appears to have begun soon after that period. On one occasion a number of Mohammedans forced him into a room, folded a carpet about him, and then kicked and beat him till he was nearly dead. The third was a native of Rampur in the North-West Provinces. The fourth was a Rajput, and a soldier in the army. He stated that the officer of his regiment put him under arrest for a fortnight for visiting a Christian missionary. The fifth was a woman from Amritsar. While in that city, the inmate of her brother's house, curiosity led her to invite a Bible-woman whom she saw passing to enter and explain her object in visiting the neighbouring houses. When the Bible-woman's visit had been many times repeated the brother removed his sister from Amritsar, and is said to have even attempted to poison her, but she discovered his plot providentially through letting a favourite cat drink some milk in which poison had been placed for herself. The effect upon the animal disclosed her brother's aim, and she escaped from the house in the night and made her way to Bombay, and was there admitted to the Converts' Home of the Z.B.M.M., and after instruction was baptized in March, 1893. The sixth convert was a native of Peshawar, aged 18. His trade was that of a horse-dealer. While at Malegâm he heard the Gospel preached, and after some weeks of indecision he sought further light. The Rev. F. G. Macartney sent him to Bombay, where Moulvie Abdulla Beg instructed him. Subsequently he joined the army at Ahmednagar. He states that his Pathan countrymen, seeing him attend church, complained about him to the colonel commanding the battalion, and that he was told either to continue in the Mohammedan religion or to take his discharge, and he accepted the latter alternative. The seventh convert was from Kashmir. His uncle is a Christian, and this fact impressed him favourably towards Christianity. The catechist Sayed Shah conversed with him after a street-preaching one evening, and introduced him to Moulvie Beg. This catechist received a bad wound in his forehead from a fanatical Mohammedan on one occasion when about to commence preaching. The Hindustani Congregation has increased to about 30, who are regularly visited by Mr. Deimler. Miss Marie L. F. Deimler has a Girls' School for Mohammedan children, of whom 14 were on the roll at the end of the year, all Bohrahs except three, who were Persians. No difficulty was experienced in getting them to attend the Bible lessons and hymn-singing and prayer, though the parents objected to their attending a Sunday-school which Miss Deimler tried to start.

At the Robert Money School a Sunday class is held by one of the tutors, which sometimes as many as 40 boys attend. The total number of pupils in the school was 248—8 Protestants, 3 Romanists, 6 Jews, 5 Mohammedans, 98 Brahmins, and 128 other Hindus. The Rev. W. H. Dixon was placed in temporary charge of the school when Mr. J. Jackson left in December to take furlough—a much-needed furlough after the long illness and death of Mrs. Jackson, and after 25 years of service with only 11 months of the time spent out of India. The Rev. Dayaram Shindé, who was transferred in July, 1893, from Malegâm to Bombay, was formerly a pupil and afterwards a teacher in the Money School, and he recalls with gratitude the faithful teaching and loving influence of the Rev. H. A. Bren when Principal of that institution. Mr. Shindé daily taught the Scriptures for an hour in the school, but his chief work was the pastorship of the Marathi Congregation. The attendances at the morning services were good, but the afternoon service and weekly prayer-meeting are not appreciated as they should be. Robert Money School.

NASIK.

The Rev. W. C. Whiteside succeeded to the charge of the work at this station when the Rev. W. A. Roberts left for furlough in November; and the Rev. C. W. Thorne was transferred to Junir. A new church, St. Andrew's, was dedicated by the Bishop of Bombay on December 12 at Sharanpur. A Y.M.C.A. has been established at this settlement, and a band of voluntary preachers does much good work visiting Nasik and the neighbouring villages. Two Sunday-schools were opened, which Mr. Whiteside says are full of rich promise. He adds regarding them:— Nasik. Sunday Schools.

In one school there is an average attendance of 60 boys. In both schools a Scripture examination was held, with the result that 23 boys received prizes for repetition of the Ten Commandments, with St. Matthew, chap. xxii. 37, 38, 39, and the Lord's Prayer.

Besides those at Nasik and Sharanpur, there are small bodies of Christians at Kasara, Igatpuri, Sinnar, Sangaumar, Yeola, and Mukhmalabad, numbering 377 altogether, under the pastorship of the Rev. D. Lucas Joshi. The contributions increased from Rs. 87 in 1890 to Rs. 452 in 1893. The catechist at Sangaumar, 42 miles from Nasik, has succeeded in winning the confidence and goodwill of some of the people, who took his side whenever others made a disturbance.

Itinerations.

Mr. Thorne itinerated in the cold weather of 1892–3 in the Nasik Districts. Much opposition was experienced in the towns; sometimes showers of stones were thrown at the preachers, and on one occasion a Native evangelist was knocked down and badly cut by a blow from a large stone. In some places they find much difficulty in obtaining provisions, owing to the hostility of the Brahmins. Mr. Thorne mentions the following incidents of his tour :—

A village woman offers worship to a missionary.

We frequently preached in village halls, where we found an image of Maruti (the monkey god), or of Ganesh, or of some other deity.

A curious thing happened at one of the villages near Peint. We were seated on the ground teaching a few poor people who had gathered around us, when a woman, bearing an offering in her hands, came to present it and to worship us. She believed that we were either gods or teachers of the Brahmin type who must be propitiated with an offering, and so, prostrating herself, she set before us a brass vessel containing a lighted lamp, some copper pice, and some uncooked rice. At first I did not comprehend her meaning, never having been treated in that way before, but when the truth dawned upon me I hastened to assure her that we were men of like passions with those assembled there, and that "they should turn from such vanities to serve the living and true God, who made heaven and earth and the sea and all things that are therein." She would not stay, however, but went off to her home, leaving her offering on the ground before us.

Another had heard of missionaries, but had not expected to see one.

Another woman said that she had often heard of missionaries, and wondered what kind of beings they were, though she had never expected to see one. She was very interested in all she heard, and said she hoped to see us again some day. In this district we travelled about over hills and down into valleys with little villages nestling in them, always meeting with a kind reception from these simple folks, who have never before even heard of Jesus. So far as I know, no missionary has ever visited Peint before, and yet it is only 30 miles from Nasik. How sad to think that thousands at our very doors have never heard the sweet sound of the Gospel because there is no one to carry it to them! Who will come and help in this crying need?

POONA AND JUNIR.

Poona.

At Poona the Rev. J. A. Harriss, on his coming home, was succeeded in the charge of the Divinity School by the Rev. A. A. Parry; but since going there Mr. Parry had a severe illness in the spring of 1894, which has necessitated his return to England. The Rev. Sorabji Kharsedji visits the Native gentry. In his frequent journeys by train to Bombay and Nasik and other places he seeks and finds opportunities for religious conversation. The death of the Rev. Appaji Bapuji of this station has been already mentioned.

Junir Itinerancy.

New ground was broken by the itinerants from Junir among the Koli aborigines inhabiting the Ghauts between Junir and Poona. The Rev. W. C. Whiteside, who was stationed at Junir until the rainy season of 1893 commenced, when he was transferred to Nasik, says of these people and of others met with in the itineration :—

They showed much readiness to hear the Gospel, and freely purchased Christian books and Scripture portions. Many purchased who were wholly illiterate, who, when asked why they purchased, said they hoped to hear the story sometimes when a chance reader came to the village. The "Satyashodak Mandali," or "Truth-seeking Assembly," as it is literally translated, has much influence over this simple people, and the influence is on the whole decidedly in favour of Christianity. We encountered such evidences of real interest in Christ as made our hearts to rejoice and be full of hope. It is very desirable that the Mission may be so strengthened as to enable the work to be carried on aggressively where there is so manifest an opening.

"Truth-seeking Assembly."

At a large village lying towards Ahmednagar we found traces of the work of Junnar missionaries in former years. Here was a low caste man, but well-to-do and educated, who said that he with fifteen others had been under instruction for baptism fully twenty years ago, but since the Rev. C. F. Schwarz was removed to Nasik they had not been visited until our visit of this year. Of the many who were thus under instruction, most were dead, and the few who were left had become careless. "No man cared for their souls."

Unvisited for twenty years—some dead, some careless.

In the town of Junir there are five day-schools, including an Anglo-Vernacular and a school for Mahar children opened during the past year; two Sunday-schools; and three preaching-halls, one in the centre of the market, one in the main thoroughfare, and the third in the Mahar quarter for the very poorest class of the inhabitants. One of the converts whom Mr. Whiteside baptized some time since is very faithful in witnessing to the grace of Christ. The Rev. C. W. Thorne says of him :—

He tells his fellow townsmen "I was a rascal and a profligate. I squandered all my fortune and ruined my health. I tried Hinduism and Mohammedanism (this is perfectly true), and never found any good until I came to the Lord Jesus Christ, but in Him I found perfect peace, and it will be a happy day for you when you do the same." Sometimes they deride him, but John sticks to his guns, and his adversaries have to beat as graceful a retreat from the field as possible. Will our friends pray that his testimony may be blessed, and that others may be raised up to be like witnesses for Christ?

A convert's personal testimony.

MALEGÂM.

Malegâm.

The Rev. E. J. and Mrs. Jones have been placed at Malegâm since their return to India at the close of 1893. The congregation numbers 180, including those at the out-stations; the majority of them, however, are Mission agents and their dependents. The Rev. F. G. Macartney observed an increasing interest in the affairs of their Church. He wrote :—

Growing interest in Church matters.

The Pastorate Committee held its meetings regularly, and now takes its proper position as the local governing Church body in all matters relating to the collection of money towards the support of the pastor, the administration of the poor fund, and the making provision for the decent and reverent performance of divine service. There is already a keen competition for seats on this Committee, and as time goes on I am sure that it will exercise an increasing power for good on the little Christian communities scattered over the district. Our people are evidently waking up to the fact that the Society's Native Church system is destined to affect vitally the various interests of the Native Churches in connexion with the C.M.S. in India; and in the near future, unless I am greatly mistaken, we shall find a growing desire on the part of the more prominent Indian Christians to make their influence felt in the development of the Native Church organisation.

Effects of Mission School teaching on boys' views of religion.

Some 450 pupils are taught in the Schools, Anglo-Vernacular and Vernacular, in which Mr. Macartney daily gives lessons from the Bible to the elder boys. "No intelligent boy," he says, "can spend a year or more in our Bible-classes without having his ideas of religion completely transformed." Mr. Macartney had a class during the rainy season for the three Bible-women supplied by the Z.B.M.M., and he greatly values their work in the town and neighbouring villages. The six evangelists went out in three parties and visited numerous villages, while in Malegâm itself audiences of 150 to 200 sometimes gathered round the Mission-room door. One of the Mohammedan converts baptized at Bombay, a young Pathan named Khanar Khan, was the fruit in a great measure of the outdoor preaching at Malegâm. A young Hindu from the Ahmednagar district, a bricklayer by trade, was attracted by the preaching of Manmar, and was there baptized in August.

AURANGABAD.

Aurangabad.

The return of the Rev. Ruttonji Nowroji to his friends and work at Aurangabad in November was the occasion for the manifestation of the deep and general respect which is entertained for his character and devotion by Europeans and Natives alike, nay, even by Mohammedans and Parsees as well as by Christians. A local paper gives the following account of the reception:—

Enthusiastic welcome to a Native clergyman on returning to his people.

The Rev. Ruttonji Nowroji, the veteran missionary in charge of the local Church Missionary Society, having proceeded to England at the request of the Home Committee of the C.M.S. some eight months ago, returned to Aurangabad on the evening of the 17th ultimo, when he received a hearty reception, which was as characteristic as it was unique—for instead of the reception being confined to the members of the congregation, every one other than Christians who knew Mr. Ruttonji vied with each other to do honour to the occasion. The consequence was that long before the time appointed there was not a single seat available, having been occupied by the ladies and officers of the Garrison and other big folks who were invited, while the motley crowd thronged round the seats.

The road leading up to the entrance of the Mission compound was illuminated with numerous buttees and decorated with flags, flowers, and suitable texts. A large number of Christians and some of Mr. Ruttonji's friends had proceeded as far as the village of Padegaon, a distance of a mile and a half, to escort the reverend gentleman. A full band and an open carriage and pair were sent to receive him. After a short prayer by the Rev. Mr. Lucas, the pastor, in the open air at the village of Padegaon, the procession proceeded, having Mr. Ruttonji and three Misses Ruttonji in the open carriage, with a band playing at short intervals, and with an occasional display of fireworks. By the time the procession reached near the entrance of the reception, the crowd thronged and filled the Mission compound. As soon as Mr. Ruttonji alighted from the carriage, he was received by Captain C. Chamier, the Cantonment Magistrate, and introduced to the ladies and gentlemen who assembled to welcome him.

As soon as the usual greetings were over, a thanksgiving hymn was sung and a prayer was offered in English by Captain C. Chamier, the chairman, followed by the Rev. Mr. Lucas, C.M.S., in Marathi. After this Captain Chamier, according to the programme, asked Mr. S. B. Joseph, of the Aurangabad High School, to read the address of welcome on behalf of the C.M.S. Christians. Mr. Joseph then stepped forward and read an address in English.

Referring himself, in a letter to the Secretaries of the Society, to his "friendly reception," Mr. Ruttonji said, "I transfer all this honour to my Divine Master, to Whom all honour rightly belongs." He has addressed many meetings since his return, giving his impression of England. He writes:— "I transfer all this honour to my Divine Master."

At Badnapur, Rosengaon, Nanegaon, Saigaon, Adgaon, Pimpei, and other large villages I have addressed audiences of the upper classes. They were eager to hear about England and its wonders. When comparing England with India they invariably remarked, "What a wonderful country that must be! Surely God has blessed it, but He has forgotten us." I told them that He has not forgotten them; on the contrary, they have forgotten Him. "Give up your idolatry. Forsake your evil ways. Repent of your sins. Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ; and you too will enjoy all the blessings of the Gospel of Peace."

The Rev. Lucas Maloba was in charge of the station during Mr. Ruttonji's absence, and reports 42 baptisms, including those of children. A Sunday-school for English-speaking children—European and Native—was opened, at which Captain Chamier and the two Misses Ruttonji were the teachers.

European Ordained Missionaries, 13; European Lay Missionary, 1; European Lady Missionary, 1.

SOUTH INDIA MISSION.

The Tamil country south of Madras was the scene of the S.P.C.K.'s Missions in the last century. But the first two clergymen of the Church of England who went to India as missionaries were sent to Madras by the Church Missionary Society in 1814. Work was commenced at Ootacamund, on the Nilgiri Hills, in 1870.

The Telugu Mission was begun in 1841 by two of the most devoted men on the roll of Missionaries, Robert Noble and H. W. Fox. Noble started the famous English school at Masulipatam, now known by his name, worked it for twenty-four years, and died at his post in 1865. Several Brahmins trained in it have embraced the Gospel, and it has sent forth several Native clergymen to labour among their countrymen. Fox was a preaching Missionary, and set the example of those itinerating and rural missionary efforts which have resulted in the foundation of an increasing Telugu Native Church, chiefly drawn from the Malas and other low-caste or out-caste people. Ellore was occupied in 1854; Bezwada, 1858; Râghavapuram, 1872; and Kummamett, 1888. A Mission among the Kois, a non-Aryan tribe on the Upper Godavery, was founded by General Haig in 1860.

In 1820 the Rev. J. Hough, Chaplain at Palamcotta, drew the attention of the Society to the claims of Tinnevelly, where there was already a community of 3,000 professed Native Christians, an offshoot from the S.P.C.K.'s Lutheran Mission in Tanjore. Two Missionaries were at once set apart for this work, and from that time to this, through the labours of Rhenius, Pettitt, Thomas, J. T. Tucker, Hobbs, Sargent, &c., the Gospel has not ceased to spread among the Tamil population, chiefly among the Shanars, or cultivators of the palmyra tree. In North Tinnevelly a vigorous Itinerant Mission was established by Ragland, D. Fenn, and Meadows. Dr. Sargent and Dr. Caldwell were consecrated in 1877 as Assistant Bishops to the Bishop of Madras for the Native Churches. The former died in 1889 and the latter in 1891.

Convention at Kodai-Kanal.

As for several years past—since 1870—the Missionaries, British and American, who resorted for rest and change to Kodai-Kanal in the month of May, 1893, held a Convention for the deepening of their spiritual life. The Committee rejoice unfeignedly whenever they hear of such gatherings, whether of the Society's Missionaries and Native Clergy among themselves, or in fellowship with Missionaries of other Protestant Societies. The Rev. Ll. G. Scott Price sent home the following bright account of the meetings:—

Nestling in its bosom of mountains, whose wooded slopes surround with picturesque beauty its four-armed lake, lies Kodai-Kanal, the "Keswick" of South India. Here, surrounded by Nature in her loveliness, invigorated by the deliciously pure and cool air—for Kodai is over 7,000 feet above the sea—many of God's servants find a quiet place to "rest awhile," away from the heat and toil of the plains.

While resting here, where the tokens of our Father's hand and of His love are so numerous, we seek to be drawn nearer to Him, to know more of His love to us, more of what He would have from us, and more of what He is willing to do for us. Having been giving out all the year, we now seek for that filling of the Spirit.

The general subject of the Convention was "Sons of God." At the morning meetings the different aspects of Christ the Son were dwelt upon, and in the afternoon the subject of Christians as "Sons of the Living God" was looked into in the light of God's Word. A scheme for the whole Convention had been drawn out by the Rev. E. A. Douglas (C.M.S.), of which these are the heads:—Christ "the SON" as the Author of Salvation; the Head of the Church; the Heavenly Heir; the Coming King. Christians "the Sons"—the Condition of Sonship; the Privilege of Sonship; the Spirit of Sonship; the Liberty of Sonship; the Discipline of Sonship; the Duties of Sonship; the Destiny of Sonship; the Consummation of Sonship.

Throughout all the meetings there was the utmost liberty and freedom, and many opportunities were given for earnest extempore prayer as well as for the expression of thoughts which God had put into our hearts while meditating upon His Word.

The Committee have sent out the Rev. Thomas Henry K. Fitzpatrick, M.A., late Scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge, son of the late Rev. T. H. Fitzpatrick, who with the Rev. Robert Clark founded the C.M.S. Punjab Mission in 1851, and nephew of the Rev. John Barton; and Mr. John McLeod Hawkins, son of the Rev. R. M. Hawkins, Vicar of Christ Church, Brighton, the former to Madras and the latter to Tinnevelly. Mr. Hawkins offered his services to the Society in 1890, but on medical grounds his offer was not accepted at that time. Since then he has laboured independently for two years side by side with the Society's missionaries, and has passed the language examinations. Besides the above, the Rev. A. H. Lash has been transferred from the Travancore Mission to Ootacamund. Reinforcements.

The Bishop of Madras on Trinity Sunday, May 28, 1893, at Ootacamund, admitted the Revs. D. S. David and P. N. Devanayagam to Priest's Orders, and Mr. W. D. Clarke, B.A., to Deacon's Orders; on March 11, 1894, at Ellore, he admitted the Revs. K. Peter, K. Naganna, and B. Daniel to Priest's Orders, and Messrs. Govadi Anandayya and Mandapti Jonah to Deacon's Orders. The Rev. F. W. N. Alexander says of the latter occasion:— Ordinations.

On the day of the Ordination the Ellore Mission Church presented an animated scene—676 persons were present. Of these 12 or 14 represented the English Congregation; all the rest were Natives.

The Bishop and his Chaplain (the Rev. S. Morley), the Rev. E. Sell, Secretary to the Madras Corresponding Committee, five of the European Missionary Clergy, and seven Native Clergymen, walked in procession up the church, singing one of our English hymns.

A Native Priest read the Litany and another the Communion Service. The Bishop and his Chaplain, assisted by the Revs. E. Sell and J. Harrison, administered the Holy Communion to the clergymen and the English congregation. Two Europeans and two Native Clergymen administered to the Native Communicants, who numbered no less than 150. The Rev. J. Stone preached the sermon in Telugu. All the Clergy laid their hands on the candidates along with the Bishop. There was some hearty singing of lyrics and English metres in the vernacular; so there was no weariness in the Service. It was truly an impressive scene—such a congregation and such an Ordination, where thirty years ago there was hardly a single Christian! Let doubters take this as an object lesson showing the strides Christianity is making. An impressive scene.

To people living in large Christian centres it may be thought overstrained to make so much of an Ordination that sends two Deacons and three Priests into God's work; but it means a great deal more than the ordination of the same number of clergymen over English congregations. Each one of these has from 25 to 30 congregations under his charge, and the Native Priests will administer the Holy Communion regularly and frequently in circles where it has hitherto been administered about once in three or four months. Each Pastorate will have a Native Minister in charge, and Church life and Church ordinances will go on all the more steadily under Native Priests raised up from among the people themselves.

A trying journey for Bishop Gell.

Only one cloud darkened the brightness of the day. Our good Bishop, who out of love to God's Church took the long and weary journey from Madras in a very hot season of the year, was very unwell before he began the service, and some of us thought he could not carry it through to the end; but the Lord granted His servant the needful strength and the service was finished. The Bishop was then, however, very weak, and had to take to his bed, which he kept for two days, and then started on the return journey, not at all able to meet its fatigue. Since then we learn that the effects of this journey have made his Lordship still worse. It will be the prayer of all that God may raise him up speedily and give us once more our good Bishop to labour among us.

I. MADRAS.

Death of Rev. J. H. Gray.

THE Rev. Joseph Henry Gray, who laboured from 1837 to 1847 at Madras, died on October 28, 1893. Mr. Gray graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, in mathematical and classical honours in 1835. The following year he obtained the Primate of Ireland's first Hebrew prize and the Regius Professor's first Divinity prize. After retiring from the work in consequence of enfeebled health, he held the perpetual curacy of St. Barnabas, Isle of Man, for 18 years, and the rectory of Keynsham, near Bristol, for 23 years. From 1870 till 1888 he also held the post of Association Secretary for the Society in Gloucestershire.

Visit of Revs. E. N. Thwaites and Martin J Hall.

The Revs. E. N. Thwaites and Martin J. Hall spent four days in Madras, from March 24 to 28, and addressed gatherings of missionaries of various societies, lay members of the Native Church Council, young men, Sunday-school children, besides conducting Mission services at Christ Church and holding Bible readings at Zion Church. A deep impression was made, which it is hoped will be permanent.

In November there sailed for the Mission the Rev. M. G. Goldsmith, returning from short furlough, to engage temporarily in Work among Mohammedans in the Nizam's dominions, the doctors having recommended that climate for him in preference to that of Madras; the Rev. T. H. Fitzpatrick, to take up work at the Harris School, Madras, which Mr. Goldsmith formerly conducted; and Mrs. Goldsmith, wife of the Rev. H. D. Goldsmith, Principal of the Divinity Class. There were four Divinity students during the year.

Work among educated Hindus.

The Rev. S. John says that the attitude of Educated Hindus in Madras towards Christianity is that of indifference. He visited and held discussions with men of all classes in Black Town, Triplicane, Royapettah, and Chintadrepettah. Some adhere tenaciously to the religious customs and ceremonies of their ancestors; others are theists; while others again speak highly of Christ and His moral teaching, but think it unnecessary to confess Him in baptism. The Pastorates in connexion with the Madras Church Council are four in number—the Southern, the Northern, the St. Thomas' Mount, and Poonamallee. Four ordained pastors, seven catechists and readers, 82 schoolmasters and mistresses, 31 primary schools, one high and one middle school are under the Council. The Rev. W. D. Clarke, after his admission to Deacon's Orders in March 1893, was appointed to the Southern Pastorate, the sphere for 25 years of his father-in-law, the late Rev. W. T. Satthianadhan. He thus refers to the influence that Mr. Satthianadhan's family exercised upon his life:— Pastorates.

Ten years ago, when I was a student in the Madras Christian College, I felt an inward call, and resolved that sooner or later my life should be consecrated for the service of the Lord and the salvation of souls, and my connexion with Mr. Satthianadhan's family in 1885 was the turning-point in my life's history. For the whole-hearted consecration, the intense zeal and devotion I observed in the members of the family added fuel to the flame that was already burning in my heart.

The two congregations in this pastorate, those worshipping at Zion Church and at John Pereira's respectively, have 724 baptized members, of whom 351 are communicants. There were 16 accessions from Hinduism and six from Mohammedanism during the year, the largest number recorded in the history of the pastorate. The contributions amounted to Rs. 1,676. The 26th anniversary of the pastorate was observed in October, and the Bishop of Madras presided on the occasion. Zion Church, in which the meeting was held, was filled to overflowing. The Bishop's speech, as recorded in the Madras localised Gleaner, was as follows:— Bishop Gell at Zion Church, Madras.

He rejoiced to see the same Christian fire in Chintadrepettah as had been visible in the late Mr. Satthianadhan's time. The report showed growth both in numbers and in the gifts of the congregation. There were more baptisms from Heathenism and Mohammedanism than in any previous year. They all knew how slow the progress amongst Moslems had been, but all should pray for the work, while efforts for the salvation of the surrounding Hindus would be easier to them. It was not by attacks on idolatry, but by gentle persuasion and good example, that Hinduism was to be defeated. There were thousands who were dissatisfied with Hinduism and were watching the lives of Christians. They had a noble example to remember in their late pastor. If the English had left India altogether, Mr. Satthianadhan was one whom he (the Bishop) felt sure would have stood firm in persecution and martyrdom; and were there not many more who would never apostatise? But, in order to be ready for such a trial, there must be preparation for it by daily self-sacrifice and communion with God.

The members of the Preachers' Association in connexion with the Southern Pastorate go out weekly in the streets of Madras, and in December, as in the three previous years, they mustered in force and went for a several days' tour. Pallavaram, twelve miles south-west of Madras, was the place chosen for attack. Visit of Preachers' Association to Pallavaram.

Twenty-five members joined the party, most of whom paid for their board and railway fare. With violin, triangle, and other musical accompaniments, and with flags inscribed with mottoes and texts, such as "God is love," "The wages of sin is death," "Trust in Jesus," "Jesus the King of kings is coming," the preachers set forth, after fervent prayer, to the work. A few extracts from Mr. Clarke's full and interesting account of the effort must be given :—

Prayer for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

Ten days before they started for Pallavaram, the members met together at the Chintadrepetta Lecture Hall and spent an hour in exhorting and encouraging one another and asking God's blessing to rest upon their important mission. A second prayer-meeting was held in the same hall, when half-a-dozen members prayed one after another for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit and actually wrestled with the God of Jacob till the members felt the presence and touch of the Heavenly fire. The prayer-hearing God, Who blessed Jacob of old, wonderfully answered their prayers and crowned the mission with marked success. The preachers seemed to be under special inspiration, filled and animated by one spirit, burning with the desire that souls must be brought to the light of the Gospel.

Tract-distributing on the railway.

The preachers, about twenty-five in number, met together at the South Indian Railway Station on Monday, the 18th, at 1 P.M., and, after a word of prayer, took their seats in different closely packed third-class carriages, and as the train was in motion the members were busy in distributing tracts and handbills, and wherever the train stopped at the intervening stations a few minutes were spent in preaching in railway carriages. Some of the members would also be seen running about on the platform from one end of the train to the other, throwing hand-bills into those carriages that had not a preacher in them. The plan which was used on their way to Pallavaram was also repeated on their return journey to Madras.

The preachers, originally belonging to half-a-dozen castes, had a common table, sat together to partake of food served after pure native style on leafy plates, conversed together, sang and prayed together as members of one large family.

The first meeting went on for about three hours and a half ; 25 members took part in the meeting, and as many as 850 were given the privilege of hearing the sweet name of Jesus. On three successive evenings, three large meetings like this were held in the town, and when the preaching tour came to a close we heard it remarked that there could hardly be one soul in Pallavaram which had missed attending one of these evening meetings.

Compassing Pallavaram.

After these meetings were over, the whole of the preachers' band almost repeated what the Israelites of old did to Jericho. They marched round Pallavaram singing, with music and flags and torchlight, and as the procession moved round some were busy in distributing hand-bills to the women that were peeping out of their doors and windows ; some others were shouting out "The Kingdom of God is at hand, repent ye and believe in the Lord Jesus," "The Lord Jesus is coming, prepare to meet Him," &c. Now and then the procession halted in some convenient centre and short Gospel addresses were given. Never before had Pallavaram witnessed such a novel Christian demonstration.

The preachers returned home at 8 P.M., and, after a short recess of about half-an-hour, they met together again for a revival meeting among themselves. This and three other similar meetings held in the Preachers' Hall were calculated to rouse the members to fresh zeal and activity, and the success of the preaching tour was due to the influence of the Holy Spirit Whose presence and special guidance was earnestly sought and felt in these revival meetings. No programme was followed, the meetings being informal. After a hymn and a few words of introduction from the chair, which was occupied by the pastors of St. Thomas' Mount and Zion Church alternately, the meeting was thrown open for members to make short stirring addresses and offer short prayers. Mornings were set apart for village work.

Parochial Associations.

There are also in this Southern Pastorate a Christian Association and a Juvenile Association. The former has completed its thirteenth year and has eighty members. Bible Classes, Devotional Meetings, Lecture Meetings, Discussion Meetings, and Literary Classes are held, and there is a Temperance Branch, a Library, and a Reading Room. The Juvenile Association has ninety members, and is divided into three branches, one for children under seven, who meet for Bible teaching, one for boys and girls over ten, and a working party. The Rev. D. A. Peter, of the Northern Pastorate, baptized ten adults, and presented 31 candidates for confirmation. A new east window was presented by a member of the Black Town congregation. An evangelist, supported by the Post Office Mission, works among the employés of the Postal Department. At Pulicat, in this pastorate, there is a congregation of forty souls. The Mount Pastorate, under the Rev. J. Satthianadhan, has three congregations—at the Mount, Pallavaram, and Manimangalam—with an aggregate of 206 members. There were four adult baptisms. One of the converts was a Mohammedan, a pensioned Havildar. The Rev. H. D. Goldsmith says of him:—

A Sepoy convert.

On April 30 I had the pleasure of baptizing a Moslem convert, one Daud Fareed, a prominent Sepoy, living at St. Thomas' Mount. My late pupil, the Rev. John Satthianadhan, brought him to our notice, and helped him as far as he could in Tamil, with which language Daud is but imperfectly acquainted, so he often walked in eight miles to Madras to attend our Hindustani services on Sunday, and was further instructed in the way of God by brethren in the Harris School compound. He had, strangely, married a Roman Catholic wife, who became persuaded of the errors of Rome and of Islam, and had publicly renounced them both. It was through her influence that Daud was led to seek Christ. He lives on his pension and his pay as peon in the employ of a large business firm in Madras.

A "Sisters' Society," the members of which meet once a month for reading God's Word, and for prayer; a Working Party; and a Juvenile Association exist in connexion with this pastorate. The Poonamallee Pastorate has five congregations, at Poonamallee, Mevelur, Valerpuram, Numbel, and Padur, with an aggregate of 457 members and 202 communicants. The Sunday-schools have an average attendance of 132 children, Mohammedans and Hindus, as well as Christians.

NILGIRI TAMIL MISSION (OOTACAMUND).

Nilgiri Mission.

The Rev. A. H. Lash arrived at Octacamund on November 1. Before writing his Annual Letter at the end of December he had spent a month travelling through the Wynaad and a week at Coonoor. He has sent a helpful report of the state of the Mission and its needs, which the Committee have had under their careful consideration. A severe loss has been suffered by the death in the autumn of Miss Wallinger, Honorary Missionary of the C.E.Z.M.S. It was through her zeal and energy that the first teacher was sent in 1890 to labour among the Todas, and the work at Ootacamund and Coonoor has been greatly sustained by her labours and those of Miss C. F. Ling and Miss E. E. Synge.

II. TELUGU MISSION.

THE Rev. C. W. A. Clarke, the Rev. F. W. N. and Mrs. Alexander, and Mrs. J. B. Panes returned to the Mission in November and December.

MASULIPATAM.

Masulipatam.

The Rev. C. W. A. Clarke returned just in time to be present at the Jubilee of the Noble College, which was celebrated on November 21. On that day fifty years before the Rev. Robert T. Noble opened the school with two boys, now its roll contains upwards of five hundred names. After a short service in the College Hall, Mrs. Tanner, wife of the Rev. H. J. Tanner (the Rugby-Fox Master) and daughter of Bishop Royston, planted two trees in the compound. Then a meeting of masters, senior students, and friends was held to listen to reminiscences of Mr. Noble by "Old Boys." Of those who bore their testimony to his loving influence one is the Public Prosecutor of Masulipatam, another is master in the Hindu High School, a third is Mathematical Master in the College, and a fourth a clergyman and graduate of Madras University. The meeting was followed by a "banquet," or rather by a series of them, in different parts of the town, as the Brahmins, Vaisyas, Sudras, Mohammedans, and Christians ate in separate companies. Then followed a procession through the town, headed by a huge elephant lent by the Rajah of Chullapalli, and escorted by the police band and another Native band; and the day's festivities concluded with the distribution of fruit to the schoolboys and a display of fireworks. On the second day a conference of the masters, senior students, and friends was held to discuss the future of the College, and to make suggestions for the extension of its usefulness. Of the third day's proceedings the Rev. W. C. Penn wrote:—

Noble College Jubilee.

On Thursday, November 23, at 7.30 A.M., the missionaries, Native Christians, and friends gathered around the Lord's Table after listening to a simple yet forcible address from the Rev. D. Anantam, B.A. (Brahmin convert of the College) on 2 Cor. xii. 9, "My grace is sufficient for thee." He spoke of the necessity of humility, and paid a graceful tribute to the memory of the Rev. R. T. Noble. Before the service began the congregation gathered round Noble's grave and sang "Jesus shall reign where'er the sun," a hymn which always gives a special impetus to one's faith when sung in the midst of heathen darkness. A conference of missionaries and Christian helpers was held in the College to consider the best means of rendering the evangelistic side of the College work more efficient.

"Jesus shall reign" sung at Noble's grave.

The lectures to educated Hindus in the Poole Memorial Hall, which had been discontinued owing to the weakness of the staff, were resumed during the year, and, after one of the lectures by a Native master, several of the boys in the B.A. class asked permission to go to his house every Sunday, and go over the lecture with him point by point. Mr. Penn says of these lectures:—

Lectures at Poole Memorial Hall.

The lecturers and the subjects have been as follows: Mr. Ch. Venkabachellum Pantula, Deputy Collector of the Kistna District, on "The Soul;" the Rev. W. C. Penn, M.A., "The Voice of God in History;" the Rev. J. E. Padfield, B.D., "Jerusalem and the Jews;" Dr. Uhl, of the American Mission, Guntor, "Christianity an Ultimate;" Mr. J. D. Samuel, B.A., B.L., "Science and Religion;" Mr. Muddu Krishniah Naidu, "The Philosophy of Salvation;" Mr. Ross Pillai, B.A., "Mohammed and Mohammedanism." One result of these lectures has been to stir up a more vigorous spirit of opposition against Christianity among the more bigoted Brahmins. But opposition is a healthy sign.

The attitude of some of the boys is illustrated by the following from Mr. Tanner's Annual Letter:—

Secret believers.

I have had many talks at different times with boys on the subject of religion, but I do not know of any now whom I can call real inquirers. One lad, with whom I had several such talks, told me that he quite believed that Jesus Christ was the Saviour of the world, and, indeed, his own personal Saviour, too; but he said, "So long as I really believe this in my heart, what need is there of baptism? I shall only sever myself from my relatives and friends. Why cannot I remain with them and persuade them, too, to believe?" Of course, I told him of the danger of this, and how our Saviour calls upon all to make some sacrifice for Him to prove the reality of our faith; but he could not see the necessity, as he expressed it.

While Mr. Penn says:—

My chief duty during the past year has been to teach a class of eight bright young fellows—six Brahmins and two Sudras—in the subjects prescribed for the B.A. degree of the Madras University, and I have experienced that even in teaching "secular" subjects one can find opportunities of imparting Christian ideas and thoughts.

The love of argument is very strong in the Hindus, and it needs the utmost tact and patience to bear with some of their hair-splitting arguments and their objections to Christianity. This I have especially experienced in a Christian Evidence class which I have been holding on Sunday afternoons. Some 16 or 20 of the most promising youths of the College Department attended, and we read together the Rev. Preb. Row's Manual of Christian Evidences, Part I. After I had spoken I always invited questions. Some of these showed that prejudice against Christianity which I regret to say pervades very strongly the educated Natives of India, while others evinced a genuine desire to get at the truth. I have come home several times after this class feeling very disheartened, but, on the other hand, I have seen signs for much encouragement.

Work at home and in the Mission field compared.

After considerable experience in Mission work in large towns at home, I venture to say that, humanly speaking, our work out here is a work of larger promise. There is not that materialism and indifference to spiritual matters which is so deplorable among the masses of a large London parish. I have said this much because I know that many good Christians at home still have doubts as to the expediency of higher education as a missionary agency; but I am sure if they were out here, and knew the circumstances and the state of the Hindu mind, they would not hesitate in giving it their fullest sympathy.

Preparandi Institution.

The Preparandi Institution is under the Rev. J. E. Padfield. All the five men who were ordained, as mentioned above, in March 1894 had been inmates of the Divinity Class, and all were declared by the Bishop to have passed well in the examinations, which were conducted by European and Native gentlemen wholly unconnected with the class. The Normal School had only 12 students, as compared with 21 in 1892. This was a consequence of the Education Department having considerably raised the standard for admission, a change which Mr. Padfield says "will be beneficial," although its temporary effect was a diminished roll of students. The Practising School presented 53 for the Results Grant Examination (out of 57 on its roll) and passed 46. The training master in the Normal School was formerly a pupil in the Practising School, then a student in the Normal School, and finally in the Presidency Normal School. The Government Inspector reported as follows:—

Normal School.

The schoolhouse is a model of what a cheap and good schoolhouse should be. Being airy, light, and clean, it has a most cheerful look about it. A criticism lesson was conducted by the head-master in my presence. The students who were new were told to confine their remarks to the management of the class by the teacher. Their criticisms on this were mostly just. The tone and discipline of the school were all that one would desire.

Sharkey Memorial School.

Mrs. Padfield superintends the Sharkey Memorial School, with 86 pupils, of whom 62 are boarders. All except two are Christians, most of them being of Mala origin, but some are of Chuckler and some of Sudra and Brahmin descent. During the 15 years that the school has been under Mrs. Padfield's care only two deaths of pupils have occurred, one of which happened in 1893. The object of the school, as she defines it, is "to send out fairly well educated young women with the love of Christ in their hearts, to be examples and helpers in the holy cause of winning India for Christ." Five of the girls were married during the year, all to Mission agents. Four of the girls went out from the normal class of the school as certificated teachers to conduct Mission schools. Mrs. Padfield says:—

Busy life of Boarding School girls.

The girls lead a very busy life; they do all the household work, the cooking, pounding and preparing the rice, drawing and carrying the water, and sweeping the place and keeping all clean; this, in addition to their school lessons, which are very hard, does not leave much time for idleness. They also make all their own clothes, and also those for the district missionary's boarding boys. Some of them also learn to do fancy work, and we ventured to send an exhibit to the last Fine Arts Exhibition in Madras. We sent a tatting collarette made by one of the girls, and it gained the second prize of Rs. 20.

In the superintendence of the Pastorates in and around Masulipatam, extending over an area of nearly 1,200 square miles, the Rev. A. E. Goodman assists Mr. Padfield. For some years past the low spiritual tone of the congregations in this district, and the necessity of exercising severe discipline from time to time, have been referred to in the Annual Reports. In the spring of 1893 Mr. Padfield was grieved to have to report to the Bishop the conduct of a large number (about 170) of members, whom he (the Bishop) excommunicated. Among some of them evident signs of repentance were subsequently discovered, and these drastic measures appear to have had a wholesome effect on the congregations generally. The numbers have somewhat diminished—2,098 baptized Christians instead of the 2,158 of 1892—but the number of catechumens is greater. The contributions for religious purposes, Rs. 1,270, show an improvement of Rs. 164 on the previous year, which were Rs. 184 above those of 1891, an average of R. 1 : 1 : 7 for each baptized adult in gifts of money or kind, not including the value of voluntary labour in repairing or erecting prayer-houses, &c. Mr. Padfield has earnestly aimed at promoting a healthy spirit of self-support, and he is encouraged by signs of real success. He says :—

Pastorates.

Exercise of discipline.

Growing spirit of self-support.

The people now willingly erect the necessary buildings, or do the required repairs, where formerly such work was often done with great difficulty, or even, at times, at the expense of the Mission. All the children in the village schools now pay a small fee, and also provide their own books and slates, &c., which is a new departure that has taken several years to get recognised by the people. In one instance also the people actually pay a proportion of the salary of the schoolmaster, an instance that, I trust, will soon cease to be an exception. There is also a desire springing up amongst the village congregations to have a better class of prayer-house or church than the present mud-wall and thatch-roof buildings.

In the village of Zonnapad Mr. Padfield baptized forty persons, twenty of them adults, mostly by immersion in the village tank. Of this interesting ceremony he writes :—

Forty persons baptized in a village tank.

The catechumens were all assembled in the little prayer-house, which, by the way, had been erected by the people themselves at their own cost, except that I supplied timber for the roof and a door and windows. They have also since erected a nice teachers' house entirely, or nearly so, at their own cost. The first part of the baptismal service was gone through there, and we all then walked in procession, singing a hymn, to the large village tank. There were present Christians from neighbouring villages, which was necessary, indeed, in order to obtain god-parents. Arriving at the water, where necessary arrangements had been previously made, the baptism was proceeded with in the full view of the heathen neighbours who were quiet and orderly. All were immersed one by one, except the very young infants, who were sprinkled, and a sickly woman, upon whom water was poured. After the ceremony we returned to the prayer-house, singing as we came, and finished the baptismal service, concluding with an address and prayer.

BEZWADA AND ELLORE.

In the BEZWADA district the Rev. J. Harrison has the co-operation of two Native clergymen, of whose help he writes in grateful terms. Both were admitted to Priest's Orders in March, 1894. The Rev. K. Naganna resides at Bolapad, 21 miles east of Bezwada, and his pastorate contains 619 Christian adherents living in 18 different villages. The growing respect for Christianity among the Heathen is manifested sometimes in a way which causes him some embarrassment. He says:—

Heathen in their troubles appeal to the Christians' God.

Though the heathen people of some villages are not professing Christianity, yet to a large extent they are abandoning the worship of idols; and in times of sickness, or when any other trouble comes upon them, then they will make vows that, if the illness or danger passes over, they will make an offering to the God of the Christians, and afterwards come to service to pay the vows, although they will not come again. This is a superstition. I scarcely know what to do with such offerings, and am rather hesitating in accepting them; but I am glad of seeing them join in the service with the Christians.

Itinerating.

Sixty-five adults were baptized in the Bezwada district. The Itinerators had not the advantage of the Rev. J. Stone's leadership, as he was at Ellore during the Rev. F. W. N. Alexander's furlough. His little band, however, pursued their work, and their visits were welcomed for the most part, not least where they were most frequent. The Rev. D. Anantam mentions the following incident:—

A neglected Bible turned to profitable use.

Kristá Raddi is famous in his village and in the neighbourhood as a devout Vedantist, and has gathered some disciples around him. It seems that when Mr. Wigram was visiting Raghavapuram, he presented a Telugu Bible to the headman of a neighbouring village, making him promise to read it. But the promise was forgotten, and the Bible was lying idle in the house. This Kristá Raddi happened to go there some two years ago, and finding that his friend had this Bible doing nothing with him, brought it home, glad of possessing the treasure. He set about reading it at once, and when we visited the village about a year ago we were delighted to see him bring the Book out and ask us to explain certain passages, which he marked by paper markers. I read to him two or three Psalms, which he seemed to enjoy much, and I pointed out several portions to be read carefully. He seems to be near the Kingdom, but he hesitates to take a more decided step, as it would cost him his present position, and the emoluments he derives from it. I fear also he is not yet prepared to tear himself from some sinful associations which his religious fame has gathered round him.

Ellore.

Mr. Anantam has been appointed to the head-mastership of the Bezwada High School. The High School at ELLORE, under Mr. M. Browne, experienced much opposition from a number of Hindu lawyers in the town. The Hindu School having lost Government recognition, its pupils removed to the Mission School, and these youths were encouraged by some members of the Hindu School Committee to resist religious instruction. A member of the school staff, a Native graduate, was struck by a stone thrown by one of these pleaders, who was afterwards, however, constrained to apologise, and to promise to restrain the refractory students in the future, which he did. On the other hand, some influential Hindus, including the Judge of the Subordinate Court, a high-caste Brahmin, spoke openly for the school; while the leading Mohammedan in the town, whose sons are pupils in the school, called a meeting of Mussulmans to memorialise Government in the interests of the Mission School. The Rev. G. Krishnayya, a tutor in the school, mentions that several Mohammedan gentlemen in the town are reading Dr. Pfander's controversial works, and Dr. Imad-ud-din's New Testament commentaries. Mr. Browne records the answers given by some of the boys to questions addressed to them by Miss Crooke, of the C.E.Z.M.S. He says:—

Influential Hindus and Mohammedans support interests of a Mission School.

During Miss Crooke's stay in Ellore she gave several addresses in Telugu, and one to the higher forms of the High School in English. This was a novelty for the boys, and they were much impressed by her words and enthusiasm, sitting with open Bibles and readily answering such questions as the following:—"What do you think of Jesus Christ?" Answer, by a Brahmin of the fifth form, "He is the Son of the Holy God;" also, "He suffered for our sins in order to bring us to God." Question: "How are the sins of Christians taken away?" Answer: "Jesus is the Sin-bearer," by a Brahmin lad with a fine thoughtful face. On Miss Crooke's asking all to hold up their hands who believed in Jesus as the Son of God, almost every boy, including several Mohammedans, responded.

Schoolboys declare their belief in the Lord Jesus.

Cholera, and a disease called Beri-beri ("a sort of dropsy," the Rev. F. W. N. Alexander says), were rife in this district, and no less than 55 deaths of Christians occurred. A much-valued Native catechist died, and several others were laid aside for a time. Mr. Alexander, after visiting the whole of his district soon after his return, reports that his impressions were favourable on the whole. He was much struck with the deliberative power and practical wisdom displayed in the meetings of the Pastorate Committees. He says:—

Meetings of Pastorate Committees.

The members showed a remarkable power of debate and a capacity for self-government that was truly gratifying. The European missionary attends as a visitor when he happens to be at hand, but he does not supply the agenda-paper, and does not occupy the chair. The business of the meeting is conducted by the Native pastor acting as chairman, and the English missionary only assists with his advice. Thus the Native Church has begun to learn the lesson of managing its own affairs in "lawful assemblies," and these give scope to Native talent which is drawn out and made manifest for further use in the councils of the Church. The infant germ of this growth I see now working before my eyes. Surely it must gladden all our hearts to see the gradual increase of Church life, the knitting together of separate communities by bands and joints into one strong and united body in the Lord.

My heart is made truly happy by finding many earnest, warm-hearted young men and women of the rising generation among the Christians. I see many who are earnest in prayer and in readiness to learn Scripture truths, and eager to be received as communicants.

RAGHAVAPURAM AND KUMMAMETT.

Raghavapuram.

The Revs. G. H. Asirvatham and K. Ramiar, the two Native clergymen who were in the RAGHAVAPURAM district, have been transferred—the former to Masulipatam, and the latter to the band of Itinerants stationed at Bezwada. In their place the Revs. T. Ephraim and A. Sabbarayudu have been transferred from Masulipatam to this district, the latter for Jaggiapet.

Kummamett.

The Rev. J. B. Panes has been rejoined at KUMMAMETT by Mrs. Panes, whose presence, he says, is equal to that of a second missionary. The year saw steady progress in this district, notwithstanding some difficulties and discouragements. There were 32 adult baptisms. The aged Mohammedan whose sufferings for Christ's sake were mentioned in last year's Report was among the converts. Mr. Panes says of him:—

Baptism of an aged Mohammedan.

The Mohammedan inquirer (it is undesirable to mention his name) has continued to grow in the knowledge and love of Christ. Though unable to read, he learns texts of Scripture, ponders them in his heart, and repeats them to friends and foes on every possible occasion. It is quite a lesson in devotion to notice the earnestness with which he says the General Confession, the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, the Ten Commandments, and texts such as St. John iii. 16, "God so loved," &c.; St. John xiv. 6, "I am the way," &c.; and Hebrews xiii. 6, "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever," and we cannot doubt that he has a firm hold of Christ as his personal Saviour. We felt it wrong to keep him waiting any longer, so last month I baptized him by immersion in the river which flows past his own village. A father and four children, Hindus of humble origin, from a near village were baptized at the same time. It was a most solemn service, so simple and primitive, recalling the early days of the Christian Church, a red-letter day which we shall not soon forget, and it proved a grand opportunity for preaching the Gospel to those who came to witness the service. This Mohammedan is the first Christian in his village, and, I trust, the first-fruits of others to follow. A Brahmin living in the neighbourhood said to me that he had seen many Christians, but none more genuine and real than this aged confessor of Christ.

The "100 texts" learned by school children.

The four Schools have 77 children on the rolls, who learn, besides Scripture history, the 100 texts of the Irish Church Missions. Mr. Panes says that some repeated all these texts, with subject, chapter, and verse of each. One pupil, a Mohammedan lad, was found by a Zenana missionary teaching one of the women in a Zenana she visited. The workers suffered a sad trial in the sudden death from cholera of an Australian lady, Miss Ward, who was engaged in Zenana work. Mr. Panes writes:—

Death of a Zenana Missionary.

She had just finished her first year in the country, and had been staying here since last July. She was a most earnest, loving Christian, and studied the language with great zeal, being most anxious to master it, so as to be fully equipped for the Lord's work. Her nervous energy far outweighed her physical strength, and she was most reluctant to take a needed rest after going in for her first Telugu examination. She was persuaded at last to go to Masulipatam for a little change, and returned on the evening of January 31, appearing much better. That same night she was seized with cholera (probably contracted on the journey, as we have had no other case here), and though everything possible was done by European friends to save her life, she passed away at three o'clock in the afternoon of the next day, February 1. During her great suffering she pleaded with the Parsee doctor in attendance, begging him to accept Jesus as his Saviour, and almost her last words were "Lord Jesus, come quickly." Though her time for work here was very short, her holy life and her earnestness and devotion to Christ could not but influence those around her, and her memory will long live in the hearts of our people.

Another trial was the fall of one of the probationary agents, and the consequent disgrace incurred. Of this Mr. Panes remarks:—

This was a great trial to our faith and a bitter disappointment, which, happily, is seldom ours in missionary work, yet one which I think we ought to mention, humiliating though it is, that friends may give us their sympathy and prayers. It emphasises the importance of a term of probation for inquirers, and the need of spiritual power and much strength of character in our workers, surrounded as they are by much lawlessness and vice and many temptations. I need hardly say the teacher in question has been dismissed. It is well it happened while he too was under probation; such a character is altogether an exception; the first, and I hope the last, in our experience of workers.

Prayer requested for Native labourers.

DUMMAGUDEM.

The Rev. J. Cain reports a steady advance of the Christians in his district towards a fuller knowledge of the truth. Their offerings were larger than ever before, notwithstanding a bad harvest. There were 14 adults baptized. A Rajput young man was one of them, whose conversion has been a proof to all who knew him that the Gospel can deliver from the slavery of opium, ganja, and riotous living. Several Kois in the Rampa Taluq are inquirers. One, an intimate acquaintance of P. Baleshaddu, the first convert from that neighbourhood, has a great desire to follow Christ, but finds a difficulty in accepting the condition of monogamy. Mr. Cain says of him:—

Dummagudem.

His present wife is young, and cannot always do all the work of the house as expeditiously as he wishes; and sometimes when he brings home half-a-dozen friends she is slow in providing warm water for their baths and food to appease their hunger, and the unmarried sister of his deceased wife would be such a help to him, and help to maintain his repute for hospitality. So he finds it very hard to choose: he wants her and yet he does not want to shut himself out of the Kingdom of Heaven. For more than two years he has thus remained halting, whilst his Christian friends have been and are urging him to decide for Christ.

"Hard to choose."

III. TINNEVELLY.

THREE Native clergy have died since the beginning of 1894. On February 1 the Rev. S. Vedakan fell a victim to cholera; on February 18 the Rev. Luke Simeon was taken from his work at Sinnammalpuram; and on March 10 the Rev. S. Masillamani died.

Deaths of three Native clergymen.

The Rev. T. and Mrs. Walker returned to the Mission after furlough in November. They were accompanied by Miss R. Clark, who was married to the Rev. F. W. Breed on November 14. The Rev. A. N. C. Storrs was married during the year to Miss Fitton, of the C.E.Z.M.S.

PALAMCOTTAH is the town where reside the larger number of the Society's European missionaries labouring in Tinnevelly or studying the language preparatory to engaging in active labours, and where several important institutions are placed. The Preparandi Institution, under the Rev. T. Kember, has two theological classes with 25 students, and a normal class with 28 students. Mr. Kember longs to see a more marked spirituality of character and zeal for souls among the young men under his care. Mrs. Kember has 95 pupils in the Girls' Boarding School, most of whom are daughters of Native pastors and other agents, or of leading members of the congregations. The girls wear a neat uniform dress, and are not allowed to wear jewels, except earrings and necklaces. The Sarah Tucker Institution, with its High School, Training School, and Practising School, as mentioned last year, is under Miss A. J. Askwith and Miss F. Swainson, of the C.E.Z.M.S. The girls were less successful than in the previous year in some of the Government examinations, but in the Junior Peter Cator Scripture Examination, conducted in English and open to all pupils of schools in the Madras Presidency, whether male or female, all the six girls sent up passed, one taking a prize of Rs. 40, two others being placed in the first class, and the other three in the second. Lord Wenlock, the Governor of Madras, visited the institution in October, 1892, and manifested much interest in it, especially in the little School Hospital, which he pronounced "a little gem," and in the Blind School, with 13 boys and 11 girls. Three of these blind boys were baptized in December, 1892, during the visit of Mr. Eugene Stock and the Rev. R. W. Stewart. The blind teacher was cruelly murdered at the beginning of 1893, it is feared by some of his own people from motives of jealousy. When trained and married the girls are usually placed in charge of Branch Schools, of which there are fifty. Miss Askwith writes :—

Visit of the Governor of Madras.

"A little gem."

Now let us follow some of "our girls," as we like to call them, in their future life. Here is one : she was born a heathen child, but was baptized with the rest of her family when about eight years old. She was altogether brought up and educated here, as her father died when she was young, and her mother was too poor to provide for all her family. She remained here until she gained a teacher's certificate, and was then married to a young man, who was also a convert from heathenism and was educated in a Mission Boys' Boarding-school. We placed them as teachers in a small Brahmin school, situated in the midst of a large heathen town; they live about three-quarters of a mile from the school-house in the Christian quarter, and every day they go to the school in the morning, taking their mid-day meal with them, and, after teaching all day, return home about five in the evening. Shall we tell you the result of their last year's work? All the girls, about thirty in number, passed the Government examinations, in their different standards, Infants, First, Second, and Third, and almost all obtained merit marks, and when we examined the Scripture lessons, there was no faltering anywhere. Old Testament and New Testament stories, question them as you would, you were sure to get an answer; the Mission catechism and appointed texts were said without a mistake. You cannot refrain from exclaiming, "Are these Brahmin children?" Yes, they are; the sharpest in intellect of all Indian children, and who can only be reached in this way by their own people. Could any English woman get a school-house in the Brahmin quarter, and live among the children as Thai does every day?

The Boys' High School at Palamcottah has 170 pupils, of whom 100 are boarders. The Rev. F. W. Breed believes that some of these lads are earnest followers of the Lord Jesus; but, on the other hand, he finds that too many of them are traditional Christians, and lack an intelligent grasp of saving truth. Boys' High School.

In the town of TINNEVELLY, on the opposite side of the Tambraparny River, is the College, with 366 youths, about five-sixths of whom are Heathens. The Senior First Arts Class has 36, and the Matriculation Class 60 pupils. The Scripture lessons frequently bring out interesting traits of character, and indications of a hopeful attitude of mind towards the Gospel. The Rev. L. G. Scott Price says:— Tinnevelly College.

Daily from eleven to twelve we take the heathen boys in the Holy Scriptures. The course is so arranged that a boy coming up through the High School and College will read the historical parts of the Old Testament, the four Gospels, and the Acts of the Apostles. As a rule, we have very interesting times during those hours, the boys freely getting up and expressing their opinions about what we have been reading, or what we have been teaching. One day a boy rose and said, "Sir, I believe in Jesus Christ in my heart, but I dare not become a Christian, because my relations would disown me!" Another said, "Sir, if I became a Christian I should starve!" I said, "No, Jesus Christ has promised that if you seek first His kingdom and righteousness, all these things (food, raiment, and necessaries) shall be added unto you." Another day, a boy was arguing against Christianity, trying to prove the transmigration of souls, when another student stood up and said, "Sir, do not allow that boy to stand up and argue; he is wasting our time, and we cannot learn anything from him. Besides, he does not live a good life, and therefore has no right to argue; he is only trying to practise his English." It was, indeed, a pleasure to find the students valued the Scripture hour so much as to object to the time being wasted. Mental attitude of Mission School boys toward Christianity.

A Debating Society was formed by some of the senior students at the beginning of 1893, of which Mr. R. F. Ardell says:—

The organiser of the society is an old College student, now reading at the Hindu College, to which institution he was compelled to go by his parents, as they feared he would become a Christian if he stayed longer with us. Indeed, two years ago we had good hopes of his confessing the Lord Jesus as his Saviour in baptism, but, as his father threatened suicide if he did so, he was afraid. He seems, however, to be still steadfast in his belief of the Truth, and gave proof of the same in proposing as one of the rules of this new society that every meeting should begin and end with prayer to "Almighty God." Some of the Brahman boys objected to this, but when Mr. Price was asked to be President of the society, he said he could do so only on condition that the meetings opened and closed with prayer. To this the majority consented, and now, if there happens to be a meeting when there is not a Christian chairman, all the members are supposed to spend a few minutes in silent prayer at its beginning and close. The tone of this meeting is decidedly antagonistic to Hinduism, if not altogether Christian, and already it seems to be fruitful of good results. A Debating Society of Hindu boys commenced with prayer.

Some of the boys appear to be undoubtedly Christians by conviction, although they are not yet so by confession in baptism. Mr. Price mentions two of them :—

"I accept Jesus Christ as my Saviour."

Two of the boys who live together read a portion of the Bible every morning, and have prayer together in the Name of Jesus Christ. One of these wrote in his diary a few months ago, "I accept Jesus Christ as my Saviour." This was seen by some of his school-fellows, who reported the fact to his elder brother, who is his guardian. The elder brother considered the matter so serious that he came to Tinnevelly at once, and demanded to see the diary. The boy showed it him, and owned he had written it, and more, that he meant it. Thereupon the elder brother proceeded to argue with him, but in that he found he was no match for his brother. He then proceeded to the "syllogism of violence," and, taking his younger brother by the throat, said he would choke him unless he would unsay what he had written. But the boy refused to do that or to be choked, and struggled loose. The guardian threatened to remove him from our college, but the boy said he would go to no other place. He is in our highest form, and passes out at the end of this year.

"The syllogism of violence."

The Christian students of the College, about fifty in number, live in a hostel near the Mission bungalow. These go out twice a week to preach in the bazaars of the town and in the villages around. They sometimes return home bespattered with mud, bruised with stones, and with clothes torn, after their evangelistic efforts, but are not daunted by such treatment. Mr. Price has the oversight of two Anglo-Vernacular Schools at Srivaiguntum and Tenkasi, the former eighteen miles east, the latter thirty miles west of Tinnevelly. Opposition from rival Hindu schools was experienced, but the rival school at Tenkasi was eventually closed. At Srivaiguntum a Mohammedan who had formerly been a pupil in the Mission School placed his school of 60 Moslem boys under Mr. Price's management. In this man's house Mr. Price found a Tamil Bible and a Tamil translation of Trench on the Parables upon his bookshelf.

Elliot Tuxford School.

No report has been received of the Elliot Tuxford School at MENGNANAPURAM, under Mrs. and Miss Thomas and Miss E. C. Vines. The Dispensary in this town, under Rev. M. H. Cooksley, had 5,705 out-patients, of whom four were Europeans, 190 Mohammedans, 875 Hindus, and 4,636 Native Christians.

The Revs. E. A. Douglas and A. N. C. Storrs conducted the Itinerant Mission, leading bands of Native preachers among the villages. Mr. Douglas mentions the following incidents of his work :—

Itinerating.

In the first half of the year, I and my band of preachers, headed by Subamony Shastry, the grandson of the Tanjore poet, made three tours. On the first tour, leaving the beaten track, we preached among the smaller villages which lie to the west of Palamcottah, and had the joy of seeing some immediate result of our work. It was in a small village ; the pastor was anxious we should go there, as he thought the people were prepared to accept Christianity. We went and they gathered round. Very tenderly and persuasively the Shastry told them the story of the "ninety and nine,' and I followed with an appeal for an immediate decision, pointing to the sad fate of those who knocked at the door when it was too late. The Holy Spirit seemed to be working, and four households expressed their readiness to leave the worship of devils. We went into the house of one of them. Sitting on a low verandah, with the men in front of me, a small brass oil-lamp giving a flickering light, the women sitting out in the moonlight in the courtyard, with some cows munching their straw near, I explained to them the way of life. And then I made the people kneel down; they had never before bent the knee in prayer, and had to be shown the way to do so, one of the catechists actually taking hold of one of the men's legs and bending his knee for him, whilst others showed them how to clasp their hands in prayer. I have had good accounts since of all but one.

Teaching the people to kneel down.

The Easter season I spent with my band working in the sandy districts of Megnanapuram. Every evening in Passion Week we had meetings in the moonlight under "the" Tamarind Tree at Megnanapuram, and every afternoon I gave a Bible-reading on Zechariah to the English-speaking masters and agents, which ended with a wonderful opening of hearts and outburst of prayer on Easter Monday.

Passion Week meetings.

Mr. Storrs also visited numerous congregations of the Pastorates connected with the District Council. He found in one village a solitary old Christian who was converted in the late Rev. T. G. Ragland's time, and who told him that he had had no visit from a missionary since the Rev. R. R. Meadows went to this village. This man was gathering all his relations one by one into the Church. A valuable report of the Council, recording the statistics and chief events of the year, has been received. The number of adherents connected with the Native Church increased during the year from 52,451 to 52,670; baptized members from 47,078 to 48,126; and communicants from 12,377 to 12,652. The reports from the fifteen "circles," or groups of pastorates, show that Sunday-schools, Bible-classes, mothers'-meetings, prayer-meetings, Sunday and daily services, and classes for catechumens and communicants are regularly conducted, and in some circles Young Men's Christian Associations and children's meetings have been organised. The contributions to the Church Fund amounted to Rs. 13,038; subscriptions of agents, special collections, Church fees, &c., made up another sum of Rs. 21,185. Six new churches were dedicated during the year, and six were awaiting dedication at the year's close. Three harvest festivals were held at Mengnanapuram, Sachiapuram, and Nallur, at which the offerings amounted to Rs. 704. The chief need of the congregations, as the report states, is "an outpouring of the Holy Spirit to enable the members and agents to feel their shortcomings and to bring them closer to Christ." During the Rev. T. Walker's furlough in England the Committee addressed an affectionate letter to the Church Council. The Council's report thus refers to this letter and to the action taken upon it:—

Letter from the Parent Committee to the Church Council.

The Committee, while praising God for all the good done in the Tinnevelly Church, have faithfully pointed out in it the shortcomings and failings of our people; and the Council, while thanking them for their kind and interesting letter, containing solemn advice, appointed in accordance with its terms a Sub-Committee composed of eleven members, including three European missionaries, with a view to address a letter, in the name of the Council, to all the congregations, based on the Home Committee's letter, and generally to carry into effect their wishes contained therein. This Sub-Committee had two sittings for the purpose of preparing the letter, which was read before the Council held in October, and was adopted. It was resolved at the same time that soon after the circulation of the letter a day should be set apart, with the sanction of the Bishop of Madras, as a Day of Humiliation, when the letter should be read in all the churches and special services and devotional meetings held. November 26 was recommended as a suitable day for all the congregations, and it has been observed, with the Bishop's warm approval, as suggested by the Council. The arrangements for the day's work were as follows: There was a preliminary prayer meeting very early in the morning before sunrise, to ask for a blessing on the proceedings of the day. At 9 A.M. there was morning service, with appropriate Psalms and lessons, when the Council's letter was read, with suitable exhortations, based on the prevailing sins and shortcomings of our Christians. At noon a self-examination service was conducted with special addresses and prayers; and in the evening there was a Consecration Service. It is hoped that these special services and devotional meetings will be the means, under God's blessing, of remedying the defects pointed out, and of bringing about a higher standard of Christian life and conduct.

TRAVANCORE AND COCHIN MISSION.

The Mission in the semi-independent Native States of Travancore and Cochin, which occupy a narrow strip of country on the south-western coast of India, between the Ghaut mountains and the sea, was established in 1816 at the invitation of Colonel Munro, the British Resident. For twenty years it was worked by Benjamin Bailey, Joseph Fenn, Henry Baker, sen., and others, mainly with a view to the reform of the ancient Malabar Syrian Church, which claims to have been founded by the Apostle St. Thomas. Since 1837 the Missionaries have worked independently, the result of which has been not only the adhesion of many Syrians to the purer worship of the Church of England, but an active reforming movement within their own Church, which was much fostered by the late Metran, Mar Athanasius. The labours of Peet, Hawksworth, H. Baker, jun., and others, among the Heathen, particularly the lowest castes and the Hill Arrians, have been also greatly blessed. Allepie was occupied in 1816; Cottayam, 1817; Cochin, 1817; Mavelikára, 1839; Trichur, 1842; Pallam, 1845; Tiruwella, 1849; Kunnankulam, 1854; the Arrian Mission, 1855; and the Alwaye Itinerancy, 1881.

On July 25th, 1879, the Rev. J. M. Speechly, a C.M.S. Missionary and for some time Principal of the Cambridge Nicholson Institution, was consecrated first Bishop of Travancore and Cochin. On his resignation in 1889 the Rev. E. N. Hodges was nominated to the See, and was consecrated on April 25th, 1890.

Ordinations.

Deaths of two Native clergymen.

Bishop Hodges admitted the Revs. M. C. Punnusa and K. M. Matthai to Priest's Orders on December 24, 1893. The former of these, Mr. Punnusa, unhappily, died on March 26, 1894, at Mundakayam, where he had laboured since his ordination in December, 1890, a few weeks after Bishop Hodges' first arrival in Travancore. The Rev. P. K. M. Wirghese, the Native pastor of Changanachery, died in September, 1893. The Bishop says of him, "He was a pious man and an earnest pastor, and always forward in preaching to those outside the fold as well as tending the sheep within." Confirmations were held by the Bishop at 15 places, and 607 candidates were confirmed. Altogether, during the three years of his episcopate, between December, 1890, and December, 1893, Bishop Hodges confirmed 2,648 candidates. During the same period the numbers of the Native clergy increased from 21 to 26; the Native lay teachers from 264 to 324; the Native baptized Christians from 22,388 to 25,953; and the communicants from 6,553 to 8,616. Bishop Hodges came home in May, 1894.

Progress during three years.

Pastorates.

The total number baptized in connexion with the Pastorates during the year was 931—viz., 307 adults and 624 children. These figures do not include the accessions in Mundakayam and Melkavu, which have now joined the Cottayam Council. The pastor of Melkavu, the Rev. W. K. Kuruwella, mentions a striking answer to his people's prayers. He was troubled concerning three members of the congregation who were negligent of the means of grace, and he invited special prayer in their behalf at the weekly prayer meetings. He says:—

Prayer for negligent Christians.

On the third day after these arrangements were made two of the men came up at the Fathers' Meeting, and became regular attendants at the several weekly prayer meetings and the Sunday services. On a Saturday previous to a Communion Sunday they came up to me and showed signs of true repentance for their former wicked life, and expressed their desire and willingness to walk as the children of light. Afterwards one of these two men involved himself in some temptation, but, thank God, he has not fallen back. The third of those mentioned above would never give ear to any who wished to advise him. Some of my young men had tried their best to do him some good, but he thwarted their attempts by evasive answers and rude arguments. Whenever he met me on the road he used to hide himself in the jungle, but the Lord gave him to me on the sixth day after the arrangements for the offering up of special prayers for him were made. He confessed his sins with tears running down his cheeks. He gave himself up to the Lord. The day he came to me we had a meeting of the Gleaners' Union. On inquiry I found out that five of the members of the Union were, notwithstanding their apparently fruitless attempts at his conversion, praying for him. I cannot describe the great emotion of wonder and thankfulness with which the whole meeting was filled when I presented the returned prodigal before them. After singing a hymn of praise, I spoke a few words on the raising of Lazarus, and then the young man offered up an earnest and heart-stirring prayer. He is growing in grace every day.

A returned prodigal.

A Heathen's sorrow—"without hope."

The following touching and painful story of a heathen father's love and sorrow for his son—a sorrow without hope—relates to a pastorate of the Mavelikara Church Council:—

At Elantur there was a Native physician, an Ealavathi (priest of Chogans). He was skilful in his profession, easy in circumstances, and respected by Christians as well as by Hindus. A year ago he was attacked with small-pox of a virulent type, and died on the eighth day of the attack. This indeed was a great blow to the physician's father. That his only son, the staff and support of his old age, should thus be cut off in the prime of his youth was more than the aged father could bear. As soon as he came to know that his son was dead, he came to the room where the hideous and swollen remains lay, touched the eruption on the body, touching his own forehead with the same finger, and prayed to the departed soul to carry off him also. Poor man! there was nothing left on earth to console him. Patient submission to the will of God he had never habituated his mind to. His son was everything to him, and with him his life was, as it were, indissolubly connected. After his son's death he would neither eat nor drink, but would try to drown the memory in the torpor of intoxicating liquor. He would in the intensity of his grief go every day to the spot where his son was buried, and walk round the grave, sometimes kissing the ground, sometimes eating a handful of earth of it, all the while muttering prayers to his departed son to carry off him also. According to his desire was it done unto him. Scarcely a week had passed when he was attacked with the disease, and died in a few days.

COTTAYAM.

Cambridge Nicholson Institution.

The Rev. J. Thompson reports on the Cambridge Nicholson Institution. The Divinity Class consisted of "six hard-working, earnest students," three experienced catechists reading for ordination, and two younger men, who had been studying in a junior Divinity Class. With one exception, all these, it is hoped, will in due time enter for the University Preliminary Examination for Orders. The Normal Training Class had only two students in the senior class; those in the junior class were all educated in the Practising School connected with the Institution, while eight out of the nine classes in the Practising School are taught entirely by Normal students. "The examination results of this school were excellent," Mr. Thompson says. The spirit of the boys is illustrated by the following:—

The majority of the scholars in the Practising School are day boys, but a few, recommended as suitable for training when their education is complete, are admitted as boarders from districts where there are no schools of corresponding standard. Among these boys, thus admitted on probation, are two of special interest. One is a Hill Arrian, supported by friends of Mr. Painter; and the other a boy of Pulayan origin, supported by the Bishop from his diocesan funds. Mr. Painter experiences great difficulty in inducing good men to go to the hilly parts of his district; and when they do go, home-sickness, if nothing more serious, causes them to stay but a short time. By thoroughly educating and then training one or two of these Hill Arrians, Mr. Painter hopes to secure permanent helpers in his good work. The boy of Pulayan origin was admitted partly to abolish the stigma that has hitherto rested on our chief educational agencies, that they observed caste; and partly in the hope that, as in the case of the Hill Arrians, so also among this class of people we may secure leaders in good works. To force such a one into the Institution we felt would not tend to the comfort or benefit of either party. A meeting was therefore called, and after the masters had spoken, the students were invited to express their opinion. To my surprise, all who spoke expressed their readiness to admit the boy to their games and to their meals. This involved a display of moral courage which friends in England can scarcely understand, but which we on the spot regarded with intense thankfulness.

Christian boys and caste.

An Industrial School for Christian lads of Pulaya origin was opened by the Dewan Peshwa at the close of 1893, under Mr. Thompson's superintendence. The sale of Scriptures from the Book Depôt was 7,465 copies; the number sold in 1891 was 2,074. As in 1892, a four days' gathering of agents, "old boys" of the Institution, took place in the spring of 1893. Practical papers and discussions, devotional addresses and prayer, and the reception of the Lord's Supper together in the Pro-Cathedral rendered the reunion very profitable and enjoyable. The Rev. J. J. B. Palmer having passed his language examination, has now entered upon the work as Principal of the Institution, to which he was assigned by the Committee when he went out, and has liberated Mr. Thompson to apply himself to language study.

Sale of Scriptures.

Lord Wenlock, the Governor of Madras, visited the Cottayam College in October 1892, and an address was presented to him setting forth the history of the Society's work in the States of Travancore and Cochin. The Principal of the College, the Rev. A. J. French Adams, had a bad illness at the close of 1893, which rendered it necessary for him to take six months' leave from his duties. The Rev. C. E. R. Romilly has been appointed Acting Principal. The College was affiliated to the Madras University in 1892 as a second-grade college, and an F.A. class was formed. In 1893 the junior and senior F.A. classes had 12 and 13 students respectively; seven of the former passed the University Examination in December. In the Madras Matriculation seven passed out of 22 sent up, while 18 passed the Lower Secondary out of 54 candidates. The number of students in the College is 311, fewer than in 1891, owing to the opening of a Syrian school near the College. The Rev. E. Bellerby says the boys give earnest attention during the services in the College Chapel, and especially during the sermons, which he believes have been blessed to many of them. Eighteen of the senior boys teach in eight Sunday-schools in and near Cottayam. The College Prayer Union has 35 members, who hold a weekly meeting; the Scripture Union has 300 members, of whom some are former students. Meetings held in August, 1892, by Mr. Maconoughy, the Madras Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., were blessed to many of the elder boys, and a Y.M.C.A. branch was formed. The Buchanan Institution had 148 pupils at the close of the year, of whom 113 were boarders; about one-third were Syrian Christians, the rest Protestants. The Rev. A. H. Lash notices that 14 were daughters of Native clergymen, 29 of catechists, nine of Syrian priests, 15 of men of position and education, and the rest of cultivators. Mr. Lash, who had much experience at the Sarah Tucker Institution with Tamil girls, considers that the Malayalim girls are not inferior in teaching power to their sisters on the other side of the Ghauts. The Rev. A. F. Painter, after a visit to the Institution, wrote :—

Buchanan Institution.

When I visited the Institution the members of the senior class were engaged in giving lessons to different classes. One could not help being struck with the quiet, self-possessed way in which these comparatively young girls taught, the admirable way in which they catechised and used the blackboard, and the clearness with which they brought out the main points of the lessons. The subjects were scripture, arithmetic, dictation, an object lesson on a leaf, and map-drawing to scale. All taught well, but I was particularly interested in the teacher of the last-named lesson, a very small, fair girl, the daughter of a late Native pastor, aged only 13 years, who, in spite of her age and size, gave her lesson in a way that would have done credit to a grown-up teacher.

Upon Mr. Lash's removal to Ootacamund in November, the Rev. E. Bellerby succeeded to the charge of the Institution. Mrs. Bellerby takes the higher classes in sewing and singing, and finds her knowledge of nursing and medicine in frequent demand not only among her large family of 113 boarders, but frequently also among the neighbouring poor. There were 10 Branch Schools, with 440 on the registers. One of these was built in memory of Mrs. Amelia Baker, who laboured for more than half a century in the cause of female education in Travancore. Miss M. F. Baker, granddaughter of the above, who has herself laboured for 28 years in the same good work, has 62 boarders and 70 day-scholars in the Girls' School at Cottayam. Miss Baker conducts a Bible-class for women and superintends the Bible-women working in and around Cottayam. A Text Union which she has promoted has 300 members, who learn one text daily.

Girls' School.

Archdeacon Caley, on his return from furlough in December, 1892, took charge of the Alwaye Itinerancy. The year was a trying one in consequence of a severe illness of Mrs. Caley, but the trial was made instrumental in overcoming in some degree the prejudice of many of the Alwaye people, the Archdeacon says, by teaching him to entertain a deeper sympathy with them in their sorrows and sufferings. Help rendered to them in sickness made many Mohammedans friendly who had previously greeted his advances with scornful looks. The opposition from the Chogans at Alwaye has much diminished. Among the high-caste Hindus the work so far has been almost all sowing. The Word is preached in markets and at festivals, before temples, and by the wayside; tracts and handbills and portions of the Word of God are distributed; and houses are visited—not without encouragements to persevere, but the fruit is as yet deferred. A serious stumbling-block exists in the lives of some professing Christians. The Archdeacon says:— Alwaye Itinerancy.

We are terribly weighted in the Itinerancy by the large number of un-Christlike Christians. It is no libel on a vast number of Roman Catholic and Syrian Christians in these parts to adapt the words of St. Paul to the Jews, and say, "The Name of Christ is blasphemed among the Gentiles through you." They are the cause of a deep-rooted prejudice against Christianity, and the real authors of a total misconception of what it is. If anyone ask what the effect of C.M.S. work has been on the Syrian Church, we point to the enormous difference between the southern part of the Mission and the Alwaye Itinerancy. The latter part embraces many of the old historic places, and yet it is death itself compared with the condition of the same Church in the south. Many of these old Christians cannot tell you who Jesus Christ is. They know a great deal about the Virgin Mary and departed saints—most of which is not true—but their knowledge of Christ and His salvation, if not altogether nil, is often found to be of the most curious kind. The influence of the Mission on the Syrian Church.

But we are far from hopeless concerning the future of the Syrian Church in the Itinerancy. The Word of God is being bought and read. At Perambaloor, a Sunday Observance Society has been lately formed, numbering 70 members. They bind themselves to discourage work on Sunday. They have Bible-readings and prayer-meetings in the houses of the members, and have got some of the priests to join them. In the early part of this year a Malpan (Doctor of Divinity) joined with the C.M.S. agents in preaching at the great Siva Ratree festival at Alwaye. Such a thing had never been done before. But who was the Malpan? 'Tis true he belongs to the north; but it was in the south he caught the fire. He was with Bishop Speechly for some time, teaching him Syrian; and doubtless the witness borne before the Hindus and others at the great festival in February last was the fruit from seed sown in the south by the first Anglican Bishop in Travancore. A Syrian clergyman takes part in the preaching at a heathen festival.

ALLEPIE AND TIRUWELLA.

The Rev. C. A. Neve succeeded the Rev. W. J. Richards in the charge of ALLEPIE at the beginning of 1893, on the latter's coming home on furlough. Twelve adults were baptized. The Rev. J. H. Bishop, of TIRUWELLA, visited at the beginning of the monsoon an annual religious festival and fair held at Ochira, a plain south of Mavelikara in the pastorate of Putupalli. The Allepie. Tiruwella.

pastor, the Rev. M. C. Chakko, had erected a large shed, and under its shelter large and respectful audiences listened all day long throughout the week of the festival to the Gospel message. The Hindu magistrate (brother of the late Dewan of Cochin) and the police inspector were among the listeners at one time. Later he went to the boat races on the Ranni River; and at the beginning of 1894 he spent some days in Ranni preaching to the pilgrims who go yearly to worship a demon at a celebrated shrine three days' journey into the forest east of Ranni. The adult baptisms in the district numbered 143. On one occasion Mr. Bishop baptized 122 persons, including children, in the large church at Tiruwella, the largest number he had ever admitted into the Church at once. A new District Council has been formed for the congregations of the Tiruwella district, having three pastorates—namely, Tiruwella, Puwattur, and Kawyur. This arrangement took effect from January 1, 1894. Mr. Bishop mentions a striking instance of liberality:—

Instance of liberality in a poor man.

An old man of the labouring classes, Petrosa Muppen, belonging to the Kangra congregation, under the Rev. A. F. Painter, paid a visit to Ayrur, and seeing that the church was not finished, presented it, unsolicited, with the handsome donation of 50 rupees, an enormous sum for a poor man to give. But Mr. Painter writes to tell me he lives on very little, and gives all he can to the Lord's work, and has contributed nearly 200 rupees for the church at Kangra.

Meetings for the deepening of the spiritual life of the Native agents were held in August. In the same month Mr. Bishop and the Rev. C. Itty attended the funeral of Mar Athanasius Thoma, the late Metropolitan and head of the Reforming party in the Syrian Church, who was buried at Márámina, the headquarters of the Reforming party and close to Puwattur. Mr. Bishop gives the following account of the service:—

Funeral of Mar Athanasius.

We were conducted to a seat in the gallery of the large Syrian Church, at the west end, which is fitted up as a church-room. The church is no exception to the usual style of Syrian architecture, and consists of a porch, a long nave, and raised chancel. But two altars have been removed; only one remains. There are no masses for the dead in the church. On the chancel wall and over the altar were texts of Scripture in Malayalam: "Redeem the time," "The blood of Jesus Christ, God's Son, cleanseth us from all sin," and "God commended His love to us in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us." The church was thronged with worshippers. Morning prayers were going on in the vernacular. In the centre of the church, seated in an armchair, was the body of the deceased Metran, dressed in his robes, with crozier and mitre, lamps and incense burning before him. One could hardly realise it was a corpse, it looked so lifelike. The funeral service proper did not commence till 10 A.M., and lasted till 1.30. It was nearly all in Malayalam. A few Syriac prayers only were chanted. There were about 60 Cattanars or priests present, who took part in the service. The leader was the Rev. K. Thomas (Vicar-general), of Tiruwella, or the Kowûr Achen, as he is familiarly called from his family name. The Rev. Philipposa Malpan from Ayrûr, and his son, also the Rev. Joseph Cattanar from Chenganûr, took prominent parts in the service.

Many very appropriate lessons were read by different Cattanars, such as "The account of the death of Aaron," Num. xx.; "The funeral of Jacob," Gen. l.; Job vii.; "The parable of the talents," St. Matt. xxv. 14–31. One peculiar part of the ceremony was carrying the corpse round the church by some of the attendant Cattanars, during which prayers were chanted. Immediately afterwards the body was taken out into the churchyard, many of the people weeping, and the women sobbing aloud. The churchyard was crowded. A grave about 8 feet square and deep had been prepared, and was lined with stones, next to the tomb of the late Metran. The body was deposited in the same sitting posture with the chair, and committed to the dust by the Cattanars.

ARRIAN MISSION.

The Rev. A. F. Painter returned after furlough to his former sphere of work among the Hill Arrians. He finds, however, that, in consequence of the blessing which has rested on past labours, the congregations needing pastoral supervision have become so numerous that evangelistic work is almost beyond his power. So fruitful is the work that a few years of Gospel preaching suffice to encumber a missionary with heavy pastoral cares. Mr. Painter says:— Arrian Mission.

Alas! when will the Church of Christ rise to her privileges and opportunities? It is sad beyond all expression to see a harvest wasting that might be reaped, and those who are willing to learn of Christ and to follow Him left to go down to the grave uncared for, untaught, and some even of those gathered in not properly instructed.

Pir Mirde is a hill station, and the Rev. C. A. Neve resides there during the hot months, preaching to the coolies on the estates. Some 20 miles from Pir Mirde a huge reservoir is being constructed, known as the Periar Project, and Bishop Hodges has placed a teacher to labour among the 5,000 Tamil coolies there engaged.

COCHIN: TRICHUR AND KUNNANKULAM.

Sickness was unusually prevalent at these northern stations during the year, and this interfered somewhat with all branches of the work. There were, nevertheless, many encouragements. At a watch-night service at TRICHUR 900 were present. Twenty-eight adult baptisms occurred during the year. Among the baptized was a Nair of respectable family, of whom Mr. Bower says:— Trichur.

He is an earnest Christian man, very fond of reading the Word of God, and anxious to speak a word for the Lord Jesus to his fellow-countrymen whenever he has an opportunity of so doing. A short time ago, when speaking to a young educated Brahmin in our compound about the Gospel, he said, "Swâmi, let me tell you that I never knew what real peace of mind was till I embraced the religion of Jesus Christ." He also advised him to read the Bible and to become a Christian. "Real peace of mind."

A promising Brahmin pupil of the High School died from small-pox, and his poor mother died soon afterwards, apparently from grief and disappointment. Mr. Bower says of this lad:—

A Brahmin lad when dying declares Christ to be the only Saviour.

This young Brahmin was, I have every reason to believe, in heart a Christian. He was exceedingly fond of the Bible, and it was quite a pleasure to read his answers to my questions on Scripture at the half-yearly and annual examinations. His death was a remarkable one, and shows us something of what the High School is already doing here. Just before he died, having called his mother and brothers to his bedside, he said to them, "Remember that Jesus Christ is the only Saviour, and out of Him there is no salvation." After this the dear lad gave his Bible to the brothers, who understood English, and begged them to read it regularly.

A young Brahmin friend of his also said one day, quite of his own accord, "If Krishnen Pattu"—that was his name—"had lived he would certainly have embraced Christianity, because he thoroughly believed in Jesus Christ."

A greater spirit of inquiry is observed in the district. In December a wealthy Chogan from Thalakotakara, with his family, came to Mr. Bower, saying that for three years he had wished to become a Christian. Mr. Bower relates the sequel:—

Injustice and oppression endured for Christ's sake.

The father and son, at their own request, had their kudimis cut off. When the relatives found out that the man and his family were with us, they came wailing and begging of them to return. Seeing, however, that their entreaties were of no avail, they went off to the police-station and lodged a complaint against them. The following morning three policemen came and marched the whole family off to the cutchery, where, on false representations, the children were all taken from the father and handed over to their uncle—a gross injustice. But Kopu, the man I am writing of, said, "Well, they may take the children from me, but they cannot take Jesus away from my heart, whatever they may do;" but it was very trying to witness his sorrow. While Kopu was here we sent four or five men to keep watch in his house; these were all driven away by the inhabitants of the village, Nairs and Chogans, and almost at the risk of their lives they escaped. They then took possession of Kopu's house, and threatened to destroy it, as well as his crops in the field which were almost ripe. Upon two of Kopu's old friends coming and telling him all this he consented to go back for a time, and there he is at present. I ask for the prayers of all who may read this account for poor Kopu that God may make his way clear, and enable him to become a true follower of the Lord Jesus Christ.

At a lantern lecture in the district there were 150 Brahmins present, and "a more attentive or better behaved audience" Mr. Bower never addressed. He refers to a remarkable movement among Brahmins at Palghat:—

An Association of Brahmins to read the Vedas and the Bible.

I was told the other day, on very good authority, that at Palghat, a town eight miles from Chittoor, about 200 Brahmins had formed an association, and had agreed to read the Hindu Vedas, and also that grand old book, the Bible, which is "able to make them wise unto salvation."

Brahmins apply for Mission Schools.

In this same neighbourhood, in the Chittur Taluq of the Trichur district, Bishop Hodges was approached by three parties of Brahmins, who presented addresses requesting him to support their application to the Society to take over a school which they had recently opened. The Bishop forwarded these addresses to Salisbury Square, and wrote:—

Making all allowances for Oriental hyperbole, they still may be taken to represent what strikes me as a wonderful door of entrance for Mission work (especially educational) in those parts which had been untouched till Mr. and Mrs. Bower, in God's Providence, were led to go there in response to the invitation of a true friend and fellow-helper (albeit as yet a Brahmin in name), the headmaster of the Sealy Memorial School. The state of the people at large in that district is indeed deplorable—Chittur, Tattamangalum, and other important towns full of Brahmins, are κατείδωλοι, but sprinkled here and there are graduates of Madras University, and others more or less educated in English, who are really sorry for the gross darkness in which their friends and relatives are lying. Hence the enthusiasm shown at my visit, and their urgent requests that I would open schools for boys and girls. Are you aware that our friend the headmaster of the Tattamangalum Boys' School has put up a shed in his own house as a girls' school for Mrs. Bower? I visited it and found about 60 girls, chiefly Brahmins, which number could be doubled to-morrow if there was an efficient staff and accommodation. The people who gave address No. 3 represented seven or eight Brahmin villages. They lie far away from European influences, and Mrs. Bower was the first European lady they had seen. While we were talking in a verandah with the men, the women, who at first were very shy, gathered round Mrs. Bower, who went across the road and sat down on a verandah among them all. Here again are open doors, especially for women, who would, even if only out of curiosity, welcome the visits of a European lady. No doubt most of them seek us because they have a vague idea of earthly advantage to be got from us in some shape or other, but our Saviour did not on that account refuse to help those who came to Him, and if one waited till people sought for spiritual things, we should not be fulfilling the Master's word, "Go ye," &c. There is, however, a widespread feeling of unrest and of inquiry as never before, and we ought to use it.

European Ordained Missionaries, 12; European Lady Missionary, 1.

CEYLON MISSION.

This Mission was commenced in 1817 among Singhalese and Tamils, the two races (with distinct languages) forming the population of the Island. For the Singhalese population work was begun at Kandy in 1818; at Baddêgama, 1819; at Cotta, 1822; and at Kurunêgala, 1880. For work among the Tamils Jaffna was occupied in 1818; Colombo, 1852; and the Tamil Cooly Mission, 1855.

Reinforcements.

An addition of four ladies was made to the staff during the year. They were: Miss Ellen M. Josolyne, trained at The Willows; and Miss Annie E. Paul, Miss Kate Heaney, and Miss Mary Saul, trained at Highbury. Miss Paul sailed in December, the other three in October, accompanied by the Rev. L. G. P. and Mrs. Liesching, returning after furlough. The Rev. E. T. and Mrs. and Miss Higgens came home in June, and the Rev. J. D. and Mrs. Thomas in October. The Revs. J. W. Fall and H. P. Napier-Clavering (late Napier), and Miss A. M. Denyer came home on short special leave, the first in August, the other two in November. Mr. Fall was married on October 21 to Miss Ethel Berridge, and both sailed for the Mission in December. Miss Denyer, who went out to Ceylon and worked for a time as an independent Missionary, and joined the Society's ranks in 1891 in local connexion, has been received into full connexion. The Rev. James Carter was married at Colombo to Miss Mary Fernie on June 1, 1893.

Ordinations.

The Bishop of Colombo admitted Messrs. G. Daniel, A. Matthias, S. Morse, and C. T. Williams, all Tamils, to Deacon's Orders on December 31 at Jaffna. The whole of the service was in Tamil—the first time probably, the Rev. J. I. Pickford says, that an Ordination Service had been held in Tamil in Ceylon. Mr. Pickford preached the sermon from Col. iv. 17.

I. WESTERN AND SOUTHERN PROVINCES.

COLOMBO.

Colombo.

The Rev. A. E. Dibben, the Acting Secretary of the Mission, was obliged to take a health trip to Western Australia in the autumn. He has pastoral charge of the English congregation worshipping at Galle Face, Colombo, which he describes as "small, but very much in earnest," and of the evangelistic agencies among the Singhalese and among the Portuguese burghers living on Slave Island. Of the last-named a congregation of from 15 to 30 adults attend a Sunday afternoon service which is held for them, and the Bible-woman who visits among them reports that Roman Catholics as well as Protestants gladly receive her ministrations, that a poor Roman Catholic woman on her death-bed declared her trust for salvation to rest in Christ alone, and that others have asked her for New Testaments, and have read them in spite of the efforts of their priests to deter them. The Work among Singhalese is carried on by three catechists and three Bible-women. Little opposition is encountered to the street-preaching or in the meetings; Mr. Dibben believes, indeed, that the Buddhist revival in the Island shows signs of being on the wane. There were three adult baptisms. The Tamil Work in Colombo was under the Rev. G. T. Fleming's supervision. Services are held every Sunday at Galle Face Church in three different languages—English, Singhalese, and Tamil—and in Tamil on Slave Island, and at Maradana, Hultsdorf, Mutwall, Wellawatte, Negombo, and Galle. The congregations are small, except the one which worships in Galle Face Church, which numbers on the average 171. Religious conversations are held daily in the Mission-room in the Pettah, gaols and hospitals are visited, calls are made at the homes of the people, the Native servants of European residents are visited and spoken to, and open-air meetings are held. Opposition was offered by some Mohammedans, excited chiefly by the work among Mohammedan women carried on by Miss B. Child and Miss E. S. Young. Bitter letters were written in the Mohammedan local newspapers, and interruptions were made at the street-preaching. Miss Child wrote in November:—

Work among Mohammedan women.

Every week fresh houses have opened, and about 400 women and girls have been learning to read, and many more listening to the Scriptures read and explained. A large number of Gospel portions have also been sold. We have been enabled to add another Bible-woman to our staff, and an entirely new district has been opened up for work, where the people have been very ready to receive us. Occasionally in some of the courts we have been able to speak to quite large numbers in the open air, but as the work is principally confined to Mohammedan women we do not often get this opportunity.

Within the last month or two active opposition has arisen, which has caused some of the larger houses to be closed against us, though we have been cheered by hearing of the great anxiety on the part of the women to see us again, and in one or two cases they have bravely confessed their faith in Christ, though they have been beaten for it.

COTTA.

Cotta.

The Rev. R. T. and Mrs. Dowbiggin received a warm welcome on their return to Cotta in May, 1893, after furlough. Mr. Dowbiggin forwards the reports of the Native pastors and quasi-pastors who labour in the four Pastorates connected with the District Council. Cotta and Nugegoda (the latter 2½ miles from Cotta) are under the Rev. G. S. Amarasékara. He mentions an anonymous donation of Rs. 5 towards the Pastors' Fund from a Cotta medical student, out of a prize of Rs. 50 he had received for general proficiency and good conduct. Of a young man who has given up Buddhism and embraced Christianity he relates the following:—

His father was against him, and the son asked him this question, "Who am I to pray to in a time of difficulty and distress, when Buddha is nowhere?" To this the father said, "Why we have 33 crores (that is 330 millions) of gods and goddesses, and you can pray to any one of them." The boy's reply was, "Which one of the 33 crores am I to pray to?" The astonished father withdrew his objections, and gave him liberty to become a Christian.

In the Mampe pastorate Sunday services are held in five places of worship. The Rev. W. L. Botêju refers to a band of voluntary preachers who visit Christian and Buddhist families. There were two adult converts from Buddhism in this pastorate. A schoolmaster, who before his conversion was a Buddhist priest, died during the year, having continued a faithful servant of the Lord to the end; except one, his children are all Christians, and two of them are Mission agents. Mr. G. T. Mullekandagé, the catechist in pastoral charge of the Talangama and Welikade pastorate, relates a touching story of the death of a girl at Welikada who had been educated at a Mission school. She had long before requested permission from her heathen parents to be baptized, but they only consented the day before her death, which was Easter Day. The catechist baptized her that evening, judging the case to be urgent. He writes:—

Death of a Christian girl.

At about 8 P.M. she got them to send for the schoolmaster, who, having come, read the nineteenth chapter of the Revelation and a part of the twenty-seventh chapter of St. Matthew's Gospel, and prayed with her. When he was speaking to her, he asked: "Are you afraid to die, and are you saved?" "Death is not a terror to me, it is joy, and I know that God never tells lies about my salvation," was the reply. This talk lasted for about three hours, and at the end of it she told her elder sister to give the Rs. 20 which she had collected by sewing for missionary purposes. . . . As her last moment drew near, she took her Bible, and speaking to her sister, said, "Sister, this is the book which has been instrumental in taking me to heaven; you take it, and come to the same place where I am now going to."

The Rs. 20 about which she had spoken were given to the Mission by her sister, who added 50 cents as interest, because of the delay in executing her trust.

Evangelistic Work.

Mr. Dowbiggin estimates that 62,680 adults and 31,000 children heard the Gospel in the open air during the year from the lips of the agents engaged in Evangelistic Work in the district, and that in addition 3,500 were visited by the Bible-women. At Liyanwâla four bands of workers were formed, two of men and two of women, but the former two did not persevere. The Cotta Native Church Missionary Society supports a catechist who labours some 30 miles east of Cotta.

Schools.

There were 28 adult baptisms, 20 of which were of young people in the Schools. These number 56, and the pupils 3,350; all are vernacular except the High School for boys and the Boarding School for girls. All the teachers are Christians and communicants. Most of the boys in the English High School are Protestant Christians, 93 out of 166. Six between the ages of 14 and 19 were baptized. The Girls' Boarding School had 59 pupils, being quite full. There are 56 Sunday-schools in the Cotta district, with 2,048 on the rolls, but the average attendance is not more than 887.

BADDEGAMA.

Baddegama.

The Singhalese proverb which the Rev. J. W. Balding used in reference to the supposed futility of his appeals for reinforcements—"It is like fiddling to a deaf elephant"—proved inapplicable, as he gratefully acknowledges. The Rev. H. E. and Mrs. Heinekey arrived at the station in March, and Miss H. P. Phillips, one of the Australian missionaries, was stationed in the district in September. The Committee have located Miss E. M. Josolyne, one of the year's recruits, to reside with Miss Phillips. Their station is Dodanduwa, a fishing village facing the Indian Ocean, where no European missionary has previously resided. The people are "terribly hard Buddhists," Miss Phillips writes, and there are no other Christians in the village than the catechist's and one other family. The children, however, are friendly, and Miss Phillips teaches them Bible lessons and Singhalese hymns. She gives the following illustration of the influence, direct and indirect, which these children may have:—

"Terribly hard Buddhists."

These children answer my questions so well now: six of them have come themselves, and made me go with them to see their mothers, who live just outside this compound. One mother did not ask me to go inside her dark hut like the others did, so I wondered. As the little girl seemed disappointed, I asked the mother if I might come in; she said "Yes," but looked frightened. At first I only peeped inside, and there I saw four men in one corner, sitting on the mud floor, playing dirty-looking English cards! They merely looked at me, so I thought I might sit down on a small stool by the door, and I asked Locoo Harmee if she could say one of her hymns. She directly began quite loudly, "Jesus loves me, this I know" (I have taught a verse of this first in all the schools). The men stopped playing, so, just as I do at school, I asked Locoo Harmee questions about the hymn. Truly she seemed like a little light in that dark corner, and how glad I felt at hearing Jesus Christ upheld in such a scene, for quite a crowd had followed me from house to house.

The whole district around Baddegama contains a population of 125,000, and the Christians number 600. The Native labourers consist of two clergymen, 10 catechists, two readers, three Bible-women, and 54 teachers. The 18 adults baptized had all received instruction in Mission schools in early life, and in some cases intervals of fourteen and even twenty years had elapsed since they left school. There are 35 schools with 2,144 pupils. The Girls' Boarding School has 55 pupils, all now Christians, four having been baptized during the year. Miss U. Krickenbeck, who was a valued teacher in the school, came to England at the beginning of 1893, and lost her life in this country by falling from Great Orme's Head, Llandudno. The industry of the girls is

Success of Mission Girls' School in Government examination.

At the last Government examination 48 girls were presented, and of these 45 passed satisfactorily, obtaining 80 per cent. of passes and a grant of Rs. 875. Nine of the girls passed in the highest standard. The Inspector writes:—"I must still congratulate you on showing the best all-round work, especially in the higher standards. The handwriting, grammar, and composition deserve special mention as being unusually good." The following is an extract from the Administration Report of the Director of Public Instruction:—"The Girls' Boarding-school at Baddegama is a potent factor of female education. Apart from the mere instruction imparted, the girls are taught order, method, cleanliness, thus laying the foundations of a good home, the benefits of which cannot be over-estimated."

Lay agents are in charge of three out of the six Pastorates. Two members of the Baddegama congregation, under the Rev. J. P. Kalpagé, gave Rs. 10 each from their first month's salaries as thankofferings. An evangelist in this pastorate is supported by the Colombo Branch of the Gleaners' Union. At Balapitimodara the attendance at the services of an ex-Buddhist priest is noticed by the Rev. G. A. B. Perera; and at Bentotte the baptism of a former rigid Buddhist is recorded by the catechist. In the latter pastorate a Sunday-school festival was held, and a Singhalese gentleman presented a gift of Rs. 5 to a girl who had not missed once in attendance during the year. The contributions of the Christians for Church and Mission purposes was Rs. 1,792, some Rs. 400 in advance of the previous year. The Bishop of Colombo confirmed 65 candidates, the largest number ever presented at this station. On the same day 135 communicants received the Lord's Supper.

II. CENTRAL PROVINCES.

KANDY.

Trinity College, Kandy.

THE Rev. H. P. Napier-Clavering's report of the year's work at Trinity College was written in England, whither he came, as already mentioned, on short leave in November. A Primary Anglo-Vernacular School has been added to the College, under an earnest young Native master. The addition also of an English matron to the staff has enabled the Principal to admit upper-class Kandyan (Singhalese) boys—for whom the College was primarily intended—at a much earlier age into the Boarding-house. Mr. Napier-Clavering says:—

The matron takes motherly care of them, and each night most of them go, one by one, into her room to say their prayers, and are taught to approach their Father in heaven through Jesus Christ. God grant that these little ones may early learn to know and love their Saviour!

The boy who was mentioned in last year's Annual Report (pp. 172, 173) as having to bear much persecution from his father and uncle—the latter a high official in the Tooth Temple—was baptized during the year; and Mr. Napier-Clavering is hopeful that he will become an earnest worker for God. The Rev. J. Carter mentions a Buddhist boy whom he is instructing for baptism. Seven of the boys were confirmed in November. The Bishop of Colombo presided at the annual prize-giving in August, and remarked that he found in many places increasing confidence in, and respect for, the education given at the College. The Government Inspector of Schools, who was present, remarked, as reported in the Overland Ceylon Observer:—

Good behaviour of the students.

He would wish to bear testimony to the good behaviour of the boys. The number presented for examination was 222, and he examined them on several subjects, a duty some may think irksome and tedious, but he must say he had great pleasure in going through the work, owing to the admirable behaviour of the students. He never entered that hall but with pleasure. The boys never took advantage of him in any way. He had said this before, and would emphasise it by saying that they never even attempted to take advantage; and this, indeed, from honourable consideration, and not from fear.

A Missionary Association was started, and the boys collected Rs. 300 for its funds during the Easter holidays. The Association has undertaken to support a catechist at Wattegama and six Vernacular Schools in Lower Dumbara. An Old Boys' Association was formed in 1892, and the first annual meeting was "an unqualified success," Mr. Napier-Clavering says. A Library and Reading-room were opened during the year. The students of the Divinity Class went out to their different spheres of service in March, 1893.

Pastorates.

The Rev. H. Gunasêkara and H. W. Senewiratna have the care of the two Pastorates: the one at Kandy, including Katukelê and Gaetembê; the other at Gampola. Mr. Gunasêkara baptized nine adults, four of whom were free scholars at Trinity College, and the others had previously attended Mission schools. Mr. Senewiratna mentions the death of a communicant member of his congregation who was reputed to be 117 years of age, and who declared that she was a young woman at the time when the late King of Kandy was captured and taken to Colombo. This was in 1815.

KANDIAN SINGHALESE ITINERANCY.

Singhalese Itinerancy.

In June the Rev. S. Coles succeeded the Rev. A. E. Dibben, who then removed to Colombo, in the superintendence of the evangelistic work in the two districts (extending over an area of 140 miles by 50 miles) known as the Central and Western Itinerancy. The return of the Rev. L. G. P. Liesching in November relieved Mr. Coles of the latter charge. Twenty-eight Native evangelists and 77 teachers are engaged, and the Singhalese Christians throughout the district number 1,099. There are 18 stations, from which the evangelists visit surrounding villages. Mr. Coles naturally felt somewhat apprehensive on first undertaking the work, on account of the heavy responsibilities of the task, but he was encouraged by the heartiness of the welcome with which he was greeted to old scenes after an absence of twelve years. He says:—

A Missionary's visit to the scene of his former labours.

It gave me the greatest joy to learn from the lips of those I love that they remembered words of power and acts of kindness in the long past, which I had entirely forgotten until they mentioned them to me. I must give here one instance which greatly touched me. About 15 or 16 years ago God opened the way for Christian work to be done in some villages about thirty miles to the north-east of Anuradhapura, where a number of persons believed in Christ and were baptized, but as far as I can gather no Christian teacher ever visited the place after I was called away; but last July, when I made my first visit to Anuradhapura, after taking up my duties here, to my great surprise and unspeakable joy I met the first Christian of that distant village who had been used by God to lead others to Christ. His joy at unexpectedly meeting me was equal to mine at seeing him, and I am happy to say that at our subsequent meetings our communion has been very sweet. "Truly the Lord preserveth all them that love Him." I hear a very good report of him from those who know him, and that he exerts a good influence on those with whom he comes in contact. I could relate a number of similar proofs that I have not laboured in vain, nor spent my strength for naught. Praised be the Lord for His mercies to me!

The place referred to in the above quotation is in the Central Itinerancy, as also are Pusellawa and Talawa, though more than 100 miles apart, in both which Mr. Coles observes indications of life and progress. The catechist at the latter place is much afflicted, but he exercises a real influence in attracting people to his Saviour. In another village in this district, 20 miles east of Kandy, a Singhalese Christian works as a Bible-woman with much blessing. Mr. Coles says of her:—

An earnest Bible-woman.

It is not sufficient to call her a mother to the orphans, and a shining light to all around her; the savour of her influence spreads far and wide, and all who know her praise her. Her unostentatious piety charms all who behold it; for she not only says, "Lord, Lord," but does also the things that He saith. She gave a large portion of her salary of Rs. 15 last month as a thankoffering to the Lord, and she feeds the orphans entrusted to her care at a cost of less than Rs. 2 per head per month, although the cartage of each bushel of rice to that place makes it a shilling in excess of what it costs in Kandy.

Talampitiya and the neighbouring villages are, in Mr. Coles' opinion, the most promising and fruitful portion of the whole district. Eleven adults were baptized there, and 104 persons have placed themselves under instruction.

The Associated Evangelists, Messrs. E. S. Carus-Wilson and S. Simmons, resided for three months, from June to September, at Hanguranketa. Miss A. M. Denyer worked in and around Kandy, visiting the more distant villages of Pusellawa, Kotmallie, and Hurikaduwa from time to time.

TAMIL COOLY MISSION.

Tami Cooly Mission

The Rev. J. D. Simmons, residing at Kotagala, has one Native ordained fellow-labourer in his district and 42 teachers.

The baptized Christians number 1,305, and communicants 400. There were 34 adult baptisms, nearly all of them uneducated coolies. One was a woman said to be 80 years old. The Bishop confirmed 52 candidates in Mr. Simmons' district.

The Rev. H. Horsley, who lives at Kandy, had the satisfaction of opening two churches, a catechists' house, and a schoolroom in his district. He refers to the baptism of a young Tamil merchant who had been instructed in a Mission school in Tinnevelly. The departure of Mrs. Horsley to England was a great loss to the work.

The Rev. J. Ilsley, residing at Haputale, has 12 Native teachers under his superintendence, and 277 baptized Christians in his district. Six adults were baptized, and the Bishop confirmed 11 candidates at Rakwana in October. Mr. Ilsley says of the Confirmation Service:—

A solemn Confirmation Service.

> Much prayer had been offered for an outpouring of God's Spirit, and the service was peculiarly solemn. The Bishop spoke very simply, affectionately, and earnestly, first of all to the Christian congregation, about 50 of whom remained to the confirmation service. He bade them think of the day when they were confirmed, to search their hearts, to ask themselves how far they had fulfilled their confirmation vows. In addressing the candidates his Lordship first of all dwelt on the solemn question that he was about to ask them. He pointed out the object of confirmation, and the blessings they might derive from it, and begged them each to plead with God for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

III. NORTHERN PROVINCES.

Jaffna.

The ordination of four deacons on December 31 was an event of deep interest, and one which caused much joy and thankfulness to the Rev. J. I. Pickford. The previous Ordination Service in the Northern Peninsula was some 26 years before. The Rev. G. Daniel, who had been a Mission agent for many years, is stationed at Kopay; the Rev. A. Matthias is placed at Vavoniya, where he laboured in former years; the Rev. S. Morse has been placed over the Nellore congregation; and the Rev. C. T. Williams, one of the Divinity Class students at Trinity College, Kandy, is at Kokoville. The Rev. G. Champion, the senior Native clergyman in the island, can count 50 years of service for his Master in connexion with the Society, 21 of which were spent as a lay agent.

Fifty years of service.

The work of church restoration has been promoted in three of the Pastorates. At Pallai—where the exertions of the people have secured a church which Mr. Pickford pronounces the prettiest and most substantial in this district—the Native Christians contributed Rs. 800 towards the cost of repairing their church. The Rev. J. Backus, the Native pastor of Pallai, collected upwards of Rs. 650. He was greatly assisted in this by a letter of commendation which the Bishop of Colombo kindly wrote, and which was inserted in the leading papers of Colombo. It was as follows:—

"Excellent and successful work."

"I heartily commend the appeal of the Rev. J. Backus for help towards the completion of the church at Pallai. Excellent and successful work has been done by God's grace in Pallai and its district by the Rev. J. Backus. Many have been converted, and those who have been converted have stood firm, and are as a body a striking testimony to the power of the Gospel as it is faithfully administered by the church which Mr. Backus serves."

Mr. Backus refers to the deaths of several members of his congregation, and among them the following:—

"A diamond of the Church."

Chellachehi was a model wife and Christian. She never allowed her husband to go to bed or to go out in the morning without holding family worship. Unlettered as she was, she taught her child to pray and to love Jesus. She was the most regular of all women in the parish in giving what is due to the Lord. Of all her income, she set apart a liberal portion for the Lord. I should say that in her we have lost a diamond of the church.

The Bishop visited Jaffna in March as well as in December, and confirmed altogether 55 candidates. The Jaffna Church Missionary Association is an object of real interest, Mr. Pickford says, to the congregations. Two evangelists are placed together between Vavoniya and Mullativo; it would be dangerous, on account of wild beasts, for one to travel alone in that part of the district. Fifteen adults were baptized during the year. St. John's College, Chundicully, was carried on successfully by the Rev. C. C. Handy during the Rev. J. W. Fall's absence in England.

Miss M. Saul, Miss K. Heaney, and Miss A. E. Paul went to Jaffna on their arrival in the Island.

MAURITIUS MISSION.

Though geographically most nearly connected with Africa, this little island is, in a missionary sense, a dependency of India. Two-thirds of the population are coolies, brought from Bengal and South India to work on the sugar plantations; and among these are labouring Bengali and Tamil-speaking missionaries, whose work has been much blessed. Over 5,000 have been baptized, the majority of whom have returned to their own country. The Mission has owed much to the successive Bishops of Mauritius, especially Dr. Ryan and Dr. Royston. The present Bishop, Dr. Walsh, an old member of the C.M.S. Committee, was consecrated in 1890.

Successive calamities.

THE Committee had the pleasure of several interviews with Bishop Walsh during his visit to this country, and heard from his lips the painful story of the successive troubles which befell the island of Mauritius in 1892 and 1893—the cyclone and consequent bank failures in 1892; a calamitous fire in July, 1893, which burnt down one-third of Port Louis, the capital of the island. The latter year was also marked by an epidemic of influenza, which attacked several of the missionaries and Native clergy, and brought the Rev. C. A. Blackburn almost to death's door. On gaining convalescence, he accepted an invitation from Archdeacon Mathews to accompany the Governor of Mauritius to the Island of Rodrigues, the Protestant community of that island having requested that a clergyman should visit them to perform certain marriages and baptisms and to administer the Holy Communion. Mr. Blackburn spent ten days in the Island, visited all the Protestants and baptized an adult Malagasy convert. He wrote:—

Visit of Rev. C. A. Blackburn to the Island of Rodrigues.

> The Protestants are scattered and left to themselves, having neither pastor nor catechist to teach and guide them. The children are growing in complete ignorance of our most holy faith, and are exposed to temptations and dangers. The Roman Catholic priests naturally do their utmost to draw those poor forsaken Protestants to the Roman Catholic Church. Many have already gone over. There are also a few Indians at Rodrigues; I visited and preached to them. Several of them had very interesting conversations with me, and said if there were a resident minister they would join our faith.

Transfers.

The Rev. A. K. and Mrs. Finnimore, who laboured in Tinnevelly from 1885 till 1890, when they came home in consequence of Mr. Finnimore's failure of health, have been transferred to this Mission. They sailed in November, together with the Rev. H. D. Buswell, returning to the Mission. Mr. Finnimore was born in Mauritius, and both his parents died there. The Rev. W. and Mrs. Latham have been re-transferred to their old Mission, the North-West Provinces. Mr. E. and Mrs. Luckock came home in March, 1894, the Committee having decided to retire from the work on the island of Mahé, one of the Seychelles group. The African Institution there was founded in 1874 as a place for the reception of the children of rescued slaves, but none of these have been landed on the island during the past several years, and the Institution has year by year become less needed. Mr. Luckock, in his interview with the Committee after his return, expressed his confidence that the seed of the Word of God had not been sown in vain amongst the African children of both sexes whom he had had under his care.

A consequence of the fatal illness which prevailed in the summer of 1893, from which some 3,600 died in Mauritius in two months, is that the number of baptized Christians in the Congregations is somewhat less, namely 1,942, as compared with 1,988 in 1892. The Rev. C. A. Blackburn made 64 missionary tours in different parts of the Island among the North India coolies, of whom 26 adults were baptized during the year. The Rev. and Mrs. W. Latham resided at Rose Belle until June, when they removed to Port Louis for the benefit of the drier climate. Mrs. Latham carried on at the former place very well attended classes of instruction for the Indian women. She found much destitution and misery to pity and sympathise with and help, but also a sad amount of spiritual deadness. Mr. Latham says that this is the case among the heathen Indians throughout the Island:—

> They have cast off many of their own peculiar chains; they come in contact with Christianity of a kind, and they have a superficial knowledge of some Christian rites and superstitions too, alas! which they to some extent adopt and respect, but the yoke of Christ they do not earnestly seek to take upon them. There is a deadness without the gross darkness of purely heathen lands which can only be comprehended by those who are on the spot.

The Orphanage at Plaisance, under the Rev. V. W. Harcourt, has 65 children. Mr. Harcourt acted as Secretary during Mr. Buswell's absence.

CHINA.

Opium Commission.

THE House of Commons on June 30, 1893, adopted a motion of the Government to appoint a Commission to inquire into the alleged evils of the Opium Traffic. The Commission has examined numerous witnesses in England and in India, but the evidence of most of them related to the degree of prevalence and the effects of opium consumption in British India and Burmah. Comparatively few of the witnesses examined could speak as to the consequences of the traffic in China. The report of the Commission has not been issued.

One of the official witnesses before the Commission was reported to have stated that the missionary body in China, having signally failed to make converts among the Chinese, found it convenient to lay the blame on the opium traffic. The gentleman to whom this statement was attributed subsequently denied the correctness of the report. The serious point of consideration, however, was that a certain portion of the public press endorsed the statement which had been erroneously imputed to him, and it was felt that a protest was called for. After giving an emphatic denial to the statement, and pointing out that no such want of success was admitted, but that, on the contrary, each succeeding decade evidenced increased prosperity in the work, the protest, which was signed by the secretaries or other officials of twelve English societies labouring in China, proceeded :—

Protest against alleged statements of an official witness.

That the missionary body in China covet and pray for very much more success is equally true, and it is this fact which has opened their eyes to this hindrance in their way, and made them eager for its removal. They would be traitors to their great Master's cause if it were otherwise. Those of them who have gone forth from the Churches of Great Britain and Ireland claim, however, to be quite as loyal to their country as the men who impeach them, and they believe that by putting their finger on a grave fault in their country's policy they, at all events, are exhibiting true patriotism.

The missionaries occupy stations throughout nearly the whole of China from east to west, and from the Amoor in the extreme north to Pak-hoi in the far south. They number about 1,500, and are acquainted, as almost no others can be, with the daily lives and habits, the joys and sorrows of the people.

Special significance of the unanimous testimony of Missionaries.

There is, therefore, special significance in the fact that from every quarter of that great empire they bear testimony to the widespread suffering produced by the consumption of opium, and the discredit thrown upon Christianity by our country's association with it. It is equally significant of the moral degradation which it entails, that the Native Church in China has no option but to exclude from its membership all who are consumers or connected with the trade ; whilst at home we have 5,000 members of the medical profession who have stated emphatically that the use of the drug, except as a medicine, is morally and physically debasing.

No arguments as to the willingness or ability of the Chinese Government to prohibit home productions can possibly weaken the force of these facts, and we maintain that our country, which might stand forth as the exponent of Christianity to people who can be numbered by hundreds of millions, is throwing away this splendid opportunity by helping to uphold a trade which has proved to be their curse.

Action of the Government in Burmah.

The Indian Government has itself provided a strong argument for the abolition of the traffic by its recent action in Burmah. The official notification of March 11, 1893, was to the following effect: "The use of opium is condemned by the Buddhist religion, and the Government, believing the condemnation to be right, intends that the use of opium by persons of Burmese race shall for ever cease." If the condemnation of the use of opium by the Buddhist religion is right, how can it be right to make profits out of the sale of opium in China, which is also a Buddhist country?

It is often urged that the Chinese have the remedy against the importation of opium into their country in their own hands, inasmuch as they have the right and the power to impose a prohibitive tax. The following quotation from a letter of the Rev. J. S. Collins, of Nang-Wa, in the province of Fuh-Kien, deserves to be recorded in this connexion, as showing the view which some, and probably many, of the Chinese officials have formed on this point. Mr. Collins, when calling on one of the mandarins in the important city of Kien-Ning, mentioned this plan of suppression to him. He wrote:—

Views of Chinese officials.

We explained carefully the plan of suppression by means of raising the tax on imported opium, but he smiled and said that no matter how high the tax was, if the people wanted it, some way would be found of smuggling opium into China. No one who knows the bribery and corruption that exists at the local customs stations could doubt this. He said most emphatically, "England must move first, England must move first," and then added with a meaning smile, "but your Queen would not be willing—your Queen would not be willing to allow so profitable a trade to be stopped;" neither would he believe a word in contradiction of that idea. The fact is that until the opium traffic with India is stopped, the natives here will not believe a word we say as to England not being willing to force opium on China by another opium war. The mandarin in question is a very active man, and neither smokes opium himself nor allows anyone among his retinue to smoke it.

Question of wearing Chinese dress.

The Committee have had under consideration during the year various letters received from China regarding the wearing of the Chinese dress by the Society's missionaries, including a letter from Bishop Burdon to the Archbishop of Canterbury, which the latter courteously forwarded to the Committee. It appeared clear to the Committee that while on the one hand the wearing of the Chinese costume might be attended in some places with certain difficulties, on the other hand a large majority of the European missionaries of the C.M.S. and other societies who have adopted the Chinese dress (some of them for many years) are convinced of its expediency for the interior stations. The Committee, therefore, did not feel called upon to issue any instructions in the matter, but left to the Society's missionaries absolute liberty in regard to the question of Chinese costume.

SOUTH CHINA MISSION.

The great empire of China was opened to missionary effort in 1844, when the Treaty of Nanking, which closed the first Chinese War, gave England the possession of Hong-Kong, and the right of residence at five leading ports; and more fully in 1858–60, by the Treaty of Tientsin and Convention of Peking. Hong-Kong was occupied in 1862, and Pakhoi in 1886.

The Fuh-Kien Mission has a truly remarkable history. Fuh-Chow was occupied in 1850, and the first eleven years passed without a single convert appearing. Two out of five Missionaries died during this interval, and two retired. The fifth died soon after gathering the first-fruits of his labours, leaving a new-comer, the Rev. J. R. (now Archdeacon) Wolfe, in charge. Up to 1864 the work was confined to Fuh-Chow city. In that year and the following, other large cities were occupied by Native Evangelists. In 1866 the first two or three converts from these were baptized. Fuh-Ning was occupied by European Missionaries in 1882; Ku-Cheng, 1887; Lo-Ngwong, 1889; Nang-wa-Kau, 1889; and Kien-Yang, 1891.

China, south of lat. 28°, is under the episcopal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Victoria, Hong-Kong. The first Bishop, Dr. G. Smith, and the third, the present one, Dr. Burdon, were C.M.S. Missionaries; and the second, Dr. Alford, was an active friend of the Society at home.

Reinforcements.

THE Trinity College (Dublin) Fuh-Kien Mission has added a third missionary to the two in this Mission who were already supported from its funds, viz. the Rev. Leonard Harry Frank Star, M.A., Trinity College, Dublin, Curate of Holy Trinity, Clifton. The other two are the Revs. J. S. Collins and T. McClelland. Four ladies have also joined the Mission—Miss Alice M. Jones and Miss Ada M. Finney, for Hong Kong; the Misses Harriette Elinor and Elizabeth Maud Saunders, sent out by the Victoria C.M. Association, for Fuh-Kien. All the recruits reached the Mission in November.

PROVINCE OF KWAN-TUNG.

MRS. J. GRUNDY went out to join her husband, the Rev. J. Grundy, in September, 1893. Miss M. L. Ridley came home in February, 1894. Dr. W. W. Colborne was married in March to Miss Field, who went out to China under the London Missionary Society in 1888.

HONG-KONG.

Hong-Kong.

The work on the Island of Hong-Kong made steady progress during the year. The Congregation worshipping at St. Stephen's Church contributed $280, more than double what they gave in 1892. Mr. Bennett received a gratifying letter from one of the foreign consuls in the city, referring to the conduct of a member of the congregation. He says:—

A foreign consul and a Chinese Christian.

One day I received a letter from one of the foreign consuls to say that having lost his way in Hong-Kong, he had had occasion to inquire of a Chinaman the right direction; the latter walked with him a considerable distance to help him out of his difficulty, and when he offered him some money as compensation, declined, and when pressed to accept it, "raised his hands to heaven with the words, he had done it for his Heavenly Father's sake." The consul inquired further, and found he belonged to the C.M.S. Mission, and wrote the letter mentioned, enclosing $1, which he hoped I would "persuade the man to accept; that it was a credit to any Mission to have so trained a man that, unlike other Chinese, he could resist the temptation to accept money."

Women's work.

Miss Ridley, before she came home, visited the homes of the people. She says of the women:—

Very few can be called bright—the dulness of some is amazing. One woman, who is the wife of a Christian, is asked every time I visit her, "How many true Gods are there?' and she always answers "I forget; my memory is not good." Is it want of memory, or want of interest? and does it not call for great patience to reach such as these?

There were 27 adult baptisms. Nineteen of these were inmates of the Victoria Home, under Mrs. Bennett, who speaks of many of the elder girls as earnest, intelligent, consistent Christians. The Day Schools passed well in the Government examinations. Out of 12 examined, five had not a single failure, and the other seven had only 18 failures among them. Mr. Bennett, while pursuing his studies in the language, gathered a class of English-speaking Chinese Christians, who formed themselves into a band to evangelise the neighbouring villages.

MAINLAND ITINERANCY.

The Rev. J. Grundy and Dr. W. W. Colborne visited the several centres on the mainland where Christian congregations exist under the pastoral ministrations of lay catechists. At Tsang-Shing and the villages around it there are some 40 Christians, and teachers are stationed in five of the villages. Bishop Burdon made his first visit to this neighbourhood at the close of 1893, and confirmed 22 candidates. Dr. Colborne mentions some of the Christians in this district, and amongst them an old man who died during the year. He says:—

Familiarity with the Prayer-book.

Disinterested services.

I want to mention one place called Shap-tsz-kau, in the Tsang-Shing district, where I am at present writing from. Here there are five Christians, including one baptized last Sunday. One old man here has died, I believe one of the first to be baptized in this district. One day, when we went to see him, we asked him what he said when he prayed, and he began to go through the sentences at the beginning of the Prayer-book and the exhortation. How far he went I do not remember, but he was going on till we stopped him. We saw him last winter on a broken-down bed, with a ragged cotton wool quilt for a covering. He seemed to have faith and true peace in spite of his poverty. He used to teach the woman next door the Prayer-book, and she used to wait on him. The man and woman next door were baptized the October before last. I once asked the brethren how the Gospel was regarded, or listened to, in their part. "Oh," they said, "very well." "Why?" "Because," they said, "the people round know what a bad man he was before he entered the teaching, but now know how much he was changed." His wife is a bright Christian, and a very little makes her laugh heartily. She was confirmed the other day. She spoke of the peace in her heart afterwards. The man who was baptized last Sunday refused to take any money for carrying Mrs. Grundy's and my things about a year ago. I had the money in my hand ready to slip into his when he went out, but he saw my intention and swept his arm round so as to prevent my giving it to him and went out.

Heung-Shan, though one of the oldest of the mainland stations, has not thriven spiritually for the past few years. At Kong-Moon, or, rather, in its neighbouring villages, there are 10 Christians, six of whom the Bishop confirmed. Most of them reside at the village of Sha-Kong, 12 miles from Kong-Moon. One of the year's converts at this village had spent 30 years in America, where he had been imprisoned on a charge of passing false money. While in the prison he heard the Gospel, and was inclined to accept it. His intellect was far from bright, and he had much difficulty in learning the 10 precepts of the law abridged to the briefest form, and in one of his examinations he said that the Third Person in the Trinity was Peter! But he seemed clearly to apprehend the work of the Lord Jesus for his soul, and the forgiveness of his sins through Him. In the Hok-Shan district there are many Chinese who lately returned from America. Most of those amongst them who had made a profession of Christianity went back to Heathenism, Mr. Grundy says, on reaching their native land. The Christians are widely scattered in the district, and are all of the peasant class; but, though poor, they are bright and consistent. Mr. Grundy gives the following as an illustration :—

A Christian refuses to marry his daughter to a wealthy Heathen.

One of them told me a few months ago that a heathen neighbour was desirous of marrying his daughter—a nice Christian girl—and was willing to pay quite a large sum of money for her. He declined to open negotiations, and said that he would rather his daughter die at once and go to heaven than be married to a Heathen. He has since promised her in marriage to a poor young man belonging to us, and from whom he will not receive a penny. It is refreshing to hear of such a case, as money is a great temptation and snare to the Chinese.

Some opposition was experienced at Shiu-Hing. There is a prosperous day-school in this city, half the pupils in which are girls, an unusual feature in these country schools.

PAKHOI.

Pakhoi.

Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Horder were called upon to surrender their only child, ten months old, in June, and Dr. Horder himself had a bad illness from the same cause (dysentery), which obliged him on gaining convalescence to leave Pakhoi for four months, during which time Dr. Colborne took charge of the Medical Mission. Dr. Colborne's judgment before he went to Pakhoi was against Missions taking up work among lepers, but from what he saw of the readiness of these poor sufferers to receive instruction from their benefactors, and of the opportunities which a hospital afforded for continuous teaching, he changed his opinion. This is what he says :—

Work among lepers.

When one spoke with the lepers, one felt as if there was a different kind of influence present from what there was when one spoke with others. It seemed like pouring water on the thirsty ground. It seemed, I thought, once or twice as if all that was needed was to make the message clear and plain for it to be received. They seemed much quicker to understand spiritual truth, because perhaps their hearts are more open to receive it.

One day I was talking about the new birth and about Moses and the serpent, and one of them seemed to apprehend my meaning before I had stated it, and said: "Oh, it is as looking at the serpent gave new life to the body, so faith in Jesus gives eternal life to the soul." This (if I understood him aright) is marvellous, when compared with the slowness to comprehend such doctrine even among those who are called Christian. The leper ward has seemed to be near Heaven.

"The leper ward has seemed to be near Heaven."

There was a leper who was taken very ill one day. After he had recovered from one attack, I said to him: "You know the seizure you had just now was dangerous; as you are in a dangerous state it would make my heart much more at ease if you could say you believe in Jesus." He said, "I do." I said I was glad to hear it. Now I should not be so anxious about him. It was good to see how the leper believers around smiled and appeared to be glad with me because he had confessed his faith in Jesus. He was a candidate for baptism and being prepared for it among others when I left.

Another time I was talking about the new birth, how faith in Jesus produced a revolution in the thoughts of the heart, &c., illustrating it by turning my hat upside down; and I asked one leper, who a few days before had said he wished to believe or did believe, whether he found any difference in his heart in consequence. "Yes," he said, "it is not so sad." Then I said to the other lepers, "You hear what he says," and talked a little, when another leper, who was being prepared for baptism when I left, also expressed a wish to trust.

"Since believing my heart is not so sad."

When I went to say good-bye to the lepers before I left, they proposed that we should join in prayer together, which we did; the last one, a lad, began to cry while praying; I also had a kind of choking feeling in my throat, and so had Beauchamp, who was present.

PROVINCE OF FUH-KIEN.

THE Rev. R. W. and Mrs. Stewart returned to the Mission in December, having, at the Committee's request, visited several dioceses in Eastern Canada en route, with a view to extending and deepening the interest in the foreign missionary enterprise. The Rev. Ll. Lloyd, Dr. W. P. and Mrs. Mears, and Dr. J. and Mrs. Rigg came home—Dr. and Mrs. Mears in September, 1893, Mr. Lloyd in April, 1894, and Dr. and Mrs. Rigg in May—all invalided, except Mr. Lloyd, whose furlough was due.

Death of Mrs. Martin.

Mrs. Martin, the wife of the Rev. J. Martin, died on January 21 at Fuh-Chow, whither she had gone in view of her approaching confinement. Mrs. Martin, who was a sister of Miss E. S. Goldie, went out to China under the Female Education Society in 1881, and Archdeacon Wolfe testifies how devotedly she laboured among the Chinese during her twelve years of service.

Confirmation tour by Bishop Burdon.

Bishop Burdon visited Fuh-Kien in November, and made a confirmation tour to Lieng-Kong, Lo-Ngwong, Ning-Taik, and Fuh-Ning. The Rev. H. M. Eyton Jones, of Fuh-Ning, wrote:—

An object lesson.

Our Confirmation was a time of strengthening and refreshing in a very real sense, one to be treasured in our memories for time to come. It was an object lesson to us all to see our dear Bishop braving the inclemency of the weather and the miseries of a cold night journey in an open boat for our sakes. His address was the very thing we needed, touching on the peculiar national failings in a way dictated only by long experience. After his departure we felt as though we had received an angel's visit. He was so kind as to speak of his visit as a time of mutual encouragement, and of himself as pleased with the reverent demeanour of the confirmees. There were 35 candidates, and nine more who were unable from ague, age, and distance to be present.

The Annual Conference of Fuh-Kien Missionaries took place at Fuh-Chow during the Bishop's visit, followed by a conference of the Native agents and meetings of the Provincial Church Council. Several of the missionaries mentioned in their letters the happy united spirit which characterised all the proceedings.

FUH-CHOW.

Fuh-Chow.

Archdeacon Wolfe continues to superintend the evangelistic and pastoral work in the great city of Fuh-Chow and the district around. Crowds of listeners constantly attend the city preaching, both by day and night, but the conversions are few. The Sunday congregation numbers about 70.

Theological College.

The Rev. Ll. Lloyd, on his coming home, has been succeeded in the charge of the Theological College by the Rev. W. Banister. The College had its full complement of students, who worked conscientiously and well. The Rev. Ting Sing Ki is tutor, and Mr. Lloyd says of him: "His quiet and consistent life is conspicuous to us all, and I scarcely know where I could put my finger upon a man who follows more closely in the footsteps of Christ." Once a week he and the students visit the neighbouring villages for preaching. The Boys' Boarding School had 23 pupils at the end of the year. The present practice in the Mission is to admit boys to this school at the age of 15; there are four country boarding-schools which carry them up to that age, and serve as feeders to the Fuh-Chow school. After five or six years in the latter school the students go out as schoolmasters for two years, after which they are eligible, if approved, for entrance to the Theological College. All the boys in the school are members of a Scripture Reading Union, and a Missionary Prayer Union was started during the year. The Girls' Boarding School was worked by Miss Bushell and Miss Lambert, of the F.E.S.; and the Bible Women's Class by Miss Strong, of the C.E.Z.M.S.

Boys' Boarding School.

LIENG-KONG DISTRICT.

Lieng-Kong.

The steady progress reported last year is still maintained in this district. Bishop Burdon confirmed fifty candidates at Lieng-Kong. In the city pastorate the Christian community in the village of Sieu-Ó increased from four to twenty during the year. The Christians at Pah-Sa had to endure some persecution, being attacked by a mob and some of them severely beaten, while their shops were robbed and their harvests only saved from destruction through the timely intervention of Archdeacon Wolfe, who has charge of the district.

Lo-Ngwong.

The Rev. J. Martin sends a more encouraging report of the Lo-Ngwong Christians than the one of the previous year. Twenty-one adults were baptized, and a few backsliders restored. One of the latter, who had kept away from the services for ten years, and for the same long period had discontinued reading the Bible, and had rarely prayed, when asked by Mr. Martin whether he thought God would forgive him, replied:—

"All owing to God's love."

"Yes, for were it not for God's love in sending His Holy Spirit to show me my sins, and to give me this desire to return, I should still be a backslider and forgetful of God. It is all owing to God's love, and in His strength I promise you I will not leave Him again."

Twenty-one adults were baptized. Instances are often mentioned in missionaries' letters of converts being helpfully influenced by dreams, but examples of the opposite kind seem rarely to occur. Mr. Martin, however, refers to two cases in which men on the point of confessing Christ in baptism were deterred through dreams. A Boys' Boarding-school in Lo-Ngwong has 16 pupils. Fifteen Christian women from the congregations of the two districts of Lo-Ngwong and Ning-Taik were under training by Mrs. Martin before her lamented death, and by Miss K. Power, and these ladies visited the homes of the people.

NING-TAIK.

Ning-Taik.

The Rev. J. Martin presides over the work in this district also. He gives the following incidents of the work:—

A village baptism.

In a village near Ning-Taik a few families have been inquirers for two or three years, and the first Christian in the village was baptized last June. On the day of his baptism, the Native pastor, a few Christians from Ning-Taik, and I visited all the houses of the inquirers, preached in the largest ancestral hall and in the streets, and finally made our way to the river which passes by the upper part of the village. When we reached the river, a small crowd of villagers and travellers gathered round us. We sang a hymn, and then the Native pastor led the inquirer into the river and baptized him. It was a solemn time, and one not likely to be forgotten by most of those who were present.

Another man I baptized had been a catechumen for seven years, He might have been baptized before, but was always away from home when others were baptized. He was the first inquirer in his village, and had heard of Christ from a Christian who had hired him to help him in his fields. He has been the means of leading some twenty or more of his fellow-villagers to Christ, and through his efforts all the idols have been destroyed in the village. The church is some four or five miles from the village, and on Sundays some twenty or thirty men, women, and children bring their rice or potatoes with them in the morning, and after morning service have their mid-day meal on the premises, and then are able to stay for the afternoon service. When we had a school in the village, several of the villagers attended in the evening to learn what they could.

A small dispensary was opened in Ning-Taik city, under the charge of a Native medical student trained at Fuh-Ning. Miss E. S. Goldie and one of the Miss Clarkes purposed taking up their residence at Ning-Taik.

FUH-NING.

The Hospital, under Dr. B. Van Someren Taylor, had 671 in-patients and 7,459 out-patients, but the latter number appears to include those admitted to the Ning-Taik Dispensary. The increase marked by these numbers (they were 651 and 7,329 respectively in 1892), was notwithstanding a small fee charged to male patients and to women remaining in the hospital over a month. A military officer was an in-patient for a week, and Dr. Taylor visited another officer in his village, a day's journey distant from Fuh-Ning. Eight of the patients became regular attendants at the Church services. The most hopeful part of the work, Dr. Taylor says, was the women's department, under Mrs. Van Someren Taylor. Three of the female patients were opium smokers, who were cured. One woman, after leaving the hospital, removed all her kitchen gods, and commenced attending a Bible-class. Three women, members of Mrs. Taylor's Bible-class, were baptized in June. Miss M. D. Boileau had the assistance in the Girls' School of Misses J. E. and J. C. Clarke.

Fuh-Ning. Hospital.

The Rev. H. M. Eyton Jones, who has charge of the pastoral and evangelistic agencies, refers to several interesting itinerating experiences. At San-Soa, a busy little port, 20 miles from Fuh-Ning, Mr. Eyton Jones was accompanied by his wife and Miss M. D. Boileau, the first foreign ladies probably ever seen there. On landing they were met on the beach by an old woman, who took Mrs. Eyton Jones's arm and led her to her own house, and then to those of her neighbours, by whom their stock of Mrs. Grimké's cards was promptly and eagerly bought up. Miss Boileau says of the women at this place :—

Ladies welcomed at a fishing village.

One poor woman identified herself with the Christians and their cause by sitting with me at prayer-time, and kneeling down when prayer was offered. A second woman took me to her bedroom, and taking down all the idols, or rather idolatrous symbols, gave them to me, as intimating her intention no longer to trust in them. I had a Bible-woman with me, and we stood in that tiny dark room and thanked God, asking too that this woman might not only renounce the false, but trust entirely the true and living God.

Idols given up.

After the ladies had left him, Mr. Eyton Jones put out to sea some 30 miles, and visited the Paik-Song Island where he had a warm welcome from a solitary Christian resident. Off this island he was invited on board a Revenue cutter. He says :—

It certainly was more pleasant to lodge in a cabin impervious to rain, not to speak of the exalted company in which I found myself. In the evening we had some converse about the future life. At the mention of the resurrection, the mandarin's retainers mocked and laughed. The Customs official, gazing most earnestly in my face, said, "I should greatly like to hear you further on this subject." Does not history repeat itself? How true to life is the record in the Acts! I thought of Acts xvii. 32, and took courage. On our return to San-Soa the garrison fired a volley, the salute being returned by the ship's cannons. My new friend kept me as a guest for two days, and pressed an extension of the visit, doing his best to make the time pass pleasantly.

HOK-CHIANG DISTRICT.

Hok-Chiang.

The Native agents in this district, under Archdeacon Wolfe's supervision, consist of two ordained pastors, 20 catechists, 24 village schoolmasters, 58 voluntary exhorters, and three Bible-women. There are 40 places of worship—16 are buildings erected as churches; 16 are Chinese houses, eight of which are owned by the Mission and eight rented; while the remaining eight are Chinese houses lent by the Christians for the purposes of worship. The adherents number 3,578, of whom 1,738 are baptized. A former friendly Mandarin was succeeded during the year by a hostile one, who, on assuming office, issued an invitation to the literati of Hok-Chiang City to send in essays on the following theme: "How far Christianity is calculated to injure Confucianism, and the best means of opposing its influence." Under his régime it is not surprising that persecution was suffered by the Christians. Archdeacon Wolfe says:—

Persecution.

The Native Christians at one or two stations have suffered severely during the year from the conduct of the Heathen living in the neighbouring towns. These came in large numbers and took away the cattle of some of the Christians, destroyed their houses and plundered them of every article of furniture that they possessed, and took away the eldest son of one Christian family and kept him a prisoner until I took measures to release him.

Of the insanitary condition of the houses of the people, and the consequent high mortality, the Archdeacon says:—

Insanitary dwellings.

Most of the houses in Hok-Chiang are absolutely unfit for human beings to live in, and it is a great trial to a foreign missionary to kneel or remain for any length of time in these places on account of the horrible odours and bad smells. I have often left these houses quite sick from the abominable smells. Words can give no real idea to people at home of the disgusting nature of some of these dwellings, and it is no wonder that these poor people die by hundreds every year. In ten of the houses which I visited in the spring, and where the smells made me very sick, 24 of the inmates died of fever very soon after I had been there.

The adult baptisms numbered 173. Miss M. Wolfe visited the district from Fuh-Chow four times during the year, and gives the following interesting account of one of the female converts:—

An earnest young inquirer.

One dear girl here, about sixteen years of age, was brought to love the Saviour about the beginning of this year. She was very anxious to learn all that she could about Him, and whenever the Bible-woman came to her village this dear child begged to be allowed to sleep in the same bed with her, so that she might hear more and learn more quickly all about the life and death of Jesus. I am afraid this poor Bible-woman had very little sleep on these nights, such was the earnestness of this little girl to learn. I am glad to say she was baptized in September last by my father, in company with several others, in the Keng-Kiang church. Her answers on this occasion were very satisfactory, and we cannot but believe that she was really born again of the Holy Spirit, and received into the Church as a child of God.

HING-HWA DISTRICT.

No Annual Letter has been received from the Rev. C. Shaw, who, with Mrs. Shaw, took up his residence in this district during the year.

KU-CHENG AND PING-NANG DISTRICTS.

Ku Cheng.

The Rev. W. Banister resided at Ku-Cheng until the close of the year, when he removed to Fuh-Chow, and the Rev. R. W. Stewart succeeded to his charge. The Ku-Cheng city congregation increased in numbers, and was marked by a spirit of unity and earnestness in God's service. The formation of a branch of the Christian Endeavour Society—in co-operation with the American Methodist Mission—was an important factor, under God, in effecting the improved state of things. At one of the early meetings of this Association a stranger entered, and remained a silent spectator and auditor to the close. Mr. Banister says of him :—

A casual attendant at a meeting impressed by the benevolence of Christians.

The silent listener came from a village six miles away, and out of mere curiosity had come into the church. The conversation was on subjects all strange and new to him, but it struck him that the religion which caused men to ponder and plan how to reach others and help them, in this way, must be good—and after the meeting he stayed to converse with the catechist, and ultimately he stayed on until the following Sunday and attended the services. The Spirit seemed to have reached his heart and taken firm hold, for since that time he has come down from his home in the hills, week by week, for the Sunday, and best of all he has now been joined by a group of half a dozen men, who walk these twelve miles, to and from church, every week. They beg now for a church to be established in their mountain home, and that a teacher be sent to them; their desire will, I think, be realised during the present year.

Leper congregation.

By means of help supplied by the Society for the Evangelisation of Lepers, an Asylum capable of holding 48 was erected at Ku-Cheng during the year. In a church close at hand a congregation of between 30 and 40 lepers, of whom 29 are baptized, meet for worship. The old man, himself a leper, whose ministrations among these poor sufferers were referred to in the Annual Report for 1891–2 (page 185), died during the year. At A Seng Kang, the most western station of the district, two tailors heard the Gospel, and invited the catechist to accompany them home to their village. He did so, and some 30 met on the following Sunday, and a regular congregation was formed.

In the PING-NANG district, the large congregations of Tong Kio and Pi Liang continue to flourish and to afford encouragement.

KIEN-NING AND YEN-PING DISTRICTS.

The staff at Nang-Wa was strengthened in December by the arrival of the Rev. L. H. F. Star, but shortly afterwards illness drove home Dr. J. and Mrs. Rigg. Before leaving, Dr. Rigg had the satisfaction of seeing a new hospital and doctor's house at Seven Stars Bridge, close to Kien-Ning-Fu city, well advanced towards completion. This hospital is in lieu of the one at Tai-Chiu, which was destroyed by rioters in 1892. The Rev. J. S. Collins, who has charge of the work at Nang-Wa and the district around, writes:—

We have no riots to record, nor any startling events; indeed, at present we seem to have a somewhat discouraging array of desertions and failures to face in all parts of our little battle-field, but we are not discouraged, and I do not remember any time since we came to Nang-Wa at which our little band, though with lessening numbers, faced the work of a New Year with greater earnestness and determination. Put into Scriptural phrase, our thought just now is this, that if God is calling us to be a "Gideon's band" He is doing so in order to give us a victory like Gideon's.

Nang-Wa Hospital.

Two patients of Nang-Wa Hospital were baptized in May, 1893, both of humble rank, and others showed signs of sincere repentance. The out-patients were 1,787 in number, and the in-patients 514, including 122 opium patients. A branch Hospital at Yen-Ping received 1,950 out-patients and 138 in-patients. There were two other adult baptisms at this station during the year. One was teacher to Miss Newcombe of the C.E.Z.M.S., whom she had the happiness of seeing admitted into the visible Church before she came home on furlough. The other was servant to the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies.

Kien-Yang.

The Rev. H. S. Phillips, after his and Mrs. Phillips' expulsion from KIEN-YANG, as related in last year's Annual Report, retired to Nang-Wa, where he remained until the spring of 1893, when he returned to Kien-Yang without Mrs. Phillips. He rejoiced to find a few inquirers who had met together weekly for worship during his absence. One of these Mr. Phillips refers to at some length. He says:—

Not many inquirers, but of unusual quality.

If the inquirers have not been many, one or two have been of unusual quality, but perhaps the most encouraging is a lad named Ang-Ku; from our first arrival he has been friendly, but has only very gradually been convinced of the falsehood of his own faith. One night after prayer together he took a decided stand, and has never since gone back.

Some time ago we heard great quarrelling in the next house, where he lives, and presently he came in looking very crestfallen; he told Hung Ang, one of the students, that he had had a great row with his mother. She had been telling him her intentions as to the expenditure of a sum of $20 she had recently got; she would buy clothes and a coffin with part of the money, and the rest she would expend in incense, candles, beads, &c., the general stock-in-trade of a Buddhist prayer-chanter, that she might go to the temple and acquire merit. "Oh, mother, don't do that," he replied; "buy the other things, but don't begin chanting, &c., at the temple, or you will certainly make God angry and you will go to hell." "My youngest son to revile me!" she replied in great anger. And he added to Hung Ang shame-facedly, "I was up in a moment and spoke angrily to her." It was good to see that already the Spirit was showing the young, and I believe really renewed, heart, what sin was. The student rightly told him that, as a Christian, he must be careful to show himself more filial than the Heathen.

Mr. Phillips was still at the end of the year negotiating with the local mandarin regarding a house for himself and Mrs. Phillips. Archdeacon Wolfe writes regarding the troubles in this city:—

Inhabitants not opposed to missionaries residing among them.

It has been clearly proved during the year that the inhabitants of Kien-Yang are not unwilling to have foreign missionaries resident amongst them, for, in spite of the threats and warnings of the local authorities against the renting or selling of houses to foreigners, the people have again and again offered to sell houses to the missionary. One man, for example, having been put in prison for disregarding the warnings of the mandarins by selling his house to Mr. Phillips, actually remonstrated with the local mandarin for having violated the treaty in refusing to allow him to sell his property to the missionary. This man's brother travelled to Fuh-Chow, a journey of several days, in order to make a declaration before the authorities to the effect that his entire family were willing to sell their house to Mr. Phillips. It has been shown that the principal opposition to the residence of missionaries in the city has come from the officials and a few of the gentry, and not from the people at all. It is now to be hoped that the struggle of four years to get a footing in Kien-Yang is ended, and that Brother Phillips will be allowed at last to carry on his work here in peace and quietness.

MID-CHINA MISSION.

China, north of lat. 28°, became a separate diocese, "North China," in 1872; Dr. Russell, of the C.M.S., was the first Bishop. In 1880, after Bishop Russell's death, it was divided into two, and Dr. G. E. Moule, of the C.M.S., became Bishop of the new See of Mid-China. Shanghai was occupied in 1845; Ningpo, 1848; Hang-Chow, 1864; Shaou-Hing, 1870; T'ai-Chow, 1892; and the Province of Sz-Chuen by a party under the Rev. J. H. Horsburgh in 1892.

In the earlier years of the Mission much success was, by the Divine blessing, achieved in the numerous towns and villages around Ningpo. Many of the Christians in these villages have manifested exemplary Christian steadfastness and zeal, and seven of them have been ordained during a period of seventeen years. In 1877–9 there was an interesting movement in the Chu-ki district, an offshoot of the Hang-Chow Mission, and more than 300 converts were gathered in from about twenty-five villages.

Bishop Moule's movements.

Bishop Moule spent as usual a busy year. About eight months of it he was at Hang-Chow, where the labours and cares pertaining to the immediate supervision of the congregation there, including duties which at home would or should be largely borne by the laity, but which in the Mission-field fall of necessity on the European missionary—such as the direction of repairs of buildings, &c.—engaged much of his time; as also did correspondence with the stations and with the Committee in London. During the other sixteen weeks a modest holiday of nine days was enjoyed; Shanghai was visited four times; Ningpo also four; Shaou-Hing once; T'ai-Chow once; Sanpoh, the East Lake of Ningpo, and the Western Hills each once; and Chuki five times. On Chuki the Bishop spent 39 days. His journeys, by steamer, by Native boats of several varieties, and by sedan chairs, covered some 3,000 miles. The Bishop confirmed 120 candidates, of whom 91 were at T'ai-Chow, 13 at Hang-Chow, 11 at Chuki, and the rest at Ningpo. The Bishop and Mrs. Moule came home on furlough in May, 1894.

Ordinations.

The Rev. G. H. Jose was admitted by Bishop Moule to Priest's Orders on October 7, 1893, and the following six Chinese candidates were admitted to Deacon's Orders in February, 1894: Dong Daofah, Sing Tsaeling, Tsong Siehen, Mô Kwi'enyü, Song Vising, and Dzing Kyidoh. Sing Tsaeling is a son of the Rev. Sing-Engteh, pastor of Sanpoh, and the three last-named are sons-in-law of the same clergyman.

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements were: Dr. Richard Smyth, Scholar and B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, M.B., B.C.L., B.A.O.; Miss Frances Emily Turner, of Edgbaston; and Miss Emily Florence Turner, of Farsley, Yorkshire. Dr. Smyth and Miss F. E. Turner sailed in October, 1893, Miss E. F. Turner in April, 1894.

Death of Archdeacon Cobbold,

One of the pioneers of this Mission, the Ven. R. H. Cobbold, Rector of Ross and Prebendary of Hereford, formerly Archdeacon of Ningpo, died on September 16, 1893. Mr. Cobbold graduated at Cambridge 1843 as Senior Optime and 2nd Class Classical Tripos. He was also a distinguished athlete. He joined the Society's ranks in 1847, and sailed for Ningpo in the same year with the Rev. W. A. (afterwards Bishop) Russell; and these two established the Ningpo Mission. He was appointed Archdeacon by Bishop Smith of Victoria, Hong-Kong; but in 1858 he retired owing to failure of health, and served for the rest of his long life in the home ministry. To the last he was deeply interested in the Missionary cause, and on one occasion he preached the Ramsden sermon on the subject at Cambridge. A few days before the Archdeacon, Miss Edith E. Cornford, who went out to the Mission in 1892, was called to her rest. She had a serious attack of malarial fever in the summer, and was removed to Ningpo. Her death occurred at Chefoo, in Shan-tung, whither she had gone on medical advice to promote convalescence. The Rev. E. P. Wheatley, the senior missionary at Shaou-Hing, wrote:— and of Miss E. E. Cornford.

Miss Cornford promised to be a most efficient worker. She lived for Christ. Her short stay amongst us was not too short for the all-observant Natives to note her piety and sincerity and her zeal in the Lord's cause. Almost her last words were, "His way is perfect."

Several of the missionaries suffered from sickness. The Rev. and Mrs. C. J. FitzS. Symons had to take two months' leave after a very serious illness of the latter; the Rev. E. P. and Mrs. Wheatley for a like period were at Shanghai instead of Shaou-Hing; the Rev. G. W. Coultas was completely laid aside for several months; and Archdeacon Moule had a very anxious illness at the close of the year. The Archdeacon and Mrs. Moule, accompanied by their son, the Rev. W. S. Moule, and Mr. and Mrs. Wheatley, and Miss M. Vaughan came home in the spring of 1894. The Commitee have appointed the Rev. J. Bates Acting Secretary of the Mission.

PROVINCE OF KIANG-SU.

SHANGHAI.

ARCHDEACON MOULE's temporary help in the Shanghai Cathedral services during the absence of the Chaplain, the Rev. H. C. Hodges (brother of Bishop Hodges of Travancore and Cochin), gave him opportunities of fostering the interest of the congregation in Christian Missions. Branches of the Gleaners' Union and Sowers' Band flourish, and more than seventy copies of the Gleaner and thirty of the Children's World find their way into Shanghai homes. The Archdeacon preached every Sunday to the Native Congregation. He observes with sorrow that some of the well-to-do members are far from regular in their attendance. At one of the three Mission-rooms, known as the Thorne Memorial Chapel, in Hongkew, a spirit of inquiry Shanghai.

manifested itself during the summer months. The Archdeacon wrote:—

After sitting without moving or interruption sometimes for an hour and a half, the eager listeners would leave night after night almost shouting their loud approbation of the Gospel, and their conviction that it is the Truth. The same men, in many cases, would return the next evening. A man would wait half an hour outside the door for it to be opened. And they would often stay on and on till Dzing Kyidoh, from sheer exhaustion, had to beg them to leave. This cannot be from man—it must be from God—and surely not in vain.

The six day schools were visited by Mrs. A. E. Moule and Misses E. Onyon and G. E. Stanley, who through the schools obtained access to many heathen homes. A weekly class is held, chiefly of heathen women, at the Bible-woman's house. Mr. A. J. H. Moule concluded a translation of the Book of Joshua during the year.

PROVINCE OF CHEH-KIANG.

NINGPO.

Ningpo Training College.

THE Training College has now three divisions: the class for theological students, which the Rev. J. C. Hoare conducts; the school for training boys for posts as schoolmasters, which is under the Rev. W. S. Moule's superintendence; and a Preparandi Class, formed during 1893, which consists of recent converts who have not had the advantage of a Christian education, and who are too advanced in years to go through the school course and thus qualify to enter the Theological Class, but who are judged to be true and zealous Christians likely to become useful evangelists after a little training. Mr. Hoare says of this class:—

New Preparandi Class.

We have had six men of this stamp in the "Preparandi Class" this year, one from Chuki, one from Shao-hying, one from Ningpo, and three from T'ai-chow. Their chief work during the year has been over Scripture; to use Mr. Venn's expression, we have been trying to "saturate them with Scripture." In addition to hearing the regular course of Church lessons read in chapel every morning and evening, they have been taken in class carefully from Genesis to Esther, and through many books of the New Testament. In addition to that they have made a careful study of the Catechism, the Creed, and the Prayer-book. I expect much fruit from this class, especially in T'ai-chow, where the demand for earnest, simple evangelists is so great.

Four students were in the Theological Class, one of whom was ordained in February, 1894, and is engaged as a tutor in the College. The students visited the hospital patients, preached daily at the evangelistic services in "Grace Church" (which is close to the great City Temple) and by the wayside, and visited the people at their houses. Mr. Moule had 36 pupils under his charge, of whom about two-thirds belonged to the Ningpo district. Four passed out to take up work as schoolmasters.

Dr. Smyth was heartily welcomed to the charge of the Hospital, which was without a European doctor for more than six months.

The Women's Work was earnestly prosecuted. Mrs. Hoare, besides her Women's School, held two classes weekly for Christian women, one at Tsong-Gyiao, five miles from the College. Miss A. Maddison has the Girls' Boarding School, with 21 girls of ages varying from 7 to 17. Miss G. Smith gives the following account of her Village Work:— Women's work.

The work in the country is most encouraging. The women in the Ningpo district are mostly engaged in making mats, or straw shoes, straw hats, &c., and this work can be carried on while listening to our message.

I am very thankful to be able to relate one event that seems likely to prove more than a transient gleam of sunshine. It is the case of a woman living in a hamlet out in the country. I was, according to custom, sitting out in the porch leading to some houses, and there were many coming and going, so that my address was much interrupted, and I was beginning to feel rather disconsolate, thinking no one cared to listen. But it was not so, for a woman just then came up and asked me to come to her cottage close by, as she was much interested in what I had been saying, and it was quiet there. With a very thankful heart I went, and she seemed as if she could never hear enough. I told her the Old, Old Story, finishing up with the promise that our Lord would come again. So convinced was she of the truth of what she heard, that she said that under these circumstances her kitchen god would be of no use and might as well be destroyed, and she destroyed it at once in my presence, and entreated me to come again before long. Before we left she had learnt a few easy sentences of prayer, which she promised to use daily. Since then she has sent me some bank-notes on the next world, which were to have brought her in $1,000 each when burnt after death, and has also come here and paid me a visit, during which she says she learnt a great deal about prayer. Kitchen god destroyed.

The Country Evangelistic Work under the Rev. J. Bates embraces a wide district. He and his Native agents meet with large audiences in the course of their itinerating tours. At a great fair held in May at Loh-ko-bu, 100 li from Ningpo, and again in the great market towns of the Tsong-Gyiao plain, large and friendly audiences listened with apparent interest to the Gospel. Mr. Bates says:—

Indeed it may be said that wherever one goes there is no difficulty in collecting crowds to listen, nor has one any complaint to make in general as regards the disposition of the people. They listen sometimes with a strange and eager curiosity, and their minds, apparently, are impressed with what they hear. But when we have said this we have said all that we could honestly say regarding them. Few, alas! very few, are inclined to follow us, or to make earnest inquiries as to the way of Salvation. It is, indeed, very remarkable that we should have such facilities for preaching the Gospel, and yet that there should be such an absolute indifference to the necessity for its acceptance. Numerous and eager listeners.

My magic-lantern still continues to do most useful work, and attracts large audiences wherever it is exhibited. I had a rather pleasant experience with it lately in Soen-poh. The place where I showed the lantern was literally crowded to suffocation, and the crowds outside were greater than the crowd inside, so that I could do little else than show the pictures one after the other. I then extinguished my light and told the people I must stop, and soon retired to a room upstairs. But the people below, for the A lantern meeting.

most part, stayed behind! They were unwilling to leave, in the hope perhaps of seeing more pictures. However, I came downstairs and told them that I could not show any more views that night. "Well, then," they said, "will you talk to us?" I said, "Certainly, with pleasure." And so they sat there in perfect stillness while I described to them some of the pictures I had been showing, and while I explained to them the Gospel story. When I had done the schoolmaster addressed them, and they listened with much attention and evident pleasure, late though it was, and I trust, too, not without some profit.

Mr. Bates also reports on the four Pastorates, which show a small increase in numbers. Fourteen adults were baptized.

T'AI-CHOW DISTRICT.

The Rev. J. H. Jose writes: "It is wonderful work in this district; there are plenty of difficulties and disappointments; heaven is rejoicing and hell does not like it, but when it comes to summing up the whole work, it is as though nothing were visible but the grace of God and the gift by the grace of the one man Jesus Christ abounding unto many." One hundred and thirty-six were baptized during the year, of whom 100 were adults. Bishop Moule and the Rev. J. C. Hoare visited the district in April. Dr. Hicken had then just commenced Dispensary Work, and had already treated 120 patients. Mr. Hoare, who examined the confirmation candidates, wrote:—

Baptisms in T'ai-Chow district.

Confirmation candidates well prepared.

As is usual in that district, the candidates all gave evidence of having had very careful instruction and preparation, and seemed to have a very real hold of the Gospel. One candidate was especially interesting in the evidence which he afforded of the heathen sentiment as to opium-selling. He, though not an opium-smoker himself, had kept an opium-tavern. Having heard the Gospel he was much interested, and began to attend the services held in an outlying hamlet (I am thankful to say that there are many such little gatherings now in the district) not far from his home. The Native pastor when he met him spoke about the opium-tavern, and told him that such a trade was inconsistent with a Christian profession. But the ties of gain were still too strong for him, until, "One day," he said, "a heathen neighbour said to me, 'How can you at the same time be a seller of opium and a member of the Christian Church?' The words," he said, "went right to my heart, and now I have given up the opium trade, and am come to be a whole-hearted servant of Christ."

An inquirer gives up the sale of opium.

Thirty-four were baptized on April 23, and 37 confirmed, several of those baptized being at once confirmed. The following day the Bishop and Mr. Hoare, with the Rev. Dzing Teh Kwông, the Native pastor, went to Gih-veh-yiang, a little village in the midst of the hills and by the riverside, where the first convert was baptized in the spring of 1892, twenty-one others in the autumn, and now ten others were baptized. Then on the 28th they started in a rough boat down the T'ai-Chow River some seventy miles, to a village named Ts'ing-yiang-dao, in the Wông-Ngaen Hsien, or county, on the south side of the river. Mr. Hoare thus describes that visit:—

These people had heard the Gospel through various sources—a colporteur, a travelling tailor, and others. They had bought a Buddhist temple, taken down all the idols, and turned it into a place of worship, sending the title-deeds up to me as a gift to the Church. Thus we found ourselves on Wednesday afternoon seated in the said ex-Buddhist temple, with the idols all heaped up in a corner (I am making arrangements to send them to England), examining candidates for baptism at a place 70 miles from our centre. We examined the candidates with great care, as of course we could get no testimony as to character; but we were deeply impressed with the knowledge and earnestness displayed by them. We accepted 32 for baptism, including infants, and 25 for confirmation. The service the next day, after a night somewhat marred by the leaky condition of the roof, was most impressive. The intense earnestness, and at the same time the devout reverence of these new converts, made itself felt in a most marked manner.

A Buddhist temple turned into a place of Christian worship.

Immediately after the service we had to hurry away in order, by boats and chairs, to make our seventy-mile journey back again before Sunday. Of the discomforts of this kind of journey I need not speak at length. For a young man, when things go smoothly and the weather is fine, &c., it is all very well, and may be even enjoyable; but I do not think that there are many men of our Bishop's age who would willingly rough it through wet and fine, in half-open boats and filthy inns—or shall I say hovels?—as the Bishop has been doing for the last three weeks.

Discomforts of travelling.

The following Sunday three more candidates were baptized and five more confirmed at Greatstone Valley, making 79 baptisms and 88 confirmed during this tour. Mr. Hoare attributes the success of the work under God largely to the Native pastor. He says:—

He has really had the directing of the whole work, and he has succeeded in uniting all under him, including agents paid by the C.M.S., in loyal, hearty service. We were very much struck at Gih-veh-yiang by a quiet display of his influence. After the examination of some candidates, without a word of consultation with us, the pastor turned round and said, "Call in So-and-so." So-and-so came, and the pastor quietly turned to him and rebuked him for having taken part in some family ceremonies which involved contact with, though not participation in, idolatry. He spoke so lovingly and yet so firmly, so quietly and yet with such evident ministerial authority, that he was absolutely irresistible. Rebellion was impossible, but the man did not wish to rebel. "If you bid me not to do it, I won't," he said. "It is not my bidding, it is God's," said the pastor, and so the matter ended.

Godly influence of a Native pastor.

Mr. Jose credits the efforts of the Itinerating Band, under God, with a large proportion of the baptisms. The term "band" is, however, somewhat a misnomer, inasmuch as its members travelled alone in order to cover the ground more effectually. Mr. Jose speaks highly of their devotion:—

The members of the Itinerating Band have been working steadily and well, though much handicapped by having to be each alone owing to lack of Native workers: this lack, we trust, will be made good before long. The best testimony to their work is the number of candidates presented for baptism by each, and their willingness to go and live alone in these out-of-the-way places; for it means more to a Ningpo man to go and itinerate amongst those whom he regards as "οἱ βάρβαροι" than it does to us to come from England to do so.

Zealous Native Evangelists.

Two Bible-women are much blessed in their itinerations. Mr. Jose says:—

The two Bible-women are very devoted and ready to go anywhere, and they are being much blessed. I passed one day on the road to Lih-feh-yiang an old lady returning from Da-zih to Wöng-sö, sitting in a rest-shed, telling out to a crowd of women as loud and fast as she could all she knew of Christ. She had walked sixty li (twenty miles) on her bound feet to Ky'i-nön to see if the doctrine she had heard at Wöng-sö was supported by any evidence, and was now walking back again delighted, like the Queen of Sheba on a humbler scale. She had heard the same truths in a Native Christian home and in the church; she had seen the foreign lady, and they had actually been able to converse together; she had seen a dispensary day. Her vegetarian vow of thirty or forty years' standing was broken before she left.

"Like the Queen of Sheba on a humbler scale."

The woman referred to in the above has since been baptized with her husband.

SHAOU-HING.

This great city of from three to four hundred thousand people has always presented peculiar difficulties to the Gospel labourer. The bad reputation which its climate has acquired does not appear to be deserved, as, in the judgment of Bishop Moule, it is not worse than that of other stations in this Mission. But it has certainly yielded very little fruit to reward the twenty-four years of faithful spiritual husbandry which has been spent upon it. The Rev. E. P. Wheatley points to one undoubted difficulty:—

The chief trades of the city are mock money-making, and wine-making. The mock money is made of paper covered with tinfoil, and the beating out of the tin, the cutting and pasting and colouring of the imitation blocks of money afford employment to thousands of men, women, and children. To be a Christian necessitates the abandonment of this trade, and in consequence loss of money, and as a Chinaman finds it above all things difficult to give up money, the obstacle to serious consideration of Christianity is great. It seems to me that we are hammering at a great rock. The blows are telling, but the rock is hard, and it needs much faith and patience to wait for the great movement which shall shake the mass to crumbling.

To become a Christian means loss of livelihood.

Two adults were baptized. The Rev. W. G. Walshe preached in the cities and towns of the Shaou-Hing plain, and visited the pilgrims resorting to the temple of the "Chinese Noah" outside Shaou-Hing. His presence excited no manifestation of dislike, or even of curiosity, showing that the missionary is no longer regarded as a "stranger" in the most literal sense of the word. Miss I. S. Clarke was engaged in the study of the language, which, notwithstanding its difficulty, she found "very interesting." In the Dispensary and Hospital the Native doctor trained at Hang-Chow "treated 3,000 out-patients, had 34 in-patients, saved quite a number of opium suicides, and performed many minor operations," Dr. Duncan Main writes.

HANG-CHOW.

Hang-Chow Hospital.

Over 13,000 new out-patients were treated at the Hang-Chow Hospital, under Dr. D. Duncan Main, who writes:—

During the year the kindly light of love and sympathy has been shining, and not a few have been helped and cheered and blessed. Burdens have been lightened; the road of life made a little easier and smoother; helping hands have been held out to the fainting; broken hearts have been bound up; ignorance, prejudice, and unreasonableness have been overcome; the Gospel has been preached in all its simplicity, and souls have been saved, and we believe God has been glorified. Of course we have had our difficulties too, but we have not looked at them through magnifying-glasses, or gone out of our way to meet them, or allowed them to depress us. We don't believe in putting clouds into clear skies or crossing bridges till we come to them.

"The very wreckage of misery and wretchedness."

In the dispensary we come across the very wreckage of misery and wretchedness—many of the poor creatures who come to us for help are actually loathsome and repulsive, poverty and dirt (specially the dirt) are in the front, and if it were not "for Christ's sake," I fear much of the dreary drudgery of dispensary work would not be done with hearty enthusiasm. We treated over 13,000 (a considerable increase over last year) new patients. Each one was personally dealt with and prescribed for, and no one was sent off with bread-pills or coloured water; their diseases were all properly diagnosed, and the best medicines were prescribed and given to them. We don't, of course, give a man medicine if there is nothing the matter with him; neither do we give him a gallon because he asks for it (quantity is a great matter with a Chinaman). Neither do we give a patient specially good medicine because he appears interested in what we preach. There are some who fancy that if they give heed to the "doctrine" we shall give them specially efficacious medicine, and there are others who think that the quantity of medicine they receive is in proportion to the length of time they listen to the Gospel.

The in-patients were over 600 in number, of whom nearly 100 were women. Dr. Main says of this important branch of the work:—

All other means of recovery failed.

This hospital work is our chief and most important work, both medically and spiritually. In the dispensary we meet with hundreds who can only be satisfactorily treated as in-patients; in fact many of the diseases are so chronic and aggravated by native quacks, that even with the best hospital treatment we can do little or nothing to relieve them. As a rule, the very chronic and long-standing cases only come to us after all other plans have failed: idols, astrologers, and fortune-tellers have been consulted; the wonderful virtue of tigers' bones, snakes' skins, and dragons' teeth have been tried; charms have been used to expel the evil spirits and pacify the offended gods. All their money has been spent, and they are nothing better, but rather worse, and they come hoping, many of them, poor creatures, to be cured "right off." And no matter how serious the disease may be, they think we shall at least cure it in a month; and they often seem most surprised when we tell them that we cannot promise to cure them at all, but that we will do what we can to relieve them. Not a few are brought to us in the last stages of fatal sickness, and when we say it is too late and nothing can cure them, their friends are most unwilling to carry them away, and often remain for hours on the compound, pleading with us on their knees, and knocking their heads on the ground most earnestly, for us to heal them and save their lives. It is hard to convince them that there is a limit to our power, and they often accuse us of hiding our ability and keeping our best medicine in reserve.

Dr. Main's views on the effects of opium-smoking.

Ninety-seven were admitted to the Opium Refuge, representing all grades of society and all classes of men. Dr. Duncan Main again expresses his strong sense of the evils of opium-smoking:—

My opinion about the evil effects of opium-smoking is unaltered. No one in his sober senses can say anything in its favour, unless he talks nonsense. We never come across an opium-smoker or a non-opium-smoker who has anything to say in favour of the habit, and if it were such an innocent affair as some advocates of it try to make us believe, surely we who live among the people from year to year would find it out. I think far too little is made of this most important fact. Surely the voice of the people should be listened to, and the testimony of those who have paid flying visits to opium-smoking countries and gathered their information through interpreters should be discounted. Many, I fear, are influenced by pecuniary or personal motives, and some, no doubt, take up the cudgels for it because missionaries are its chief opponents. To me it seems an utter impossibility for anyone who lives among the Chinese, speaks their language, knows their lives, and mixes with them from day to day, to do anything else but condemn the base, cruel, and demoralising habit. It affects the Chinaman's person, principle, and purse, damages his constitution, degrades his conduct and drains his cash, and in many cases leads to ruin and destruction of body and soul. God grant that every help may be given to those who are fighting against the evil and trying to cure and save the victims of the habit!

Eight medical students were under instruction qualifying for work in the Hospital and for development of Medical Mission agencies. A new Women's Hospital was built during the year, which Mrs. Main will (D.V.) superintend, as she has the women's ward.

Girls' Boarding School.

An interesting baptism occurred in the Girls' Boarding School, superintended by Mrs. Moule. It was that of a deaf and dumb girl of the age of 17. She had been in the school eight or nine years. Bishop Moule says:—

A deaf and dumb convert.

She was at first outrageously mischievous; growing docile by degrees, she was taught to cotton-braid, to sew, and to cook. Meantime she observed and imitated the practice of her schoolfellows in kneeling at her bedside night and morning for silent prayer, besides attending the school prayers and church service. After a time she was taught to hold a pencil, and to write the Roman alphabet, and so little by little it appeared that she could understand written words. The matron, who by this time had a good opinion of her disposition, some two years ago consulted Mrs. Moule about her baptism, which she had ascertained the poor girl wished for. Thereupon began a course of written conversations between Mrs. Moule and the girl, which resulted in the conviction that she really wished to be a child of God through Christ, and know to some extent what these great names meant, and what to expect in baptism. Accordingly she was baptized as an adult, her profession being made for her, in answer to any questions, by Mrs. Moule and the matron, and four months later, on similar conditions, she was confirmed.

Miss M. Vaughan, who has come home, had under her supervision a girls' day-school with 14 pupils, and Miss L. H. Barnes, who assists at the boarding-school, also started a day-school. The latter writes of the Sunday classes in connexion with these schools:—

Sunday classes.

On Sundays I have had two classes—one a class of very dear little girls at the boarding-school, and many a time I have thought they really loved the Lord Jesus Christ—certainly they have a wonderful knowledge of the Gospel stories. The other class was at Miss Vaughan's Sunday-school. From 2.30 until 4 P.M. her day children, about 14 boys and girls, with any outside children, assembled together—generally between 30 and 40. We both enjoyed this very much. For about 20 or 30 minutes Miss Vaughan prayed, sung with them, and questioned them; then we divided, I taking about ten of the biggest boys, and Miss Vaughan the rest. After questioning them on the last Sunday's lesson—all so eager to answer—then giving them another Bible story, we joined, when Miss Vaughan questioned both classes. Afterwards we sang a hymn, prayed, and then dismissed them, giving each a card with a text.

A class for Heathen women was held by Miss A. L. Wright, of whom two were baptized. Miss A. Hunt's time was spent chiefly in language study.

The Congregation increased during the year. Miss Wright wrote on Palm Sunday, soon after her return:—

Crowded church.

We have had such a nice Sunday. The church was crowded this morning, a sort of congregation I had dreamed of as a possibility some day, and now it has become such a regular thing that the church is to be enlarged at once. I believe that the work will begin this week. Mr. Coultas read the service, and the Bishop preached a beautiful sermon on the words, "An Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ, the righteous." The people were all so attentive. We also had a new hymn, "Ride on, ride on, in majesty," which the Bishop had translated for to-day.

Chuki.

Difficulties raised by the local Mandarin have delayed the erection of a house in the Chuki district for the Rev. J. B. and Mrs. Ost. It is proposed that the Rev. J. and Mrs. Neale will also reside there when the difficulties are removed. Several of the missionaries visited the district. The Bishop went several times, accompanied by the Rev. J. Neale. The return journey after a visit in January, 1893, occupied three days, instead of 18 hours, as they were frozen up. Miss Vaughan went three times and Miss Barnes four times. They mention several incidents of an encouraging nature. A woman at Kan-de was led to break her vegetarian vow in answer to the prayers of her little son, a pupil in one of the schools. A young man in the same place, who had heard the Gospel first in the Ningpo Hospital, was found to be in the habit of having daily prayer in his house, and his sister, whom he had instructed, was able to repeat the Creed to Miss Vaughan.

PROVINCE OF SZ-CHUEN.

The Mission staff.

THE temporary locations of the members of the Rev. J. H. Horsburgh's party about the end of 1892 were mentioned in last year's Annual Report. By studying the map on page 206 the relative position of these localities and the journeyings of the several members of the party will be understood. Sin-tien-tsi, where the Rev. J. H. and Mrs. Horsburgh and Miss A. Entwistle were residing, means "the New Inn," and it is the name of the China Inland Mission house (which was formerly an inn). It is situated on the top of a mountain, about a mile from the nearest village, and serves for a sanatorium. It is 43 miles from Paolin (marked Paoning-Fu on the map). Miss E. D. Mertens, Miss E. Garnett, and Miss G. E. Wells were at Chentu, the political capital of the province. Mr. A. A. Phillips was at Suifu; Miss R. Lloyd at Lucheo; Mr. E. B. Vardon at Chung-King; and the Rev. O. M. Jackson and Mr. D. A. Callum at Wan-Hsien—all on the Yangtse River. The last-named place is not given on the map; its position may be ascertained by continuing the line of the river and the dotted line on the east side of the map until they meet.

C.M.S. district in Sz-Chuen.

The district which it was agreed among the missionaries of the C.I.M. and C.M.S. should be reserved to the latter Society may be roughly ascertained by drawing a circle, with Miencheo as its centre, and the distance from Miencheo to Paolin (125 miles) as its radius. The journey across this circle, from Paolin to Chentu, takes about 11 days. It will be seen that, as located at the end of 1892, none of the C.M.S. party were residing within the C.M.S. district. Apart from the difficulty of obtaining houses in cities not previously occupied, owing to the opposition of the local authorities, it was a distinct advantage during the early months of studying Chinese and becoming accustomed to their new environment, for the missionaries, and especially the ladies, to be stationed with the more experienced missionaries of the C.I.M. But Mr. Horsburgh's efforts were directed throughout 1893 to obtaining houses within the C.M.S. district. He spent only 13 weeks of the year with Mrs. Horsburgh. Every city in the district, except one, was visited by one or more members of the party during the year. The success, however, was not great. One house only within the C.M.S. district, in the city of Shintu (Sintu on the map), fifteen miles north of Chentu, on the Great North Road leading to Pekin, was secured; and eventually a house was taken, as a temporary expedient, at Kuan-Hsien, a C.I.M. station forty miles to the north-west of Chentu, as a residence for some of the ladies.

Efforts to obtain houses.

Regarding the attitude of the officials, Mr. Horsburgh writes:—

> The mandarins, it would appear, have leagued themselves together to prevent foreigners living in new cities. But our God can overturn all this, and He will in due time. It is a matter for real thankfulness that we can get houses without serious difficulty in towns where missionaries are already living, and that we can alwaya itinerate in new places and cities, staying a few days or a few weeks, if we like, in an inn; and some of the inns are really fairly comfortable.

The freedom which exists for itinerating is illustrated strongly by the year's experience. Mr. Horsburgh and Mr. Phillips (the latter arrived at Chentu from Suifu in January) visited Maocheo in March, seeking in vain for a house there, and continued the circuit, Mr. Horsburgh viâ Sichuan and Miencheo, back to Chentu. Mr. Callum, followed with a few days' interval by Mr. Jackson, made a land journey of 730 miles from Wan-Hsien to Chentu by the route indicated on the map, starting at the end of February and arriving early in April. Between Wan-Hsien and Paolin, a distance of 300 miles, there is no Mission station. Forty-two towns and cities were passed, and villages every few miles. The country throughout the whole route is mountainous, but an average distance of 30 miles a day was made by the travellers. The people were invariably civil. After leaving Kiencheo the route for 59 miles was along the Great North Road, which Mr. Jackson thus describes:—

A land journey of 730 miles.

> It is one of the ancient royal roads, and leads from Pekin to Chentu; it is wide and well paved and fairly level, and lined on either side with large cypress-trees of ancient growth, so that the road, with few exceptions, passes through a cool, shadowy grove, every tree bearing a small wooden tablet, telling how the trees were planted by an emperor long ago, and were not to be destroyed.

An ancient royal road.

The two following incidents on the journey are mentioned by Mr. Jackson :—

"We have heard of your sacred religion, and we believe it is good."

At Kiencheo, on the great road, while resting in an inn after standing in the streets, two gentlemen came in to see me ; they having heard that a foreign teacher had come, were anxious to hear more about the doctrine he taught. They listened for some time, and then finding I could read characters, one of them took a pen and wrote a few lines, the purport of which was something like this : "We have heard of your sacred religion, and we believe it is good ; we have heard of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, and that He gives salvation, but we do not understand it ; we want to be your pupils. Please tell us what we are to do ; we would like to enter your religion." They then stayed some time with me, and I told them of repentance and the remission of sins. May God bless the Word to them !

A proposal to worship the New Testament.

At another place, a village near Maocheo, an inn-keeper, who would not take any money for the tea I drank, showed great interest in the doctrine, and in reading two tracts I gave him. Presently he brought out a book, a portion of the New Testament, which he said had been given to him fifteen years ago ; he had not read it, however, and after a while asked if he ought to worship it with his idols (I notice old books are often kept with the idols). I then read and explained various passages, and when I left he promised to continue reading, and accompanied me out of the village, and finally ran after me to ask my name and to request that I would soon return to tell him more of the doctrine.

It had been arranged that Messrs. Jackson and Callum should meet Messrs. Horsburgh and Phillips at Maocheo, but the two latter were sent away from the city by the Mandarin under an escort a few days before Mr. Callum reached it, and Mr. Horsburgh's attempt by forced marches of 40 miles a day to reach Paolin from Chentu in time to stop Mr. Jackson was in vain ; the latter had just gone through. "At such times," Mr. Horsburgh wrote, "one is tempted to think that a few trains and a penny post would make things a little easier."

Miss Garnett spent four months, from February to June, at Tong Chuan Fu, having Miss Fosbery of the C.I.M. as her companion. They sold books, ministered to the sick, and spoke about the Saviour, finding acceptance with the people. Early in June some students who were up for examination circulated reports that they were kidnapping children. An excited crowd gathered round the inn, and the ladies thought it wise to return to Chentu.

In April Mr. Callum and Mr. Phillips spent over a fortnight at Shin-tu-Hsien, 15 miles north of Chentu, where they sold books, pasted up tracts, and preached the Gospel.

In May Mr. Jackson and Mr. Phillips itinerated 90 miles along the North Road to Miencheo, where Mr. Jackson stayed five weeks and found the people most friendly. Mr. Callum in the same month went with Mr. Knipe, an independent member of the party, to Song-Pau, the city from which the Rev. and Mrs. Polhill-Turner of the C.I.M. had been expelled in 1892. This city is five or six days' journey to the north of Maocheo, and is near the borders of Tibet. It is not marked on the map on page 206. Here Mr. Callum remained four months until September. He says of this visit :—

When we got to Song-Pau we found the house in a very dirty condition, for it is a fresh house, rented since the visit of last year, and consequently dirty. We set to work to wash the walls and get the place clean; this took two or three days. When this was finished, we opened our doors to the public, and at once the people began to come for medicine. They came in great numbers, inasmuch as we had not time even to eat our food. All sorts of people came to us, blind, deaf, dumb, leprous, lame, sick, wounded, and when we could not help, we sent them sadly away. The greater half of our patients were Tibetan, and they constantly brought us offerings of milk, butter, eggs, vegetables, sweetmeats, &c. They are very simple, and naturally very generous. They look very picturesque in their sheepskin garments, with a collar of leopard skin, but they did not look over clean. On two occasions I have slept in a Tibetan house. My bed on both occasions was put in the greatest room in the house, the family temple. At both places I was very kindly treated, especially at the last of the two places. I was sent from there with my saddle-bags laden with their presents. I had to speak through an interpreter on both occasions, as the vast majority of the Tibetans round about Song-Pau do not speak Chinese. I tried to tell them of the utter uselessness of idols, and of the one true and living God, who loves all men, and would have all men to be saved. I had a talk with a young Buddhist priest at one of the houses, but he understood so little Chinese, it was hard work to get him to understand anything. The Tibetans are looking forward to the return of Mr. and Mrs. Polhill-Turner, who were treated so badly last year at Song-Pau. The Tibetans are very strong in their condemnation of last year's riot. I could give you many incidents, did space permit, of the little work we did among the Tibetans around Song-Pau.

Among Tibetans.

The Chinese also came in good numbers round us, and we got a special entrance into their homes. They were our great friends quite up to the time of my leaving Song-Pau; they are still very friendly with Brother Knipe. The Mohammedans were very friendly. Most of our visitors (Chinese) were Mohammedans, the greater part of the population of Song-Pau are Mohammedans, and many of the officials are followers of the False Prophet. I went to the chief mosque to see an Arabian teacher from Mecca! About the last person one would expect to see in such an out-of-the-way place as Song-Pau.

A Mohammedan teacher from Mecca on the borders of Thibet.

In August Mr. Horsburgh went to Kien-Cheo to take possession of a house which the Rev. W. W. Cassels of the C.I.M. had succeeded in renting for the C.M.S., but some of the people raised objections, and the mandarin ill-treated the landlord, so it was thought best not to insist on the right to occupy. Miss Entwistle resided at Sin-tien-tse most of the year, making a short itinerating tour in the spring, and spending the summer at Pa-Cheo, a C.I.M. station, helping in the work by Mr. Cassels' invitation.

Miss Lloyd was engaged until April in nursing the wives of two missionaries at Sui-Fu. In the middle of April she left Lucheo to go to Chentu, where she arrived on May 10, and, with the exception of a short visit to Tong-Chuan-Fu, she remained there the rest of the year. A boy whom she had taught in a Sunday-school she had started at Lucheo went to Chentu soon after her, and went to her again for his Sunday lesson. He died of cholera afterwards.

Miss Mertens spent the year at Chentu, except three months at Kuan-Hsien; and Miss Wells was at the latter place from February till the end of the year. Miss Casswell and Miss Snell reached Chentu on June 16, and Miss Thompson and Miss Kelly (fiancée of Mr. Phillips) reached Paolin, having travelled overland from Wan-Hsien with the Rev. E. O. and Mrs. Williams of the C.I.M., a week or two sooner.

Mrs. Horsburgh, with her family, removed from Sin-tien-tse to Chentu in November, and nearly all the party were together at this place at Christmas, which was to become the temporary headquarters for the men, as Kuan-Hsien was to be for the ladies.

Glorious opportunities.

Mr. Vardon is stationed at Chung-King. Partly for his health's sake, he itinerated to and from Chentu in the spring, and spent several weeks in the summer at Kiang-King, a few days higher up the Yangtse than Chung-King.

One of the missionaries concludes his Annual Letter with these remarks:—

The itinerant missionary, although a foreigner, is able to move about among these perishing, idolatrous crowds with perfect freedom, whether on the streets, in tea-shops and eating-houses, or in the inns, and to tell them the message of God to their souls, no man forbidding him. What glorious opportunities, occurring every day in thousands of places in China, yet in thousands of places there is no one to "buy up the opportunities" for Christ! The great Enemy is laid open to attack in pretty well every part of this vast dominion of his, but where are Christ's soldiers? One may travel for days in almost any direction from this central city and not meet a single one. Where are they? Surely there are thousands and thousands daily on the parade-ground at home singing patriotic hymns (I allude, of course, to heavenly patriotism), and a few hundreds at the seat of war. Is it not so? Is this the Captain's order?

JAPAN MISSION.

For 230 years, in consequence of the political intrigues of the Jesuit missionaries in the sixteenth century, Japan was absolutely closed to the outer world. In 1853 the long-sealed empire began to open to European influences, and since that time the country has made most extraordinary progress in the adoption of Western civilisation. Still more recent is the toleration now tacitly accorded to Christian effort. American missionaries arrived in 1859, but for several years they could do scarcely any direct evangelistic work. In 1869, just after the wonderful revolution which restored power to the Mikado, the first C.M.S. missionary landed at Nagasaki. He also could only use quiet and indirect methods of making known the Gospel, and the few converts vouchsafed to his labours were baptized secretly.

Since 1874 the Mission has been gradually extended and strengthened. In HONDO, the Main Island, Osaka and Tokio were occupied in 1874; Gifu, 1890; Fukuyama and Matsuye, 1891. In SHIKOKU, Tokushima was occupied in 1888. In KIU-SHIU, Nagasaki was occupied in 1869; Kumamoto and Fukuoka, 1888. In HOKKAIDO, Hakodate in 1874; Sapporo 1892.

In 1889 a new constitution, formed somewhat on the lines of that of our own land, was promulgated. At the first General Election under this constitution, held in 1890, fourteen Christians were elected to seats in the House of Representatives; and a Christian was subsequently appointed Speaker.

Arrangements were made by the late Archbishop of Canterbury for the establishment of an English Bishopric in Japan, and the present Archbishop nominated the Rev. A. W. Poole, C.M.S. Missionary in South India, to be the first Bishop. He was consecrated October 18, 1883. But in the mysterious providence of God he was permitted to labour for a few months only; he died in July, 1885. He was succeeded by Bishop Edward Bickersteth, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission, son of the Bishop of Exeter.

THE Committee's decision, in response to the invitation of Bishop E. Bickersteth, to nominate to the Archbishop of Canterbury names from which his Grace should select two men to oversee the work of the Church of England in the Southern and Northern Islands of Japan was mentioned in last year's Report. The Archbishop accepted the nomination of the Rev. Henry Evington, M.A., of Pembroke College, Oxford. The consecration of Bishop Evington, who arrived in England in February, took place in Lambeth Palace Chapel on Sunday, March 4, 1894, at the same time as Bishop Tugwell was consecrated Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa. Bishop Evington sailed again in April. His diocese embraces the island of Kiu-shiu and the Loo-Choo Islands.

Consecration of Bishop Evington.

Mr. Evington joined the Japan Mission in 1874, the year after taking his degree, and has been privileged to see the growth of the Society's work in these islands almost from its commencement. The sudden burst of new civilisation had just occurred, and the public edicts against Christianity which had adorned the Government notice-boards for 250 years had just been withdrawn. When Mr. Evington sailed the staff consisted of five men, only one of whom had been twelve months in the Mission, and the adherents numbered two. The staff now is 23 men and 26 single women; seven Japanese have been ordained in the Society's Mission, and the Christian adherents are 3,109. When Bishop Poole, the first English Bishop in Progress in twenty years.

Japan, was appointed in 1883 there were 350 converts in the whole Mission; now the converts in Kiu-shiu and in Hokkaido, the two new dioceses, are 798 and 952 respectively.

Reinforcements.

The Committee have sent out the following reinforcements: the Rev. Reginald Henry Consterdine, B.A., Trinity College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, Curate of Holy Trinity, Cheltenham; the Rev. Horace George Warren, B.A., Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and Islington College, son of Archdeacon Warren, and brother of the Rev. C. T. Warren and of Mrs. Chapman, of this Mission; Miss Harriet Susan Cockram, Miss Mina Adelaide McClenaghan, and Miss Ethel Ada Perronet Sells, all three trained at The Willows; Miss Florence Marianne Fugill, an experienced Y.W.C.A. worker, who is supported by the Keswick Convention Mission Fund, under an arrangement with the promoters of the Convention; Miss Hilda Sidonia Spicer, an Honorary Missionary; and Miss Della Iris Hunter-Brown and Miss Marie Louise Pasley, sent out by the New Zealand C.M.S. Association. Mr. Warren was admitted to Deacon's Orders by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, May 28, 1893; he was placed in the First Class in the Oxford and Cambridge Preliminary Theological Examination. There sailed in December, 1893, to return to the Mission after furlough, the Rev. and Mrs. G. Chapman and the Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Brandram; and in April, 1894, the Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Hutchinson. Miss M. D. Wood and Mrs. Edmonds arrived in England in July, 1893, but returned the following January; the Rev. and Mrs. W. P. Buncombe and Miss S. J. Thompson came home in December, Miss A. M. Tapson in January, 1894, Miss K. A. S. Tristram and Miss O. Julius in March, and the Rev. and Mrs. B. F. Buxton in April. Mr. Buncombe, Miss Wood, Miss Tapson, and Miss Tristram were sent home on medical certificates.

To the Committee's regret, Archdeacon H. Maundrell, after a service of 20 years, eight of which were spent in the Madagascar Mission before it was relinquished by the Society, was obliged to retire in June, 1893, in consequence of the state of his health. The Rev. T. Dunn, after nine years of service in Ceylon, the North Pacific, and Japan Missions, retired at the same time and for the same cause.

The Rev. G. H. Pole has been appointed Acting Secretary of the Mission during the absence of Archdeacon Warren, who is coming home on furlough.

I. HONDO (MAIN ISLAND).

OSAKA.

Osaka.

THE chief educational institutions belonging to the Society's Mission are found in Osaka. The course in the Divinity

College, which was formerly one of five years, is now reduced to three years. That is, after three consecutive years of teaching the students will now pass out for employment as catechists for one or more years, after which those who are encouraged to do so will return to the College for one or two years' further study, with the view to ordination. This change had the effect of reducing the number of classes to two, and removed for the present the need of a second European in the College; so that the Rev. G. H. Pole, upon Archdeacon Warren's coming home, is at liberty to take up his duties as Secretary of the Mission. Five students went out in the summer of 1893, one after completing his five years' course, the other four after four years; and eight entered in September. Mr. Pole gives a list of the subjects on which he lectured:— Divinity College.

I have lectured in Japanese on Old Testament History, the first Book of Psalms, Daniel, St. John's Gospel, Romans, the Thirty-nine Articles, Dogmatic Theology, the Prayer-book, and Greek; and have taken the senior students (in English) through parts of Liddon's Bampton Lectures, Godet's Biblical Studies (O.T.), and Paley's Evidences (Part III.).

The students supply, either wholly or in part, five Mission-rooms in the city, each student preaching on an average once a week. Four adults were baptized at one of these rooms.

The Boys' Boarding School also experienced a change in its staff of tutors. The Conference having recommended that a Japanese Christian should be appointed Vice-Principal, Mr. Houda, a leading member of the Kumamoto congregation, was appointed, setting free the Rev. H. L. Bleby to improve his knowledge of the vernacular. This arrangement proved very satisfactory, and the Principal, the Rev. H. McC. E. Price, attributes chiefly to Mr. Houda's influence a marked improvement in the conduct of the boys. Another new master engaged during the year was a member of the Gifu congregation. Mr. Price takes part in the English teaching. Of the course of study Mr. Price says:— Boys' Boarding School.

Besides Chinese and mathematics, they are studying English literature, history, sociology, psychology, and Latin. The daily Scripture classes have, I feel sure, been helpful. With the upper classes I have been reading St. John's Gospel three days a week, and Old Testament history twice. The lower classes are taught in two divisions, one for Christians and the other for non-Christians.

Four of the boys were baptized. One of these had been destined by his parents for the Buddhist priesthood, but their opposition to his baptism was withdrawn in answer to his prayers. Many of the boys are diligent students of the Bible. A boy who had been destined for the Buddhist priesthood baptized.

The number of pupils in the Bishop Poole Memorial Girls' School had reached 60 by the end of 1893, an increase of 10 on the previous year. Miss K. A. S. Tristram says it is a cause of surprise to many that the day-scholars attend so regularly the Bible lesson with which each day's studies commence. She Girls' Boarding School.

is sure it is due in the case of the majority of them to real interest, and the examinations show that an accurate knowledge with true spiritual apprehension is possessed by many of the girls. Including two who were about to be baptized a few days after Miss Tristram's Annual Letter was written, there were six girls baptized. Miss Tristram tells the following interesting story of one of them:—

A school-girl leads her parents to Christ.

One of these two was to have been baptized during the summer holidays, but drew back, saying that although her father had given his consent, he had done so knowing very little of what it meant, so she wished to tell him more during the holidays, that he might agree to it with his eyes open. She, with two others (one of whom is to wait for a time), came to me the first Sunday after the holidays asking for baptism, and I have been giving them special teaching in preparation almost every Sunday since. I have been most thankful to learn quite lately that this child used her summer holidays to good purpose, for her father and mother now both wish to be Christians; and almost all they know, and I hear it is a good deal, is what the child has taught them. She is a particularly good and sweet-tempered child, one of those who was taken into the school and supported by friends after the earthquake, her father, an upper-class man, having suffered considerably through it.

The teachers and some of the elder girls conduct five Ragged Sunday-schools in the city, held at 8 A.M. in the summer and 8.30 in the winter. Miss Boulton, of the F.E.S., was welcomed back with much warmth on her return from furlough, and at the request of the Conference she undertook the duties of Principal during Miss Tristram's absence. Miss M. A. McClenaghan has been assigned to assist in the school. Miss D. Howard was placed in charge of the Bible-Women's Training Home on Miss O. Julius leaving to come home. Ten were in the home during 1893, three went out to labour at different stations, two married, and two left on account of health. The students receive daily three hours' Bible-teaching, and lectures on the Prayer Book, Christian Evidences, &c., are given by the Divinity College tutors. They, the students, also visit in the city pastorates.

Bible-Women's Training Home.

The pastoral and evangelistic work in the city of Osaka and its neighbourhood, besides a general responsibility for supervising some of the remoter stations where the resident European missionaries had not passed their final language examination, rested on Archdeacon Warren. The Pastorates are now four in number, under two ordained pastors and two lay agents. Trinity Church district profited much from the zealous labours of Miss Hamilton, of the F.E.S., and the Bible-women under her directions. Miss A. C. Bosanquet has succeeded to her work. Miss Tristram also visited in this district, and the following brief extracts from her journal show how delightful she found the work. They relate to converts who were baptized in July:—

Pastorates.

District-visiting.

I took the Wordless Book, and Mrs. —— seemed to have a real sense of sin, and was much struck by it, and after we had finished, took it to look at and think over, and shutting up the red leaves, said with great assurance, "You can't possibly go from the black to the white without going through the red, can you?" She has a baby girl, and says that she wants her to know about God as soon as she can understand, and then if ever she does anything wrong she can teach her that it grieves Christ who died for her. As she was looking at a picture of the Crucifixion, she pointed to the soldiers at the foot of the Cross throwing lots, and said, "How could they turn a 'not knowing face' on Christ when He was doing that for them?"

One dear old woman who lives alone is much delighted with the possibility of prayer and intercourse with God. She says she is thinking of Him and rejoicing in Him all day long; that whenever she goes out she says, "Now, my Father, I am going out, please take care of me;" and when she returns, she says, "Now I have come home again." Just as a Japanese always announces his return to those in the house.

A preaching-place in the north-eastern section of the city is worked in connexion with this pastorate. Altogether 23 adults were baptized. The membership, including 41 children, is 210, and 94 are communicants. The congregation worshipping at the Church of the Saviour was weakened by dissension, which resulted in the retirement of the Rev. T. Makioka from the pastorate at the end of the year. He was succeeded by Mr. M. Tomita from the Matsuye district, the Rev. S. Koba, tutor at the Divinity School, being over him as presbyter in charge. Of the 66 adult members of this congregation, 64 are communicants. There were nine adult baptisms; as there also were at St. Peter's Church (the old Shima-machi Preaching-place), which enjoys the ministrations of the aged but still zealous Rev. Y. Nakanishi. Miss D. Howard and two Bible-women conducted women's meetings and visited the houses of the people both of St. Peter's pastorate and of that of the Church of the Resurrection (formerly Andoji-machi), which has a congregation of 25—22 communicants and three children. Archdeacon Warren met the pastors for devotional study and prayer once a week. He notes an increasing degree of aggressive zeal among the Christians.

Synod of the Nippon Sei Ko Kwa

The Archdeacon referred in his Annual Letter to the Synod of the Nippon Sei Ko Kwai, at which representatives of the Christian communities connected with the American Episcopal Church, the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, and the C.M.S. met in formal session as the governing body under the constitution adopted in 1887. The nature of the proposals made and controverted, and the conclusions adopted upon them, are well indicated in the following:—

Proposals affecting the Prayer-book.

At the Synod of the Nippon Sei Ko Kwai the principal work was the consideration of reports affecting the Prayer-book. A revised translation of most of the book, which owes much to the scholarship and patient labour of Mr. Fyson and Mr. Yamada of the Divinity School, was presented and accepted subject to certain suggestions. The reports affecting the matter of the Prayer Book contained a number of radical, not to say revolutionary, proposals. We may be very thankful that they were all rejected by large majorities. The new Lectionary contained certain Apocryphal lessons. A resolution was passed requiring lessons from the Canonical Scriptures to be substituted for these. Another proposal was to change the order of the Communion Office, and yet another to allow the minister, in delivering the Elements, to say simply, "The body of our Lord Jesus Christ," or "The blood of our Lord Jesus Christ," and directing the communicants to say after each of the sentences, "Amen." Both proposals were rejected. A rule making it obligatory on each clergyman to say Morning and Evening Prayer, which it was proposed to insert in the Prayer Book, was not accepted. There was a very warm discussion on a proposal to insert the Absolution in the English Office for the Visitation of the Sick in the Japanese Office. Eventually an amendment to insert the Absolution in the Communion Office, to be used in extreme cases, was carried with practical unanimity. I mention these points to illustrate the present state of opinion in the Church of Japan as reflected in the Synod by large majorities. Our C.M.S. clergy led the discussions on the Evangelical side, and maintained their position in each case with dignity, firmness, and courtesy, and we may well thank God for their firm grasp of those Reformation principles which we hold to be vital to the welfare of the Church in this country as in England.

The Rev. H. G. Warren has been located temporarily at Osaka while studying the language.

GIFU.

Gifu.

It was in Gifu and the district around that the terrible earthquake of 1892 did the most serious mischief. Further troubles were experienced in 1893. The rivers, swollen by a heavy rainfall, burst through their embankments and inundated the land. Crops were destroyed, bridges and houses washed away, and many lives were lost. As in former calamities, the Christians did what they could to afford relief.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. F. Chappell were joined by Miss E. C. Payne in the autumn, but some trouble was occasioned in consequence of her having only a travelling passport, which did not entitle her to rent a house. By the advice of the authorities, a house was taken for her by a Native Christian, and some of the local papers drew attention to the fact in the interests of the political party then agitating for the strict enforcement of the treaty as to foreigners residing in the country. Eventually a residential passport was obtained. Mr. Chappell erected, with money sent by friends, a School for the Blind, of whom there are many in the country and some 74 in Gifu alone. A catechist, Mr. Mori, who entirely lost his sight during the year, and who had already learned to read the embossed type, is to be their instructor. Seventeen of the sufferers from the floods were received into the Industrial School at Ogaki. A catechist has been stationed at Takasu, and the Christians manifest great love and unity, which affords hope for the future. An old man of 73 years was baptized at Kano, which is worked from Takasu. Until the earthquake this man was an earnest Buddhist. Four were baptized at Imao, and many, Mr. Chappell says, are "secretly studying Christianity, and can only be seen at night."

School for the Blind.

TOKIO.

Active Buddhist opposition and a strong anti-foreign feeling hindered the work in Tokio, but the preaching in the city was not seriously interfered with. The catechist, Fuyeki San, is pronounced by the Rev. J. Williams to be "true as steel." There were several baptisms at Ko-Kodai, and some at Boshio; altogether in Tokio and its outstations 17 adults were admitted into the visible Church. The Committee decided, upon Mr. Williams coming away, to leave this station for awhile unoccupied by a European missionary, as there was some uncertainty whether the quarter of the city in which St. Paul's Church stands would not have to be abandoned in order to bring the Society's work within the sphere of the English Bishop, and there was also a difficulty in arranging for its occupation. Tokio.

FUKUYAMA.

The Rev. S. Swann fears the zeal of the congregation at Fukuyama may have somewhat slackened since the completion of the new church in 1892; there was no increase during 1893. The Rev. P. T. Arato is ever industriously engaged in the pastoral and evangelistic work, and has an excellent knowledge of his Bible. The Holy Communion is administered in the morning of one and the evening of another Sunday each month, the latter being more convenient generally for the women. One of the leading Christians, who "does not believe in hiding his light under a bushel," added after his name (which all Japanese have to post up outside their doors) in bold type, "Fuju San, A BELIEVER IN CHRISTIANITY," and this not at all in a spirit of ostentation, Mr. Swann says, but out of a real desire to let it be known Whose he is and Whom he serves. At the beginning of 1893 Miss Hamilton of the F.E.S. and Miss Julius spent two months at Fukuyama, and worked most acceptably among the women and children. The latter says:— Fukuyama. "A believer in Christianity."

We spent our time in visiting (thanks to one of the Christian women who introduced us, we had entrance into any amount of houses), meetings for women and children, and Bible study for Christians, catechumens, and sometimes for young men. Apparently the most successful were the children's meetings, held in our house, which, when the shoji, or inside paper walls were removed, made a large and convenient room, and here from 140 to 150 children assembled every Tuesday for a short talk and hymn-singing on their way from school, in spite of their teachers' evident dislike to Christianity. Children's meetings.

Two preaching-places were used besides the church, and other rooms were hired from time to time as wanted; and large congregations were at all times easily gathered. The people willingly listened to five, or even six, long addresses without a break. Mr. Swann gives an instance of good resulting from one of these meetings in one of the preaching-rooms which is opposite the General Post Office:—

An inquirer advised how to pay his debts.

A countryman passing this preaching-room was attracted in, and listened. What he heard made a great impression on him, and he stayed after the meeting was over. We talked to him, and lent him a book to read. The next day he called on the pastor and told him the true state of his affairs. He had had heavy losses, and was, in consequence, over head and ears in debt. His creditors were going to sell him up, and he was in the greatest distress, when he happened to pass the preaching-room and heard words that brought a gleam of possible hope into his darkness. Now he wanted to know if the pastor could not hide him in his house from his creditors for a short time, otherwise he had no resource but to flee from his country or kill himself, so he said; but that if the pastor could take him in, he intended to seek and serve the one true God in future.

The pastor prayed and thought over the matter, and then asked him if he were willing, as a proof of his sincerity, to give up his beer and tobacco, save his money, and pay his debts. He said yes, he was willing to do anything. Then the pastor said he was to go round to his creditors and tell them that he meant to turn over a new leaf, and, by God's help, do right, save his money, and pay them back. This he did with a quaking heart, when, to his surprise and delight, they all agreed, if that were so, not to sell him up, but to wait for their money till he could pay them. He came next day with a beaming face to tell the pastor the result, and to say that he and his family wanted to be instructed in the religion that could help him thus when in trouble; and, though they are away in the country, they now come to the church services, and are to be baptized (D.V.) on Christmas Day.

Thirteen miles north of Fukuyama is Fuchiu, a town of 10,000 inhabitants, which has a catechist. From this place the Gospel has spread a further distance of 13 miles north, while work is being done at several villages between Fukuyama and Fuchiu. Tomotsu, also a town of 10,000, is a seaport, and situated to the south of Fukuyama. An agent was placed there in 1892. Mr. Swann gives an interesting account of the beginning of the work there, and of the first fruits:—

A potter's family embrace the Truth.

The meetings were crowded from the first. Afterwards Buddhist opposition forced us to leave the hotel where we had had our meetings, but, by God's good providence, we at once secured a room for a preaching-place in the best street in the town. Here we worked for some time, amidst general rowdiness and occasional opposition, till at last Uno San, the agent there, got hold of a potter's family living outside Tomotsu, in the hills. They received the Word with the greatest eagerness, and came almost daily to be taught more, although the path along the cliffs was one more fit for goats to pass by than men. On hearing of this from Uno San, I rode over there, and went to call with him, and indeed it was an encouraging sight. They were all earnest, devoted Christians. There was the father and the mother, the son and his wife, the daughter and the two little children, the old grandfather and grandmother, all simple, earnest followers of Christ. They listened to my explanation of a portion of Scripture most attentively, and then engaged in prayer with an earnestness and reverence that was delightful to see. Even the little baby stooped double and remained so during prayer till it literally groaned again.

I am sure it did me as much good seeing them as their seeing me did them. Uno San, the worker in Tomotsu, continued instructing them, and at last, before Easter, they were all baptized, along with an old banjoplayer who had given up her idols for Christianity. This old, blind lady was first led to the meetings out of curiosity to hear what the foreign music was like.

An unusual, but not quite unprecedented (see Annual Report for 1892-3, page 220), way of communicating the Gospel message and of buying up opportunities is recorded by Mr. Swann:—

Giving Christian instruction by telegraph.

One of our Fukuyama Christians, who happened to be a telegraph clerk in Fukuyama, has been instructing the telegraph clerk in Tomotsu, who is a friend of his, in Christianity by telegraph. During the intervals between the sending of the messages he has employed the time in this somewhat unique way.

The work has also spread to an island in the Inland Sea, Hashirijima, where the head-man, "who lives in state like a petty king," invited the agents to visit him. On another island off this shore, a little more to the west, Miyajima, Miss Bosanquet and Miss Howard, from Osaka, spent several weeks in the summer. It is reputed one of the three most beautiful places in Japan, and is almost covered with forest and is famous for its temples. A Sunday-school was opened, and meetings for women and children held. Miss Bosanquet wrote:—

A blind man's interest in the Gospel.

During a great part of the time a blind man came almost every day to learn hymns and be taught about the true God. It was wonderful to watch his face as he listened. We were surprised by the willingness of the people of this long-sacred temple island, with its countless shrines and ancient heathen traditions, to listen to Christianity. We only once heard any attempt to speak in defence of Buddhism or Shintoism. They were most kind to us. We had a quiet, happy summer rest, and felt very sad when we came away, for there is not a single Christian yet living in the island, nor is any missionary working there; but we hope that the catechist at Hiroshima will be able to go across now and then.

The Rev. T. Torato has been transferred from Hiroshima to Hamada, in the province of Iwami, and a catechist is in charge of this out-station. He is supported by the Japan Church Missionary Society.

MATSUYE.

Matsuye.

The condition of the Christians at Matsuye is truly encouraging. The Rev. B. F. Buxton wrote before he left to come home:—

Happy prayer-meetings.

They delight to meet together for praise and prayer, and the hearing of the Word. In some of our meetings lately we have very blessedly felt the presence and power of the Holy Ghost. Sometimes they are thrown open so that anyone who likes speaks, and some of these exhortations have been full of power. But, better still, some have learnt to pray in the Holy Ghost, for they have found power with God. Still, whilst praising God for thus blessing the Church, we grieve over the few souls saved during the past year. There are many in Matsuye who know the Truth now, but they love their sins too much to come out and be saved. This may well humble us who are working here, and send us to our knees for fresh power for service.

A flood visited this place in the autumn, a few months later than the one at Gifu referred to above. Subscriptions were sent by Christians in other parts of Japan, which enabled Mr. Buxton to feed about 1,000 persons daily with rice for two weeks. In 1892 persecution was experienced at Yonago, in the neighbouring province of Hoki; the meetings were stormed and the workers stoned by a number of young men. In the autumn of 1893 the leaders of that opposition, eight young men, were baptized all together, having previously for some time attended daily to read the Word of God with the catechist, Mori San, and to seek salvation. Mr. Buxton says, "They were all most clear in their experience and in the elements of doctrine, and evidently determined to be an all-for-Jesus band." Miss M. Sander went to reside at Yonago in the autumn. She refers to a poor leper who is an earnest inquirer, and who sings the hymns with all his might, holding the book between his crippled hands, his fingers being almost eaten away. She also describes an interesting work which sprang up in two neighbouring villages, an Eta or "Gipsy" Village, and a Beggars' Village:—

Opponents converted.

A leper an earnest inquirer.

A Gipsy Village.

The Eta are the lowest and most despised class of people; others will not mix with them, they are compelled to live separately. When we first proposed work among them, the Christians seemed to shrink from the thought, saying it was hopeless—their hearts were different from other people's, hard and bad; moreover, they said they could remember nothing, forgetting even their own names, and the number of their own children; and that it would be impossible to teach them of the true God and of His love. However, after a few meetings among them, they find that the Gospel has the wonderful power of reaching even the Eta heart, and that hearts are very much alike everywhere. Several of the Eta came to the preaching-room one night, and after the preaching Mr. Mori took them into his house to explain more fully to them the Scriptures. He said he would like to go and live among them, and gain their confidence and teach them to know the true God. It gave us great joy to hear Mori San express this desire, as it would require "great grace" for a Japanese to take such a step.

A faithful catechist.

Beggars' Village.

Then about the Beggars' Village—they are truly the most pitiable set of people I have met with in Japan, literally in rags and tatters. When we first went, some of them asked to have their children taught to read and write. Mori San readily gave ear to their request, and Okajima San as readily offered to go himself and teach them. He goes nearly every day. It is wonderful to see the progress the children have made already. They can read the hymns put up on the hymn-sheets quite easily, and sing them too. I cannot say the singing is very melodious! but it is hearty. They also can repeat some of the Commandments, the Lord's Prayer, and several texts correctly.

A generous Christian.

At Sakai many are earnestly reading God's Word. The leading Christian at Hirose, a rice merchant, gave away much rice to the sufferers from the flood. He also built a Mission-hall on his own ground at his own expense, and had the happiness of seeing one of his own children brought under conviction there and made a sharer in the joy of salvation. There are three Christians at Yasugi, where a catechist has been placed.

The Rev. D. M. Lang visited Iwami province in October and November, and thinks "a little cloud like a man's hand" is visible at Hamada. The Rev. T. Torato arrived at this place about the same time as Mr. Lang, and he with a catechist preached to large audiences in the theatre on three successive days, hired for the occasion. At Masuda, 25 miles from Hamada along the coast southward, there are nine Christians.

II. SHIKOKU.

Tokushima.

The missionaries stationed at Tokushima, the Rev. and Mrs. W. P. Buncombe, the Rev. and Mrs. C. T. Warren, Miss E. T. Ritson, and Miss E. A. S. Huhold, were privileged to witness and to share in great spiritual blessings during 1893. During the "Week of Prayer," from January 1 to 8, which is observed by nearly all the churches in Japan, the blessing prayed for and looked for began to appear. Fully two-thirds of the adult Christians attended the prayer-meetings evening by evening. On the Monday evening nearly two hours were spent in confession and thanksgiving and in mutual exhortation. On Tuesday the subject was especially the work of the Holy Spirit, and Mr. Buncombe, writing since he came home on furlough, says:—

The Week of Prayer.

Craving for spiritual power.

> Many again openly confessed their past sins—one as to how he had secretly broken the Sabbath; another to neglect of prayer and Bible-reading; others to their inconsistent conduct at home, and to never bearing witness for their Lord. I was leading the meeting, and felt drawn to ask all who really wished to receive the Holy Spirit in His fulness—to be filled with the Holy Ghost—to say so, or to signify it by holding up their hands, pointing out the promise—the certain promise—that He would be given to those who asked. It was a solemn time and many held up their hands, their real earnestness being quite evident from their whole manner. Then one of the catechists said, "Stop! Before we go any further will some one tell us their experience of being filled with the Spirit?" After a pause I was led to relate briefly the great blessing I received just ten years before at a small convention for deepening spiritual life, in Cambridge. I said how I had tried to work for Christ before, and engaged in district visiting, but how hard I found it, even to often wishing and sometimes fancying on the days I was expecting to visit that I was unwell and unable to go out, and how I could never speak to anyone about their souls. Then when I was shown that it was my privilege to be wholly the Lord's for Him to work in me to will and to do, and to receive Him as an indwelling presence, I gave myself to be His, and how all the old experiences went, and work and witness for Christ became natural and easy. Then old Mrs. Kubota spoke, and after that the man who had said "Stop," said, "That is just what we want," and then we fell to praying, and many did in a way they had never done before in faith receive the Holy Ghost. It was the beginning of a time of great blessing.

Prayer for unconverted relatives.

As the meeting proceeded prayer was constantly asked for and offered in behalf of unconverted relatives. After the evening service on the following Sunday a prayer-meeting was held which lasted two and a half hours, and in which everyone present openly joined. The next week, on the suggestion of one of the Native agents, evangelistic meetings were held for the relatives in whose behalf prayer had been made, and 18 professed to accept Christ as their Saviour. The most unexpected result, however, was the light and power which came to the very agent who had suggested these meetings—the pastoral catechist, Ushijima San. Mr. Buncombe says :—

In arranging the preachers for each night, Friday was assigned to him, and he said he would take as his subject, "The Blood of Christ." In thinking over his address he found that he could not testify that his sins were washed away in the Blood of the Lamb, and he got into a state of great darkness. On Wednesday evening, after our happy mission service was over, he told us partly what was passing through his mind, and rather damped the spirits of some by saying what a want of graveness and solemnity there was about us, and spoke quite in bitterness of spirit. We spent upwards of an hour and a half or two hours talking with him and praying for him at his own request. On Thursday his unhappiness increased, he could do no work, and, very contrary to his custom, sat silent through all the meeting in the evening, and could not join in speaking to inquirers at the close. So when the inquirers had gone, we again got around him and prayed and spoke to him till 12.30 or 1 A.M. On Friday morning the light came, and the Spirit showed him that the blood that Jesus shed on Calvary—that very blood—was sufficient for the pardon of his sins, without any works on his part. In the evening he spoke with real power, and gave such clear testimony that many were shown that they were not resting wholly on Christ for the pardon of their sins and acceptance with God. The news of this soon spread, and when he shortly after had occasion to go to Osaka, the students at the College (C.M.S.) where he had once been a student came around him and said, "Tell us about it ; we are longing for more blessing and assurance."

A Native agent receives special blessing.

Mr. Buncombe adds :—

Now the meetings were over, would the blessing last? Would those who said, "We want to be saved," go back? Mindful of the Apostles' plan at the time of Pentecost, I proposed to them, after the baptismal service was over, that they should come every night to be taught, promising to baptize them as soon as I could ; and for about a month most of them came nightly and went through the Gospel history and were prepared for baptism, and as they were ready—some had been more or less under instruction before—they were baptized.

Looking back, now just a year, I only remember three out of the eighteen who at that time professed to accept Christ as their Saviour, who have not gone on and confessed Him in baptism, or are not purposing to do so.

Building new church.

Since the Mission-room was opened in 1890, in succession to the one burned down the previous year, Mr. and Mrs. Buncombe had been gathering a fund for a new church. Having $1,600 in hand, a Christian builder of Osaka was invited to give an estimate. This was $2,350, namely $750 more than the sum in hand. The building was commenced, and Mr. Buncombe says:—

The building became a great means of blessing to us all, not least to the builder and his assistants. Many serious difficulties were overcome by prayer, and however unlikely it seemed that the money for the later instalments would come in time to pay the builder, never once was payment a day late. The last needed $180 more, and this the Lord did not send, but one of the Japanese brethren lent $80, and we advanced $100 out of the Tokushima Mission Aid Fund.

One incident I should like to mention. The builder had great trouble with the stone-masons who were hired to build the stone foundation on which the framework was to rest. Thoughout the whole district of Tokushima and Awa, the Government were making very extensive repairs, made necessary by the floods and tidal wave of 1892, and the stone-masons, taking advantage of this, struck work for more money. As to yield to their demands would mean that they would do a little and then strike again for further increase, it was felt that it would be wrong to do so. To sue them and try to compel them by law to fulfil their contract would be very doubtful of success, and all felt that such a course would be damaging to Christ's cause. So I said that the only course was to pray to God to so rule the hearts of the masons that they should do the work quickly and well. We prayed, and the builder and the overseer of the works prayed together about it, and in the end they all returned to work and carried out their contract, without another attempt at striking. The builder has since several times said to me, how much blessing he got, and what experience of the power of prayer, during the months he spent in Tokushima building the church. Two of his assistants became catechumens.

A workmen's strike brought to an end by prayer.

The church was named "Emmanuel." The foundation-stone was laid by the Rev. J. G. Watson, Association Secretary for the Midland Counties, who, with Mrs. Watson, was making a tour round the world. In June four women gave up their household idols—old pieces of paper, little badly made models of shrines, fragile wooden boxes with writing on the outside and paper and sticks within, little bronze images of some Buddhist deity, &c.—at the instance of the faithful old Bible-woman, Mrs. Kubota, who told them the story of how she had burnt her idols many years before. Meetings for children, besides the Sunday-school, which forty or fifty children attended, were held in four different parts of Tokushima, conducted by the Mission ladies and the Bible-woman. Miss Ritson put to good use as "reward cards" old Christmas cards sent to her by home friends, and the delight which they afforded the children was very great. A Y.W.C.A. meeting, which included a knitting class, was held in Miss Ritson's house, Household idols given up.

Special preaching tours to the villages near Tokushima were planned by Mr. Buncombe and carried out in April 1893, two bands of workers, each consisting of three catechists and a Bible colporteur, visiting altogether 16 places, spending two days in each. Public preachings were held, and the houses visited. The experiences, of course, varied. At one place, Kanongi, three miles from Tokushima, where there had never been preaching before, an audience of nearly 100 people listened from 7 till 11 P.M. Mr. Buncombe, à propos of these itinerations, says:—

Preaching tours.

I may say in passing how thankful I am to be able to say that our catechists have come to see that the important thing is to preach Jesus Christ, and that this can be done in a way that will be intelligible to the people, without the many introductory addresses on such subjects as "The necessity of religion," "The being of God," and kindred topics, which often stir up strife and argument, and close the door to personal application and appeal to the hearts and experiences of the hearers.

The catechists preach Jesus Christ.

Thousands of tracts were given away, and the attention of the whole district was drawn to Christianity. While on this tour Mr. Buncombe baptized a blind man. He also baptized a blind man in the neighbourhood of Tomioka, to whom Miss Ritson had given a copy of St. Mark's Gospel prepared for the blind; and two other adults were baptized at the same place. Four adults were received into the Church at Muya, and five at Waki-machi. In May and June Miss Ritson, with Mrs. Kubota, visited these two places, and at the former had some interesting talks with the fishermen, who were delighted to learn that the Saviour was born and lived in Asia, and not in Europe as they had supposed.

Talks with fishermen.

Reviewing the work of the past five years, Mr. Buncombe writes:—

Five years' progress.

During the five years we were in Tokushima 176 persons were added to the Lord's visible Church by baptism. Seven Christians, four men and three women, have given themselves for work for the Lord, and have been or are being trained in the Osaka schools, two more have become Bible-colporteurs, one man is now a probationer catechist in Tokushima, one man is the catechist in charge of Muya, three men who were Christians baptized elsewhere also became catechists or students in the College from Tokushima. In all, 13 persons from this district are now devoting their lives to God's service in His Church.

Three out-stations with resident catechists have been opened, each with a little congregation of Christians. Two churches have been built, one a little country church, one of the first of its kind in Japan, and the building at Tokushima, just finished, but without its furniture, as we left. And in nearly every village of importance the Gospel has been preached, either by us or by the Presbyterian missionaries and catechists. God be praised for all that has been done, and to Him alone be the glory! But let me remember that during that five years over 100,000 persons in that one county of Awa have passed into eternity—into a Christless grave—to a future which none knows but God; and that, out of 700,000 people now living in Awa, not more than 250 at the outside openly confess Christ.

The Rev. C. T. and Mrs. Warren have been transferred to Osaka on grounds of health, and the Rev. G. and Mrs. Chapman have been assigned to the charge of the work.

III. KIU-SHIU.

THE Conference assigned the Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Bleby, and the Misses H. S. Cockram and D. I. Hunter-Brown to the island of Kiu-shiu, their exact locations being deferred until after Bishop Evington's return.

NAGASAKI.

Nagasaki.

The Rev. A. R. Fuller baptized eight adults at Nagasaki, most of them medical students. The spiritual tone of the congregation is better than it was, and their liberality greatly encourages Mr. Fuller. An earnest catechist resides near the Shiu-daiku Machi preaching-place, and Mr. Fuller thinks there is good promise of blessing there. The valuable Girls' Boarding School, with ten pupils, is under Mrs. Harvey.

There were numerous inquirers at Shimabara, and 10 were baptized, eight being educated young men, and one, a young woman, the head teacher in the public elementary school. The catechist who laboured at Kagoshima in 1892 was removed, and the work suffered in consequence, his successor being comparatively inexperienced. The former catechist was stationed on one of the Loochoo Islands, which Mr. Fuller visited in November. The encouragements were so far exclusively among the Japanese immigrants, the Natives being as yet too shy to attend the preaching, but this shyness was beginning to wear off. Loochoo Islands.

FUKUOKA.

Notwithstanding that 51 adults were baptized in this district during the year, the total of baptized Christians at the year's close was only 169, as compared with 294 at the end of 1892. This, the Rev. J. Hind explains, is due mainly to changes of residence, and the consequent transfer of Christians to other congregations. The average attendance at the Fukuoka Sunday morning services was 58. Mrs. Hind and Miss A. C. Tennent worked among the women and children. About 15 women meet once a week for Bible reading and prayer. Miss Tennent says:— Fukuoka.

Some of the Japanese have such a true belief in prayer! Not long ago, a woman, who had been a catechumen for about a year, decided that she would not receive baptism. This distressed some of the Christian women, who met together every night for a week to ask the Lord to remove the hindrance which was keeping this one from confessing Christ openly. The Lord, true to His word, heard the prayer, removed the hindrance, and she was baptized with two others on Christmas Day, and is now very happy and at rest. Belief in the power of prayer.

The catechist, Watanabe San, and a blind Christian, Sumikawa San, with Mr. Hind, preach three times a week at the city preaching-place. Other catechists go out to the outlying villages, one of whom, Yamamoto San, has a very special gift, Mr. Hind says, for influencing backsliders. The young carpenter, Miwa San, who carried the Gospel to Imajiku, as mentioned in last year's Annual Report, has been appointed a probationer catechist, under the following circumstances. Mr. Hind says:—

His work had God's seal set upon it early in the year. A large number had come forward, but were oppressed very bitterly by the Buddhist priests and fell off. Even out of those who were baptized, I regret to say some very soon gave way to the persecution that arose because of the Word. It was at that time Miwa San had a probable chance of some lucrative work in Nagasaki, but he could not leave his flock in their oppression, and asked if we could not take him on. He has given up his occupation and become a probationer catechist. Of those Christians who remain steadfast one was a Buddhist priest, and three others are standing a good deal of persecution.

A zealous Native Christian doctor.

The Christian doctor, Nishi San, at Hiramatsu, was instrumental in the conversion of another of his medical assistants, and of the woman who tends the children in his little orphanage (see Annual Report, 1892–3, page 215). Mr. Hind says of him:—

> I have not room here to tell of the various ways in which he is working to extend Christ's Kingdom. He is full of fire, and loses few opportunities of glorifying his Master. He is doing all he can to get a poor leper cleansed spiritually, though, of course, nothing can be done for him bodily.

An ex-Shinto priest baptized.

Fourteen adults were baptized at a country village called Aita, largely owing, Mr. Hind believes, to the influence of a Fukuoka Christian banker who owns property there. One of these converts was an ex-Shinto priest, who has since become a candidate for admission to the Osaka Divinity College. A catechist, supported by the Japanese Church Missionary Society, went in November to labour among the Christians at Saga who have been disaffected towards the Mission, as mentioned last year.

The Conference invited the Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Hutchinson to go again to Fukuoka, their old station, after their return from furlough, and Miss E. A. P. Sells has also been placed there temporarily.

KUMAMOTO.

Kumamoto.

After the Rev. H. Evington left in January to come home for consecration, Miss G. Nott and Miss H. Riddell were alone in Kumamoto, but the Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Brandram returned to their old station in December. Study of the language occupied much of their time, but they visited the people, held Sunday Bible-classes, and numerous classes and meetings during the week. Miss Riddell says that her engagements of this kind sometimes number 16 in the week. She mentions a singular instance of Buddhist zeal:—

A Buddhist priest sent to Chicago.

> A famous Buddhist priest of this island, one Yatsubuchi Banryo, was sent as a representative to Chicago this year (1893). Subscriptions were asked for from Buddhist believers to defray his expenses, and he—not the sect, but his own private purse—received 80,000 dollars in order that he might put in a worthy appearance, a sum representing the expense of 130 missionaries in the field for a year, or of four missionaries for 30 years. May the day soon dawn when this beautiful land shall give its wealth for the service of its acknowledged Redeemer!

IV. HOKKAIDO (ISLAND OF YEZO).

Hakodate.

A YEARLY conference of the Native workers on this northern island meets in August at HAKODATE, under the Rev. W. Andrew's presidentship. The first such conference was held in 1889, when there were only two out-stations and one catechist.

In August, 1893, 23 workers, besides delegates from 15 out-stations, met in conference and prayer during five days. This was followed the next week by what is known in Japan (borrowed from America) as a "Summer school" or convention for the workers, followed again the third week by meetings for Christians and Heathen. These last meetings were conducted by Archdeacon Warren, the Rev. P. K. Fyson, and Miss Hamilton from Osaka. The Christians in this district started in January 1893 a monthly magazine called the Northern Sea Light, containing news from each of the stations, sermons, outline lessons for Sunday-school teachers, Church history chapters, and notes on the Prayer Book, &c. It realised an issue of 250 copies monthly, the expense being shared by the several congregations. An Industrial Home for Ainu children was opened during the year by Mr. C. Nettleship. It had 18 inmates in December, and 11 of the number had already learned to read the New Testament. Miss A. M. Tapson's departure under doctor's orders was a great loss to the work among the women. Miss M. Laurence arrived in June, and, though the language had yet to be learned, was soon visiting and holding classes.

A monthly magazine.

The Rev. T. Ogawa is an itinerant missionary, and he spent the year visiting the out-stations and preaching to the Heathen. Persecution from one of the Buddhist sects manifested itself at some of the out-stations, notably at Yesashi, one of the oldest towns in the island and a stronghold of Buddhism. The landlord of the catechist's house was coerced into refusing to let him remain in it, and a piece of ground which had been rented for building a church on was taken away. On the other hand, the head of the military settlement at Ota Mura, who at one time opposed, has himself begun to study the Bible, and one of the under officials gave land for a church. Miss L. Payne's girls' school at Kushiro has 17 pupils. The school for Ainu boys and girls had to be closed early in the year owing to an outbreak of smallpox at Harutori, but at the close of the year it had 38 names on its roll. The Bible-woman conducts a second Ainu school at Tong-Keshi with 18 children.

Out-stations.

The work of evangelising the Ainu is laid upon the Rev. J. Batchelor, who resides at SAPPORO. He first visited them in 1879, and was appointed to this special charge in 1882. The first baptism took place on December 28, 1885, in 1886 three others were added, two more in 1889, and again two in 1891, making nine altogether to the end of that year. A great ingathering has been at length vouchsafed. Mr. Batchelor wrote in August, 1893:—

Baptisms among the Ainu.

Thanks be to God, after all the sowing and preparation work, this year will ever be remembered as the reaping year among the Ainu, for already there have been 171 baptisms this year, thus making a Church membership of 179 souls, one having gone to be with Jesus above. There are still about 200 catechumens! Thus we have let the nets down into deep waters, and they are full. May the Lord keep us ever prayerful, humble, watchful, and full of His Holy Spirit and Faith!

These blessings have fallen especially in Piratori, the old Ainu capital, and where we first commenced the work of study and steady sowing in 1879. Chief Penri is a worse drunkard than ever, and though he has given land for a school, should we ever need it, is by his drunken ways more or less of a hindrance. Nevertheless, every woman in Piratori has accepted Christ as her Saviour. That is a glorious triumph of the Cross, for the women hitherto have never been allowed to have any religion, the men only have worshipped God. Just think of old women over seventy years of age, now for the first time in their lives praying—and praying to Jesus only!

Every woman in the old Ainu capital a professing Christian.

The Church has been regularly established in this village now. We have our churchwardens and Church committee all at work, and Petros, my Ainu helper, is living there for the present. He holds two services and takes a Sunday-school every Sunday, preaches in the village every Wednesday evening, and does itinerating work on the other days. I find him an invaluable helper.

Piratori is by no means the only village in which there are Christians; there are others in several of the villages near by.

Mr. Andrew looks hopefully on the future of this island. He says:—

A hopeful outlook.

With the prospect of a Bishop coming very soon, and probably some more workers, and with all the promises of the Master to build our hopes upon, the outlook is indeed grand. If I allowed myself to be anxious about anything at all it would be over the question, shall we be able to keep pace with the ever-increasing population, the growing requirements of this island, so that in a few years' time the immigrants may find a Christian island waiting to receive them? This is our hope, that this island may be entirely won for Christ. Considering how the Spirit has been working in the past, I do not see why, with careful, judicious management, and trusting entirely to that same Spirit, this hope may not be realised.

NEW ZEALAND MISSION.

The Mission to the Maoris of New Zealand was the second of the Society's Missions in order of time. It was undertaken at the invitation of Samuel Marsden, Chaplain in New South Wales, who landed on the Northern Island, with the first three men—lay agents—sent out as pioneers, in 1814, and preached the first Christian sermon to the Natives on Christmas Day of that year. Other Missionaries followed, whose lives, which were entirely in the power of a race of ferocious cannibals, were frequently in apparently imminent danger. For eleven years no results were seen. The first conversion took place in 1825, and no other Natives were baptized for five years. Then began the marvellous move ment which resulted in almost the whole Maori nation being brought under Christian instruction and civilising influences, and which led Bishop Selwyn, on his arrival in his new diocese in 1842, to write, "We see here a whole nation of pagans converted to the faith. . . . Where will you find, throughout the Christian world, more signal manifestations of the presence of the Spirit, or more living evidences of the Kingdom of Christ?"

In 1840 New Zealand was made a British Colony, and emigration on a large scale ensued. The vices as well as the benefits of civilisation were introduced, and the inevitable conflict of race began. The continual disputes about the sale and possession of land led to prolonged and bitter wars, which shook the Native Church to its foundations. In 1864 arose the "Pai Marire" or "Hau-hau" superstition, a strange compound of Christianity and Heathenism, which spread rapidly among the Natives. It was a party of Hau-haus who so barbarously murdered the missionary Völkner.

In 1883 a C.M.S. Mission Board, comprising the Bishops of Auckland, Waiapu, and Wellington, and other members, was established to administer the Society's grants, which diminish annually, and will cease (subject to personal claims) in a few years.

Retirement of Bishops Wellington.

THE retirement of Bishop Hadfield from the See of Wellington and from the Primacy of New Zealand, after an episcopate of 23 years and a previous missionary service of 32 years, was mentioned in last year's Annual Report. Although in his eightieth year he hopes still to promote the work of God among the Maoris in the district around Rangitiki, 120 miles from Wellington, where he proposes to take up his abode.

and Waiapu.

A few days before Bishop Hadfield's resignation took effect, which was on October 9, 1893, the Synod of Waiapu Diocese were informed that their beloved Bishop also was about to resign his charge. In his case old age was not the ground, although, in the 44th year since he first sailed to the Mission-field, he also might have pleaded length of service. Bishop Stuart resigned in order that he might spend his last years in witnessing for his Divine Master in Mohammedan Persia. After 22 years spent in India, including two short furloughs, Mr. Stuart was invalided home in March, 1872. In that year the first Day of Intercession was observed, and he preached the sermon in Westminster Abbey. Considerations of health led him to visit Australia in 1874, and while there he was requested by the Committee to make a tour of the New Zealand Mission-stations, and to report fully on them. Soon afterwards the venerable Bishop Williams retired from the Bishopric of Waiapu, and Mr. Stuart was elected by the Synod of the Diocese to succeed him. He was consecrated on December 9, 1877. His episcopate of 16 years has been one of untiring work, not only in behalf of the Colonial Church, but no less for the Maoris. With his daughter he has been accustomed to ride hundreds of miles over the mountains and through the forests of his large diocese, visiting the homestead of the settler and the kainga of the Native. The Maori section of the Church has flourished under his care. He has himself ordained 14 Maori clergymen, and the number under his episcopal oversight at the time of his retirement was seventeen, although some had died.

Example of Bishop French.

In his interview with the Committee on April 3, 1894, a few days after his arrival in this country, Bishop Stuart stated that his conviction that God was again calling him to the front as a missionary was largely due to the precedent set by Bishop French—his missionary companion when he first sailed in 1850—in resigning the See of Lahore and returning to missionary work. And he also mentioned that on the very day when his formal resignation was communicated to the Diocesan Synod he had received the tidings of Bishop Hill's death, whom he himself had admitted to Priest's Orders, and with whom he had a long and close connexion in New Zealand. Bishop Hill's brief career had been no waste, and he was assured that it was no quixotic enterprise to which he himself was going out.

I. DIOCESE OF AUCKLAND.

ARCHDEACON E. B. CLARKE'S terse summary of the work of the Native pastors, quoted in last year's Report, was, "The Native clergy worked satisfactorily as a whole, but we have not enough of them." A grant of £100 per annum for five years from the S.P.C.K., in response to an appeal from the Bishop, enabled him to make an addition of two deacons to the ranks of the Maori clergy. These were the Revs. Taimona Hapimana and Nikora Tautau, who were ordained on May 15, 1893, by the Bishop of Waiapu for this diocese. Their names appeared on the list in last year's Report. Both are reported by Archdeacon E. B. Clarke to be working with zeal and devotion. Of the former of the two he says:—

Two new deacons.

Influence of a young Maori clergyman over Hauhaus.

Taimona, though single-handed, is working energetically, and on the occasion of a recent visit I was delighted to see the change which has already taken place. Sixty of his neighbours came to the services, when in former times not more than half a dozen could be induced to attend. His influence is shown by the almost entire cessation from Sunday work amongst those who are avowedly Hauhaus. Then, further afield, he is cordially received except by an inconsiderable number of those who are under the direct influence of Tawhiao, the so-called Maori king. At an interview with him, when being urged by Taimona to return to the fold, Tawhiao said distinctly that personally he would never come back, but that his people might do as they liked.

The Rev. Hare Rewiti Hukatere of Oruru, after an illness of two years, died on May 15, 1893. He was admitted to Deacon's Orders in 1887. Five of the other pastors, out of a total of 14, are more or less infirm from old age. Death of Rev. H. R. Hukatere.

II. DIOCESE OF WAIAPU.

THE resignation of Bishop Stuart has been referred to above. On March 5, 1893, he admitted Mr. Piripi Te Awarau to Deacon's Orders. He has been assigned to the Te Horo pastorate, vacated by the resignation of the Rev. Areha Te Whareumu. A few weeks before Mr. Awarau's ordination, on February 11, the Rev. Hone Te Wainohu died. He was ordained deacon in 1878, the year after Bishop Stuart's consecration. The Rev. Hone Pohutu, of Nukutaurua, retired from active service during the year. Ordination. Death of Rev. H. Te Wainohu.

The two deacons ordained in March by Bishop Stuart for the Bishop of Auckland received their theological training under the Rev. H. W. Williams at the Training Institution, GISBORNE. After their departure there were 10 students in the Institution. Gisborne.

In the MAKETU district the greatest difficulty to be contended with arises, the Rev. W. Goodyear says, from the Natives coming in contact with ungodly settlers. The Maoris attend the services well, and those who do not do so, with a few exceptions, are willing to listen when the Gospel is taken within their hearing. The Rev. G. and Mrs. Maunsell, of OPOTIKI, were in England through the greater part of the year. They returned to the Mission in October.

III. DIOCESE OF WELLINGTON.

THE Rev. J. McWilliam has not a hopeful account to give of the Maoris in the OTAKI district. Drinking habits are again gaining ground, marriages are too often contracted in the old Maori style without any religious ceremony, and some of the women have resumed the ancient custom of tattooing. This last Mr. McWilliam believes is not done with any thought of its association with heathenism, but merely as a fashion, under the strange impression that it enhances their beauty. But no such explanation can apply to another practice which he notices, that of resorting in cases of sickness to medicine-men, in whose incantations more confidence is reposed than in the remedies of accredited doctors. All these evils, however, are the exceptions. The majority of the people, Mr. McWilliam says, are quite steadfast in the faith. Otaki.

Whanganui.

The Rev. A. O. Williams, who resides at WHANGANUI, travelled over 5,000 miles during the year, visiting the scattered congregations in his district. Among the Yarauru tribe, whose headquarters is at Waitotara, to the north of Mount Egmont, on the west coast, the services are well attended, and several most successful church meetings were held. These Natives were all formerly Te Whitiites. The Whanganui River district is less satisfactory. A Land Court was sitting there during the greater part of the year, which kept the Maoris constantly on the move. On the other hand, the district along the Rangitiki River is most encouraging, and Mr. Williams believes that every Maori in that part attends the services, and nearly all the adults are communicants. Each village has its own church, and the Maoris take a pride in maintaining them in good repair and surrounding them with neat fences and gravel paths.

NORTH-WEST AMERICA MISSION.

This is a Mission to the remnant of the Red Indian tribes scattered over the vast country formerly known as the Hudson's Bay Territory, now included in the Dominion of Canada. In 1822 the Rev. John West arrived at a trading settlement on the Red River, a little south of Lake Winnipeg, and began to gather the Indians round him. The first step in the great extension of the Mission in recent years was the sending forth from Red River, in 1840, of Henry Budd, a Native teacher, trained up by Mr. West from his boyhood (afterwards the first Native clergyman), to open a new station at Devon, 500 miles off. And now, from the United States border-line to the Arctic Ocean, and from Hudson's Bay to the Rocky Mountains, the praises of the Redeemer are sung by thousands of Indians, and in eleven different languages.

The Red River district is now the flourishing colonial Province of Manitoba, and a large part of the Society's work has developed into the settled ministrations of the Church in the Colony. One of the Society's churches has become the Cathedral of the Diocese of Rupert's Land, which was founded in 1849. That diocese, which has been highly privileged in its two first Bishops, Dr. Anderson and Dr. Machray, was subdivided in 1872 into four parts, the three new dioceses being those of Moosonee, Athabasca, and Saskatchewan. To the two former Sees Missionaries of the Society were appointed, the Rev. John Horden and the Rev. W. C. Bompas, and to the third an active co-worker in the country, Dr. McLean. Bishop Horden died early in 1893, and was succeeded by the Rev. J. A. Newnham; Bishop McLean also died in 1886, and was succeeded by Bishop Pinkham. In 1884, in pursuance of a scheme formed by the Provincial Synod of the Province of Rupert's Land, the Diocese of Athabasca was divided, Dr. Bompas taking the Northern half as Bishop of Mackenzie River, and the Rev. R. Young, C.M.S. Missionary, being appointed to the Southern Division as Bishop of Athabasca. The Provincial Synod of 1890 sanctioned a division of the Mackenzie River Diocese, the territories to the west of the Rocky Mountains to be the Diocese of Selkirk, and the region to the east retaining the name of Mackenzie River. Archdeacon Reeve has been consecrated Bishop of the latter diocese, Bishop Bompas taking the title of Bishop of Selkirk. There are now also the Dioceses of Qu'Appelle and Calgary.

The Society labours in all the above-named eight dioceses; but in that of Qu'Appelle the work is confined to one station, Touchwood Hills, opened in 1857.

In RUPERT'S LAND DIOCESE the Society's work was commenced in the Red River district in 1823; Fort Alexander was occupied in 1864; and Rainy Lake district in 1874. In MOOSONEE DIOCESE, Moose Factory was occupied in 1851; York, 1854; Albany, 1855; East Main Coast, 1877; Churchill, 1886. In SASKATCHEWAN DIOCESE, Cumberland and Devon were occupied in 1840; Stanley, 1850; Sandy Lake (Asisipi), 1875; Battleford, 1876; Prince Albert, 1879; Grand Rapids, 1881; and Fort Pitt, 1888. In CALGARY DIOCESE, Fort McLeod was occupied in 1880, and Blackfoot Crossing in 1883. In ATHABASCA DIOCESE, Fort Chipewyan was occupied in 1867; Fort Vermilion, 1876; Lesser Slave Lake, 1887; Upper Peace River, 1888. MACKENZIE RIVER DIOCESE, Fort Simpson, 1858; Fort Norman, 1871; Fort McPherson, 1874; Fort Resolution, 1875. DIOCESE OF SELKIRK, Rampart House, 1882; Buxton, 1887; Selkirk, 1892.

Creation of two Canadian Archbishoprics.

FOR the first time probably since the Reformation, the Church of England—taken in the larger sense as including the independent Colonial Churches—created in September, 1893, two new Archbishoprics. The Bishop of Ontaria, Metropolitan of the Province of Canada, and the Bishop of Rupert's Land, Metropolitan of the Province of Rupert's Land, accepted the title of Archbishop at a General Synod of the Church in the Dominion of Canada. Archbishop Machray was also appointed Primate of Canada. This development, as it affects the Province of Rupert's Land, is one of singular interest to the Church Missionary Society. The work in Rupert's Land was begun by the Society

Archbishop Machray elected Primate of Canada.

70 years ago. Most of the extension in the Province has been promoted by the Society. Of the eight dioceses comprised in the Province the Society almost entirely supports the work in four, including three of the episcopal stipends. During the year under review its expenditure was £13,648. The new Archbishop, Dr. Machray, has always been closely identified with the Society, and has ever gratefully acknowledged its help and zealously pleaded its claims.

Consecration of Bishop Newnham.

The consecration of the Rev. J. A. Newnham to the See of Moosonee, as successor to the late Bishop Horden, took place on August 6 at Holy Trinity Church, Winnipeg, during the session of the Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Rupert's Land. The Rev. Canon Henderson, D.D., father-in-law of the new Bishop, preached the sermon, and five Bishops of the Province took part in the service.

I. DIOCESES OF RUPERT'S LAND AND QU'APPELLE.

Ordinations.

Two Natives, Mr. Edward Thomas and Mr. J. A. Maggrah, were admitted to Deacon's Orders during 1893, but the date of the Ordination has not been mentioned. Mr. Richard E. Coates, B.D., of Manitoba University, was ordained Deacon in 1892.

Archdeacon Phair's work.

It is many years since the Committee have received so full and valuable a report of the Society's work in this diocese as that which Archdeacon Phair has sent of the work of 1893. He has laboured in the Mission for 30 years, and is now engaged a great part of his time in visiting the Indian stations. Comparing the state of the Mission in 1893 with what it was in 1863, he is constrained to exclaim, "What hath God wrought!" He gives numerous illustrations of the changes effected by the Gospel, some of which are quoted below.

Oak River station.

Proceeding first up the Assiniboine River, or by the Canadian Pacific Railway, towards the western boundary of the Rupert's Land Diocese, OAK RIVER Station is reached. Here Mr. H. Hartland labours among the Sioux Indians. Archdeacon Phair says:—

> The Sioux Indians have a history of their own. I cannot speak of them without thinking of the ravages, bloodshed, and desolation that covered the land between here and St. Paul when I passed through it some 30 years ago. The Indians now under review form part of the bands mixed up in the massacre so sadly remembered in those days. They sought refuge on the British side of the line, and soon after this Mission was opened among them. It is superfluous to describe their character; suffice it to say the devil did his work most effectually in their hearts. For many years the name of the Sioux Indians was a terror to the other bands.

The Sioux Indians attend church.

> The majority of these Indians are still heathen, although they no longer practise their old ceremonies. Nearly all of them attend church regularly, and some of them are exemplary Christians, and as regards self-denial might be very well held up for the imitation of older Christians. On one occasion the congregation in the little church, men, women and children, numbered about 60. The collection was taken up for Indian work, and amounted to about £7. When the head-men heard what the item was, they said it was too small for the great work, and must be doubled next time.

When a Sioux Indian is converted, he is anything but a vacillating man; he wants to be real, whether a Christian or a heathen. It was pleasing to talk to these Indians about good things. They soon found a man who understood Ojibbeway, the language in which I spoke; he interpreted into Sioux, and every word was listened to with rapt attention. I never saw more orderly people in church, or a people who came to it or disappeared more rapidly. The men ride on ponies, summer and winter, the women in waggons or sleighs, and in a few minutes after they leave the church they are out of sight over the prairie. The work is a most interesting, but a very difficult one.

St. Peter's Indian Settlement.

Returning to Winnipeg, and then taking a southerly route for a few miles up the Red River, the traveller reaches ST. PETER'S INDIAN SETTLEMENT, which is a fully organised parish, under the faithful ministrations of the Rev. J. G. Anderson, who preaches every Sunday in three languages, namely, Cree, Soto, and English. The Indians contribute liberally to numerous diocesan objects. In December, 1892, a voluntary rate was laid upon the more prosperous parishes of the diocese for the purpose of helping the needy ones to support their pastors. The assessment for this purpose on St. Peter's was $50, but the people raised $70. The year was marked by much sickness and a very heavy mortality, and Mr. Anderson himself suffered from an attack of typhoid fever in May, when his place was temporarily supplied by the Rev. E. Thomas. Steps have been taken to open a hospital in the settlement. Archdeacon Phair writes:—

Liberality of Christian Indians.

Changes in past thirty years.

If I might be allowed to look at this Mission alone, in the light of the last thirty years, what an overwhelming argument we have here in the interest of Christian Missions! The utter absence in this large sphere of work of polygamy, of medicine ceremony, of Indian craft and vice, of idleness and begging, the birch-bark tent giving place to the neatly constructed cottage, instead of snaring and angling for food, ample provision made for the long winter, instead of rabbit skins and other Indian garments, men and women clothed in European costume, broad acres cultivated, and modern facilities employed to lessen the labour; the Indian drum and the conjurer's dance have given way to a beautiful organ in a substantial church; quarrellings and bickerings hushed into a holy calm as men and women by the hundred kneel around the Holy Table to commemorate the love of a common Lord.

Fairford.

FAIRFORD, on Lake Manitoba, was founded by the Rev. A. Cowley (afterwards Archdeacon), and was named after Fairford in Gloucestershire, Mr. Cowley's native place. The Rev. G. Bruce continues in charge of the district, which is an extensive one and taxes his strength unduly. Archdeacon Phair says:—

An evidence of the power of the Gospel.

I have heard what these people were, I have seen what they are—the change is simply marvellous—a large community of truly devoted men and women worshipping God in spirit and in truth, many of whom were steeped in sin and vice. Surely this change can be attributed only to the power of the Gospel. The Fairford Mission will stand a witness and a living monument in this land of the power and the success of Missions to these Red men.

Staggville, so called in memory of the Rev. S. W. Stagg, who laboured for 12 years in this district, has a resident clergyman, the Rev. G. Cook. It is also known as "Manitoba House," and is situated on the west coast of Lake Winnipeg. The people are mostly half-breed, and are very poor. Mr. Cook bemoans the introduction and illicit sale of intoxicating liquors in the district. Crane River has a resident lay agent. The majority of the Indians are heathen. Shoal River is to the north-west of Winnipegosis Lake. It has a lay agent who is doing a good work. The place is occasionally visited by the Rev. J. Sinclair stationed at Cedar Lake, in the Saskatchewan Diocese. The Indians on St. Martin's Lake are all Christians, and some of them very decided and real, but they are very poor. Mr. Bruce visits them. Little Saskatchewan is visited by Mr. Johnstone, of Jack Head, having no resident teacher. There are some heathen here, but no meetings of conjurers and medicine-men are held. The Christian Indians offered to assist in the erection of a place of worship. Scanterbury, on Lake Winnipeg, is under the charge of the Rev. R. E. Coates, a B.D. of Manitoba University, who was ordained in 1892. Archdeacon Phair remarks on the changes he has witnessed at this station:—

If I go back to my first experience of Scanterbury, I can recollect but little to break the gloom of darkness and heathenism that overshadowed the place. It would seem to have been chosen as the seat and centre of the conjurer's tent. Here was a great rendezvous for all the bands around Lake Winnipeg, but at length the thick darkness that covered this place was penetrated by the light that lightens the Gentiles; and here too, as at St. Peter's, gambling, conjuring, dancing, and all sorts of heathenism gave way before the mighty power of the Gospel. Hard by the site of the great heathen tent stands the church of God to-day. The men who, with painted face and plaited hair, spent their days and nights in yelling and beating the drum, are now found clothed and in their right mind, sitting at the feet of Jesus. Outside the Gospel there is not enough power in the world to accomplish a change like this.

Gambling, conjuring, and dancing abolished.

Lansdowne:

Regarding LANSDOWNE, or Fort Alexander, the Archdeacon's reminiscences also furnish a background for his description of the happier state of things existing now. He says:—

Formerly,

When I first went among them, a number of drunken Indians surrounded the little shanty in which I lived. In their wild and hideous shouts, they asked for food and other things of which I had but little. One of them shot my dog close by me—others broke my windows—they all agreed I had better leave, as I was likely to disturb their religion. Here, if anywhere, the strong man armed kept his palace. Noisy Indians by day, the conjuring drum by night, made me feel I was where Satan's seat was. Once in a while I would have a visit from a conjurer with four or five wives. The night of heathen darkness was indeed dense, but in God's good time the light came. One after another was brought in, and it was only last summer the last remaining heathen yielded to the influence of the blessed Gospel. On the very place where for more than half a century the conjurer's tent had been erected, I was asked to kneel down and pray by a number of the very men and women who, more than twenty years before, had come to the Mission in their paint and feathers to make trouble. The large and beautiful church, erected largely by the Indians themselves, is filled from time to time with the very men and women who hated its very name in years gone by. If the efforts of the Society had accomplished no more in this country than simply transforming this wilderness of heathenism into the happy, prosperous Christian community that it is now, I am convinced the Society would be more than amply repaid. There is not a conjurer, not a polygamist, not a medicine-man in the whole place. Twelve miles of a beautiful river, with houses on either side, gardens cultivated, churches and school-houses along its banks, and the Sabbath observed in a way that might well be an example to white people in older lands.

and now.

"Twelve miles of houses with cultivated gardens, churches, &c."

One of the new Native deacons, the Rev. E. Thomas, is in charge of Lansdowne, the Rev. A. Cook having been transferred to Touchwood Hills. The Archdeacon describes Mr. Thomas as "a devoted Christian man, not too big for his work, practical in every sense of the word, and thoroughly at home in three languages—Ojibbeway, Cree, and English. He can build the church himself, and preach a good sermon when it is done." A catechist and schoolmaster are located at Black River. The whole band of Indians belong to the Church of England, and though poor they bear the palm among the Indians of the diocese for readiness to help in the work of building, and they endeavour to pass the message of salvation on to others. They frequently walk the 20 miles to Fort Alexander to join their brethren there at the Lord's Table on the Sabbath Day. Nay, to quote Archdeacon Phair, "mothers often carry their little ones on their back that long distance, walking through deep snow, without roads, with thin clothing, in the most boisterous weather, simply to join in a holy rite they value so much." Hole River has neither a church nor proper school-house, and it is unhappily the case that difficulty is experienced in finding agents willing to labour there in consequence of the inadequate accommodation and the inaccessibility of the place. Heathenism is still in the ascendant there. Mr. J. Johnstone, a Native lay agent, continues at Jack Head, 150 miles north of Lansdowne. The people hold very tenaciously to their heathenism, and often arrange to have a heathen feast going on at the same time as the services. Nevertheless, Archdeacon Phair, who paid two visits to Jack Head during the year, observes signs that heathenism is giving way. The Sabbath is by many, even of the heathen Indians, so far observed that they sit quietly at home, while the Christian Indians attend the services fairly well notwithstanding many distractions. Mr. Thomas baptized two adults here in March, 1894. Loon Straits is a small Indian village which Mr. Johnstone visits. Not a single heathen is to be found there. An aged inhabitant, who, the Archdeacon says, must have been considerably over 100 years old, died during the year. He had taken a prominent part in forming the Indian Settlement on the Red River, and been very helpful in spreading Christianity among his countrymen.

The Winnipeg River flows into the south of Lake Winnipeg from the Lake of the Woods. Upon it, nearer the latter lake, is ISLINGTON or White Dog Station, where the Rev. Baptiste Spence had charge for many years. He has now retired, and has been succeeded by the Rev. J. A. Maggrah, one of the new Deacons, a Native of the district. Archdeacon Phair mentions an old Indian here who on his death-bed handed his Bible to his weeping wife, saying it was all he had to give her and it was all she needed. A Native agent, John Kipling, is stationed at Les Dalles, at the north end of the Lake of the Woods, where it is crossed by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Islington.

A dying Indian's legacy.

From Islington, English River leads up to LAC SEUL, a very wild and isolated district, where the Rev. T. H. Pritchard resides. During Archdeacon Phair's visit in the summer of 1893 the Indians were camped in the bush, being paid their treaty money. His proposal to conduct a service was gladly welcomed. He says :—

Lac Seul.

A homely but effectual means of summoning a meeting.

> Numbers of willing hands turned out, and in a short time a large space was cleared, seats arranged, and the place fitted up in readiness for the service. The singing and responses were very good. I was particularly struck with the rapidity with which they met together. One of the councillors took a large frying-pan and beat it for a few minutes about the camp, after which there was a general rush for the place of meeting; the only element of disturbance seemed to be the dogs. These were carefully guarded off the place of meeting. I was struck with the rapt attention of an old Indian whose Indian name is Maheengun (Wolf), but who changed it for a Christian name but a short time ago. This old man, like St. Andrew of old, sought a companion of his, and brought him to the meeting. He also desired me to have an interview with his friend, who as yet was a stranger to the light, though I believe not very far from it. Besides these week-day services we had a grand day on the Sabbath, when all gathered to the church, and quite a number partook of the Lord's Supper.

Wabigoon.

The Rev. G. Prewer lives at the new station at WABIGOON; he lost his wife in June, 1893, only five months after their marriage. The Indians of this district are Ojibbeways and nearly all Heathens. Wabigoon is 100 miles east of Les Dalles, and 220 miles west of Port Arthur, on Lake Superior, and the district extends from the former place to within 60 miles of the latter. The Canadian Pacific Railway officials showed much kindness to Mr. Prewer in allowing him to travel free of charge when visiting the Indians. His reception by the people at first was far from encouraging, but he saw grounds for hope that his labour was not in vain. The confidence of the Indians was shown by their requesting him to act as their interpreter between them and the Government Agent at the time of the annual payments.

The Rev. W. Owen, of LONG SAULT, in the Rainy River district, suffered from ill-health during the year. No Annual Letter has been received from him.

The Rev. A. Cook, from Lansdowne, took charge of TOUCH-

WOOD HILLS, in the Qu'Appelle Diocese, in the summer of 1893. The work is carried on among the Indians of Poor Man's and Day Star's Reserves, most of whom are Heathens.

II. DIOCESE OF MOOSONEE.

BISHOP NEWNHAM'S consecration has been referred to in the opening paragraphs under this Mission. He was alone in the charge of MOOSE FACTORY, except during the time of his visit to Winnipeg, for a few weeks of which the Rev. W. G. Walton, of Fort George, was at this station. The Indians of Moose bear a bad character. Drunkenness and other vices sadly prevail among them, and in all respects they have degenerated most painfully from the fervour and simplicity which characterised the early converts of the place. Being detained thus at Moose, the Bishop was saddened to hear that the few Protestant Indians at New Post, four days' journey from Moose, had accepted teaching and books from a Roman Catholic priest, a consequence of their not being visited as usual during their few weeks' stay at the station. The Committee have accepted the offer of the Rev. I. J. Taylor, formerly of the Saskatchewan Diocese, to go out for two years to Moose Factory to render help to the Bishop. The Rev. J. Sanders resides at Biscotasing, where a new church was opened on Advent Sunday. A church is also in course of construction at Missanabie Post.

Moose Factory.

Archdeacon T. Vincent refers to two facts as evidence of the spiritual life of the Christians, both European and Native, at ALBANY, namely, the general observance of family prayer and daily reading of God's Word, and the hearty singing at the public services. Separate classes for men and women and for the old and young of each sex are held. There were eight deaths among the people. One who had rendered help at services and meetings, and who was much respected for his consistency of life, was among those taken. And four of the eight, alas! died from starvation. The Archdeacon gives a most touching account of these:—

Albany.

Last February [1893] a poor widow woman, with two of her daughters, perished miserably about 50 miles away. In crossing the river to visit her rabbit-snares, on a very cold day, she had only gone half the distance when she fell, and there the body was found many days afterwards. The second of three little girls had succumbed a day or two before, and her poor body was still in the tent unburied. The eldest girl, who is about nine years of age, saw her poor mother fall, but could render her no help. She then wrapped up the body of her dead sister with a few old rags, as a substitute for a winding sheet, took it out, and placed it by the side of the tent, where, getting a few branches and some pine underbrush, she covered it up as well as she could. Then as she could not keep up the fire, she lay down with the living sister, their only covering being an old capot and a piece of coarse sheeting. For thirteen days she remained without food and fire, so I was told by those who found her, and the thermometer ranging from 20° to 40° below zero. Her little sister in the meantime died by her side. She said to me, "I often turned to kiss the body, and I always said my prayers when I knew it was getting dark." The dead child was hard frozen on the off side, but where it rested on her it was quite thawed. How this girl survived God only knows. The three bodies were placed in one grave, and the living girl was brought to the house. "God will help you to take me to the place," she said to the woman who brought her. She, though only a child, I must say, has shown great faith and trust in a loving Father's care.

Sad deaths from starvation.

"I always said my prayers."

We had another case of starvation later on in the season, near about the same locality where the first happened. A poor widow, with a family of five children, had gone there hoping to make a livelihood by fishing. This, however, failed; the eldest son died; the woman and the remaining four children, when found, had been already eight days without food, and were in a most wretched state.

Archdeacon Vincent went to Winnipeg to be present at Bishop Newnham's consecration, and visited the Indians on English River en route. He also found a few of these Indians at Montizambert, a station on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and presented them with some Ojibbeway books, those they had being worn out. Fort Hope was visited by the catechist from Fort York, Joseph Kechekeshik, but he, the Archdeacon states, was twelve months in reaching it, and then was in a state of semi-starvation, having lost all his belongings in an accident on the way, and he and his family having narrowly escaped drowning.

A long and perilous journey by a Native catechist.

Fort George.

The Rev. W. G. Walton, of Fort George, visited Moose Fort in January, and arrived there just in time to be present at Bishop Horden's funeral. The summer work among the Indians encouraged him greatly. The children attended school with regularity and willingness; several families began to have family prayer; the services were well attended, and once it was necessary, on account of the numbers, to hold the service out of doors. After his return from Moose Fort in January, Mr. Walton proceeded at once to Great Whale River. He arrived there at the end of February, and remained for nine weeks teaching the Eskimo, chiefly through an interpreter. He writes:—

They are, indeed, a most intelligent race, and it is wonderful how quickly they will grasp the ideas their teacher wishes to convey by his very broken Eskimo; and not only do they listen very attentively, but they repeat what they think is intended, and so their teacher gets to know the right way of talking. This is one of the reasons why Eskimo is learned quicker than Indian, though their books are more difficult to read on account of the syllabic characters not being quite suitable for their language. Mr. Peck said he found the syllabic characters rather unadapted; still it is astonishing how quickly the people learn to read by them.

An Eskimo's way of avoiding temptation.

One man, a semi-chief among them, has gone this past year to live with his family quite alone, so as not to be tempted by the conjurers, a true way of "entering not into temptation." Another man and his family were coming in for trading purposes one Saturday, but the drift became so bad he thought he would put up for the night about ten or twelve miles from the place, and arrive the next day. On learning that the next day was Sunday, he smartened up his dogs with the whip, and managed to reach the place about 9.30 P.M., very cold and hungry. It would have been easy for this man to have made an excuse for arriving on Sunday, but he did otherwise, and shall not God accept it? Observance of the Sabbath.

The Rev. E. J. Peck states that there were 85 baptized Eskimos and 25 catechumens connected with the East Main Mission. Mr. Peck has received permission from the Committee to proceed to Cumberland Sound, on the Arctic Circle, west of Davis' Strait, to seek the Eskimos there. The Rev. E. J. Peck's visit to Cumberland Sound.

FORT CHURCHILL, the station of the Rev. J. and Mrs. Lofthouse, is the most northern station of this diocese. The health of both suffered during the year; indeed, Mrs. Lofthouse may be said to be a constant sufferer, and it is one of the many trials which they bear cheerfully for the Lord's sake that medical aid is not procurable without a journey—impracticable for a lady—of some 200 miles, or a visit to this country. On his return from the visit to Marble Island, which was mentioned in last year's Report, Mr. Lofthouse was accompanied by an Eskimo youth about 16 years old. The lad seemed truly anxious to be instructed in the Gospel, and he never once, Mr. Lofthouse says, gave occasion for complaint during the subsequent eleven months. On July 16 Mr. Lofthouse baptized this youth—his first Eskimo baptism. He says:— First Eskimo baptism at Churchill.

He has, I believe, a real grasp of the Truth as it is in Jesus, and has already shown a desire to lead others to the Saviour. On July 26 he went away with other Eskimos, and will go inland, where he will meet many who never yet have heard anything of the Truth. I trust he may be a power for good; he did not wish to go away, and I would willingly have kept him another year, but his father would not go away without him, and I could not keep the whole family here. The boy promised to return next May without his father; he will then stay with us until August and learn more of the Truth.

Mr. Lofthouse had hoped to baptize another Eskimo family, but he did not meet them, as he was absent from Churchill when they arrived. The Chipewyan Indians are at Churchill only a few weeks—from May to July. In November a few come in for their winter's outfit, and in April they are in for a few days before going north for a goose-hunt. Their opportunities of obtaining instruction are thus very few; but Mr. Lofthouse says that many of them are growing in grace and in the knowledge of the Saviour. An old chief died trusting in the Lord Jesus, and all his family "are true Christians, and are able to read their Chipewyan New Testaments far better than many English people can read, and, what is better, they do read them." Not many Cree Indians visit Churchill, but nearly all the adults who do so are communicants. Mr. Lofthouse visited Fort York in the spring of 1893, walking the distance—nearly 170 miles—in five days, returning in four days. On Easter Few opportunities of instruction, but growing in grace. Fort York.

Day over 40 received the Lord's Supper, having travelled 80 and 100 miles to enjoy that privilege. Mr. Lofthouse visited this station again in the autumn. The Rev. W. Dick wrote hopefully to Mr. Lofthouse of his work at Trout Lake.

III. DIOCESES OF SASKATCHEWAN AND CALGARY.

Bishop Pinkham's visitations.

In June and July Bishop Pinkham made a visitation of the northern and eastern parts of Saskatchewan Diocese, accompanied by Archdeacon J. A. Mackay. From Prince Albert to Red Deer Lake they travelled by lumber waggon; thence, by birch-bark canoe, they proceeded viâ Montreal Lake and Lac la Rouge to Stanley; from there a Hudson Bay Company's boat took them to Cumberland, on the Saskatchewan; here the Rev. J. Hines met them with his little steam-launch, the Henrietta, and conveyed them to Devon, Moose Lake, Cedar Lake, and Cross Lake; they finally took canoe to Grand Rapids. The return journey was more circuitous, but more rapid. From Grand Rapids a steamer took them southward the whole length of Lake Winnipeg to Selkirk, whence they took train to Prince Albert. Again, in October, the Bishop visited the western stations, Battleford and Fort Pitt. This latter journey occupied nearly four weeks, during which the Bishop drove between 600 and 700 miles. Altogether, on these two visitations the Bishop confirmed 304 candidates.

Ordination.

The Rev. F. Swainson was admitted to Priests' Orders at Fort McLeod on December 10, 1893.

Prince Albert.

At Prince Albert Archdeacon J. A. Mackay has charge of Emmanuel College, which sent out two students. An interesting story is told by the Archdeacon of one of them:—

Sermon preparation by an illiterate voluntary worker.

On the occasion of the Bishop's visitation of Cumberland district in 1889, Samuel was brought to his notice at Cedar Lake. Up to that time there had never been a resident missionary there, but a considerable number of the Indians were Christians, mostly new converts, and these Christian Indians had, during the preceding winter, arranged regular Sunday services. At first there was a difficulty about finding someone to conduct the services, but it happened that there was an old man, a very earnest Christian, who was willing to act as leader. He, however, could not read; but Samuel, then a youth of about 18, could read the Cree Syllabics, so it was arranged that every Saturday he should read the Cree Bible to the old man, in order that he (the old man) might gather from it material for his sermon, and then, when Sunday came, Samuel read the prayers from the Cree Prayer-book, and the old man preached. Samuel's father was so pleased with what his son had been able to do that, when the Bishop came, he expressed his strong desire that his son might receive instruction to fit him for greater usefulness, and it was then arranged that he should come to Emmanuel College. Samuel is now at Lac la Rouge, in the Stanley Mission. He is employed as catechist as well as school-teacher, and is labouring with diligence and acceptance.

Some sixty miles north-west of Prince Albert is Sandy Lake, or Asissipi, where the Rev. J. R. Settee labours. He mentions a visit paid to the station by the Rev. G. S. Karney, Vicar of St. John's, Paddington, in the autumn, and of the pleasure and encouragement which it afforded. Bishop Pinkham was there in the spring, and thought, as he saw the Indian families driving to church and the excellent congregations, that they were in a more advanced stage of civilisation than the people on the Red River stations were 25 years earlier. The Bishop confirmed 26 candidates at Stanley. They were examined by Archdeacon Mackay, and their answers satisfied him that they had been carefully prepared. The Rev. R. McLennan of this station is a country-born clergyman, but he now speaks Cree fluently, the Bishop says. At Big Stone River the Bishop consecrated a new churchyard and confirmed 14 candidates. The Rev. J. Badger, of St. James, is described by the Bishop as "a most devoted, faithful man." He holds services on alternate Sundays at Butler's Settlement, and also visits the Indians of Montreal Lake, 100 miles to the north. The Rev. A. H. Wright, of Nepowewin, says the winter of 1892–3 was the hardest one he ever experienced, the thermometer for two weeks standing at 50° below zero. His nearest brother-missionary to the west is 50 miles and to the east 200 miles off, and for six months he did not see a white fellow-labourer.

Indian families driving to church at Sandy Lake.

A severe winter.

The Rev. J. Hines, of DEVON, at The Pas, is responsible for the supervision of Cumberland, where the Rev. E. Cook resides; Pelican Narrows; Birch Portage, where the Bishop held a Confirmation service in the open air; Moose Lake, where two blind Indians were among the 25 confirmees; Cedar Lake, under the Rev. J. Sinclair; and Grand Rapids. Besides these, which are on the banks of the Saskatchewan or its tributaries, there are outlying settlements to be visited, as Shoal Lake and Red Earth, both near the Pas Mountains, about 100 miles south of Devon. An agent is stationed at Red Earth, who went there under interesting circumstances. Mr. Hines says:—

Devon.

Simon Bell came to me about the end of August last, and said he had been thinking and praying much about the Heathens at Red Earth, and the more he prayed the more he felt that God required him to give up his home at The Pas and spend the winter with those Indians. He then made known these impressions to about half a dozen of the leading Christians at The Pas, who joined with him in prayer, asking God to make His will known to them concerning Simon. After prayer had been offered, Simon said, "I feel the call is for me, and I feel I must go, and I am prepared to go in God's strength to teach the poor heathens at Red Earth." This all took place without my knowledge. The next step was to come and tell me. I gave my hearty approval of what had been done, and another prayer-meeting was held for the purpose of commending this Pas missionary to God for His guidance and blessing. As Simon would have to depend largely on hunting for his support, and as he did not possess a gun, his father-in-law made him a present of his own new gun, though he could ill afford to do so, as a token of pleasure and approval of the action of his son-in-law. Accordingly, I took Simon with his family to the mountain viâ Carrot River, and there he is still. Everyone speaks well of him, but his work has been rendered very difficult by the actions of an agent of that invertebral sect known as Plymouth Brethren, who appeared on the scene about a week after Simon had entered upon his duties. Last fall the Heathens seemed to be inclined to embrace Christianity; indeed, I baptized two adults and four children at the time I took Simon up to the mountain, but now I hear these poor people are getting confused. These Plymouth Brethren do not hesitate to tell them the Church of England is a Jewish sect, and that the Prayer-book is contrary to the teaching of the New Testament, &c.

A sad and humbling hindrance.

Returning up the Saskatchewan to Nepowewin, where the waters of the North and South Saskatchewan (both mighty rivers) unite, and thence proceeding up the former past Prince Albert, BATTLEFORD is reached, where the Revs. R. Inkster and D. D. McDonald report good attendances at the services on several Reserves to which they have access. Twenty-three adults were baptized.

Battleford.

At FORT PITT, on Onion Lake, the Bishop baptized five persons, and received seven from Romanism into communion with the Church of England during his visit.

Up the South Saskatchewan and its tributaries are found the stations of the Calgary Diocese. The Rev. F. Swainson enlarged the Girls' Home at FORT MCLEOD, and erected a similar home for boys during the year. He gives the following in illustration of the utility of the former:—

Fort McLeod.

A Mission-school girl prevents cruel and superstitious acts.

The brother of one of the girls in the Home died; the father sent for his horse, intending to shoot the animal, so that his boy could ride its spirit in the "happy hunting-ground;" the mother sharpened her knife, intending to sacrifice her finger, when the little girl from our Home rushed into their tent saying, "Don't be foolish, the sun cannot help you; my little brother is happy with Jesus"; then running back to me she said, "Go to father and mother and comfort them." I immediately went to their tepee, and, after talking with them, the father let the horse loose, the mother put away her knife, the old man saying, "I believe you, your words are good; my boy is happy, I will no longer mourn," and since that time they have been very attentive to me, and the woman at least is not far from baptism.

Blackfoots baptized.

Three Blackfoot Indians, all young men, were baptized at BLACKFOOT CROSSING by the Rev. J. W. Tims, one on Easter Day, the others on Advent Sunday. They all had been boarders in Mr. Tims' house before St. John's Home was opened. This Home has 22 boys and eight girls under its roof. The Indians attended the services in larger numbers and more regularly during 1893 than in any previous year. Mr. Tims mentions visits paid to the station by the Rev. J. G. and Mrs. Watson, of Leamington, and the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Stewart, of the Lovedale Mission, South Africa.

Work among Sarcees.

The SARCEE RESERVE, on which the Sarcee Indians were placed in or about the year 1882, is 60 miles west of Blackfoot Crossing. The Rev. Robert Inkster was the first to attempt their evangelization, going amongst them in 1886. Mr. H. W. G.

Stocken (ordained in 1893) succeeded Mr. Inkster on the latter's transfer to Battleford in 1888. Mr. Stocken's two brothers assist him, one having charge of a Boys' Boarding-school, the other of a Day-school. During six months of the year the Indians are divided into two camps five miles apart. Mr. Stocken says of them :—

I have always found the Indians attentive and respectful when visiting them, and at times they have shown a marked interest in what they have been taught, especially the subject of the Resurrection and the Final Judgment. In no subject, however, are they so slow to perceive as the universal depravity of the human heart, and therefore of their own. Sometimes not a remark will be made by anyone present. At other times quite a brisk and interesting conversation will be kept up between the Indians and myself. Sometimes the women join in the conversation, and I am always glad to see this, as it tells me the old idea of the inferiority of women is losing hold of the Indian mind.

Doctrine of original sin unpalatable.

IV. DIOCESE OF ATHABASCA.

Bishop Young admitted the Rev. J. R. Lucas to Priest's Orders at Chipewyan on July 6, 1893. The Bishop spent the winter of 1893–4 at Toronto.

Ordination.

No report has been received from Mr. Lucas of the year's work at Fort Chipewyan, on Athabasca Lake, but the Bishop states that he has succeeded in winning the confidence and goodwill of the Indians. Mr. Lucas was married to Miss Maria Hatley, of Islington, in July, 1893.

At Vermilion, 300 miles west of Fort Chipewyan, the Rev. M. Scott has welcomed Mr. A. J. Warwick, transferred from the latter station. A fire occurred at Vermilion in November, 1893, which destroyed one of the Mission-houses and other property. Of the work among the Indians, Mr. Scott says :—

Vermilion.

The Indians have come in much as usual for trading purposes, and every opportunity has been seized for presenting to them the Gospel of Salvation through Jesus Christ. But, alas! although they always listen with respect, they appear to feel but little need of the Saviour—little or no sense of sinfulness, and their statements concerning themselves generally end up with a recital of their goodness and kindness towards God and towards man; so that it seems hopeless to say one word to the contrary.

No sense of sin.

Mr. Warwick's work was chiefly in the Boarding School, and he says :—

There is great cause for praise with regard to the school work; the children are certainly endeavouring to follow Jesus. One can see the sharp fights against temper, against untruthfulness, and in many other ways there is to be seen the Indian wild character and the voice of Jesus in opposition. The children love us and trust us, and so God is helping us in His great work, for it is of Him that we love these children and are loved by them. The knowledge of the Bible evinced by them is such that would shame many an English Sunday-school. This school work is, I think, our greatest and most influential means of reaching the Indians.

Children "endeavouring to follow Jesus."

Mr. Scott makes an earnest plea for prayer, which the Committee trust will not be overlooked nor forgotten:—

A plea for prayer.

I have one request to make of the brethren of the C.M.S., whose mouths God has opened towards us, whose hearts He has enlarged. Pray for us, brethren, that we who labour in this land may be filled, full-filled with the Holy Spirit and with power. You have spent much money, time, and anxious thought upon this land, and I fear you think with little result. Perhaps you feel disheartened, and you look for more promising fields. The reports we send have but little of special interest, nothing in them to catch the eye or heart but their extreme poverty; then be this my plea. We are praying. God does cause our hearts sometimes to abound in hope for our poor solitary Indians. But then we, too, are solitary and isolated, and sometimes holy hands hang down. Oh, will you rise as one man and join us in mightily calling upon God? He is greatly blessing other lands; we do feel jealous for this our field. He will, He must, bless. "Brethren, pray for us."

Lesser Slave Lake.

A Missionary's successful appeal against introduction of spirituous liquors among Indians.

At LESSER SLAVE LAKE a Children's Home was opened in November, 1892, which had 15 boarders and four day-scholars at the beginning of 1894. The Rev. G. Holmes reports a considerable diminution of drunkenness among the Indians, he having, at their request, written to the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-West Territories representing the evil effects of the introduction of spirituous liquors by traders, and a prohibition having in consequence been issued from Ottawa. The Hudson Bay Company's officers at this station, Mr. Holmes says, never use liquor for trade purposes. Mr. and Mrs. Holmes lost their child in February, 1894, after an attack of scarlet fever and diphtheria; several Indians had suffered from these complaints, and some of them had been received into the Mission-house for nursing and treatment. Mr. Holmes visited a band of Indians across the Lesser Slave Lake at Wapuskan, where he baptized four adult Indians. He states that one of the Indians, at his own expense, had built a house for a missionary whom he had been led to expect, but who had not yet been sent to them. The Bishop, however, wrote in April, 1894, from Toronto that he had for this post a graduate of Wycliffe College, Toronto, the Rev. Charles Webber. No Annual Letters have been received from the Revs. H. Robinson and J. G. Brick, of WHITE FISH LAKE and UPPER PEACE RIVER.

V. DIOCESE OF MACKENZIE RIVER.

Ordinations.

BISHOP REEVE admitted the Rev. I. O. Stringer to Priest's Orders, and Mr. John Ttssiettla to Deacon's Orders on July 15, 1893, at Peel River; and Mr. T. J. Marsh, Wycliffe College, Toronto, to Deacon's Orders at Fort Simpson. The Bishop, in his Annual Letter, referred to the former ordination as follows:—

The most interesting event has been the first ordination of a Native within the Arctic Circle—that of Mr. John Ttssiettla. "Not-afraid-of-mosquitoes"—for that is the meaning of the name—had been labouring most faithfully and earnestly as catechist amongst his fellow-tribesmen, and this, together with his humility and consistent, godly life seemed to point him out as a fit person for the office of the ministry. The ceremony took place at St. Matthew's Church, Peel's River, on July 15. The Rev. I. O. Stringer, B.A., was admitted to the priesthood at the same time. Most of the service, which was partly in English and partly in Indian, was read by Archdeacon McDonald, who also presented the candidates and interpreted for me. The sermon, preached by the Bishop, was upon 1 Cor. xv. 58. It was a cold, wet, stormy day, but the church was full, and would have been packed had the weather been more favourable. Your heart would have rejoiced to have been present, to have seen that nicely-filled church, to have noticed the reverent demeanour of the congregation, the earnest attention of the Indians, and of the Eskimo also, even to the English part of the service, and the heartiness of the hymns, prayers, and responses, and to have partaken of the Lord's Supper with those who remained for that holy rite. It was a solemn time; I felt it good to be there, and a great honour to have the privilege of ordaining the first minister from amongst these northern tribes.

First Native to be ordained within the Arctic Circle.

Fort Resolution, the station of the Rev. W. Spendlove, the Bishop refers to as "perhaps the most trying post in the diocese." When Mrs. Spendlove came home in the summer of 1892, her baby, still unweaned, was left to Mr. Spendlove's care; and sometimes, having no alternative, he took the child in his arms when he went into the Indian encampment to speak to them. It was said to him more than once, "Your words are good, but your child left without a mother speaks powerfully to us." Mrs. Spendlove returned in August, 1893, having travelled the last 300 miles of the journey in a skiff propelled by two Indians.

Fort Resolution.

The Rev. T. J. Marsh has been transferred from Fort Liard to reopen an old station on Hay River, to the south of Great Slave Lake.

At Fort Norman the Indians attend the services regularly and listen with much attention to the preaching, and they are careful in observing the Sabbath, both when at the station and when out in the woods. One old Indian woman, about 90 years of age, was baptized, of whom the Rev. J. Hawksley writes:—

Fort Norman.

She is in failing health, and almost unable to walk. She has long been an attendant at our services whenever she was able to come. I asked her if she did not wish to be baptized, as she was now very old, and would in all probability not live very long. I then proceeded to instruct her regarding that sacred rite, and continued to do so daily for some time, and then I again asked her if she still desired baptism; she replied in the affirmative. I then offered to baptize her in her camp, but to my great joy she volunteered to come to the church, though scarcely able to stand or walk—in fact she crawled part of the way. Her reason for so doing was a desire on her part to confess Christ publicly. I hope and pray she has been truly born of Water and of the Spirit! I beg the prayers of Christian friends on her behalf.

A sick Indian woman's determination to be baptized in church.

Archdeacon R. McDonald's last Annual Letter is dated Peel River, January, 1893, and was received in July. He had then reached the 2nd Book of Chronicles in a translation into Tukudh of the Old Testament.

Tukudh translations.

It was mentioned in last year's Annual Report that the Rev.

I. O. Stringer accompanied Bishop Reeve from Toronto to Peel River. Soon after reaching that most northern station of the diocese, he continued his journey, in the company of an officer of the Hudson's Bay Company, to the mouth of the Mackenzie River. From this point he travelled alone (except that he had an Eskimo interpreter) eastwards along the shore of Mackenzie Bay, to the east of Richard's Island, visiting a tribe of Eskimos known as "Huskies." He was absent from Peel River six weeks, in July and August, 1892. In May of 1893 he made a second visit to Mackenzie Bay, but this time he travelled along the coast westward to Herschel Island. The following extracts are from his account of the former visit, written to Bishop Reeve :—

Visits to Eskimo of Mackenzie Bay.

We reached the "Husky" village about two o'clock in the afternoon of August 4. The village is situated on a peninsula on the mainland, east of Richard's Island. We went in a sort of inlet to reach it. In summer time the "Huskies" live in leather or canvas tents. These are built in a row along the water's edge.

The men were all out hunting whales, but the women and children soon came around and gazed at the strange white man. I shook hands all round, and gazed at them. The chief soon came, too, and we had a cup of tea together and a chat. In the evening the men came in. They had had a successful day's hunt, and hauled home many whales. The whales they catch here are the white whales, averaging from 8 to 15 feet in length, and very stout. These they cut up into about six pieces ; then they skin these pieces, and put the fat or blubber into bags, and hang up the meat to dry, first cutting it thin. This is the work of the women. The fins and tails seem to be considered delicious, and are eaten raw. Some of the fat and meat is stowed away in caches for winter use. These caches are merely holes in the ground about five feet deep, sometimes lined with logs, but generally without any lining except the frost. The whale-meat becomes very strong after being in these for awhile in the summer, and then it is ready to eat. One day, sitting in one of the tents while the Huskies were having one of their many meals, I was given a delicious piece of fin—at least, by the way the Natives were devouring it, I thought it must be delicious. I cut off a very small piece and put it into my mouth. The Huskies were watching to see how I would like it. I slipped the rest into my pocket, and after awhile slyly got that piece out of my mouth. I suppose they thought I had eaten some, but I had not, and I nearly lost my dinner in the bargain. The thought of that delicious whale-fin haunted me for days. But then it was raw, and had been pickled in a cache for several days.

Eskimo delicacies.

In the evening, when the men came home, they all came over to our camp, and I had to treat them to tea. We sat around the fire while the kettle boiled, and then I told them what I had come for ; some of them thought I was a fur-trader, but I told them I had nothing to trade and nothing to give away. I then told them the Gospel story. They all listened very attentively, and said they would come back the next night. I did not get to bed until two o'clock in the morning, and was pretty well tired in body and mind. There was no darkness at that time of the year, but we generally got to bed about twelve o'clock.

I felt much encouragement about the work and the prospects for the future. The main cause of trouble was my refusal to give presents. There was a young chief named Takochikina, who showed me much kindness at first, and I was much in his tent. One day, when I went to visit him, he told me he did not think I should stay any longer. It was no use. I was not giving presents. This seemed a finishing blow, for I had hoped much from this man. George was with me at the time. After a silent prayer, I spoke a few earnest words to him, telling him to be careful how he interpreted what I said, and trying to make him realise that he, too, was working for a Greater Master. Then I told the chief why I was there, that I had come a long distance to try to tell them what would do them good, and of how great importance it was compared with the few presents they expected of me, which I was unable to give. He thought awhile without saying anything, and then invited me into his private sleeping-tent. He spread a rug for me, and we three sat down. Then he said he wanted to know more about those things I had been telling them of. He wished to go to heaven when he died, and would like to know the way. I had a long talk with him; told him the Gospel story simply, and he seemed pleased. From that day things changed. All were more friendly, and the remaining days were comparativly pleasant. The next week, when we were leaving for the fort, he expressed the wish that I would come back soon.

VI. DIOCESE OF SELKIRK.

Bishop Bompas admitted Mr. B. Totty to Deacon's Orders at Buxton on February 24, 1893.

Ordination.

The Bishop computes that the Selkirk Diocese embraces an area of 200,000 square miles, and has a population of about 5,000, which number includes some hundreds of miners. He travelled to the mouth of the Youcon during the summer. The Bishop has appointed the Rev. T. H. Canham Archdeacon of Hotalinga. There are three Mission-stations. The Rev. G. C. and Mrs. Wallis were stationed at Rampart House, but they left in July, 1893, to come home, in consequence of Mrs. Wallis' state of health, and were succeeded by the Rev. B. Totty. The Bishop himself with Mrs. Bompas resided at Buxton, as also did Mr. Totty until his transfer to Rampart House. Archdeacon and Mrs. T. H. Canham occupy Selkirk, 150 miles above Buxton, on the Upper Youcon River, which they reached in the autumn of 1892. The Indians at Selkirk had not before been reached by the Gospel, and their language had not been reduced to writing, but they gave the Archdeacon a hearty welcome. The Bishop, when he wrote in January, 1894, contemplated exchanging stations with the Archdeacon.

Selkirk.

It has more than once been suggested to Bishop Bompas that he should pay a visit to Eastern Canada, or to this country, and appeal in person for the men and means needed in order to cope with the work in his diocese. But he has hitherto felt unable or indisposed to leave his people even on such an errand. He has presented his appeal in person to his Lord, and he is content to tell the Lord's people by letter. The following touching verses are taken from a "Plea for the Wild Sheep of the Rocky Mountains," sent home by the Bishop during 1893:—

Bishop Bompas' appeal for reinforcements.

We seek not hearts unwilling,
We plead for those who crave,
Who love the tidings thrilling,
Of Christ who died to save.

Will you not promptly, gladly
From out your fulness spare
For those who low and sadly
Plead but the crumbs to share?

Deem not these far-off rangers
  Too distant and unknown;
Say not to Eastern strangers,
  Has all your bounty flown.
Call not the lonely pastor
  To leave his flock in harm,
To tell you their disaster
  Before your hearts will warm.

We read in Gospel story
  Of One who mountains crossed,
And wept and suffered sorely
  To bring the sheep He lost.
And then He came, confessing
  That one lost lamb bereft
Brought back with it more blessing
  Than all the flock He left.

From ocean's bound far eastward
  Is wanting, as we think,
To chain it with the westward
  But this one missing link.
So tidings of Salvation,
  With world-encircling bands,
Shall rouse remotest nation,
  And East with West clasp hands.

To easternmost Corea
  Let messengers now speed,
And western Polynesia
  On heavenly manna feed;
Tell Afric's swarthy faces
  Of freedom for the slave;
Bid India's teeming races
  In living waters lave.

Grudge not the flowing fountain
  To the wide empty North;
O'er the most Western mountain

Now drops by Yukon's river
  The martyr pioneer,
And still, untutored, shiver
  Those tribes in guilty fear.

The herald foremost pressing
  To sickness falls a prey;
Will none renew the blessing,
  Ye home-attached ones, say?
Will none in freshened vigour
  Renew the Gospel theme
Amid the Arctic rigour
  Of Hotalingua's stream?

Here stand amid those deserts
  A Bishop and his flock,
Two thousand zealous converts
  Walled in with mounts of rock;
No churches and no clergy!
  Was ever such a sight?
But one chief pastor merely
  In solitary plight.

The Frozen Sea to northward
  Connects them with the Pole;
And snowy peaks from earthward
  To heavenward point the soul.
The golden sands withinward
  Attract a mining throng,
The weak again to sinward
  Are tempted by the strong.

Ho! sisters to the rescue,
  Ho! brothers bring the shield,
Straight to the task address you
  And man this Mission Field.
At once for font and chalice
  Erect the sacred pile,
And in the fertile valleys
  Let new-found harvests smile.

NORTH PACIFIC MISSION.

In 1856 Captain Prevost, R.N., drew the Society's attention to the savage state of the Tsimshean Indians on the coast of British Columbia, and a young schoolmaster, Mr. W. Duncan, was sent out. A great blessing was vouchsafed to his labours; and in 1862 the Christian settlement of Metlakahtla was founded. In 1881, however, Mr. Duncan refused to work on the lines of the Church of England, and ceased to be a Missionary of the Society, and an unhappy schism among the Native Christians resulted. But peace was in God's good providence ultimately restored, though at a heavy cost. Mr. Duncan removed in the summer of 1887, with some hundreds of the Indians, to a place seventy miles distant, within the territory of Alaska. Since the departure of the disaffected party the conduct of the loyal Indians has been so excellent that the Government Commissioners sent in November, 1888, to report on the condition of these disturbed districts stated that the Metlakahtla Church Indians were in happy contrast to all others, and were a credit to their instructors.

The Diocese of British Columbia was subdivided in 1879; and the Rev. W. Ridley, formerly a Missionary of the Society in the Punjab, was appointed the first Bishop of Caledonia, the Northern Division; in his diocese, with the exception of one station, Alert Bay, the C.M.S. Missions are situated.

First Diocesan Conference

In August, 1893, Bishop Ridley met the Clergy of his diocese in the first Diocesan Conference. The following paragraphs are quoted from the Bishop's valuable charge on that occasion, which was printed in full in the C.M. Intelligencer of February, 1894:—

Review of God's dealings.

Those of us who have been longest in the work have had ample opportunities of learning how graciously God has helped those whom He set in solitary places; how He comforted and befriended us in the thorny wilderness of heathendom; how He overruled the sad consequences of human wilfulness and misguided ambition; how He shed forth His Spirit as soon as the hindrances to extension were wonderfully taken out of the way, and we obeyed the night signal from the fiery pillar to go forward. We must remember these years of the right hand of the Most High, and, deriving courage from them, continue to seek out the lost and benighted; to bring them, by God's grace, into the fold of Christ, and lead them in the green pastures of His Word and Sacraments. It must be our ambition never to rest until we have won for Christ, by the attraction of His Cross, every tribe, and consecrated each tongue by translating into it the infallible Scriptures, beginning with the Holy Gospels. This is our sword for which we have no scabbard, a spiritual weapon well proved among us in battle to be as sharp as in ancient days when it put to flight the armies of the alien. We are working out no problem—Christ did that for us when, by His death and resurrection, He overcame the world. We are His witnesses.

"Our sword for which we have no scabbard."

Since 1879 the clergy have increased from three, including myself, to twelve. Now we have also three lady missionaries besides the wives of the clergy, one medical missionary, one European lay schoolmaster, one honorary European lay reader, two Native schoolmistresses, six Native catechists, and an honorary band of summer preachers.

Progress since 1879.

In 1879 the Christians of our communion numbered about 690, settled at Metlakahtla and on the Naas. Of these about 600 were led away by Mr. Duncan in 1887 from their homes to Alaska, about 70 miles to the north-west, where they have now lived long enough to realise how grievously they were misguided. Annually the majority of them return, and during the summer at the salmon canneries attend almost exclusively our services, in which some of them happily take part. They also receive the benefit of our Medical Mission; send their children to our day-schools, where alone they ever have an opportunity of learning to read the Scriptures in their own tongue; and also bring their infants for baptism, because no Sacrament is ministered to them in their unhappy exile. If we deduct these from the 690, our remainder, a small company, stigmatised at the time of the schism as the least worthy of the Christian name, will be found to have increased to 1,064, or 76 per annum for the whole period; but the increase has been chiefly since the secession. A large number also have, during the last 14 years, been won for Christ and called to eternal rest. We no longer count them, but those of them with the Lord He still numbers among the living. The number of Native Christians of our communion in this diocese is about 1,154, to which, if we add the 600 exiles who were admitted into the fold by our missionaries, we have 1,754 as the present visible result of our Church missionary work.

In 1879 the number of unbaptized Indians residing at the stations then occupied was about 760. Of these 400 were at Massett, where then there were no Christians, but now no Heathen. Then there were only four stations, including the handful at Aiyansh; now there are 11 in winter and 19 in summer. At the winter stations there are now 1,224 non-Christians, which, together with the 1,154 Christians, make 2,378 under direct Christian influence. If we add those who at the summer stations come from heathen and other villages, the total number of Christians and non-Christians within the reach of our ministry is at least 2,800, besides the Chinese, the Japanese, and the white population, which is ever fluctuating.

A second Conference of the Society's Missionaries followed the Diocesan Conference.

Bishop Ridley is on his way home as this Report goes to press, accompanying Mrs. Ridley in broken health after her boundless labours.

Reinforcements.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hogan, of Dublin, and Miss Florence Appleyard, a qualified nurse, sailed in June, 1893, to reinforce the Mission. Miss Annie G. Hicks, a sister of the Rev. Dr. Hicks, Commissary to Bishop Ridley, went out to Metlakahtla in September, to take up work, under the guidance of Bishop and Mrs. Ridley, but independently of the Society. The Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Hall came home on furlough in June, 1893. The Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Price sailed in April, 1894, and the Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Gurd, who came home in September, 1893, returned to the Mission in May, 1894.

Ordination.

Metlakahtla.

The welcome arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Hogan and of Miss Appleyard at METLAKAHTLA in June and July was followed after a few weeks by the departure of the Rev. R. W. and Mrs. Gurd, which left the Bishop without an ordained fellow-helper. The Bishop mentions the death of two members of the Congregation. One of them, a young man who had been an invalid for some time, on the day he died asked for writing materials and wrote to his brother on the Skeena the following touching letter, rendered thus brief by his state of exhaustion. It ran: "My dearest brother, I am going to Jesus, and I want you to come." The other, an old chieftainess, a woman of great force of character, who gave the land on which the Mission premises are built, before her death, after lying for many hours in silence, began to recite the Apostles' Creed in Tsimshean, proceeding as far as

A dying message.

Schools.

The Girls' Home, under Miss E. G. Dickenson, had 14 girls at the close of 1893; and a Mixed School, which Mrs. Ridley conducted while her health permitted her to do so, had 40 children—32 girls and 8 boys. The boys above the age of eight are taught in a Government school, and those too old for it received lessons from Mr. Hogan.

Formerly upon the arrival of spring, when the Indians dispersed from their winter homes, the missionaries remained behind to minister to the few aged persons and children who were left behind, and half the year was thus spent in solitude. But since 1886 a plan of following the Indians to their summer haunts has been adopted, with the result that the whole year is economised. The Bishop remarked upon the results of this change of operations:—

Following the Indians to their summer resorts.

Already is plainly evident the solid results of this continuous labour. Our young people are steadier and the children more advanced. Formerly they forgot in summer what they learnt in winter, and so the work had to be done over and over again. Now there is a marked contrast between the behaviour of our Christians and others, so the employers of labour say, and of course we see it yet more plainly. Our school-children are far advanced beyond all others. I am most glad to hear and see such testimonies.

At Claxton, one of the Cannery Stations, 25 miles from Metlakahtla, a pretty and substantial church, seating 150 persons, has been built, through the instrumentality of Mr. and Mrs. Gurd. Miss West laboured alone at Inverness, about 12 miles south of Metlakahtla, where some 200 people, Indians, Chinese, Japanese, and ten Whites, were gathered together. At first she held school in a large attic, planks resting on empty nail-kegs serving for seats. Subsequently a tent was lent by the Bishop, and the men made forms and a desk. Miss West also made daily visits to Sunnyside, a mile from Inverness. The Bishop wrote:—

A lady labouring alone among people of several nationalities.

Until Sunnyside could be supplied Miss West held school there once a day and once at Inverness, rowing her own boat over the mile and a half between the two places. Swift are the tides and often difficult the landing on the slippery rocks; but in all weather she pursued her steady course, so that she has become an expert sailor, handling her 16-foot boat all alone as well as any man on our staff. She had it all to learn to her cost. Once she got into serious difficulties, being capsized in deep and rough water, and was half drowned before she could climb back into the boat. It was a risk to appoint a lady to such a station single-handed where there are some hundreds of Indians, Chinese, Japanese, and a band of white men unaccustomed to social or religious restraints.

"An expert sailor."

The issue has justified the methods. The sick have been assiduously nursed, the children regularly taught, twice daily, and Bible-classes held for adults. For the Sunday service a band of suitable Indians was organised, and, what is more important, carefully instructed in the subjects of the sermons. The Divine blessing has manifestly sealed these strenuous efforts with a success that disarms criticism. At first the white men asked what they had done to have a woman sent among them, forgetting they had threatened (though they were idle words and not really meant) to drown the parson if he ever came again among them. It was the old outcry,

"Let us alone; what have we to do with thee?" This is all changed now. Frowns have been turned into smiles and rudeness to respect. They saw how true womanliness accorded with self-sacrificing service for Christ, and therefore dropped their scornful arguments, ashamed to use them against this type of ministry. "All changed now."

KINCOLITH, the station of Archdeacon Collison at the mouth of the Naas River, was almost completely destroyed by fire on September 3, 1893, and the new church, which took over two years to build, and which was opened in October, 1891, was burnt to the ground. The fire broke out in a dwelling-house near the church during the afternoon service. Archdeacon Collison wrote:— Kincolith. Village and church burnt down.

I had preached from the words, "He will thoroughly purge his floor," &c., and during the progress of the fire I heard one of our Christians praying aloud with tears and sobs, "O Lord, is it necessary that we should be thus purged? Purge us, but save us, save us, O Lord."

On Monday, September 4, our Indians assembled at midnight around the burning embers of the church, and conducted a service of prayer and praise. The hymn, "My God, my Father, while I stray," in Nishka, was sung by many with full hearts and flowing tears. I addressed them from Isaiah lxiv. 11, 12, showing them how God's people had passed through more severe trials of old, and how we should praise Him in the fires of trial. Many families slept along the beach in the open air that night; others found refuge with friends in the houses saved, whilst I received a number into the Mission-house.

In his Annual Letter the Archdeacon mentions the death of an old chief, owing to exposure after the burning of his house:— Death of a generous Christian chief.

The old chief who formerly contributed the sum of 100 dollars to procure a chancel window for the church lately burnt, owing to exposure in a tent after his house was burnt, was seized with bronchitis and fever, from which he never recovered. He was "joyful through hope and patient in tribulation" throughout his sickness. "Do not lament for the destruction wrought by the fire," said he, in a dying charge to his family, when I visited him. "It has only purified us. I am glad to be able to follow Jesus naked. Do not weep for me when I die, but sing, sing praises," he said, and his dying charge was obeyed. The "Early Christians' Good Night" and a translation of "There is a land of pure delight" were sung by a large concourse of his friends at his funeral. "Glad to be able to follow Jesus naked."

From the beginning of 1893 an earnest spirit of inquiry was manifested at Kincolith. It began to appear during the Week of Prayer in January, and increased during the season of Lent. At this time of the year the Archdeacon follows the Indians up the Naas to the spring fishing, when Indians of many tribes meet together. It was there that Lent and Easter were spent. Good Friday and Easter Day were observed with special solemnity. The Archdeacon writes:—

All business was suspended, even by the Heathen, and throughout the entire length of the encampment nothing could be heard but prayer, praise, and the Word. After the labours of the Lord's Day, on going out at 10 P.M. from every lodge were ascending the evening devotions. Here I could discern the Zimshean tongue; near by the Giatkatlas, where a party from the renowned Shakquo's tribe were encamped; whilst further on, and on the Easter on the Naas.

other side, our Nishkas were making melody with psalms and hymns and spiritual songs. As I looked up to the heavens, where amongst the myriads of stars, silent but gleaming witnesses to the Divine promises, the eye of God seemed to shine through, I could not but rejoice in the mighty change which had taken place. How different from what I had seen it some twenty years ago, when our little band of Christians was lost amidst the tribes of the heathen! What hath God wrought! To His great name be the glory for ever.

A mighty change.

While still encamped at the fishery a remarkable convert was baptized, a woman who was the last of her tribe, the Zitz-Zaows. The Archdeacon says:—

"A very Amazon" baptized.

A blind man was about to be baptized on the following Sunday, and with him a young man of this tribe. But one remained, a woman, a very Amazon, who had only a few months previously killed three bears single-handed, one after another, with gun, and spear, and axe. "And are you to be left outside," I asked her; "outside in the darkness and death, whilst all your friends have entered Christ's fold?" A flood of tears was the response, as she bowed her head, and with broken voice she followed me in prayer. She made a full surrender, and was admitted with her brother into the fold of Christ by baptism. Thus the entire remnant of this long-lost and sorely-tried tribe has been gathered in, and the Good Shepherd's words have again been fulfilled, "Them also I must bring, and they shall hear My voice, and there shall be one fold and one shepherd."

Besides the two above mentioned, four other adults were baptized as the results of the movement, seven who had relapsed into heathenism in 1887 were recovered, and a party of the young men formed themselves into an evangelistic band. The Archdeacon had an opportunity of preaching to a large number of heathen Indians while assembled for a potlatch, and some of the baptisms just referred to resulted from services held on this occasion. He says:—

A "potlatch" suspended to hear the Gospel.

I was informed that the heathen Indians from the inland tribes, together with those of the river, had assembled for a potlatch at three encampments about five miles off. It was further intimated to me that the leading chief who was holding the potlatch would not object to our holding a service in his lodge, which would accommodate several hundred persons. We gladly seized the opportunity, and after an early service in our Mission church, I started out on the ice, accompanied by a goodly band of our Christians. At each of the three encampments services were held. The potlatch, which was in full fling, was suspended. The Word of Life was faithfully proclaimed and eagerly listened to. It was a sight not soon to be forgotten.

The earnest upturned faces bore the unmistakable stamp of heathenism. Many of them were bedaubed with paint, whilst their hair, unkempt and rough, was covered with the down of the swan or eagle. As the Master's gracious invitation was proclaimed and pressed upon them, "Come unto Me . . . and I will give you rest," and "Come, for all things are now ready," not a few responded with bowed heads and subdued voices. These opening services were blessed to several who had relapsed into heathenism several years ago, and who had hitherto resisted every effort made to draw them back to the truth. Amongst them was a young chief of much influence. On the following Sunday, at the close of my sermon, he sprang to his feet, and with hands uplifted, and a voice broken with emotion, he declared his repentance, and avowed his decision to live henceforth only for Christ. I went forward and received him there and then into the Church, and the whole congregation burst forth spontaneously in the most appropriate words of the hymn, "Ring the bells of heaven, there is joy to-day." Several of his heathen friends came out of heathenism with him. I baptized his wife and her companion afterwards, and they are now happy in the truth and liberty of the Gospel.

Aiyansh.

A similar movement, attended with like blessing, was observed at AIYANSH, which is about 50 miles higher up the Naas than the place where the spring fishery is situated. The Rev. J. B. McCullagh, who returned from furlough in September, 1892, wrote the following April:—

"The Gospel Road."

The trail from our Mission-station to the heathen village Gitlakdamix had always been a bad one; so bad, indeed, that a visit to the latter place furnished a good deal of gymnastic exercise. We therefore conceived, and carried out, the idea of making a good straight road instead. This was accomplished by the voluntary labour of the Native Christians, extending over a period of three weeks, and amounting, in monetary value, to £100. It is called "The Gospel Road," and has been, both in the making and in the using, a real means of grace to many. Thenceforth, until the end of the year, I was able to preach the Gospel acceptably in from four to seven heathen houses every Sunday between morning and evening services, accompanied by ten or twelve Native Christians.

A lantern lecture.

On the evening of New Year's Day I gave a magic-lantern lecture in Kshm-uk-shan's house, at which about 250 heathen were present. This house is a roofed enclosure, 60 feet long and 40 wide, thus affording ample accommodation for the audience, our brass band (just then able to discourse a few hymn-tunes), and the lantern equipment. The lecture was on the Life and Death of Christ, and produced a profound impression upon the people. Two subsequent conversions had their origin, humanly speaking, at that lecture, and we believe there are more to follow.

Cannibal dance.

But, alas! the great attraction among the heathen during the winter was the Ulala, or cannibal dance, at which human flesh was rated at £1, £2, and £3 per bite; many regarding it as a profitable business to offer their flesh (generally their arms) to the dancers. A one-pound biter merely made a deep bruised impression with his teeth; but a two-pound gentleman was allowed to lacerate flesh and imbibe a little blood; while an optimus had the full privilege of tearing a piece away and eating it. Old Gwin-giau reached the summit of his ambition (public notoriety and fame) by being able to take ten bites at £3!! Picture to yourselves such scenes, enacted by naked savages, besmeared with ochre and bedecked with feathers, howling and writhing through the fiendish contortions peculiar to this mysterious rite, in the lurid glare of blazing logs, and encircled by an audience drawn from the various Nishga tribes, and you will see then "the heathen at home," perfectly at home in darkness such as this!

"Soul-stirring evangelistic work."

After the Advent of the New Year we laid prayerful and determined siege to this citadel of heathenism. Every day, until March 10th, when the tribes left for their spring fishing, a party of forty or fifty started from Aiyansh, marching along Gospel Road with banner aloft, singing and praying, straight into the heathen village, where they spent from three to four hours, holding outdoor and indoor meetings. Never before in my experience have I been privileged to witness such soul-stirring evangelistic effort. Our people were filled with the Spirit, and gave themselves up with perfect abandonment to the work of winning the heathen for Christ. Frequently I have done 25 houses in one day—i.e., given a short Gospel address in each, concluding with prayer—while in other parts of the village open-air work was carried on vigorously. During a period of nearly three weeks the thermometer ranged between thirty and forty degrees below zero; the Heathen were hugging their firesides wrapped in blankets and furs, but our people were out in it all.

One day the Ulala dancers failed to meet according to appointment. Why? They were ashamed to come out in costume before the Christians! All those Indians who had private whisky "stills" broke up their appliances before witnesses. To rightly estimate the importance of this work, it must be understood that all the Heathen on Naas River were there as guests during a great part of the time. The net result, up to the present, is 17 souls reclaimed from the darkness of heathenism.

But how shall I describe the work that went on among the Christians themselves? Every night and morning there were meetings for prayer, Scripture instruction, and exposition of texts for preaching purposes. There was, in the heart of one and all, an acute sense of contrition for sin, negligence, and unfaithfulness which found expression in many bitter cries and tears; while the supervening joy showed that Christ's finished work was fully realised. The Lord's Table was besieged, and 42 admitted to Communion. Women (squaws, so-called) drew off their bracelets, finger-rings, and ear-drops for the offertory! One young man, a half-breed, gave himself, and is now (together with a younger one) living with us in the Mission-house as pupils. The elder is named Charles Morven, and the younger, also a half-breed, Gaigiat, which means in English "Still a man." Let me ask your prayers on behalf of these youths.

A quarterly vernacular paper.

Mr. McCullagh publishes a quarterly paper in the vernacular from the Mission press, which he calls the Hagaga ("the Key" or "Opener"). A sawmill which he succeeded in getting sent out has been placed in the hands of a "Company" of Native Christians, whose property it will gradually become when its value has been paid in lumber to the Mission. Mr. McCullagh says:—

It takes up not one moment of my time; and looking round now on the substantial and shapely dwelling-houses which are fast replacing the old bark-roofed huts of my people I thank God most devoutly, and my friends most heartily for this great temporal blessing.

Without the saw-mill how could we ever build the beautiful school-house which we now behold with so much thankfulness and pleasure? Indeed, it would be impossible, except we were fortunate enough to find a gold mine. I made the model of the school last winter, on the scale of half an inch to a foot, every beam, rafter, board, windows, and doors in position, complete; and from this the Indians worked, and I am proud of their work, they have done it so well.

There were 20 converts from heathenism at Aiyansh, 12 Nishgas and 8 Gitikshans.

Kitkatla.

The Rev. F. L. Stephenson had the happiness in December of baptizing the chief Sheuksh of KITKATLA, whose conversion was referred to in the Annual Report of 1891-2 (page 233). Mr. Stephenson writes of him and of the work:—

Baptism of Chief Sheuksh.

I truly believe him to be very sincere in his professions of new life. His whole course of life carries sincerity on its face and in its hidden parts. Last year there were some points on which he and I were compelled to differ in connexion with the old régime. These positions he has utterly abandoned, and before attending a village feast will come in to ascertain if I am going, or if in doubt on any point will come in and talk his doubts over. "I have offended and fought against God too long, and can't afford, now that I know that He is right and I wrong, to wilfully offend Him. God forgive me for these years of error, and the error into which I have led my people. Night and day I cry to Him for pardon; my eyes are more often wet than dry. But He will not despise the sighing of a contrite heart, nor the desire of such as be penitent." His prayers are simple heart-breathings to his God. He was most eager during his preparation for Holy Baptism. One afternoon he seemed very cloudy, and could not take in what was taught. While questioning another candidate on what had been explained, to ascertain that it was thoroughly understood, I heard a whisper on my left, hurried and earnest. I could not turn round immediately, as I was listening to the answer of another candidate. The whisper continued, and became distinct to my ears. It was Sheuksh praying for light and wisdom. He did not miss another question the rest of the afternoon. Who will deny the effect of prayer? His answers were often astonishing, being the outcome of deep thought. Whenever I had the opportunity, which was nearly every night from 9 to 10 P.M., I would go down to his house, where he would collect a band for a Bible lesson.

The Kitkatla have made rapid strides, and exhibit great spiritual progress. More have come forward for baptism this year than during the three previous years of my work, leaving very few in their undetermined state. The search and hunger for truth has vastly increased. Where twenty or thirty attended Bible inquiry classes last year, the number has been often more than doubled. Hunger for the Truth.

Bishop Ridley endeavoured to get to Kitkatla to baptize Sheuksh. The distance from Metlakahtla is only 50 miles, but the journey in winter through those rough seas in a boat 15 feet by 5 feet 8 inches is a dangerous undertaking, and he accepted a passage in a trading steamer, but, after making a journey of some 360 miles, occupying five days, viâ Queen Charlotte Islands, when Kitkatla was at length reached the weather rendered it impossible to land.

From Kitkatla, which is near the mouth of the Skeena River, a journey of 200 miles up the river's course brings the traveller to HAZELTON, the station of the Rev. J. Field. The river up to this point has been rendered navigable for steam vessels, and Bishop Ridley was on the first boat which made the ascent in the summer of 1893. Mr. Field baptized three adults during the year, one of whom was the mother of Martha Nelson, whose death and her dying entreaties to her father and mother to turn to God were mentioned in last year's Report. He also baptized a young woman, aged 22, at GIATWANGAK. Both Mr. and Mrs. Field were dangerously ill from attacks of influenza in the autumn. Twelve Indians died at Hazelton from the same complaint. Hazelton.

The Rev. J. H. Keen's last Annual Letter to hand is dated from MASSETT, January, 1893.* He and Mrs. Keen were inaccessible to all communications during seven months of the winter of 1892–3. The Haidas of the neighbourhood of Massett are nearly all baptized Christians, but the conduct and lives of many of them cause much concern to Mr. and Mrs. Keen. Massett.

At ALERT BAY the attendance at the services somewhat increased, Mr. A. W. Corker states, but "the prince of this world still reigns" there. During the winter of 1892-3 Mr. Corker Alert Bay.

was at Gwayasdums, the winter village of the Zāwātī-īnūkw tribe. The Sunday services were attended by several young men and women regularly, and during the time of the prevalence of the intense frost as many as 85 children attended the school daily.

Bishop Ridley, enumerating the pleasures of restored health and strength (and the readers of this Report who have passed from Mission to Mission, endeavouring to enter into the joys and sorrows of the labourers, will recognise that his words are an appropriate conclusion to its pages) wrote :—

"The travail and joy of the missionary."

I must add yet another pleasure I have enjoyed, and that is the meeting amid their work our honoured brethren who are God's instruments in winning souls and building up His Church in regions where a sympathetic visitor is welcomed as an angel of God. How little does even the true Church, much less the crowd of self-centred Christians and the world, know of the travail and joy of the missionary ! Not that he thinks of this ; his one concern is his work, a commerce directly between him and his Master, Who makes His servant's life as full and complete as may be possible amid the city's concourse, and much more healthy. It makes him self-contained, and this tends to make him reticent and to restrain his pen when a full record of the common incidents of his work would be as fuel to kindle sacrifice of praise in many a pure and devout heart at home. Often do I wish they would write just what they tell me, for though it is the fruit of faithful endeavour, it has the bloom that only the sunshine of heavenly grace can paint.

"The romance of Missions not yet written."

The real romance of Missions is not yet written, and never will be, because God's greatest works are like the diamond and the dew—perfected in the secret places of the Most High, and await the great day to reveal them. Then will they go to swell the praises of eternity. God is a true economist, giving sufficient but not wasting His grace on us, shedding gleams of His glory now to cheer, but concealing more in order to reveal it when He shall have accomplished the number of His elect.

Home Operations.

THE Home Operations of the Church Missionary Society derive their importance mainly from the fact that they are essentially prerequisite to the carrying on of the foreign work. It is the latter which par excellence fulfils the object for which the Society exists. But while the Home bears a subordinate relation to the Foreign work, as a means to an end, the practical importance of the former cannot be regarded as inferior to that of the latter. Indeed, the importance of the end is precisely the measure of the importance of the means which are requisite to its attainment. The seeking for men and women to carry the tidings of salvation to the Mohammedan, and Heathen and Pagan nations and races of mankind; the choosing of spheres in which the individual gifts and qualifications of each missionary will find adequate scope; the raising of funds for sending them out and supporting them in their fields of labour; the maintaining of communications with all parts of the foreign field with the view to rendering help judiciously, at the right time and in the right place: these are functions of the most vital moment to missionary work, and all the agencies which assist in discharging them deserve thoughtful consideration and call for earnest prayer.

The work of the Committee.

The chiefest of these agencies is undoubtedly the Committee itself. There is no place at home where the operations of the Society are so unceasing and so laborious as at Salisbury Square. Consequently, a few words regarding the Committee work, from the pen of one of its active members, will be not inappropriate as a preface to this part of the Annual Report. The Rev. Alfred Oates, Vicar of Christ Church, Ware, delivered, in March 1893, an address to a meeting of clergy at Manchester, which was subsequently printed by the request of those who heard it; and in one part of it he described in very felicitous and accurate terms some of the work which is done at the C.M. House. He spoke unofficially, as he explained, and "as a private member of several of the Committees, who gives six days' work a week to parochial duties, and the seventh day to the claims of the Church Missionary Society." He said:—

Salisbury Square.

The House in Salisbury Square is remarkable. It is in the heart of London and yet just out of the noise, and rush, and turmoil; standing like a Christian in the midst of useful activities, who has turned aside to hold communion with God. It is a centre of life, industry, consultation, and supplication. Over its doorway might be inscribed, "The place where prayer is wont to be made." The Bishop of Ripon considers that "the greatness of the Society's work is due to the constancy and importunity of its prayers." The first floor is the heart of the House, with its Committee-rooms, and Library, and the rooms of the Honorary Secretary. Almost daily one, or more than one, Committee meets. These Committees include statesmen and Members of Parliament, Indian judges, retired Civil servants, officers in the Army who have led troops to victory, successful business men, influential City clergy and a few quiet country parsons, who give their time for the work they approve.

The Committee Room.

The principle of the Committee Room is, "By love serve one another." The tone is that of men who know they have a sacred office to fulfil: it is often serious, subdued, solemn. Of course, there are occasions when eagerness to gain a desirable point finds forcible and firm expression, or when disapprobation of some proposal gives no uncertain sound, or when amendment follows amendment and it requires the utmost discretion, calmness, and resource on the part of the chairman to secure the practical unanimity of decision which all desire, and rejoice to discover. The Committee is at its best when the application of some great principle is at stake, or when some development of agency in the Mission-field has to be promoted, or when the old untattered Evangelical flag has to be hung out. There is no uncertain sound then. Men may differ in regard to applications of policy—in the great matters of principle there is no difference. There is a jealousy of truth, and a resolute safeguarding of the Protestant faith, which knows no qualification; and which will not hear of David going forth to meet Goliath with other weapons than the sling and the stone of the Gospel of Christ crucified, and the prayers of the people of God.

Dismissals of Missionaries.

Never is a visit to the Committee Room more desirable than on the occasion of a dismissal, i.e. an official farewell to outgoing missionaries. At the great table, in his chair of office, sits the President, with the Secretaries to right and left of him; and on the raised bench behind, distinguished visitors, Vice-Presidents, and very old members of the Society find seats. Ranged along the other side of the table are the missionaries. Behind, and alongside these are members of the Committee. One end of the room, sometimes more, is reserved for the friends of those who are about to be "dismissed." The Chairman's welcome is spoken; the Instructions of the Committee are read by the Secretary in charge, in which the chief duties are summarised, the first great work of learning the language is insisted on, and words of counsel gleaned by experience are offered. Briefly the missionaries reply and state any special wish, all plead for prayer. It then falls to the lot of some selected clerical member of Committee to address the brethren who are about to set forth on their responsible mission. This is a serious but a happy duty. The speaker has to assure the missionaries in all affection of the unfailing sympathy of the Committee, of the interest with which their work will be followed; of the obligation to "endure hardness as good soldiers of Christ Jesus," to "love as brethren," and to spare no pains in bringing Christ's lost sheep into the fold; always remembering that the presence of the Lord is sure, and the promise of God is unfailing. Usually some motto-word is taken from the Holy Scriptures and commended to the keeping of the brethren. This is a season when heart speaks to heart; the fact comes home, "Ye are all one in Christ Jesus;" and the place is filled with the glory of the Lord. Often there is a stillness which may be felt, as if we were "abiding under the shadow of the Almighty." Occasionally the Chairman adds an earnest word before calling for the prayer which is to gather up sympathies, hopes, fears, confidences, and bear them to the footstool of the King; there pleading, "God be with you till we meet again,' with the consciousness that the next meeting may be before the throne of God.

Large and varied, growingly so, is the work of the Committee; whilst the Secretaries are very heavily weighted. As many as a thousand letters a day are received during the month of March. Extension and advance in the field, and in the activity of friends at home, demand additional labours from the staff in Salisbury Square, and bring fresh items of business before the Committee.

General Committee.

The supreme governing body is the General Committee; it is the court of review and arbitrament. Its membership is wide and large. This is a gain and a disadvantage. For, on occasion of the discussion of some personal matter or burning question, it leads to a rush. The Committee Room is then crowded with nominal members who seldom or never come to help in the ordinary business, and indeed who know little or nothing of the business; and they necessarily carry away a distorted notion of the functions and habits of the Committee. The General Committee appoints, or controls the appointment of, the other Committees, of which there are about a dozen and a half, and some sub-Committees. The Committee of Correspondence is next in importance to the General Committee: it numbers 100 members! It superintends the foreign work of the Society, seeks for, nominates, locates, and endeavours to keep in touch with, the missionaries. The immediate oversight of the foreign field is committed to three group Committees, each consisting of about 20 members, of which group No. 1 has Ceylon, China, Japan, North-West America, and the North Pacific; Group No. 2 undertakes Persia, India, and Mauritius; and Group No. 3 overlooks Africa, Palestine, and New Zealand. The Group Committees consider the details of the work, receive the official letters of the missionaries and the reports of the Mission secretaries, decide on matters entrusted to them for decision, and recommend and report on other matters to the Committee of Correspondence. On a recent occasion the précis paper of group No. 3 consisted of 47 folio pages of printed matter. The Clerical Sub-Committee (26 members) interviews candidates for foreign Mission work and reports on their qualifications. Each candidate is seen by three members of this Committee and by the Medical Board, after the Honorary Secretary has been satisfied as to general fitness.

Committee of Correspondence.

Other Committees and Sub-Committees.

It is the duty of the Committee of Patronage (14 members) to seek the support of influential persons, and to nominate to all honorary appointments. The Committee of Estimates (23 members) prepares statements of probable expenditure, and compares them with the income at command. The Personal Grants and Allowances Sub-Committee (10 members) regulates payments to missionaries. The Finance Committee (16 members) controls expenditure, examines accounts, recommends grants, and reports to the General Committee how far expenditure corresponds to sanctioned estimates. One large item is independent of its decision. The General Committee has deliberately decided to send out all fit and proper persons who offer themselves to the Society to serve the Lord in the sacred ministry of Christ's Church in the Heathen and Mohammedan world. No delay in this particular is allowed because of the state of the exchequer. The Committee believe that the Lord of the Harvest, who thrusts out labourers into His harvest, will provide the means for their maintenance.

Home Organisation Committee.

The Funds and Home Organisation Committee, with 23 members, has to do with the income of the Society, and to regulate the machinery for the collection of money. It nominates the Association Secretaries and the 600 Honorary District Secretaries and other agents and representatives of the Society, whether on the Deputational Staff or not, who are appointed to obtain subscriptions, benefactions, and collections; and it is charged with the responsibility of endeavouring to obtain new openings for the advocacy of the great cause, and of promoting a spirit of liberality throughout the length and breadth of its constituency. Ten thousand pounds a year are spent on this branch of the work; and the Central Secretary assures us that at least another £1,000 must be granted if the Deputation work is to be satisfactorily performed. The ouly means of diminishing this large outlay is by increasing local effort, and by self-restraint in asking for missionaries to preach sermons. The Secretaries are ex-officio members of all, or nearly all, the Committees.

At least a dozen other Committees are appointed with definite and distinctive duties, including a Landed Property, an Ecclesiastical, and a Personal Questions Committee. In addition, circumstances from time to time compel the nomination of special Sub-Committees. Such was Mr. Abbott's Committee of some years ago for the examination and regulation of Home and House expenditure. Such also were the more recent Niger Sub-Committees. These Sub-Committees have often most delicate and difficult work to do, and in your prayers on behalf of Christian Missions a place may well be claimed on behalf of the brethren who work in quiet, sometimes apparently in vain, and thanklessly; but who are at least as useful as the men on your railways and in your factories who oil the wheels of the waggons, or lubricate the machinery in the engine-house.

A holy bond of peace is found in the Thursday afternoon Prayer-Meeting by those who are able to attend; and there the Apostolic injunction is learnt, "Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God, and the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall guard your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus."

The Secretaries.

Mr. Oates' remark that "the Secretaries are very heavily weighted" was a just one. The rapid expansion of the work in recent years has involved a severe strain to both the physical and mental powers of the executive officers of the Society. During the past year the Committee were thankful to notice a real improvement in the health of the Honorary Clerical Secretary, the Rev. F. E. Wigram. But the state of health of the two senior secretaries, the Revs. C. C. Fenn and W. Gray, gave cause for anxiety. The Committee availed themselves successively of the assistance of two Indian Missionaries on furlough, the Rev. T. Walker, of Tinnevelly, and the Rev. P. Ireland Jones, of Calcutta, in the work of the Indian Group Committee, during the temporary ill-health of Mr. Gray. In like manner the Rev. E. T. Higgins, of Ceylon, gave help during an illness of the Rev. C. C. Fenn.

Retirement of Rev. C. C. Fenn.

To the Committee's great regret, Mr. Fenn has been advised by the medical authorities whom he has consulted, that he ought not at his advanced age to continue the onerous labours of the office which he has held for thirty years, having previously given thirteen years of service in the Mission field. His retirement happily does not import a complete severance from the Society's work. As a member of the Committee, so far as his health will permit, his experience and unrivalled knowledge of the Society's principles and methods will be available. Thus it is hoped that his retirement from the responsibilities of office will not break the continuity, which has been preserved for well nigh seventy years, of the services of a Fenn in the Society's work. Mr. Fenn's father, the Rev. Joseph Fenn, was one of the original band of three, Baker and Bailey being the other two, who started the Travancore Mission in 1816. Several of his sons became clergymen. One was Vicar of Christ Church, Cheltenham. Another was Principal at Trent College. Another, David Fenn, was a devoted C.M.S. Missionary in Tinnevelly, and afterwards at Madras. All these are dead. Christopher Fenn, Scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge, went to Ceylon in 1851, and was for some years Principal of the Training Institution there. In 1864 he became a Secretary of the Society at home. Prior to 1881, Mr. Fenn was largely occupied with personal correspondence with Missionary brethren in most parts of the world. He also for several years compiled the Annual Report. Since 1881, however, when the Group system (referred to above in the extract from Mr. Oates's paper) was introduced, Mr. Fenn had charge of the Committee work relating to Ceylon, China, Japan, and America. But on any important questions involving the Society's principles and methods which arose in connexion with any Mission, his counsel was indispensable. He also took a considerable share in the important work of interviewing candidates. The Committee trust that, in the evening of his days, he may experience in ever increasing degree the sweetness and consolation of the Holy Spirit of promise; that "in the multitude of the thoughts within him" as he reflects on the past, "the comforts of the Lord" may always "delight his soul;" and that the clear light on his path may "shine more and more unto the perfect day." The Rev. B. Baring Gould, the Central Secretary, has accepted the office vacated by Mr. Fenn, and he purposes before taking up this work to pay a short visit to the Mission fields (without charge to the Society), which he will (D.V.) shortly be responsible for administering.

In view of the vast growth of the Missionary work of the Society, needing to be systematically reported and reviewed, and the increasing strain upon the Editorial Department, owing to the multiplication of publications, and the share taken by Mr. Eugene Stock in the general business of the Committees and in the Society's Home work, also the need of early preparation of literature for the forthcoming centenary, the Committee appointed the Rev. G. Furness Smith, who for several years had been Assistant Foreign Secretary, to be an additional Secretary of the Society, and to undertake the above duties.

Appointment of a new Secretary,

The work of the Auxiliary Committee for the Society's Medical Missions is increasing in importance; and this has been specially marked by the appointment of Dr. Herbert Lankester as permanent Secretary to that Committee, and also as an Executive Medical Officer of the Society in daily attendance. A Medical Mission quarterly paper is now issued under the auspices of this Committee.

and of a Physician in Attendance.

The Home Operations of the Society, apart from the work pertaining to the Committee, consist in imparting information to the Church at home regarding the work and workers (and the work undone for want of workers) in the foreign fields, and in soliciting help from the Lord's people, both personal offers of services and gifts of money. This information is imparted, and these appeals are made, by the printed page and by the living voice.

Publications.

The total circulation of the Society's papers during the year was about 3,800,000. Of the monthly periodicals the circulation grows year by year, but there is doubtless scope at home and in the colonies for a very considerably increased sale. 72,000 copies of the Intelligencer (a monthly issue of 6,000), 840,000 of the Gleaner (monthly, 70,000), 480,000 of Awake (monthly, 40,000), and 576,000 of the Children's World (monthly, 48,000) were printed; of the Quarterly Papers 80,000, and of the Quarterly Token 904,000 were circulated. The issue of miscellaneous papers equalled 800,000, of which 300,000 were new ones, and 500,000 reprints. The principal new publications of the year were (1) the revised Cycle of Prayer, which now includes other missions in C.M.S. fields, and also fields in which the C.M.S. is not represented; (2) the Gleaner's Atlas and Key to the Cycle of Prayer, the first edition of which, 5,000 copies, was sold out in three months; (3) a third Christmas book for children, entitled, God's Earth, or Well Worth, by Miss Sarah Geraldina Stock. Also by Miss Stock, The Story of the Year, a popular report of the year's proceedings, has been issued as a new annual. A new Welsh edition of the Quarterly Token has obtained a large circulation. The sheet almanack, after being dropped for a year, was issued again in 1894, and attained at once its former circulation of 40,000. A large proportion of these publications have been issued gratuitously, but their circulation has not been forced. The supply has barely kept pace with the demand. The sale of the periodicals secured a profit balance of £183.

But an enumeration of numbers or a statement of financial profit are poor criteria whereby to judge the work accomplished by this agency. A more convincing evidence of the interest which some of them excite and the value which is set on them by the very poor, those whom it might be considered difficult to interest in missionary work, is supplied by the following. In the popular monthly paper, Awake, a number of simple questions on the Scriptures were proposed and answers invited. No less than 657 responded; of that number only about 130 belonged to what would be called the educated classes, including school teachers. About 200 were domestic servants, and over 300 were from such classes as small tradesmen's assistants, factory workers, artisans, wives of working men, needlewomen, &c. One of the miscellaneous papers issued during the year had an altogether unusual circulation. The speech of Mrs. Isabella Bishop, at the Gleaners Union Anniversary, was published shortly afterwards under the title of Heathen Claims and Christian Duty, and within four months no less than 168,000 copies had been issued in response to direct applications. The effect of such a paper may well be expected, with the Divine blessing, to prove exceeding great. The Vicar of an important parish in the North of England, acting upon a suggestion which had been made, read this speech at a service of intercession for missionaries, instead of preaching the sermon which he had prepared. At the close he invited his people to spend a few moments in silent heart-searching and intercession. He then offered prayer, and pronounced the benediction; but, for fully five minutes there was an intense silence, as those present were bowed before God in prayer, and when at last some rose from their places, others remained hushed for some minutes longer. When this effect is produced by a missionary address, whether written or spoken, when men are driven to fervent pleading before the mercy seat, then in God's time mighty consequences may be looked for.

Exeter Hall meetings.

Exeter Hall rang with many solemn and thrilling appeals from the heart and to the heart during the year. From wall to wall it was packed over and over again, and it is clear that the perplexing problem will have to be faced, what to do with the crowds for whom its capacity offers too inadequate accommodation. On the Anniversary of 1893, for the first time, meetings were held in St. James' Hall, simultaneously with the morning and evening meetings in Exeter Hall, and in the afternoon Prince's Hall was filled with women only, while a Conference of Gleaners' Union country friends crowded the large committee room at Salisbury Square. The same arrangements were made for the 1894 anniversary, except that the second evening meeting was in Lower Exeter Hall instead of St. James' Hall. Exeter Hall was also filled on May 30, 1893, to welcome back Mr. Eugene Stock and the Rev. R. W. Stewart from their visit to Australasia and to India; on September 26, for the annual valedictory meeting; on Nov. 1, for the Gleaners' Union anniversary; and on March 9, 1894, to welcome home and bid God-speed to Bishops Tucker, Evington, and Tugwell. Most of those who have been privileged to be present at these remarkable gatherings would probably accept as a sober statement of a great fact what was said by Sir Richard Temple at the recent anniversary, that these meetings constitute the greatest moral phenomenon of the age in which we live.

The Committee's fervent desire is that every C.M.S. meeting held throughout the land—in large town halls, in parish rooms, in village schools, in drawing rooms, and in the open air, should be seasons of solemn heart searching before the Lord, that the claims of the Lord Jesus Christ upon the talents and means and lives of His people should be enforced and the needs of a sorrowing sin-stained dying world represented, as well as the encouragements and discouragements of the work declared. At the beginning of 1894 the missionaries at home who were at that time engaged on its deputational staff were invited to spend a few hours in conference and in earnest prayer regarding the work of deepening and extending missionary interest; and the Rev. Hubert Brooke, of Reading, and the Rev. Canon Gibbon spoke a few helpful words from Acts xiv. 27 and 1 Peter iii. 15 respectively. At the annual gathering of the Association Secretaries, which took place from January 17 to 19, more time than on any previous similar occasion was given to devotional exercises. The Revs. Gilbert Karney, of Paddington, A. E. Barnes Lawrence, of Blackheath, Prebendary Webb Peploe, of Kensington, H. E. Fox, of Durham, A. J. Robinson, of Marylebone, and A. Oates, of Ware, gave addresses of much spiritual power. The Committee received with much regret the resignation of the Rev. A. H. Arden, who for several years had been Association Secretary for the Western District, at his own charges, devoting all his time to the work. His state of health obliged him to retire from these arduous duties. The Rev. Herbert Knott succeeded him. The missionaries on the deputation staff were the following:— Deputation staff.

	Dr. E. J. Baxter.

A feature of the year noticeable in the reports sent up to Salisbury Square from the local associations was the number of Missionary Exhibitions. At Sunderland, York, Nottingham, South Lambeth (All Saints), Weymouth, and Brighton these exhibitions were held with marked success. Mr. H. G. Malaher, the indefatigable Secretary of the Missionary Leaves Association, was present at most, if not all of them, and rendered material help. The one at York was opened by the Archbishop of York, and lasted four days. The Treasurer of the Society, Sir T. Fowell Buxton, Canon Faussett, the Dean of York, the Bishop of Hull, Sir J. Terry, Mr. Eugene Stock, and several missionaries and others Loan Exhibitions.

took part in the proceedings. The exhibits numbered over 3,000, and about £750 was taken. At Sunderland, though the largest hall in the town was used, the crowding was most inconvenient, and it was found necessary to close the doors for a time. There upwards of £500 was taken. The pecuniary results of the Exhibition at Brighton were still larger than those quoted above. The aged Bishop of Chichester opened the proceedings on the first day, the Countess of Chichester and Sir John Kennaway on the second, and Sir Douglas Fox on the third. The Vicar of Brighton, Prebendary Hannah, on each occasion occupied the chair. During the three days some 8,500 people visited the building, and the proceeds of the exhibition and sale of work was £1,300. It was anticipated that the heavy expenses incurred would have to be deducted from this amount, but a special effort, initiated by the Earl of Chichester, raised a sum which fully met the expenditure, and the whole amount realised was remitted to the C.M.S., the C.E.Z.M.S., and the Missionary Leaves Association. This was not the only nor the best result of the effort, as four ladies volunteered for missionary work, as the outcome of the "talks" of two ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. Another example of sustained effort is afforded by Holy Trinity, Marylebone, where for one week all the ordinary parochial organisations and gatherings were used to bring the various classes of the community together to listen to the story of missionary work, the effort concluding with a missionary conversazione, with curios, music, and addresses.

Interest among the young.

The necessity of interesting the young for their own and for the work's sake, is ever present to the minds of the friends of the missionary cause. Their contributions constitute no inconsiderable part of the Society's income, but it may be doubted whether the children of the upper classes have hitherto been appreciably reached. An effort in this direction was made on February 14, 1894, by the Countess of Harrowby and Lady Kennaway, on behalf of the Ladies' C. M. Union for London, by whom between three and four hundred of the pupils in Ladies' Boarding Schools were invited to the C. M. House. The library and Secretaries' rooms were converted for the occasion into "Courts" for the exhibition of missionary curios, and meetings were held in the large Committee Room. At Bedford, a great educational centre, the Rector of St. Cuthbert's, the Rev. A. C. Downer, instituted a Flower meeting, with the object of bringing the young together in the summer when lantern lectures are not practicable; and he remarks that through this means the largest missionary meetings ever held in that town have been brought together. The aim should be to reach all classes and all ages without exception, and this aim is manifestly prominent in some places and parishes. A Midland town, for example, emphasises it by its multifarious organisations. It has a "Missionary Parliament," each member representing some mission station of his choice. It has Schoolboys' and Schoolgirls' Missionary Unions, the rules of which oblige the members to give something to missions and to read something about missions, and competitions and examinations are held on the Gleaner and the Children's World. It has also a Young Ladies' Reading Society, which is organised in four circles of 16 members each; a Servants' Association, with weekly working parties; a Gleaners' Union, with monthly meetings, at each of which a member reads a paper, and questions on the last number of the Gleaner are asked; a Juvenile Association; and, finally, meetings for intercession are held.

A large proportion of the work of advocating the claims of the Society, both in the pulpit and on the platform, is done by volunteers. This should be the case in an increasing degree as the Society's publications find a wider circle of intelligent and thoughtful readers. The numerous Unions (there are 36 County Unions, 11 Unions of Younger Clergy, 22 Lay Workers' Unions, 24 Ladies' Unions, and 40 Missionary Bands in connexion with the Society) ought to be, and are to a certain extent, promoting this object. Among the County Unions that of Somersetshire set an early example in this matter, which some of the others have followed. The Worcestershire County Union at a recent meeting decided to prepare a list of missionary speakers, both men and women, willing to attend meetings within the county, to be sent to the parochial clergy supporting the Society, and to Secretaries of Associations. Some of the Younger Clergy Unions have moved in the same direction. Forty-two members of the London Younger Clergy Union have signified their willingness to assist in this way, and a list has been drawn up, giving their names and addresses, the days on which they are free, and the subjects on which they are prepared to speak. At Sheffield, during Advent, the members of the Y.C.U. of that town preached sermons, and in some cases courses of three sermons, in various churches, as had been arranged by the Secretary of the Union. The Huddersfield Y.C.U., at its fourth annual meeting in April, 1893, reported that 44 parochial meetings had been held during the year, at which 40 illustrated lectures had been given. In February, 1894, the Younger Clergy Unions of Leeds, Bradford, Huddersfield, and Wakefield, held a joint conference at Bradford, when about 60 members were present to discuss (1) the needs of the foreign field, and the position and prospects of the Missions; and (2) methods of parochial organisation. The members of Lay Workers' Unions have perhaps hitherto been the most active in improving their powers as missionary advocates by acquiring and diffusing information. In April 1893, the Birmingham Lay Workers' Union arranged for 51 simultaneous Sunday School addresses, after the example set for the past several years by the London L.W.U., whose members last Advent gave no less than 290 addresses in 181 parishes. In Liverpool it is attributed to this cause, viz., the energy of the L.W.U. in systematically organising missionary addresses in various schools, that the income of the year 1892–3 from juvenile branches and Sunday Schools showed an increase of £76, while all other sources of revenue showed a diminished return. At Sheffield in two successive years the L.W.U. has succeeded in organising the largest meetings which have been held in the town for many years for religious purposes, filling the Albert Hall with upwards of 3,000 people to hear the Rev. R. H. Walker (in 1893) and Bishop Tucker (in 1894). It should also be mentioned that the Exeter Hall meeting in March to welcome and bid God-speed to Bishops Tucker, Evington, and Tugwell, which has already been referred to, was suggested and organised by the London Lay Workers' Union. This Union has 600 members, and the attendances at its fortnightly meetings, held at Salisbury Square for nine months of the year, averaged 80. Altogether, since its formation, 50 of its members have proceeded to the Mission field. There are 46 branches of the Union, most of them in or near London. A conference of the various Bands in association with the London L.W.U. was held at Harrow in July 1893, and attended by 92 members. These Bands generally assume names adopted from missionary places or agents, such as "Ainus," "Coromandels," "Hanningtonians," "Kavirondos," "Youcons," &c. At the meetings the members give addresses or read papers. In the autumn of 1893 the L.L.W.U. issued a valuable paper giving the following list of subjects which have been taken at the meetings of the various Bands—a list remarkable alike for its variety and suggestiveness:—

Gleaners' Union.

The Gleaners' Union held its seventh Anniversary on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 31 and November 1. On the former date, the members met for a short season of prayer at the C.M. House, and then adjourned to St. Dunstan's Church, Fleet Street, where the Holy Communion was administered and a short address given. In the afternoon, and in the morning of the second day, Conferences were held at Sion College, where also a social gathering was held on the Tuesday evening. On Wednesday afternoon, in the Lower Exeter Hall, a number of lady speakers, including the late Mrs. Hill, addressed a very full meeting; and in the evening, when the late Bishop Hill presided in the large Exeter Hall, the memorable speech of Mrs. Isabella Bishop was delivered. The number of members enrolled at head-quarters between October 31, 1892, and September 30, 1893, was 10,961; and the total number since the Union was founded in July 1886, up to March 30, 1894, that is, in seven years and nine months, was 64,775. These members belong to all classes, from the titled peer to the inmate of the county workhouse. The bulk of them are naturally found in the British Isles, and London with its suburbs claims about 8,000 of the whole number. Ireland has 3,119, Wales 255, Holland 166, Isle of Man and the Channel Islands 212. On the Continent of Europe 115 are found, in Asia 1,517, in Africa 170, in America 84, in Australia about 3,000. In small contributions for the most part an aggregate of no less than £10,397 was contributed during the seven years by the members through the Union (over and above their subscriptions through the local C.M.S. Associations), of which £3,960 was given towards the first year's expenses —outfit, travelling, and maintenance, &c.—of fourteen missionaries who had been chosen and adopted in successive years as "Gleaners' Own Missionaries." The original intention of the promoters and founders of this Union was to supply a direct link between individual isolated workers and the C.M. House, and abundant testimony has been received, showing that the relation it has established has been not merely a sentiment but a real spiritual force. But its value has been even greater as a bond between Gleaners and their fellow-Gleaners in the same localities through the formation of Branches, of which there are 550 in the United Kingdom, and about 100 abroad and in the Colonies. What an important missionary force a G.U. Branch may become is illustrated by the following extract from a letter, which was received at Salisbury Square from the Secretary of a Branch, in January, 1894:—

"One request has been much on my heart, namely, that each year our Branch might, through its members, minister to the need abroad by some giving themselves to the work. God has graciously answered this prayer. First Miss —— went to China in 1890. Since then others have followed: Miss —— went to India, Miss —— to India, Miss —— to China, Rev. —— to Africa, Miss —— and Miss ——, both training. We long above all, that our branch should be a giving one, that no year may pass without at least one hearing the Master's call, and obeying it."

G.U. Auxiliary Committee.

In view of the remarkable development of this Union, and its increasing importance as an agency for diffusing information, deepening interest, and promoting prayer, the Committee appointed in April, 1894, an Auxiliary Committee to watch its growth and to administer its funds; and it was also decided to appoint one or more visitors to visit the various Branches, and encourage and help them. Thus the Gleaners' Union, after seven years of silent spontaneous growth, during which its vital energy has been demonstrated, has become in a fuller sense linked to the official organisation of Salisbury Square than was originally contemplated, and the Committee trust that the link will tend to foster its growth and not to diminish in any degree its spontaneity.

Such as the above have been the agencies which have been co-operating to extend and to deepen the missionary spirit in the Church of England, and more especially in the Evangelical branch of it, during the past year. What fruit of these operations, these labours, and prayers, and testimonies, and appeals, has the year produced?

Candidates.

First, regarding candidates. During the year ending April 30, 175 offers of services were dealt with by the Committees appointed for that purpose, not including about an equal number of cases of preliminary offer or inquiry not brought before the Committee. Of the 175 offers, 96 were accepted, either as missionaries, or for training and probation. Seventy-seven men were under training for the whole or part of the year, either at the Clapham Preparatory Institution, or at the Islington College, or under the care of individual clergymen; and 64 women, either at The Willows, or at the new Training Home at Highbury for female candidates unprovided with means to pay The Willows fees, or under the charge of individual clergymen.

The number of candidates accepted for service who had either completed their training at the Society's Institutions, or who were fully trained at the time when they offered, was 93—viz., 19 clergymen, five qualified medical men, 21 other laymen (including two retired officers of the army)—total of men, 45, against 31 in 1892–3; and 48 women, against 51 in 1892–3. Twenty-one were University graduates, viz., seven from Oxford, 11 from Cambridge, two from Trinity College, Dublin, and one from the University of London. These acceptances included two laymen and five women from the new Colonial Associations, and one clergyman and two women received into local connexion in the field. But they did not include Bishop Stuart, as he has always remained on the List of Missionaries.

The following is the list of the 93 accepted for service, with the names of the places from which they offered, and the Mission to which those who have sailed have been assigned; in the case of the men, their college and degree is also given.

* Withdrawn on grounds of health.

Only those who had actually sailed before June 1, 1894, are included in the List of Missionaries on pages xx to xxxviii of this Report. That list numbers 339 clergymen, 78 laymen, and 171 women, not counting the wives of missionaries. In 1884 the numbers were respectively 228, 34, and 15.

In June, 1893, the Committee decided to issue an appeal inviting offerings from individuals, families, parishes, and Associations for the purpose of sending out and supporting particular workers. It is interesting to notice the growing number of those for whose support arrangements are made which, wholly or in part, relieve the Society's funds. The following are lists of those missionaries whose allowances, although drawn, are covered or partly covered by contributions from (I.) various bodies or (II.) from individual friends of the Society; also of those (III.) who draw only a portion of the usual allowances, and (IV.) who draw no allowances at all from the Society's funds.

Missionaries from Australasian Associations.

The Missionaries sent out by the Colonial Associations (a separate report of these will be found on pages 286–288) do not appear on any of the above lists. They might be placed in the last, inasmuch as they draw no allowances from the Society's funds; but to place them there would obscure the distinction which exists among them as among the missionaries from this country, that some are honorary, while others draw the usual allowances from their respective Associations. On the other hand, they would be out of place in the first list, inasmuch as the contributions to meet their allowances are not paid into the Society's funds. It is better, therefore, to represent the Colonial missionaries in a separate list, indicating those who are honorary, as is here done:—

Islington College was full during the year. Until recently the College was practically one for training non-graduates for Holy Orders; although occasionally a graduate would enter for some theological reading, and a man not quite up to ordination standard (or for some other special cause) would go out as a layman. But now regular provision is made for all three classes. First, University graduates, or qualified medical men, are received for a year's definite course in divinity. Secondly, men who can (with or without previous instruction in the Preparatory Institution at Clapham) pass an entrance examination are taken for the regular three years' theological course for holy orders. Except in some special circumstances, no student is now presented to the Bishop who has not taken a first or second class in the Oxford and Cambridge Preliminary Examination for Orders. As a matter of fact, only two or three times in past years has a lower class than the second been gained; but a few have been ordained who have not been presented for the Preliminary Examination. Then, thirdly, the recommendations of the Sub-Committee which considered the suggestions of the "Keswick Letter" of 1890 have been earnestly and successfully carried out by the College staff. A "short course" for lay missionaries has been arranged. Most of these have been under instruction at Clapham, and they go from thence to Islington with no idea at all of ordination, and stay there for four terms, that is, about a year and three months. This "short course" is an interesting one. It comprises at present a good general study of the English Bible, with a little Greek Testament; Doctrinal teaching of the Creeds and Articles; History and teaching of the Prayer-book; Elementary Apologetics, based on Paley and Butler; Logic; Vocal Music; Hygiene and Elementary Surgery, with practical work at the Great Northern Hospital; Carpentry, Shoemaking, &c. Of course these men, like the others, engage in evangelistic home mission work. Islington College.

Six students of the College passed the Preliminary Examination for Holy Orders—three, (T. Davis, J. T. Parfit, and E. F. Robins) in the first class; and three, (G. R. Blackledge, E. Hughesdon, and H. Mould) in the second. Mr. Davis read the Gospel at St. Paul's Cathedral on Trinity Sunday, being first in the Bishop of London's examination. This honour has now been gained by Islington men every year, with one exception, since 1886; indeed, the Archdeacon of London has publicly stated that the Islington men are "indisputably the best trained" of ordination candidates. Oxford and Cambridge Preliminary Examination.

On November 17, 1893, the Bishop of London dedicated a new Chapel which has been added to the College, together with provision for additional sleeping and class-rooms, the cost of which was mainly borne by an anonymous donation of £1,000 College chapel.

to the Principal, the Rev. T. W. Drury. During a long and much lamented illness of Mr. Drury, the Vice-Principal, the Rev. Dr. S. Dyson acted in his place, and was assisted by the Rev. W. R. Linton.

Missionaries' Children's Home.

At the Annual Prize-day of the Missionaries' Children's Home, the Rev. F. V. Knox reported 101 children in the Home, viz. 54 girls and 47 boys. Several had won distinctions in various University and Local Examinations.

Rev. R. W. and Mrs. Stewart's visit to Canada.

The Committee received at different times several invitations from churchmen in the Dominion of Canada that a deputation from the Society should visit that Colony, as Australia was visited in 1892. The Committee therefore requested the Rev. R. W. and Mrs. Stewart, subject to the approval of the respective Bishops, to visit the dioceses of Montreal, Ontario, Niagara, Toronto, and Huron, while en route to China in the autumn of 1893, with a view, under the Divine blessing, to extend and deepen the interest already existing there in the foreign missionary enterprise. Their visit was warmly and gratefully welcomed, and the prospectuses of the Australasian Associations have been sent as guides to the Canadian friends in forming, as they wish to do, similar organisations for dealing with candidates.

In Cape Colony three parishes have shown great earnestness in supporting the Society, and though standing almost alone in their devotion to Evangelical principles, have combined together to support a C.M.S. missionary in East Africa, in addition to their regular contributions, and have further sent special gifts towards the cost of last autumn's reinforcement. The Incumbent of one of these South African parishes, the Rev. A. Daintree, having observed in the Intelligencer some remarks on the financial outlook of the Society in relation to the large yearly increase of missionaries, wrote the following letter:—

"THE RECTORY, MOWBRAY,
"CAPE OF GOOD HOPE, Aug. 2, 1893.

Letter from the Cape.

"MY DEAR SIR,—I do trust that you have received a 'response of faith' to the Minute of Committee of June 13 last. When the July Intelligencer reached me, it was with a feeling of deep pain that I saw that the Committee had had to make an appeal for funds. I felt deeply what a reproach it was to us Christians that such a thing should be necessary. I spent the morning of Monday, July 24, in humbling myself before God for this thing, and in prayer that He would touch the hearts of His people to offer their means to Him. I know my faith was a poor, weak thing, but His power is omnipotent. At 2.30 that same day a lady drove over from Claremont to see me, and offered to give a sum of £100 which was at her disposal towards sending out these 50 missionaries who are to go out next October. You know what South Africa is, what little sums have been sent home year by year, at all events until just lately, how unlikely a place it is from which to expect a response to your appeal. 'While they are yet speaking, I will hear.' So we thank God and take courage.

"We will do what we can here, feeling that a strengthening of our Association, both in prayer and contributions, will be the best answer to the appeal. I am endeavouring to develop our organisation. Our weekly prayer-meeting always begins with prayer for the Mission Field, our monthly Gleaners' meetings are spreading information, and I am constantly using opportunities to show from the pulpit how the Bible is full of the missionary idea and claims.

"A. DAINTREE."

The receipt of such a letter in the middle of the financial year, just when the autumn reinforcements were preparing to set sail, was a most helpful and cheering reminder of the all-sufficiency of the Lord of Missions, and the Committee have to acknowledge His faithfulness in the matter of funds.

Financial situation.

The Society's financial situation was discussed repeatedly during the year at the meetings of the General Committee, and each time, upon reviewing the gracious dealings of God with the Society, especially in recent years, the Committee felt encouraged to go forward without fear in the path which seemed clearly to be right. The following occurs in the Minutes of the Committee of June 13:—

"Since the passing, in October, 1887, of a Resolution which had led the Committee to adhere to the principle of accepting and sending forth all duly-qualified candidates who offer themselves, the Committee notice—

"(1) That during the four years following the date of the Resolution referred to, 250 new missionaries were accepted, just double the corresponding number for the previous four years; and that the financial position of the Society was stronger at the end of that period than at its beginning.

"(2) That during the year just past, although it closes with a deficit in the General Fund and an exhausted Contingency Fund, the goodness of God has enabled the Society materially to improve its financial position with regard to its securities and some of its special funds.

"The Committee are therefore led to feel and express deep thankfulness to Almighty God that He has seen fit to justify so abundantly the faith of those who believe that He is willing to thrust forth more labourers into His vineyard, and that if He supply the labourers He will assuredly also give the means to send them forth."

Again, on November 14:—

"The Committee, in facing the forecast of the Estimates Committee, showing a possible large deficit in March, 1894, and a possible still larger deficit in March, 1895, desire to remind themselves and their friends:—

"(1) That bearing in mind the greatly increased demands on the funds of the Society, owing to the increased number of missionaries that are being sent out, and the new fields that are opening, it is desirable that the greatest possible economy be exercised in all details of expenditure at home and abroad, and that the Native Churches should be urged to develop their own resources in men and means to the utmost.

"(2) That while a fairly accurate estimate can be made of coming expenditure, no real estimate can be made of coming receipts.

"(3) That the experience of past years shows that whenever the Society has been able to trust fully the Lord whom it serves, He has not failed it.

"(4) That in 1880 the Special Finance Committee which considered the then critical position laid down the limit of expenditure at £185,000, and yet the expenditure has since increased by some £60,000, and been fully covered year by year until the present year's deficit of £3,700, and that this one fact is a signal token of God's goodness to the Society.

"(5) That the fact also of so many well-qualified candidates coming forward is of itself a token of God's favour, and a reason for trusting Him implicitly for the means to maintain them.

"(6) That therefore the Committee are encouraged to go forward in obedience to the Divine leadings, and to persevere in the policy of sending out whatever well-qualified men and women the Lord may raise up. They call upon the members of the Society to inform themselves and others as to the opportunities God is now putting before the Society, the increased number of workers He is raising up, and the consequent largely increased necessity for financial support, and to be instant in prayer for continued guidance and for the gift of simple and humble faith in the Omnipotent Jehovah."

At the December Meeting the Secretaries read a letter received from the President, expressing regret at his inability to be present, and stating that he found in C.M.S. circles great ignorance regarding the financial position of the Society, and of the need of special prayer and effort. He drew attention to the Mildmay motto, "Ask the Lord and tell His people," and suggested that a paper should be widely circulated, communicating the information needed. Accordingly a short statement was at once prepared, to the effect that the expenditure of the year ending March 1894 was estimated to be £265,759, and that, as this sum was in excess of the actual expenditure of the year ending March 1893 by at least £10,000, and the income of that year (apart from a legacy of exceptional amount specially applied) had been £15,335 short of the expenditure, it followed that some £25,000 beyond the ordinary income of 1892–3 was needed to meet the requirements of the year then current.

"Ask the Lord and tell His people."

The year's receipts.

The estimates as to expenditure proved to be almost exactly correct. The following summary representation of the main items of the year's accounts shows how far the income availed to meet the expenditure:—

Leaving a deficit on March 31, 1894, of... ...		£12,610

It should be observed that the ordinary receipts of the year (£239,780) were only £4,000 less than the large total of 1892–3, which was swollen by the Spurrell legacy. Legacies, indeed, were again much above the average (they were, indeed, as much as £16,000 above the average of the few previous years); but fewer large ones were paid to local treasurers, which caused an apparent falling off in the receipts through Associations. In reality, the contributions of living friends of the cause increased over those of the previous year. The receipts included £1,982, as shown above, specially given towards covering the deficit of 1892–3.

The deficit removed.

On April 13, a letter which Mr. Wigram wrote was published in The Times and in other London and provincial papers, calling attention to the deficit of £12,610, and saying that it was earnestly hoped that it might be wiped out before the Anniversary, a fortnight later. Within a day or two, a gift of £1,000 was received from Lady Napier in memory of her revered husband, the late Sir Joseph Napier. On April 19, an offer was made by I. E. to give £1,000 if ten other benefactions of like amount were given or promised by May 1. Eventually I. E. waived the condition and sent her cheque. Another friend, however, offered £1,000 on the same condition and declined to waive it. When May 1 arrived only seven gifts of £1,000 had been received; but other contributions, large and small, had been so numerous that a total of £12,900 had been made up, without reckoning the conditional £1,000. The entire deficit of two years was thus wiped off, and the vast assembly at Exeter Hall rose en masse at the announcement and sang the Doxology. Mr. Wigram then proceeded to tell the meeting that two other conditional offers of £1,000 had been made, so that, if one more could be secured, the condition would be fulfilled, and the Society would be able to claim both these and the original offer of £1,000, in all £4,000, to carry forward towards the new year's expenses. The response came in the afternoon. During the tea which followed the Gleaners' Conference at the C.M. House, a lady, who had already given £500, avowed herself constrained to give the last £1,000. At the evening meeting this fresh token of the Lord's gracious power had to be announced, and again the Doxology was sung with joyful heartiness.

A surplus of £4,000.

The returns from the English Association have not yet been carefully scrutinised with the view to noting which have increased and which gone back in the year's returns. But the receipts from Ireland and Wales call for special notice. Notwithstanding political anxieties and excitement which have prevailed in the former country, and apprehensions for the Church's property and means of usefulness in the latter, both have steadily gone forward in their contributions towards missionary work. The Society received from the Hibernian Auxiliary during the year ending March, 1891, the sum of £7,736; the next two years it was £8,163 and £8,464 respectively. During the year now closed it was £9,255 19*s.* 11*d.* Wales, during the same four years, has gradually increased its contributions from £,2,095 in 1891 to £2,464 in 1894. In 1891 a Welsh-speaking Association Secretary was appointed; and since that appointment the number of parishes supporting the Society increased from 178 to 358.

These examples prove that, where there is the ready will, a way can be found, even in troublous and dark times, to abound in liberality. Another may be quoted, which illustrates the trite, but still discredited, observation that a warm interest in missionary work is one of the best, probably the best, securities against a lack of means for home necessities. The Rev. Prebendary Webb-Peploe said at the Anniversary Meeting:—

St. Paul's, Onslow Square.

There are some men who seem to think that by helping Foreign Missions they will possibly injure their own work at home. Who ever saw water stayed and kept back by human action that did not turn to swamp and miasma; and who ever heard of the Gospel being kept back by any man, or body of men, that did not lead to heresy and disaster? As long as men are introspective in spiritual life, and intensive only, there is injury; for God means us to be extensive, and intended us to feel that, whoever restrains the grace of God, either abroad or in his own sphere of labour, is doing himself a very mortal injury. Did it ever injure a parish to send out much to the foreign field?

I will illustrate this point. I am proud of my people. I do glorify them, even while I am going home to tell them that they have not done anything yet. It is a glorious thing to deal with a people who can be moved. Before the first great February Simultaneous Meetings, we sent up to the Church Missionary Society from St. Paul's, Onslow Square, £4,598 in seven years, or an average for seven years of £708 per annum. Immediately after the February Simultaneous Meetings, we were allowed to make a great start forward, and we have sent up in eight years £13,565, an average for eight years of £1,695 per annum—more than double, for we felt from that moment we were called upon to do our part. And have we suffered at home? We have spent more in our own parish at home and have done more for Home Missions than ever we were permitted to do before.

Obituary.

The following is the obituary of the Year:—Of Vice-Presidents, the Society has lost the Archbishop of Armagh, the Bishops of Killaloe and Meath, the Bishop of Nottingham, Bishop Hill of Western Equatorial Africa; Sir Harry Verney, Bart., and Mr. J. D. Allcroft; of Hon. Governors for Life, the Rev. C. T. Jex Blake, a faithful friend for many years in Norfolk, and the Rev. C. Matheson, late Head Master of the Clergy Orphan School, Canterbury; of working members of the Committee, General Maclagan and the Rev. W. J. Smith, both active fellow-workers and valued counsellors; of other home friends, the Revs. Gordon Calthrop and M. Thomas; of retired missionaries Archdeacon Cobbold, the Rev. W. J. Ball, the Rev. J. H.

Gray (late Association Sec.) and Mrs. Townsend; of missionaries on the roll, the Rev. C. G. Daeuble of Kangra, the Rev. J. Huber of Palestine, the Rev. E. Leversuch, of Sierra Leone, Mrs. Jackson of Bombay, Mrs. Douglas Hooper of East Africa, Mrs. Martin of Fuh-Chow, Miss Cornford of Mid-China, Mrs. Goodall of Japan, and the brethren and sisters in West Africa whose deaths, with that of Bishop Hill, awakened such general sympathy, viz., Mrs. Hill, Miss Mansbridge, and the Revs. J. Vernall, A. E. Sealey, and Edgar Mathias; of Native clergymen, the Revs. W. Moore of Abeokuta, P. K. M. Wirghese of Travancore, T. Edwards of Simla, Appaji Bapuji of Bombay, David Mohun of Allahabad, and three Tinnevelly pastors.

Sir Harry Verney was a hearty friend and supporter of the Society for more than sixty years, and was among the first to promote in early days C.M.S. Associations in the county of Bucks. His Annual Meeting at Middle Claydon was always a specially interesting occasion. Mr. Jex Blake, Rector of Lyng, was a most valued supporter in the county of Norfolk, and for many years one of the most familiar figures on the platforms at the Anniversaries. General Robert Maclagan rendered valuable services in India as a member of the Punjab Corresponding Committee, together with the late Sir Donald McLeod and others. Later, for many years he has been a much-respected member of the parent Committee. He was Chairman of the Publications and Library Sub-Committee, and took great interest in that department. Mr. Matheson formerly did much quiet and unnoticed service as an examiner, both at the C.M. College and the Children's Home. Mr. W. J. Smith, Vicar of St. John's, Kilburn, was also a prominent member of the Committee, and took an important part in the discussion of African questions, in which he was recognised as an expert. He was Association Secretary from 1868 to 1873 in the Yorkshire and Lancashire districts. The deaths of the missionaries, ex-missionaries, and Native clergymen have all been noticed under the Missions to which they severally belonged.

Patronage.

The Bishop of Norwich (Dr. Sheepshanks), the Bishop of Peterborough (Dr. Creighton), and Bishop Cramer Roberts have accepted the office of Vice-President; also the late Bishop Hill, Bishops Phillips and Oluwole, Bishops Evington and Tugwell. The Committee have also appointed the Very Rev. Charles Seaver, Dean of Connor, Archdeacons Martin and Scott, and Mr. J. K. Wingfield Digby, M.P. To fill three vacancies in the list of one hundred Honorary Governors for Life they have nominated the Rev. A. H. Arden, for many years an Hon. Association Secretary, the Rev. Canon Favell, of Sheffield, and the Rev. C. C. Fenn; and they have added to the list of Honorary Life Members the names of Miss Fenwick, of Tynemouth, and Miss Taylor, of Humshaugh, Northumberland.

The Colonial Associations.

C.M.S. deputation to the Colonies.

THE Annual Report of the Proceedings of the Church Missionary Society would be incomplete without some account, however inadequate, of the work and progress of the Missionary Associations now representing the Society in New South Wales, Victoria, and New Zealand. In the hope that the Society might be instrumental in arousing a larger measure of missionary interest in Australasia, the C.M.S. Committee sent a deputation, in response to an invitation from the New South Wales Church Missionary Auxiliary, through the Bishop of Sydney. This deputation, consisting of Mr. Eugene Stock and the Rev. R. W. Stewart, left England in March, 1892. They were accorded a cordial reception by bishops, clergy, and laity, both in Australia and in New Zealand, and returned home in the spring of 1893. As a result of this visit, the Committee were enabled to report to the Annual Meeting in that year that the old C.M.S. Association in New South Wales had been largely developed, a new one formed in Victoria, and plans matured for one in New Zealand; which Associations would henceforth "have authority to select and train and send out missionaries, their location being determined by the Parent Committee." Reports of the inception and progress of the Associations will be found in the C. M. Intelligencer for June, 1893, and January, 1894.

I.—NEW SOUTH WALES.

New South Wales.

The Primate of Australia (Dr. Saumarez Smith) presided at the Annual Meeting of this Association, held at Sydney on February 12, 1894. Bishop Stuart of Waiapu was among those present. The Annual Report, from which we give some short extracts, was read by the Hon. Lay Secretary, Mr. C. R. Walsh, and the balance-sheet by the Hon. Treasurer, Mr. John Kent.

On March 5, 1894, the Committee, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution, made the following appointments for the year:—

President—The Most Rev. the Primate.
Vice-Presidents—The Very Rev. William Macquarie Cowper, M.A., Dean of Sydney; The Ven. Robert Lethbridge King, B.A., Archdeacon of Cumberland.
Hon. Treasurer—John Kent, Esq.
Hon. Clerical Secretary—The Rev. William Martin, B.A.
Hon. Lay Secretary—C. R. Walsh, Esq.

Ladies' Committee

In September, 1893, a Ladies' Committee was formed for the purpose of aiding the Church Missionary Association. Already substantial help has been rendered by the ladies, and they are devising plans whereby their usefulness may be still further extended.

Extracts from the Report of the New South Wales Association.

In 1874 our Association, then in its auxiliary form, received a great stimulus from the advocacy of one whom it affords us exceeding pleasure to welcome at our meeting to-night. Bishop Stuart has observed the gradual development which has taken place since that time, and it will, we are assured, be of deep interest and encouragement to him to compare things as they then were with our Association in its present position, having four missionaries already in the field, as well as a number of men and women who have dedicated themselves to missionary work, undergoing the requisite training and preparation. Annual Report.

From intelligence received to-day, the safe arrival of the Rev. R. W. Stewart and Mrs. Stewart at Fuh-Chow, China, can be announced. Your Committee bear in very grateful remembrance the valuable assistance which Mr. Stewart, in conjunction with Mr. Eugene Stock, rendered to our Association during his visit to this Colony in 1892. It is gratifying to learn, too, that the Native Christians in China are now looking to Australia to send some true men and women to aid in the immense task of giving the Gospel to the millions of their fellow-countrymen.

It was the privilege of the Association during the past year to send out a lay missionary to the post in Eastern Equatorial Africa to which he had been appointed by the Parent Committee. Recent letters from England inform us that Mr. Doulton had been accorded a most hearty welcome by the Society in London.

Your Committee look forward with pleasure to the dismissal during the year of the four ladies who are now in the Marsden Training Home. One of them has already been designated to work under the Rev. R. W. Stewart, at Fuh-Chow, and the Parent Committee are now being requested to name stations for the location of the other three ladies. It would be a source of keen satisfaction if it be found possible for the Parent Committee to appoint one of their number to the same station in Persia to which our revered friend Bishop Stuart is proceeding. Ladies in training.

The Marsden Training Home, for which we cannot be too truly thankful, is answering its purpose admirably. The thanks of the Committee are most cordially given to those gentlemen who, notwithstanding many other pressing duties, have made time for the courses of lectures which were delivered during the year. As the Home is now full, Miss Hassall is adding more rooms, and on their completion at an early date will be able to receive two additional candidates. This provision will not come too soon, for already fresh candidates are applying for admission to the Home. Marsden Training Home.

For the year 1892 the total receipts were £651. 14*s*. 3*d*. It is gratifying to be able to report that for the past year they were £781. 13*s*. 1*d*., being a gross increase of about £130. After deducting amounts received for transmission to other Missions and for periodicals, there remains a net increase of £67, and the receipts have been £54 in excess of the expenditure. Finance.

Seeing that no very special efforts have been put forth to increase the revenue of the Association, and that many circumstances have militated against such a favourable financial result, we have especial cause to thank God and take courage.

During the coming year the sending forth of the candidates now completing their training will raise the expenditure to about £900 for the year, a sum which we doubt not the zeal of our friends will place at the disposal of the Committee.

Missionaries who have gone out in connexion with the Association.

Honorary Clerical Secretary—Rev. E. J. Barnett, M.A., East St. Kilda.
Honorary Secretary for Western Victoria—Rev. Canon Mercer, M.A., Ballarat.

Six months after its institution, the Association held its first Annual Meeting, on March 9th, 1893. The accounts were made up to December 31st, not four months after the formation of the Association, the contributions then received amounting to £160. But the Report further acknowledged the proceeds of missionary boxes sent in during January. No less than 285 boxes had been sent in, and they had produced in four months (less in many cases) £85. 1*s.* 2*d.* First Annual Meeting.

The Association has accepted several candidates, and three have already sailed, viz., Mr. H. C. Tugwell (of Tasmania), who has been appointed to Bengal to join one of the Bands of Associated Evangelists; and the Misses H. E. and E. M. Saunders, appointed to the Fuh-Kien Mission, South China. These and other candidates have received systematic theological instruction for several months. Accepted Missionaries.

In this Colony, as in New South Wales, the Gleaners' Union branches are proving very useful in maintaining and spreading missionary interest, G.U. Branches.

and in fostering a spirit of prayer. They held their Anniversary on our English day, November 1st, at St. Matthew's, Prahran, a suburb of Melbourne. Up to September 25, 1893, no less than 1,146 members were enrolled, including 196 in Tasmania, which Colony is in this respect linked on to Victoria.

The Victoria Association held its second Anniversary on April 6th, 1894, but no report for the year has yet been received. The receipts had been £493.

III.—NEW ZEALAND.

Miss Holloway, of Nelson, is the General Secretary for the Gleaners' Union in New Zealand, and Local Secretaries for Gleaners' Union branches and missionary boxes have been appointed at Auckland, Blenheim, Brightwater, Christchurch, Dunedin, Gisborne, Hawera, Motueka, Matarawa (Wanganui), Napier, Nelson, Oamaru Picton, Reefton, Rotorua, Stoke, Takaka, Taradale, Te Aroha, Te Aute, Waimea West, Waipawa, Waipukurau, Wakefield, Wellington, and Westport; while Mrs. Mules, wife of the Bishop of Nelson, acts as General Box Secretary.

Extracts from the First Annual Report of the New Zealand C.M. Association.

First Annual Report.

It is with much thankfulness that in the first year of its existence the Association has been able to accept three candidates, viz., Miss Hunter Brown, of Nelson, who has been sent to Japan; Miss Pasley, of Blenheim, who was sent to Ceylon, and from thence under later instructions from the Parent Committee in England proceeded to Japan (both these candidates received special missionary training in Melbourne); and Miss Wilson, of Auckland, who is awaiting instructions as to her destination from England. . . . In addition to these accepted candidates applications have been received from several others, which will in due course be dealt with.

With three accepted candidates it will at once be seen that heavy liabilities have been incurred, and your Committee look to the members of the Association not only to enable them to meet the engagements already entered into, but also to be ready to respond to the increasing demands that are made upon them. The income for the first year is sufficient to justify the Committee in believing that the members have realised both the importance of the work and their privilege in sharing in it. . . .

Increase of interest in Missions.

It is quite evident that the interest taken in Foreign Mission work has been considerably increased since the formation of the Association. That this interest will continue to extend may confidently be expected, and as a natural result of this, home work will proportionately flourish. One of the greatest stimulating influences has been the Gleaners' Union, branches of which have been established in all the large centres, and in many of the smaller ones. Some of these branches are vigorous and flourishing, and will no doubt soon be powerful centres of spiritual activity both for missionary and local purposes.

Finance.

As will be seen by the appended balance-sheet, the receipts for the year have been £548. 7*s.* 4*d.* The expenses for printing, &c., for the first year have necessarily been large, but to partly meet these a special donation has been received of £5.

Every subscriber of at least 5*s.* is a member of the Association. It is quite likely that in course of time some of our members who are unable themselves to go forth into the Mission Field will be glad to supply the means for a substitute to go in their place. If one were unable to do this, several could combine, and they would thus considerably lighten the burdens of the Association.

Other Missions.

Your Committee has not forgotten the strong claim that the Maori and Melanesian Missions have upon Churchmen in this Colony, but believing most earnestly that these two Missions will receive not less support, but more, by enlarging our hearts towards the great heathen world, it is resolutely determined to go forward in obedience to the Divine command.

The measure of success that has been so far granted to the Association is cause for much thankfulness and praise. "Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto Thy name give glory." Another year is now entered upon —The message comes to us as it came to the Jews through the prophet Haggai, "Be strong all ye people of the land, saith the Lord, and work, for I am with you, saith the Lord of hosts."

Reports of Special Funds.

REPORT OF THE WILLIAM CHARLES JONES INDIA NATIVE CHURCH FUND.

THE interest of this Fund is available for assisting the Native Church Councils connected with the Church Missionary Society in India to employ more evangelistic labourers among the Heathen. Two important conditions are imposed regarding grants. It is necessary, before an application for a grant can be entertained, for a Native Council to show that the Christians whom it represents have actually engaged in aggressive evangelistic work through a Native Missionary Society, or that they are prepared so to do. It is necessary, also, that the Council be able to show that at least two-fifths of the cost of maintaining religious worship and pastoral work in its district has been raised from purely local sources; and that a definite sum has been contributed towards missionary work. The scheme also provides that the amount granted from the Fund to a Council shall not exceed the amount set apart by that Council for purely evangelistic purposes, or the amount raised by the Native Missionary Society in connexion with that Council.

Grants were made during 1893 to the following Church Councils:—

The following is the general summary of the work of the year ending September 30, 1893, done by Jones Evangelists in Travancore, which was presented to the Travancore Provincial Church Council by the Secretary for this Fund in that Mission:—

One special feature of the work of the Agency during this year was the united effort which the Evangelists from the several centres made in conjunction with other workers at the various important annual Hindu festivals, especially at Ochira and Alwaye, where thousands of people of all classes meet from different parts of the country. The special service which the Rev. T. K. Joseph kindly conducted for them for four days was also a new departure.

One of the Evangelists of the Putupalli centre was called away to rest from his work. As he was returning from Gnakanal after having performed the Sunday duty there, he was bitten by a snake, and died the following day, testifying to the peace and joy he had found in the Lord.

There are 14 Evangelists working in seven centres in connexion with the Cottayam and Mavelikara Church Councils. Interesting reports have been received from these centres, all of which speak very hopefully of the work. The mode of work is the same. The Evangelists invariably visit all places of public gatherings, such as Hindu festivals, cattle fairs, markets, &c., and address the people; Hindus form the majority of their audience on all occasions. They hold private conversations and visit houses. They carry with them handbills, tracts, and Scripture portions. Handbills they distribute freely and tracts and Scripture portions they try to sell to their hearers. In going to a village they endeavour to reach every house there. They have not met with any serious opposition this year; on the contrary, they find opposition softening down, and a readiness in general on the part of Hindus to hear the Gospel and to receive the Evangelists into their houses, and a willing mind in many cases to buy tracts and Scripture portions and to accept handbills. The subjoined statistics give a summary of the year's work:—

REPORT OF THE HENRY VENN NATIVE CHURCH FUND.

FROM this Fund grants are made to (1) Native Church Councils to assist them in maintaining and developing their pastoral work; and (2) to Native Missionary Associations to assist them in carrying on missionary work.

Under the former head grants have been made to the Church Councils of Sierra Leone, Madras, Tinnevelly, Travancore, and Mauritius. The grant to the last-named Council is again larger than it has been wont to be, on account of the trying circumstances of the Mauritius Church through the diminution of the Government grant.

REPORT OF THE MEDICAL MISSION AUXILIARY FUND.

THIS Fund was opened in 1892 to make grants towards the general up-keep of the Society's Medical Missions over and above the grants from the General Fund. During the first year of its existence it was able to do much good work by supplying drugs and instruments that were needed.

As the Committee of the Fund consists mainly of medical men, it was thought that it would be better if it would undertake to supervise all the expenditure on the medical portion of the work carried on in the Society's Medical Missions. It was arranged that the General Fund should contribute the sum of £2,500, and that the Committee of the Fund should collect the balance of the amount required. Early in the present year it was able to decide that it would only be necessary to draw on the General Fund to the extent of £1,500 instead of £2,500.

Each medical missionary does what he can to raise money locally, either by making a small charge to the patients, or by obtaining gifts from natives or European residents, but the amount that is thus received varies very much, in some Missions hardly anything, while in others a substantial amount comes in The Committee obtain estimates of the expenditure and of the local receipts, and then, as far as possible, they grant the amount necessary to make ends meet.

Branches of the Fund have been established: in London—in connexion with St. Paul's, Onslow Square, and St. Jude's, South Kensington; in Eastbourne, Bristol, Torquay, Newcastle, and elsewhere. The Committee of the Fund are very anxious to form other branches, as in most parishes there are some who will support Medical Missions who are not favourable to ordinary missionary work, and others who can give a little without interfering with their subscription to the General Fund of the Society.

The Committee of the Fund publish a Quarterly Paper, which will be sent free on application, and there is also a set of lantern slides illustrative of Medical Mission work; these may be obtained on loan. Special collecting boxes are issued for those who undertake to give one penny daily.

A Juvenile Branch of the Fund has just been started; the object being the collection of small weekly or other contributions towards the support of cots in the Mission Hospitals. The Hon. Secretary (Miss Ware, 13 Stafford Terrace, W.) will be glad to hear from any ladies who are willing to act as Hon. Secretaries of branches in other parishes or towns.

NOTE ON SPELLING OF NATIVE NAMES.

THE following system for spelling NATIVE NAMES is recommended to the Society's Missionaries generally for adoption in their letters and reports, unless any of them should prefer a still closer approximation to the more elaborate scheme of Professor Lepsius. This system should not be applied, of course, to those well-known places of which the spelling has become so fixed that it would be mere pedantry to disturb it; as, for instance, Travancore (Travankur), and Lucknow (Laknau). Other well-known names, spelt correctly according to this method, are not pronounced accordingly by English residents. For example, the a in Lagos is always pronounced by English residents, when speaking English, as in the word make.

The powers of the vowels are as follows:—

a as in '*a*bout.'	o as in 'n*o*t,' or as in the French 'b*o*nne.'
â usually as in 'f*a*ther' (in North-Indian words as in '*a*ll'.)	ô as in 'n*o*te.'
e as in 'p*e*n.'	u as in 'f*u*ll.'
ê as in 'f*ê*te.'	û as in 'tr*u*ly.'
i as in 'th*i*n.'	ai as i in 'th*i*ne.'
î as in 'p*i*que.'	au or ou or ow as in 'b*ou*gh.'

It needs only to be noticed further that—

y always sounds as in '*y*ou.'	gn as in 'poi*gn*ant.
g " as in '*g*o.'	ng as in 'thi*ng*.'
j " as in '*j*oin.'	ei as in 'v*ei*n.'

h has always a separate sound, except in ch as in '*ch*urch,' and sh as in '*sh*e,' th and dh should, therefore, not be used in South Indian names to express the dental t and d.

c, whether for k or s, being superfluous, is not used.

Doubled letters should each be pronounced distinctly, as in Italian.

ae represents a sound intermediate between a in 'm*a*t' and e in 'm*e*t.'

The above Rules are not adopted in the N.-W. America Mission.

NOTICE TO TREASURERS AND SECRETARIES OF ASSOCIATIONS.

THE COMMITTEE OF THE CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY beg to remind the Treasurers or Secretaries of Associations that the Society's Financial year ends on the 31st of March.

The Committee would also strongly urge for universal adoption the practice of making early remittances after the 1st April on account of the year's receipts in the hands of Local Treasurers, who should remit to the Parent Committee at the end of every quarter (or oftener in cases of large sums being received) any sum in their hands, over and above the amount required to meet disbursements, &c. This course would tend to equalise in a greater degree the Income and Expenditure in the earlier months of the Society's Financial year, and save the Society a considerable yearly sum.

Remittances may be made through local Bankers, and their correspondents in London, to the account of the Society at WILLIAMS DEACON and MANCHESTER and SALFORD BANK, Limited, 20 Birchin Lane, London, in which case it is requested that advice of the same be sent by post addressed to the Lay Secretary.

Or Drafts may be forwarded direct to the C.M. House, payable to Major-General CLENNELL COLLINGWOOD, Lay Secretary of the Church Missionary Society, and crossed WILLIAMS DEACON and MANCHESTER and SALFORD BANK, Limited, acct. C.M.S.

Post Office Orders should be drawn on the General Post Office, and be made payable to Major-General CLENNELL COLLINGWOOD.

Sums remaining unpaid on the 31st March are not shown in the Accounts as Balances. The Contribution Lists should therefore agree in total with the amounts actually paid to the Parent Society to that date.

Lists and Accounts (if not sent with the money) must be forwarded not later than April 6th. If not so sent the Lists are liable to be excluded from the Report. The date at which the Accounts of the Association are closed, and the names of the Local Officers, should be specified. Should no officers be named it will be assumed that they remain the same as in the previous Report, and the List will be so printed. Where the Account or the List is a printed one, two copies should be forwarded.

The Contribution Lists should be written legibly to avoid mistakes in printing, and made up in the manner in which the same are printed in the Parent Society's Report. Forms of Account may be had on application at the Society's House.

Where an Association has Branches connected with it, the Money and Accounts of the Branches must be forwarded to the Secretary of the Association some time before the date for forwarding to London. When this is not done within a reasonable time, such Branches should be considered as self-excluded.

Branch Associations should in every case, where practicable, forward their Money and Lists through the Association with which they are connected, and not direct to the Parent Society. If sent direct, the Association or District with which such Branch is connected should be specified.

"Appropriated" Contributions (i.e. Contributions for particular objects for which there is no Special Fund) will be acknowledged as part of the General Fund. All such sums paid through Associations must be distinctly marked in the Association Accounts.

Particulars of Contributions to Special Funds are printed with the Lists to which they respectively belong, and the totals only transferred to the Accounts of the Special Funds. All particulars of Special Funds should be received not later than April 6, in order that the amounts contributed can be credited to the Special Funds Accounts concerned before the Society's Accounts are balanced.

II.—ENGLISH ASSOCIATIONS.

NOTE.—All Contributions from Associations are for year ending Dec. 31st, 1893, except where otherwise stated.
